The power of the press can be applied to any business by using good Printing.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

We get only what we pay for in this world and nothing else that is worth having.

MOTORISTS REALIZE SCENIC GRANDEUR

Tourists Beginning to See Beauty of United States.

That the Americans who have been spending $100,000,000 a year on European tours have been paying a heavy premium for their scenic beauty, and have been going an unnecessary distance to get it, is the discovery made by the United States Department of Interior in its inventory of the wonder spots of this country. It is exposing the self-victimization of our citizens in no uncertain terms and is preaching the sermon of home consumption of American scenery.

"This nation is richer in natural scenery of the first order than any other nation," declares Stephen T. Mather, assistant secretary to the Secretary of the Interior. "It possesses an empire of grandeur and beauty it has scarcely heard of."

The discovery of this grandeur and beauty by the motorists of this country is the sermon set forth by National Touring Week and the "Buy-You-Car-Now" idea, the automobile movement that has seized our nation from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific strand. The impulses for a general outpouring of United States motorists to visit the natural beauty about them, which followed the inception of the movement, indicates that the country is primed for a widespread appreciation of the scenic wonder of our homeland.

TRENTON DIOCESE SCHOLARSHIP TESTS

Camden Girl Wins Admission to Mt. St. Mary College.

Announcement was made today of the winners of the fifth annual scholarship contest of the parish schools of the diocese of Trenton. The tests were personally conducted by Rev. William J. McConnell, the superintendent, and of the fifty schools of the diocese, most of them sent representatives for the competition, Trenton, Camden and South Amboy being the centres in which the examinations were held. Because of the value of the prizes, some of them being worth $1,200.00 each, the usual interest was manifest on the part of not only the pupils, but also the parents and teachers. Among the more valuable awards are the folowing scholarships to educational institutions, and the winners are listed according to their merit:

William Weldron, of Cathedral School, Trenton, wins the scholarship to St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia.

John Zamborsky, of SS. Peter and Paul's School, Trenton, the scholarship to La Salle College, Philadelphia.

Willard Wagner, of Immaculate Conception School, Trenton, the scholarship to La Salle College, Phialdelphia.

Mary M. Shildrick, of Immaculate Conception School, Camden, the scholarship to Mt. St. Mary's College, Plainfield.

Alice Aument, of Immaculate Conception School, Camden, the scholarship to Notre Dame of Maryland College, Baltimore.

The prizes were given by the institution named with the exeception of that to St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, which was donated by Patrick Farley, of Camden.

LITTLE HOPE OF RIFLE MATCHES

Gen. Spencer Admits Improbability of This Year's Shoot.

NO TROOPS AT HOME

Community Clubs Are Sending Men to Sea Girt Range for Valuable Practice—How to Get Official Permission.

Sea Girt, August 11.—While he would not say that the annual rifle matches, which have drawn thousands of marksmen here for many years in the early days of September, will not be held next month, General Bird W. Spencer, in a talk with a Plainfield Press reporter this morning indicated that the prospects of there being any matches are very slim. "We have not sent the program to the printer yet," said the general, "but it is all ready to go, and the New York people want us to have the matches provided the troops get back from the border by the first of September." With the last statement the "grand old man of rifle shooting, as he is known from one end of the country to the other, smiled, knowing how improbable the prospects are for the men getting back.

General Spencer and Colonel Libbey, his chief aid in the work on the range here, had just received a letter from the secretary of the National Rifle Association, of which Mr. Libbey is the president, telling them that included in the army bill, which has gone to the President for signature is an appropriation of $300,000 for use of civilian clubs whose members might want to get practice on the range. "This co-operation on the part of the government means much to the National Rifle Association," said Colonel Libbey. "When I took the place we had but a couple of hundred affiliated clubs, but the co-operation on the part of the government in providing arms, ammunition and ranges has swelled the list so that there are now over one thousand civilian clubs all over the country, which have become affiliated with our organization, and the officers are kept busy all the time, inspite of the fact that our annual matches will probably not be held this year."

Members of the Summit and Red Bank clubs are shooting on the range today, and on August 17 and 18 the East Orange club will come here. The Old Guard, of New York, which has spent a week on the Sea Girt range for many years is coming here on Sunday, August 20, for a full seven days, and one day during that week the Asbury Park Rifle Club will send a delegation of members to the range. The Summit men have also been assigned a number of targets on August 25 and 26.

Up to date the following organizations have sent the number of men to the ranges that is shown below: Newark Rifle Club, 13; National Defence Organization of Summit, 12; Red Bank Rifle Club, 16; Englewood Motor Battery Rifle Club, 13; East Orange Rifle Club, 8; Princeton Rifle Club, 3. Only two civilians, both from Merchantville, have asked for the individual privilege to shoot on the range, and this was granted. In order to secure such permission, when one is not a member of an incorporated club, it is necessary to have a letter of introduction to the officers in charge on the range, from the Mayor or some other prominent citizen of the town from which the applicant comes. National Guard officers can also be used as references.

HEALTH OF MEN IS BIGGEST PROBLEM

What Gen. Hine Is Devoting Attention to at Douglas.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 6.—Developments of the past few days indicate conclusively that the sanitation of the camp and the health of the men are at the present time foremost in the minds of the camp commanders. Furthermore, the preparations which are under way show equally as positively that these important features are going to remain the potent factors for some time to come so far as the New Jersey camp is concerned.

Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine, the New Jersey brigade commander, called a conference of the commanding officers and the medical officers from every organization yesterday and the question of camp sanitation and health conservation was taken up in detail. This was followed by the announcement of the appointment of Colonel Kennedy, of the regulars, as a sanitation officer, to be attached to the New Jersey forces indefinitely.

General Hine, with memories of the fever scourge at Jacksonville, Fla., in 1898 still fresh in his mind, is exerting every power to have the camp properly drained and prepared against the possibility of disease. The recent dysentery outbreak has practically been overcome, few of the outfits reporting any of it and what few cases there are are of a very light nature.

The elation that has spread over the successful handling of that situation is giving place to progressive preparations against any subsequent outbreaks of any kind. The problem has been a big one, but promises now to be settled very happily with little difficulty. The responsibility rests upon the shoulders of the medical department, of which Major Joseph M. Rector is the head in this camp.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRATS TO MEET.

Bristol, Va., Aug. 11.—Undaunted by six successive defeats, the Democrats of the Ninth district of Virginia are preparing to wage another aggressive campaign in an effort to wrest the only Republican district in Virginia. The district convention will meet here tomorrow to select a candidate to make the race against Congressman Campbell E. Slemp, who is assured of renomination at the hands of the Republicans when they meet later in the month. The Ninth district was the girlhood home of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the President, and the Democrats are hopeful that the pride of the voters will aid in a Democratic victory in November.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

FREEHOLDERS ASKED TO HELP ROAD WORK

Letter Written By Chairman of State Highway Commission.

An attempt to build up the road and transportation system of New Jersey has been made by the Commission on Road Legislation. Letters have been scattered throughout the State to every Board of Freeholders, as well as to various organizations, seeking information and suggestions as to a road-building policy that will meet the increased demands which business and traffic are making on not only trunk highways but "feeders" to these highways.

It is felt that for the money spent not enough new roads are being built, nor are the old ones being kept in proper repair. So the commission wishes the State to aid it in "discovering what the fuundamental principles underlying good roads are," thereby enabling the commission to apply those principles to New Jersey roads. The report of the commission, based on the replies it receives, will be made to the Governor.

The commission's letter to the freeholders of the State follows:

"August 9, 1916.

"Dear Sir—Enclosed you will find a copy of a questionaire relative to New Jersey roads which was sent broadcast over the State to granges, boards of trade, banks, manufacturing establishments, and individuals in all walks of life.

"Numerous replies have been received by the commission, giving valuable information about present unsatisfactory road conditions in the State and advancing suggestions as to the methods which New Jersey should adopt to improve these conditions. This information and these suggestions will be duly noted in the recommendations that the commission will make in its report to the Governor.

"In the meantime the commission realizes that no persons in the State have a closer or more practical knowledge of the fundamental merits or defects of our present road laws, systems and methods in the State, county and township than the members of the Boards of Chosen Freeholders.

"We are, therefore, very eager that you write us immediately, giving us the benefit of your knowledge and opinions regarding the all-important matters of construction, maintenance, financing and administration of New Jersey roads. All replies must be submitted before August 23.

"Very truly yours,
"JOHN W. HERBERT,
"Chairman."

SHERIFF OTTO REFUSES TO NAME JAQUES AS CLERK

Sheriff George C. Otto, unmoved by influence brought to bear to persuade him to name Frank D. Jaques clerk to fill the vacancy in the sheriff's office, the situation both as concerns Jaques and the sheriff's office remains the same as it was before Jaques' application for the job was made, says the Elizabth Journal. Through the withdrawal of the Plainfield man from the eligible list, the sheriff was able to appoint Harold S. Buckley to the position, and Jaques is still a candidate for Councilman in the Seventh ward. The councilmanic situation in the Seventh ward with Jaques, Henry Moser and Walter A. Summerton opposing each other for the Democratic nomination remains complicated. Jaques had agreed finally that if he could get the position in the sheriff's office he would withdraw as a candidate for Council and considerable pressure was brought to bear on Otto by Democratic friends of Jaques with no avail. Jaques insists that he will carry the primaries in the Seventh.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS TO HELP MOSQUITO WORK

The aid of about twenty high school boys is to be enlisted in the fight against mosquitoes that breed and gather in pools formed by heavy rains. The mosquito extermination commission of Union county authorized Chief Inspector Russell W. Gies to try to get a corps of high school boys who would be available for extra work following rains that fill low ground with breeding places. Not enough money can be spared to enlarge the regular staff of workers, but it is believed the boys could be trained for the work that they would have to do.

Oiling pools and special drainage work is that which would be required of the younger corps of workers. They would receive a nominal sum each year and would be subject to call. Only in times of emergency would they be needed. It is believed that the civil service examinations will be waived for these temporary workers. The necessity of additional aid in stress times and the schooling this movement will give the boys for future work along this line, are reasons that point to the formation of the new body of helpers.

ORIGIN OF "BUNCOMBE."

How a Colonel's Name Came to Be a Term of Reproach.

Whenever I pick up a copy of the Congressional Record and numerous other publications and read the irrelevant speeches therein reported I sigh for the memory of Colonel Edward Buncombe, "Girard" writes in the Philadelphia Ledger.

Through no fault of the gallant gentleman himself, there clings to his name an unpleasant significance which many of our brave public men do naught to mitigate. Indeed, if there be such a thing as one shade's taking vengeance upon another in the future world Colonel Buncombe will at least pull out Felix Walker's tongue.

It was all Walker's fault that "buncombe" became a term of reproach, and the incident which made it so happened a century ago.

Walker represented in congress a district of North Carolina of which Buncombe county was a part. The county had been named away back in 1791 in honor of Colonel Buncombe.

Walker was one of those long distance orators who without half trying could empty the halls of congress and put them in a condition beside which the dead streets of Pompeii appear great white ways. When upbraided one day for talking about everything except the question at issue Walker used this immortal phrase:

"I am only talking for Buncombe," meaning his home county.

And so "buncombe" became a new word in our language, which has been conveniently shortened into the colloquial "bunk."

TELEGRAPH WITH LIGHTS.

Battleships Can Send Signals Twelve Miles In Daylight.

Although searchlight signaling between battleships was a means of communication at sea long before the introduction of wireless telegraphy, it is still utilized.

The latest battleships of our navy are equipped with projectors designed especially for this purpose, while the older vessels use their regular searchlights, for which auxiliary shutters are supplied. Levers operate these latter members, flashing the lights on and off quickly so that messages may be spelled out in dots and dashes, either at day or night.

For day signaling the light shaft is directed squarely at the observer, and for enabling this a telescope is mounted with the projector. When atmospheric conditions are good the radius of communication is about twelve miles in any direction. At night this is obviously much increased, for light may be played on some prominent cloud and seen for a distance of forty or fifty miles.

When there are no clouds the searchlights may be directed skyward and their shafts of light seen at closer range. The feasibility of launching captive balloons as substitutes for cloud banks has been suggested.—Popular Mechanics.

COLGATE STRONGEST, SAYS BLANCHARD

Burlington County Senator Tells How Republicans Can Win.

Newark, Aug. 11.—Former State Senator Blanchard H. White, of Burlington county, has issued through Colgate headquarters here a statement urging the nomination of Senator Austen Colgate for Governor. He declares his belief that Colgate would be the strongest man the party could name for the office. The statement follows:

"The prevailing opinion is that New Jersey will elect a Republican Governor this year. It is important, however, in order that this result may be achieved, that the party shall choose the candidate who can poll the largest number of votes. This is the plan the Republicans have adopted in the nation, and it has met with the most hearty approval.

"Such a candidate is Senator Austen Colgate, of Essex county. Not only will he unite all forces in the party, but his success in the primary will attract the support of the independent voters and of thousands of Democrats of independent leanings, because of his active interest in promoting the cause of good roads, the effective work he has done in connection with the distribution of State school moneys for the maintenance of our public school system and his other activities in the interest of the State and its citizens.

"By his course in public life Senator Colgate has established a reputation for ability, fearlessness and unimpeachable integrity. I have served with him in the State Senate for three years. While we have disagreed on several important matters, it has always been clear to me that he voted in accordance with the dictates of his conscience.

"I feel it to be a certainty that with such a man as our standard bearer New Jersey will be restored to the Republican column and will be assured for the next three years of a thoroughly up-to-date business administration. For these reasons I believe that the Republicans should rally under the banner of Senator Austen Colgate."

MANY NEW PLAYS FOR THIS SEASON

What Broadway Will Have to Offer Theatregoers In Few Weeks.

New York, Aug. 11.—Managerial plans for the new season, as announced from the various offices, indicate much general theatrical activity this year. The rather unexpected prosperity of the season of 1915-16 has given the producers the courage as well as the necessary wherewithal to carry out any new plans they have in mind, and in consequence the season now about to begin bears the preliminary promise of being one of the most notable in recent years.

Although some of the managers will hold back their more important productions until after the presidential election, a number of new plays have already been offered to the public, and many others are in prospect for the near future. As in other seasons, however, it is to be expected that a number of the plays the managers say they have for production will not be presented this year except in emergencies, such as successive failures of plays upon which the greater hope had been placed.

A sweeping drive of new plays has struck Broadway even thus early in the new season. Miss Blanche Ring reopened Maxine Elliott's Theatre this week in Willard Mack's latest comedy, "Broadway and Buttermilk." Max Marcin's comedy, "Cheating Cheaters," has been put on at the Eltinge, with Miss Marjorie Rambeau, who is Mrs. Willard Mack in private life, in the chief role. At Cohan's Theatre this week David Belasco presented Roi Cooper Megrue's play, "Seven Chances," an exceedingly early premiere for a Belasco attraction. The Thirty-ninth Street Theatre has reopened with "The Belle of Trouville," a musical play, with Mme. Chapine in the leading part.

Before the end of the month another Willard Mack play, "King, Queen, Jack," will reach Broadway, followed by Miss Irene Fenwick in "The Guilty Man," the new drama by the late Charles Klein and Miss Ruth Helen Davis. Two productions of promise are announced for next week, when the Charles Frohman company will introduce Miss Ann Murdock at the Lyceum in "Please Help Emily," and the Messrs. Shubert will present "The Brazilian Honeymoon," an elaborate musical comedy, at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre.

"The Guilty Man," "Cheating Cheaters" and "King, Queen, Jack" will be presented under the direction of A. H. Woods. Other attractions to be presented by Mr. Woods early in the season will include "The Squab Farm," a new comedy by the Hattons, with a cast headed by Robert Edeson; a new farce comedy entitled "His Bridal Night," to be presented next week with the Dolly sisters as stars, and a new play by Louis Anspacher, entitled "That Day," in which Kathryn Kidder will have the leading role.

The offerings announced by the Charles Frohman Company, in addition to those already mentioned, will include a new Barrie play for Maude Adams, entitled "A Kiss for Cinderella;" Margaret Anglin in "Caroline," a new comedy by W. Somerset Maugham, and new plays for Ethel Barrymore and Otis Skinner.

The Shuberts include in their plays the productions of Eugene Walter's dramatization of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," Mark Swan's farce, "Somebody's Luggage," featuring James T. Powers, and a new comedy by Alfred Sutro. As usual the Shuberts will make a great many musical productions and they will also send out more than the usual number of road companies. Many of last season's successes will be continued, including Lew Fields in "Step This Way," Sam Sothern in "A Pair of Silk Stockings," Lou-Tellegen in "A King of Nowhere," and Marie Tempest in "A Lady's Name."

The first offering of Selwyn & Co. will be "John W. Blake," a new play by Roi Cooper Megrue and Irvin Cobb, with George Nash and Janet Beecher in the principal roles. Margaret Illington will be starred in a new comedy by Avery Hopgood and Jane Cowl will have a new comedy called "Betty Behave," by Ralph Renaud.

The list of new plays to be produced by Cohan & Harris before the new year includes two from the pen of George M. Cohan. One of these is "The Cohan Revue 1917," which will be presented Christmas night. The other is a comedy written for Chauncey Olcott. Another of the firm's productions is James Montgomery's new comedy, "Irene O'Dare," which has already been given its premiere. "The Moral Code," by Cyril Harcourt, author of "A Pair of Silk Stockings," is to be tried out at Long Branch next week. Other new plays to be seen in New York before New Year's Day include "Buried Treasures," a comedy of romance and adventure, by Rita Johnson Young, and "The Road to Destiny," adapted from one of O. Henry's stories. Still other Cohan & Harris productions in prospect are "Speed Up," a farce by Owen Davis, and "I Love the Ladies," a comedy by Emily Byitray and John Richards. Some of the Cohan & Harris successes of the last two seasons will be sent on tour, including "The Great Lover," "The House of Glass," "It Pays to Advertise" and "Hit-the-Trail-Holliday."

Henry W. Savage, whose theatrical activities last season were directed chiefly to motion pictures, will be active again the coming season in the field of the legitimate drama. His plans include the presentation of a drama by Johnstone Platt and an Americanized version of a German farce which has had a great success in Berlin. Mitzi Hajos and Tom McNaughton will appear on tour in "Pom-Pom" and "Everywoman" will enter its seventh season.

Arthur Hammerstein has already begun his season's activities with the production of the Edward Clarke farce, "Coat Tales." In addition, Mr. Hammerstein will have six productions under his direction, including five musical shows. Next month "The Mother-Woman," a three-act drama by Cosmo Hamilton, will be given. Mr. Hammerstein will produce a musical comedy by Otto Hauerbach and Rudolph Friml, and another musical play in connection with Lee Shubert. Two companies in "Katinka" and one of "High Jinks" will be sent on the road.

H. H. Frazee has announced only one production for the early part of the season. This is a new play by Otto Hauerbach, entitled "The Victim," in which Henry Kolker has the leading role. Mr. Frazee will open the Longacre Theatre with James Montgomery's comedy, "Nothing But the Truth," which has had a summer run in Chicago, and from the same city he will bring the new farce, "A Pair of Queens."

THE FORUM

FAVORS STREET QUARANTINE.

816 First place, Plainfield, N. J.
August 10th, 1916.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press,
Plainfield, N

Dear Sir:

"In my opinion the residents of Plainfield are under a distinct obligation to M Alan M. Johnson for his letter to Mayor Calkins on the subject of quarantine.

"I have noticed on the part of the health authorities a decided tendency towards attempting to minimize the very serious situation which unquestionably threatens our city. Here in Painfield we enjoy many advantages denied other less favored towns. We have a model police force, a splendid fire department, a superb school system, a good water supply and a well directed street cleaning division. But all these avail nothing in the absence of a strong and competent health board. If we expect to maintain our reputations as a desirable residential city we must immediately and intelligently face this quarantine question. I positively know that children under 16 years of age are constantly arriving in our midst, without notice whatever of their arrival being sent to the health board. To avert this danger to our little ones a substantial penalty should be imposed for all such evasions of the health regulations. Unless strict quarantine be adopted we shall have amongst us a veritable plague, the like of which has seldom ever been known.

"The contention that quarantine hurts business is entirely beside the question, and it is equally irrelevant to assert that quaratine could not be maintained in a city composed largely of commuters, few of whom are under the age of 16.

"The State of Pennsylvania is enforcing the strictest quaratine against New Jersey because of laxities in our State. Surely what Pennsylvania can do in the way of protection against New Jersey we citizens of Plainfield ought to be able to do against such hotbeds of disease as New York city, Brooklyn, Newark and some other places. Yesterday there were reported 136 new cases in New Jersey as against four in the entire State of Pennsylvania. If, therefore, quarantine is considered necessary in the State of Pennsylvania, how much more is it necessary in New Jersey?

"I maintain that nothing but an impartial strictly enforced quarantine in Plainfield against all children under 16 will suffice to protect us from the threatened violation.

"Yours very truly,
"CHARLES LYON."

SIR JAMES GRANT 85 YEARS OLD.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 11.—Sir James Grant, who is known as Canada's "Grand Old Man of Medicine," celebrated his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary today, receiving many messages of greeting from members of the medical profession and personal friends throughout the Dominion and from across the Atlantic as well. Sir James came to Canada from his native Scotland in early life. His activities have not been confined to his chosen profession, since for more than [illegible] years he sat in Parliament [illegible] a leading part in public affairs. He has been honored with the presidency of practically all the medical and allied societies of Canada and with honorary membership in numerous foreign societies.

REUNION OF TUPPER FAMILY.

Sandwich, Mass., Aug. 11.—Many descendants of Thomas Tupper, who came to this country in the early part of the seventeenth century, and settled in this town, came here today to celebrate the first annual reunion of the Tupper Family Associated of America. Members from Minnesota and other distant States were included in the attendance. Frederic Allison Tupper, of Boston, presided over the business meeting, which was held in the First Paris church, of which Thomas Tupper was one of the first members. In the afternoon the members visited the old Tupper homestead, built by the founder of the American branch of the family in 1637, and now one of the oldest dwellings in New England.

Miss Maude McAfee, of Oxford place, has begun a two weeks' vacation, the greater part of which will be spent in making daily trips.

Mrs. L. E. Salesbury and Miss Marie Salesbury, of this city, are registered at the New Monmouth, Spring Lake, for the month of August.

SMALL BOARD CO-OPERATION.

Defeat of the small board of freeholder proposition in Union county has failed to check a movement for a small board in Morris, and the question will be submitted to the voters in November, says the Newark News. The filing of the petition in Morris may even encourage the voters of Union county to try again at the coming general election to reverse the verdict reached at the polls on June 13 last, when, in an unusually light vote, they defeated the proposed change by a large majority.

With a fair registration of the popular will, both of these counties ought to adopt the better form of government again as they did once, only to lose it because of a legal teachnicality. The arguments against the change are purely partisan and will not bear a fair analysis. The evils of the big board system are constantly in evidence and are notorious.

If the friends of the small board movement in these two adjoining counties should pool their interests to make a victorious campaign, they could accumulate a lot of convincing evidence of the inefficiency of their present rule without sending a delegation to attend the investigation going on in Warren county, and they could gain knowledge of the benefits of the small board administration by paying visits to their neighbors on every side. Should they vote for the small board, there would be only one county—Somerset—left in the whole of the northern half of the State to stick to the old system.

The announcement of Mayor Leighton Calkins that he was not a candidate for re-election has set the political pot boiling in Plainfield, and the average voter will be surprised at the number of good mayors he has ignored before many more weeks are passed. The only two names publicly mentioned so far, Richard A. Claybrook and E. H. Bird, are those of men who are well fitted for the duties of the office and either would be a credit to the town and its citizenship as chief executive of the municipality. However, Mr. Calkins' statement was not final. He has said that he does not want to be mayor again, but the people have not said they do not want him, and because of the important public improvements that have been started during his administration and are not yet completed those on the inside in municipal affairs feel that he should accept another term. Mayor Calkins brought action on the new city hall, and his guiding hand is needed for its construction. He also secured an exhaustive report on the different departments of the city through the generosity of the Taxpayers' League, and has in mind the adoption of many recommendations made by the experts who made the investigation. With him out of office this work would probably be dropped, and the loss to Plainfield would be great. There are many other reasons why taxpayers should think seriously before they begin to look for a new mayor.

Jersey City has lost in its attempt to bar explosives, and the decision handed down in this case gives railroad companies wide power in handling and storing dangerous freight in the State of New Jersey. It was admitted even by the Corporation Counsel of Jersey City before the explosive embargo was put into effect that it could not be founded on law, but the safety of the people demanded action, and no other way could be seen to insure their protection. The case, of course, will not be dropped now, but will be fought out in a higher court, although its present status leaves the railroads with power to do almost as they please. Plainfield and all other communities lend their moral support, at least, in the fight being made by Jersey City's officials.

Is American prosperity permanent? Ask the Southern farmer. This year's cotton crop will be more than 13,000,000 bales, and cotton is bringing 14½ cents a pound. Only two years ago the planters of the South were begging buyers to take their crop at 6½ cents or even 6 cents a pound. Cotton alone will bring a sale price of more than $1,000,000,000 this season, and the amount may go even higher.

FIRST CIVILIAN CRUISE TO START NEXT WEEK

Notices are being sent to those in this district who have enrolled, for the civilian cruise of the navy to report before Tuesday to the battleship New Jersey, which is at anchor off West 96th street, New York. For this purpose a half hour boat service between the dock and the ship from 4 to 9 o'clock in the evening has been started. It is desired that all recruits complete arrangements in advance. It was announced also that the time for enrollment in the motor boat training manoeuvres, which will occupy the last week of the cruise, has been extended until Tuesday. Several Plainfielders have been much interested in the civilian cruise, but it is not known whether any from this city are enrolled.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Always Behind.

It's usually true when we get a new suit, we have need for a pair of new shoes,
And when we get footwear, our time-honored hat is really too shabby to use.
And when we have saved up enough for a hat, it's certain—as certain as fate,
The suit we have treasured is either worn out, or far, far away out of date.

We find the same curious trouble in life in things more important by far—
We buy us a horse, for our neighbors have one, and lo, they have purchased a car.
And when we are able to buy us a car, by striking some gold-bearing spot,
We buy, and discover they've sold their machine and purchased a sea-going yacht.

And if by some chance we inherit the scads—newspapers say some people do—
And hike to the ship-yards where vessels are made to get us a sea-goer, too.
The dealer will say, "There's a bargain for you; your neighbors are tired of their boat.
The seas were too thick, or too deep or too salt to let people easily float.
And doctors have ordered that they shall break loose and get a complete change of scene;
So here is a bargain—their beautiful yacht, they've purchased a flying machine."

Excuse me a moment, I wish to say
"darn" for bitterness sticks in my cup.
Ambition is urging, but fate holds my leg to see that I never catch up.

Picked Up a Premature Package.

A rounder was bidden to the house of a friend whose wife was away and who was giving a stag party. The distance to the house from downtown was not great and the guest decided to walk it. He stopped in so many country clubs on the way that when he arrived he was

Pickled,
Pie eyed,
Poisoned, Polluted,
Potted and Plastered.

The host met him at the door and took one flash.

"Jack," he said, sorrowfully, "couldn't you trust me?"

Another Substitute.

Harrison G. Shoupe, a school janitor, has discovered that a splendid substitute for gasoline can be made from breakfast food. One ounce of the cereal (just what it is he proposes to keep secret) added to five gallons of water is good for 100 miles in anybody's flivver. A ten-cent package contains more potential power than one of John D.'s tank wagons.

Shoupe made his discovery when he accidentally dribbled a spoonful of the cereal on his soup-stained vest. The spots vanished in a trice and an idea was born. He discovered in the course of his experiments that the cereal water would heat a cook stove, kill cockroaches, operate a blow torch and perform all other functions that have been saddled onto gasoline. The rest was only a natural development.

Advice to Young Ladies.

It is better to have loved a fat man than never to have loved at all.

Don't grab him off just because he wears a violet vest. It isn't an infallible sign of aristocracy.

A man whose ears stick out from his head like the wings of a biplane is apt to be generous to a fault, perhaps more generous to a fault than to anything else.

If you are counting on getting any pin money, marry a man who carries his change loose in his trousers pocket. He may never have very much, but what he has you are welcome to. Beware of string wallets.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Charlie Chaplin appears today and tomorrow in his latest comedy creation, entitled "One A. M.," which proves to be decidedly in the nature of a novety, for after the first hundred feet or so the illustrious comedian becomes the star and supporting cast all roled in one. No other living creature is seen after this short introductory space, and Charlie, by himself, creates all the stir that is needed, sometimes even giving animation to inanimate objects lying about the premises. Most of us are acquainted with Chaplin as a comic entertainer, without rival in the field of broad farce, but if we had been told that even he could hold forth alone for two reels, we might have doubted its possibility. But this, Chaplin does and it is an unprecedented feat in pictures. Such a role drains upon all the resources of an actor, and there is not much doubt that this is the most exacting role the comedian ever essayed. Charlie Chaplin's bottomless well of originality is an ever increasing source of wonder and in his clever mind originated the ridiculously funny bits of action which inhere in this film, and he is director as well. In addition today Sally Crute and Robert Brewer appear in a pleasing comedy drama, entitled "The Matchmakers." Vivian Rich is seen in a rural playlet, entitled "Pastures Green," and the latest Mutual Weekly is shown. On Saturday, in addition to Chaplin, Mabel Trunelle is starred in "The Southerners." Anna Little and Frank Borzarge are features in "Nugget Jim's Pardner," and special comedy and educational subjects complete the program.

On Monday Mae Marsh and Robert Harron, two of the most popular young film stars, appear in a fitting vehicle, entitled "The Wild Girl of the Sierras," while on Tuesday petite Dorothy Gish and the Triangle kiddies will be seen in "The Little School Ma'am."

RUMORS OF CHANGE IN N. J. CAMP MAKE HIT WITH MILITIAMEN IN HOT ARIZONA

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Douglas, Arizona, August 9.—There are a great number of rumors still circulating about. The one regarding the trains ready to carry us home, of course, is of great interest, but another one that we are to be moved farther west, into country where there are trees and grass, also is popular.

We were much cheered today when twenty-seven big motor trucks were landed here, and we were told they were to be attached to the quartermaster's department of the regulars, at the quartermaster depot being built here.

The government also has assigned to Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine a fine big automobile, but, as Major Alexander P. Gray, his adjutant, already has one here, we did not need it very badly.

Some of the men still have only one uniform each, but, with the establishment of the quartermaster post here, this will soon be remedied.

There was a nice little dinner at Warren last night to Stock Exchange men of the New Jersey troops, given by John Greenaway, who was a captain in Roosevelt's Rough Riders in '98 and who now controls a flock of mines and things of that kind down here. Last night Major Gray, Lieutenant Harry V. D. Moore, aide to General Hine, and Roger and J. Hartley Mellick, troopers in D troop, all Stock Exchange members, went to Warren.

We are getting up an officers' baseball team, and next week the El Paso Country Club team will journey down here and play us. Today the cavalry officers went to a shooting expedition. One party, made up of Major William A. Bryant, Captain William O'G. Quinby and Lieutenants Hobart B. Brown and Louis D. Kilgus, motored about thirty miles into the country. They shot a number of prairie dogs, jack rabbits and a few snakes—and stopped at Edwards' ranch, where they had a real chicken dinner and reassured the charming daughters of the rancher that they were safe from Mexican inroads as long as a Jerseyman could pull a trigger.

Major Jean Wolfe, surgeon of the First Regiment, will start tomorrow to build his real wooden hospital and clinic. It will have an infirmary and a ward with eight beds.

We are not stating the name of the outfit, of the men or the mule that figured in this story, but it is about like this. A gang of rookies have been complaining about the doodle bugs that crawl into their cots. Last night when they entered their tent the eight of them received a warm reception. Some one had tied a mule in the tent, and when the mule got through, the rookies were scattered all over the camp. However, it should be remarked that boxing gloves had been tied on the mule's feet.

The Irvington Relief Organization sent sixty comfort kits to the Irvington boys in the First Regiment and Troops A and C. They werre gratefully received.

Captain Gerrish Newell of the First is a proud man today. "Bud" Fisher, the cowboy of Troop C, who rode the worst horse in town some time ago, challenged Newell to a quarter mile horseback ride for real money. Well, anyway, Newell beat him, and there is to be a big return match. The weekly prize offered by Captain Lanterman for the best kept tent will have to be split this week among the men of the tents commanded by Sergeants Zeliff and Glasby and Corporal Faul.

Lieutenant Vinton P. Wilkinson and a party went to Warren last night, twenty-two miles, and the driver who took them home made the trip over the rough roads in forty-five minutes. Major Gray and his party beat this with a mining man at the wheel of a racing car. They made it in forty minutes and the members of both parties are feeling themselves today to see if they are still intact.

On Saturday, General Hine got all field and medical officers together again and talked over the progress of the sanitary work, the general health of the camp and the carrying out of all general plans. He also had a word to say about kicking among some few of the junior officers and advised the commanding officers to see that the youngsters who talked too much or too violently were reminded that they were officers. The reports on all phases of the work were very satisfactory. These cabinet meetings will be kept up.

On the food question some of the outfits here at the camp of the Jersey guardsmen are getting their menus in such shape that they are presented a week ahead, and the commands are saving on ration money—that is, they have rations left over, which can be turned in and the money added to the mess funds of the companies.

Food Like Mother Made.

In the First Regiment, in the companies where some of the malcontents kicked, there is a considerable ration saving, and the men are getting good, wholesome food. Of course, there was a time or two when the food might have been overcooked, but one meets with that in the best hotels.

Here was the menue for Friday in one outfit: Breakfast—Liver and bacon, baked potatoes, brown gravy; cream of wheat and milk, bread, coffee; dinner, beef stew and dumplings, roast potatoes, apple pudding, cream sauce, bread and lemonade; supper, macaroni, meat balls, tomatoes, corn pancakes with syrup, peaches, bread and iced lemonade.

This is in the First Ambulance Company. Everything served was either a ration allowance or, in a few minor details, food purchased with money saved on our regular ration allowance. In other words, the government paid for everything that the men ate. It goes without saying that this is a much better table than a lot of the kickers are accustomed to at home.

In the First Regiment the bill of fare is enhanced by an additional sum of money of about $100 to each company, the earnings of the post exchange so far.

In contrast to the kickers against the food here and those who wish to go home is the case of Buck McKee of B troop, one of the horse experts, who has been rejected because of a slight physical defect. This man, because of his knowledge of horses, is invaluable and he stands ready to sign a waiver, that is, to absolve the government from paying him or his family a pension for physical disability incurred in service. This was called to the attention of the regular army mustering officer, and his excuse in refusing to allow the man to remain in the service was that it was too much trouble to keep a record of waivers. In other words, it is an acute case of armygitis, of "passing the buck."

By the by, Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine, has a real home now. After all the officers in the commands had built themselves wood and canvas houses, he, like a hardened old campaigner, stuck to his open tent. Major Alexander P. Gray, Jr., his right hand, decided that the general must have a case (house) also, and, from Captain Claude E. Lanterman of Battery A were requisitioned Mechanicians James S. Klosky, Harry M. Durye and Robert Howard. These built him a frame building of one room, canvas covered, that is now the pride of the camp. It is seldom that General Hine in his new house, except when he is sleeping, however, for he is either riding through the camp, inspecting or visiting different commands and discussing needs.

Two Tons of Horseshoes Arrive.

Well, another problem has been removed from our minds. We have received two tons of horseshoes, and now many of our mounts, that have been unshod, will be taken care of. Also there is the little details of shoeing 300 or more mules.

Colonel John D. Fraser has received $150 from Mrs. James F. Fielder, head of the New Jersey Soldiers' Relief Committee, and he is using the money to build a wooden clinic.

There has been a noticeable decrease in flies in the last few days and generally speaking, camp sanitation is almost perfect right now. Colonel Chase W. Kennedy, who has been assigned here as sanitary officer, went over to the camp and he could not find one serious flaw.

Some of the work is not yet completed, but it will be. The sick list, never of serious proportion, has gone down and we have not one serious case of illness in camp. However, there is one problem that is annoying us here in the last few days—and they have been hot, humid days—that is, the shortage of ice. We have enough for the clinics and the Field Hospital, but that is about all. We believe the ice plant is breaking down in town and the natives will have to discuss how to fix it for a few weeks before they get on the job.

TUNING UP

GRATITUDE.

On the sands of Arizona,
'Neath the brilliant tropic sky,
Lies the camp of Jersey Guardsmen
And the blazing sun rides high.

Answering the call of duty,
Filled with patriotic zeal;
Stand the guardsmen on the border
Making for their country's weal.

Do they fear the sniper's bullets?
Do they dread the bandits' raid?
Nay! for they are valiant soldiers,
Firm, and strong, and unafraid.

Not a coward lurks among them.
Till the call to "Men!" they hear;
Then they shudder, then they tremble
For the fight with flies is near!

Flies on the butter, flies on the bread,
Flies under foot and flies overhead!
"Oh, where are the swatters, these foemen to stay,
That we may go undisturbed on our way?"

Promptly in answer to our piteous call,
Came a gnat blessing the screened-in mess hall;
From friends back in Jersey who so generously sent
This gift to the boys of the old mess-tent.

Gladly now, into line they fall,
When the summons comes to the screened-in hall;
And, while eating their chicken and red-currant tarts,
Thank the dear friends in Plainfield, with all their hearts.

FUTURE OF ALASKA.

A Comparison of Our Territory With the Scandinavian Countries.

Alaska has the same latitude as Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland and similar climatic conditions. The same development may be expected in Alaska that has obtained in those Scandinavian countries, increased and intensified by her enormously great latent resources.

The Scandinavian countries have 16,000 square miles under cultivation and 75,000 square miles in grazing. Our department of agriculture has classified 60,000 square miles in Alaska as suitable for cultivation, located mostly in the Susitwa, Tanana and Kuskokwim valleys, with an additional 100,000 suitable for hay and grazing, and another 100,000 square miles of reindeer range. This estimate makes available for agricultural purposes 260,000 square miles of the 566,446 square miles which constitute Alaska's total area.

Alaska's annual output of gold is $20,000,000. Fisheries produce nearly as much; it has the richest and largest copper deposits in the world; it has coal deposits equaling those of Pennsylvania and West Virginia in quality and surpassing them in volume.

The Scandinavian countries have 12,000,000 population and 14,000,000 head of live stock. Applying the same ratio to the available lands of Alaska would give her a population of 30,000,000, with 50,000,000 live stock.—Hon. A. Barton Hepburn in Leslie's.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN ANSWERS QUESTIONS OF THE PLAINFIELD DAILY PRESS SWIMMING PUPILS

Famed Swimming Authority Tells Why Some of the Beginners Have Difficulty and How They Can Overcome Them. Tomorrow She Tells You How to Float.

Article No. 10.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

I have received so many letters asking for special information that I have decided to devote this article to them.

The answers I am giving should be read by all of my pupils, for they will be found to contain useful information for every one of you, and should, in a way, be considered the same as a lesson.

Question No. 1—I simply can't keep my head above the water, no matter how I try. I have followed your lessons for "Dry-Land" swimmers carefully and do hope I will be able to swim soon.

Answer No. 1—The reason you cannot keep your head above the water is because you are letting your feet hang down in the water too far. Keep your legs up high, so that the weight of your feet will not drag them down.

This is a very common fault of new pupils and if you carefully attend to your legs and feet you will overcome this easily remedied trouble. Do not hold your head back too far.

Question No. 2—Will Hardy—Will you kindly tell me how to improve the trudgeon stroke. I have read your articles with great interest and although knowing how to swim in a way. I have found some new tips on swimming in your lessons that have benefited me tremendously.

Answer No. 2—Thank you so much for your very nice letter. I am sorry, but at the present time I will not be able to explain the trudgeon stroke as I want my pupils to first learn the breast stroke perfectly. Supposing you wait and keep on with the class and improve the breast stroke until all of my pupils have mastered it and then we will continue.

Question No. 3—F. G. L.—I have tried to follow wour lessons daily, but find that the strenuous work has made my muscles very sore and my body feels so tired.

Answer No. 3—Of course you will feel the effects of strenuous exercises, but that is only to be expected. Feeling the way you do should not deter you for one minute from the main object you are striving for. You are evidently in what might be termed a "soft" condition. Your muscles need a bit of hardening and if you will keep on you will soon lose these pains.

Do not try to do too much, take your time and proceed slowly. If you feel stiff in the morning do the exercises I asked you to do.

Question No. 4—Four Girls—We are so glad to let you know that we are now able to swim and we all thank you so much and hope you will continue to teach us new strokes and dives.

Answer No. 4——Dear Girls: So glad to hear from you. I wish you could see the stacks of letters that continue to arrive. There are now hundreds of thousands of members of this class of mine who can take care of themselves in the water and our next step will be to teach you all there is to know about the other strokes. But first of all I wish you all to advance in the art of swimming, the breast stroke for a distance. I want to show you that it is possible to swim many miles easily with nothing but the breast stroke.

Tomorrow—Miss Kellermann's article in the Plainfield Daily Press will tell you how to float. Every beginner attempts to float from his very first time in the water; few succeed. But Miss Kellermann will tell you how to do this splendidly.

MILLINERY AND NECKWEAR NOVELTIES.

The Bat Wing Hat an Impressive Affair—And an Impressive One—Sets Most Attractive.

By Mary Glynn.

Millinery and neckwear go hand in hand to a certain extent, and one rather has a tendency to shape the other. Needless to say that the vogue for the high collar calls for small and tall hats, while the broad hats usually go well with the low, flat collars. Judging from the present outlook, it appears that there will be an even quantity of both, for there are very smart stock collars with soft jabots, and also large flat collars open low in front, while hugging high and close to the neck in back. In the realm of millinery the hats have appeared—some close fitting and very tall, others broad and flat—so it would seem that there is ample opportunity to make both items harmonize. Illustrated is a splendid example of the broad hat and collar. Here a collar and cuff set is shown in white organdy, fashioned in double cape effect. The edge bound with a narrow satin cording. A very attractive velvet and satin hat is shown, the effect of the ensemble reminding one of a bat. This is a very impressive creation, extremely smart and very new. Worn with a navy mohair frock and smart button boots, these two items proved most effective.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Grethel Found A Little Cottage In the Woods.

The King Saw the Beautiful Creature.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

AFTER bread and jelly the children cuddled down beside daddy, and he told them this: "When a spiteful fairy turned Hansel into a fawn, which followed Grethel around the woods, they at last came upon a little cottage. Grethel looked in and found it quite empty. 'We can stay and live here,' she said to herself.

"Then she went and gathered leaves and moss to make a soft bed for her fawn, and each morning she went into the woods to pick nuts, roots and berries for herself. Sometimes she found sweet shrubs and tender grass for her fawn. It ate out of her hand and was pleased with her care. It played and frisked about her while she worked.

"Every evening when Grethel was tired and had said her prayers she laid her head upon the fawn for a pillow and slept. If poor Hansel could have taken his own form again and become her own brother she knew they would have been quite happy alone in the woods.

"For a long time they lived together as Grethel and the fawn. Then the king of that country chanced to hold a big hunt in the woods.

"When the fawn heard all around the echoing of horns, the baying of hounds and the shouts of huntsmen he wanted to go and see what was going on. 'I can no longer stay here at the cottage, sister. Let me go into the woods,' he begged.

"He begged so long that she at last let him go. 'Be sure you come back to me this evening, Hansel,' she said. 'I shall shut the door to keep out the wild huntsmen. So you must tap and say, "Sister, let me in," and I shall know it is you. But if you do not speak I shall keep the door fast.'

"Then away sprang the fawn and frisked and bounded along in the bright sunshine. The king and the huntsmen saw the beautiful creature and followed it. But they could not overtake him. When they thought they were sure of their prize he sprang o : the bushes and was gone once more.

"As it grew dark he came running home to the hut and tapped on the window. 'Sister, sister, let me in!' he said. Then Grethel opened the door a bit. In he bounded and slept soundly on his soft bed.

'Next morning the hunt began again, and when the fawn heard the huntsman's horn he said, 'Sister, open the door, for I must go out again.' 'Come back to me at night and remember what you are to say,' Grethel answered, letting him out."

Then the children thanked daddy for the story and hopskipped off to bed.

Marrying a Butterfly

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ralph Hears Very Good News Through Laura Morton.

"Mother read this." Ralph handed his mother Ethel's letter. Mrs. Gordon read it and turned with moist eyes to her son.

"The little girl has begun to grow up, my son. Now that the awakening has come all will go well if you remember that development comes slowly and you must not expect to find an experienced head on such youthful shoulders. I do not mean youthful in years, you know." The mother reached over and stroked her boy's hand.

Ralph was silent for some time, and his mother did not disturb hm. Finally he said in a low voice:

"I wish I knew where she was. Poor little girl I have been unfair to her."

"I am glad she has not told you. It will make much more of a woman of her to work out this problem all by herself. In fact, it is this thing above all others that makes me encouraged about the situation; the fact that she does not want to lean on any one." The mother eyes rested lovingly on her son, whose face was buried in his hands.

"You must be careful about one thing. You are in the habit of treating her like a child. Try to treat her like a responsible being. It will help to make her one."

"She is such a little girl." Ralph's voice was full of feeling.

"It was because she is so little and so beautiful that everybody has united to spoil her. If you love her and want to have her develop into a real mate for you, treat her as a woman should be treated. It is no compliment to a woman to act as if she had no brains. It has done more than aything else to keep the type of pink and white idiots from becoming extinct."

"What has?" Ralph wore his tolerant smile.

"The attitude of men toward women. They never think of discussing any serious topic with them. Women are to be amused, played with. No wonder they get the idea that life is a play and their chief aim is to be amused." Mrs. Gordon nodded her head vigorously.

"My! that sounds natural," laughed Ralph.

"Ralph! you would never listen to me, and you have had some troublous times because you would not. Listen now before it is too late. Help that little girl in the hard struggle she has ahead of her to make a woman of herself." She laid her hand on her son's shoulder.

"I will, mother," said Ralph seriously, kissing the upturned face. "Now we must get ready to go to the Mortons' or we will be late for dinner."

"Did I tell you, Mr. Gordon, that I heard from your wife today?" asked Nell from behind the silver service as they sat at the table. Ralph was noticeably startled. "Perhaps I should not say heard from her. I heard about her," continued Nell. "I got a letter from Mother Morton and she said, 'Your little neighbor spent the day with me. I find there is a good deal to her. She will develop into a fine woman.'" Ralph and his mother exchanged glances.

"You see," continued Nell, "Mother Morton thinks that work is our only salvation in this vale of tears, and if she praises anyone it means that that person is showing an inclination to work."

"Ethel has never had a chance to develop her abilities along that line." Mrs. Gordon was evidently apologizing for her daughter-in-law.

"Well, she has been developing her latent powers, for Mother Morton says she is becoming a good cook." Again the son's eyes sought his mother's.

"That is certainly good news; the time we have had trying to get a cook are nerve racking to remember," laughed Ralph.

"If she gets interested in cooking and housekeeping she will get along all right," was Mrs. Gordon's smiling reply.

"If anyone could interest her, Mother Morton could. She is a wonderful old lady," continued Nell.

"She is that," agreed Dick enthusiastically.

NEW FALL FOOTWEAR APPEARS.

Though More Conservative in Combination the Styles Are None the Less Attractive—Button Styles Favored for Dressy Wear.

By Mary Glynn.

Few accessories of dress are more important in the attire of the well-dressed woman than her shoes. No matter how spick and span the ensemble may appear at a first glance, if on close observation the details of dress such as shoes, gloves, and collar are shoddily worn then the charm of refinement is entirely lost. It has been said that the milliner was the true looser the past season, because Madame and Madamoiselle chose to pay more for her shoes than her hat! This may not be the case this fall. Probably these two important items of dress will meet on a par as far expense goes. The button boots shown for fall are very rich combinations of kid in black and white, black and cream color, and one-toned effects. Pear buttons are invariably used, these being in keeping with the rich glazed kid combinations.

PAQUIN'S PETTICOAT MUCH LIKED.

Paquin brought out a special petticoat this spring for her private customers and so popular and practical did this petticoat prove that it was speedily adopted by some American manufacturers who have made it possible for all women to have this admirable Paquin petticoat for a price very much less than Mme. Paquin's favored customers gave for it in its early days of spring. The petticoat is built of taffeta, and has a straight panel down the front, about nine inches across, from belt to hem. The side sections which join at the centre back seam, are made up of seven cleverly cut circular strips joined to each other with piping through which featherbone tubing is run. The petticoat falls in flat line at the front, but flares most gracefully at the sides and back. It comes in white, black and colored taffeta.

A fascinating petticoat for wear with summer negligees has also just been introduced to the shops. There are four featherbone hoops in this petticoat, and they are run under casings at the joining of shirred strips of the taffeta. These strips, shirred at both edges, form dainty puffings all the way up the petticoat from hem to hip, and since the puffings are graduated, the narrowest coming at the top, the effect is especially graceful. As a finishing touch, a narrow ruffle of the taffeta has been run along the lower edge of each puff, disguising the featherbone hoop beneath. White taffeta petticoats are liked better than lifigerie ones under sheer summer frocks, though the dancing petticoat is almost always of net, lace or pleated chiffon—yards and yards of airy stuff to swirl about the ankles as the dancer moves. Short, bright-colored silk petticoats of taffeta or satin are worn with sport skirts, and a single flounce or ruffle is sufficient for such a skirt which is not supposed to be of a sort that will catch itself on briers. With the white pique or linen sport skirt one wears a petticoat of pique, smoothly cut over the hips and trimmed at the bottom with a circular flounce, scallop-embroidered at its edge.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Quite in keeping with her traditions of extreme elegance and refinement, Brookline, Mass., often referred to as the richest town in the United States, is to have a college graduate as a member of the police force. This is Miss Ida R. Parker, a Wellesley graduate with several years' experience as a social worker. Miss Parker will first serve out a three months' probation, her salary to be paid during this time by the Brookline Educational Society, and at its close will be elected a regular member of the Brookline police force by the town.

Acting on the advice of Professor Henry C. Cowles, of the botany department of the University of Chicago, a score of co-eds of the university have very sensibly donned boys' khaki trousers to go on the botanical research trip which Professor Cowles is now conducting through the wilds of Wisconsin and Minnesota and which will return to Chicago the last of this month. "On account of the rough nature of the field work in the Lake Superior region," read Professor Cowles's circular of instructions, "the women are earnestly urged to be ready to discard skirts on the more difficult trips and adopt boys' khaki trousers, which are both cheap and satisfactory." This sensible suggestion was generally met with sensible approval and compliance, and many of the hardships of the trip thus lessened for the feminine members of the party.

Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, of Budapest, the international feminist leader and peace advocate, who initiated the movement which resulted in the Ford peace conference, has returned to the United States on a flying trip from Scandinavia. In spite of the rather lamentable Odyssey of the Ford peace ship, whose disputatious career over the seas was watched by two amazed continents, Mme. Schwimmer, it appears, has lost faith neither in peace nor in Henry Ford's capacity for disbursing dollars. Though no longer officially connected with the Stockholm conference, Mme. Schwimmer has gone to Detroit for the special purpose of calling on Mr. Ford, and we shall see what we shall see. Peace, says Mme. Schwimmer, must be "worked" by the peace workers. The warriors themselves will never think of it and will fight till Europe is destroyed. William Jennings Bryan arrived at Detroit at the same time as Mme. Schwimmer did, which fact fully gave color to the rumors that somebody might again soon "start something" in the out-of-the-trenches-by-Christmas line. By the way, why "Madame" and not "Frau" Schwimmer? "Madame" Schwimmer's efforts at convincing Americans that she was not very patriotically "working" peace for the benefit of the Teutonic allies have by this time become a trifle pathetic.

Miss Clyde Giltner Chandler, of Chicago, is the sculptor of the magnificant memorial fountain erected by Dallas, Tex., to the memory of Captain Sydney Smith, a benefactor of the Texas town. Miss Chandler has called her group "The Gulf Cloud," in recognition of "the dewy benediction in moisture that the Gulf gives Texas." Several famous American sculptors have declared the work to be one of the most skillfully executed pieces of sculpture ever due to a woman's chisel. Miss Chandler worked three years on the modeling of the figures. She is now in Dallas superintending the foundation and setting up of her remarkable masterpiece. Dallas is the native town of the talented young sculptor, but after the dedication of the memorial she will return to Chicago, where she was a pupil of Lorado Taft, the famous artist.

Rhode Island's most patriotic heiress, Miss Lyra Brown Nickerson, is to wed, having this week announced her engagement to Henry G. Clarke, an assistant director of athletics at Brown University. Miss Nickerson is known as the "Little Major" of the aviation corps of the Rhode Island Naval Militia, and presented to the State of Rhode Island its first hydro-aeroplane, at a cost of $7,500. The gift was made through the Society for National Defense, and in recognition of the patriotic spirit shown by the young woman in the interest of preparedness the plane has been named the "Lyra." The "Little Major" besides is not only patriotic but game, and recently enjoyed to the utmost a flight in the "Lyra," declaring afterwards that she might take up the study of aviation and herself enter Uncle Sam's service as an aviatress.

At a convention of the women of the Central Powers, held recently in Vienna, it was unanimously agreed to attempt to secure the abolition of the laws which made celibacy compulsory for women in public office. The decline in the birth rate, which is alarming Germany as it is alarming all other civilized countries in Europe, and the extraordinary efforts which will be made after the war to encourage young people to marry, makes the time particularly propitious for the agitation of this question of married women in government or academic positions, which has been a vexed one for working women the world over.

BIBLE DECEIVES CENSOR.

Nurse Tells of Famine in Turkey; Cholera Also Prevalent.

Using Biblical quotations on a postcard to deceive the Turkish censor, a missionary nurse "got across" a story of famine, pestilence and personal danger confronting American missionaries in Turkey.

Ostensibly the card received by a friend and published by the American board of commissioners for foreign missions is just a word of greeting. Its wording is:

"We shall very soon have to test the first part of the twentieth verse of the fifth chapter of Job and still sooner, even now, of the last of Ps. xci, 3. What a blessing to have a God who is true and able. Lots of love to you all. Dr. Hamlin's famous mixture in demand here."

Job v, 20, reads, "In famine we shall redeem thee from death."

Ps. xci, 3, reads, "For He shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler and from the noisome pestilence."

"Dr. Hamlin's mixture" is a medicine used in the treatment of cholera.

BEES' BUZZ PARALYZED.

Epidemic Sends Honeymakers Into Hive Corners to Die.

An epidemic resembling paralysis has started among the Ohio bee colonies and threatens to reduce materially the state's output of honey, according to an announcement by N. E. Shaw, state bee inspector. The federal government is sending Dr. E. F. Phillips, its chief bee expert, to the state to investigate the case.

Bees attacked by the disease quit work, go off to a corner of the hive and lie there until they die, says Mr. Shaw.

Miss Anna Warnock, of Craig place, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation. She will leave for Asbury Park tomorrow for a week's stay.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

THE ATHLETICS DID IT.

Connie Mack deserves a little credit and Joe Bush should be presented with a set of gold medals for the victory recorded at the expense of the Detroit Tigers Wednesday. If Connie's boys had not captured that victory a special meeting of the American League authorities might have been held. But, now that the poor Athletics have accomplished what was thought to be impossible, perhaps, a handful of fans will turn out to greet them when they pay their visit to New York. It's a funny thing. Whenever the Athletics of 1916 visit a city they are greeted with open arms by the manager of the home team, simply because he realizes that there is "soft picking" on hand. But, the magnates and the other fellows who pay out the dough fail to see the joke, because the crowds simply will not turn out to see Connie Mack abused. Not so with the Athletics of former years. Whenever Connie led his tribe into foreign territory, moaning in the camp of the home club manager was in order. The manager of the team set himself to work figuring out what his percentage would be after he lost the series, while the magnates, and, as we said before, the other fellows who backed up the team, did a little chuckling. The Athletics drew crowds then, but they say that even the ground-keeper stays home when the 1916 edition of the Philadelphia American League team comes to town. Ask "Hennery" Fabian; he knows.

THE FIGHTING MACHINE.

President John Tener of the National League intends to have no "one-ring" battles in his "pet" league, reardless of what Johnny Evers, or any other would-be prize fighter thinks about it. And "Prexy" told the whole sad tale to the moglus of the senior organization in special session yesterday. "No more fights," was the verdict of all concerned and the petition brought in by Percy Haughton, owner of the Boston Braves, the culprits, received merely passing attention. They, according to a prominent New York sport writer, who is paid to know these things, have a system of baseball which they call "inside stuff." Whenever an opposing squad learns that the Braves are pulling "inside stuff," or as it is more tamely termed, "inside baseball," trouble is in the air. This "inside" business is nothing short of a series of prize fights, with the participants, generally, one Brave and any fan, umpire or player who happens to be in sight and who looks as though he could take a trimming more easily than give one. Another favorite pastime of the fighting machine is "kicking" on umpire's decisions and proudly informing his "umps" that he is robbing Boston of a pennant and that he should run for alderman in Brooklyn, after the fashion employed by Jake Daubert. Of course, Manager George Stallings realizes that all this "bunk" is only a little "pep," but it certainly is funny when one considers that the president of the National League is taking a different view of the situation. We wonder who is in the right? We wonder whom the fans of Boston favor? We know that the whole affair is disgraceful and must stop, if the interests of baseball are held at heart by the parties engaged. Let Johnny Evers join the army, or other aggressive organization. Why not try the "Sixty-ninth," Johnny, old top? They can show you how to fight.

PITY THE POOR PIRATES.

Some kind-hearted fan should send a card of condolence to Jimmy Callahan, who has charge of the Pittsburgh Pirates. That team is about the tamest bunch of Pirates that we ever saw. The club has been going from bad to worse for some time and the fans of the Smoky City have almost deserted the squad. Still, Jimmy puts up with the disgrace and smiles on. It cannot be said that Callahan put the team where it is at present. He was not responsible for the poor condition of the outfit, and if he is released at the end of this term, the reason cannot be centered around the fact that he "ruined" the club. Because he was not given a "club" to ruin, is the real reason for the state of things. Mamaux is the pitching phenom with the team, and it is said that he has plenty of money. It is also said that one has to pamper him into pitching. Poor Mamaux! Some day the bats of the Giants, or other squad, will "pamper" him to pitching, all right. The Giants have done that stunt once and are awaiting the chance to repeat. Maybe Mamaux will be pampered out of the National League. Some squad you have, Jimmy.

COMEDY ON THE FIELD.

They pay "Germany" Schaefer for acting funny on the baseball field. One day he happened to wander into the Newark Federal League park in Harrison. You know, gentle reader, we "authors" always wander into the places—we never walk. There was "Germany," getting over a few of his antics. The grand-stand patrons smiled, the bleacherites giggled and the boys on the fence snickered. The ushers laughed and the Federal League magnates were thrown into convulsions. For our part, we might say that we failed to see anything funny around the place at that time, but as "Germany" warmed up, he began to get funny, rolling around on the lawn, chewing dust and eating baseball bats, etc. He gets paid for that sort of thing and is an expert at the work. There is no denying the fact that he is funny but to us the funniest part of the whole thing is that they pay Schaefer for what he does.

THAT WORD "FRIENDS."

The word "friends" has no place in professional baseball. Off the diamond, Frank Bruggy and Frank O'Rourke are the warmest of friends, yet the players on the New York State League circuit are telling of a trick O'Rourke pulled on "Brug" that brings us back to Civil War days. In a game at Wilkes-Barre a couple of weeks ago, Bruggy doubled to center and O'Rourke, playing short, kept Pitcher Pat Dougherty throwing to the bag so that the big catcher couldn't get the lead he was aiming for. After about five tries, Dougherty threw a sixth time, and Bruggy slid back to the bag. He was safe enough, but as O'Rourke tagged him he yelled, "Thatta boy, Pat. There's one." Looking up at his friend, Bruggy queried, "What did that ump call me?" Choking back a giggle, O'Rourke replied, "Why, he said you were out." Jumping to his feet, Bruggy started toward the base umpire roaring like a sea-lion, and O'Rourke, starting after him, pulled the ball from beneath his arm and tagged his pal out. SECOND SUCCESSFUL CITY LEAGUE SEASON PRODUCTIONS OF WORTHY ACHIEVEMENTS

Brief Resume of Happenings During Year—Notable Pitching Feats Exhibited—All Teams Played "Snappy" Ball—Plans For Third Season.

(By Joe Jinks.)

On September 2, weather permitting, the last City League baseball attraction for the year 1916 will be played. The participants in that match will bring to a close a most successful season from every point of view. Financially, the circuit has never before enjoyed such a banner year and has surpassed even the returns received by the promoters of the now extinct Manufacturers' League.

Early in the campaign the Netherwood team became very threatening, assuming the league lead earlier than was anticipated. Under the guiding hand of the Coughlan brothers, this outfit, last year's champion club, performed creditably and captured baseball games with the regularity of clockwork. The team, fortified by the addition of three or four Bound Brook Bees, has been superior in almost every department to its nearest rivals. In Johnson, the club's catcher, Manager Coughlan has a wonder, acknowledged to be the best catcher in the City League. There is not a shadow of a doubt about that. Francis Teeling is a close second, but his work in last Saturday's game was not as brilliant as that exhibited by Johnson. With Russ Stewart pitching the brand of ball that places a man in the front rank of moundsmen, the team, aided by heavy hitting and careful fielding, has romped to the top and is there to stay.

The other teams on the circuit have been going along nicely, the only weak spot being found in the vicinity of last place, at present the habitation of the Farmers. The Tabs, Hopes and Dunellens, not forgetting the Baptists, who have been hitting more consistently than any of their rivals, have been playing great baseball and deserve commendation. Individual members of the Farmer team, Joe Morley in particular, have earned the right to be ranked with the best of them.

Perhaps the most notable pitching feats exhibited during the year were the victories recorded by Russ Stewart. His latest stunt was the holding of the Tabs to four hits, defeating them 11 to 0. Jack Denny of late has been getting his "bumps." However, he pitched quite a few games in which hits were not as numerous as they might have been. Warry McLaughlin, Dick Schott and Freddy Mills also earned their share of the pitching laurels.

The league was officially organized in April, the first meeting for this year being enthusiastically attended and productive of beneficial results. The rosters of the various teams as presented showed that many stars of note would play in the league. The umpires assigned at the outset were Hansen, Malanga and Montross. Of these, Hansen still survives. An official scorer was appointed for each team, but we have seen very little of these gentlemen or their work.

The plans for next year include a circuit of, possibly, eight teams. However, it is possible that the Farmer players, strengthened by the addition of new men, will compete under a different name. The other teams already in the league will continue to play under their respective names and at their respective diamonds. It is reported that Dan Randolph will place a team composed of former Mono players in the league, the Baptist squad remaining intact. If Mr. Randolph carries out these plans he will greatly add to the interest of the pastime. It is said that George Conover, the North Plainfield star hurler of not so long ago, will try a come-back stunt. The fact that there is a possibility of there being an eight-club league next year adds interest to the pastime, locally, and proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that the second City League season has been a decided success.

Dunellen, 13; Farmers, 1 (1st game).
Dunellen, 12; Farmers, 7 (2d game).

Games Tomorrow.

Hopes vs. Netherwood.
T. A. B. S. vs. Dunellen.
Baptists vs. Farmers.

The fur is sure to fly tomorrow. Whenever a City League gathering is announced, excitement is sure to prevail, with plenty of fans on hand to watch the proceedings and to tell the various umpires how things should be run. But it's all in the "ump's" contract, hence he should worry.

While the league race is not as exciting in one sense as it was before the Netherwood team assumed a commanding lead, still there is plenty of enthusiasm manifested in the run for second place honors. The fact that there are three teams in the race for second place provides plenty of sport for the baseball fans of this city. The Dunellen squad is right up among the elite, with the Hope Chapel outfit a little bit higher. The Tabs, who, by the way, are again rapidly rounding into shape, are very close on the heels of the Chapel and Dunellen teams. The race, as it now stands, is truly three-cornered and will provide the required amusement. Should Dunellen win tomorrow and should the Hopes succumb to the Netherwoods the race will probably be terminated as far as second place is concerned. At least it is certain that tomorrow is a big day for the Abstainers. They have their chance to conquer or fail. Their rivals in league standing are their rivals in reality tomorrow. It is up to Manager Scott.

The game between the Hope and Netherwood teams will be played on Parker Field, an agreement to that effect having been made by the rival managers. The assignment of umpires for tomorrow is as follows: Dunellen-Tab game, Coriell; Netherwood-Hope game, Henry Winters; First Baptist-Farmer game, Hansen. It is desired that each of these umpires be on hand for duty and that the work of selecting substitutes, if any are needed, be left to Daniel Randolph, the league secretary.

PATTERSON ANNOUNCES WHERE TEAM PLAYS

Duncan Patterson, manager of the Baptist baseball team, writes that the First Baptist team will play the Farmers on West End Field and not on South avenue. Just why this communication was sent in we do not know, unless it was previously arranged to have the game played on the South avenue field. It is to be hoped that the South avenue field will be abandoned by the City League before long.

According to another announcement, delivered to this office, the Plainfield A. C. and Westfield A. A. baseball teams will play on Soccer Field, the Hope Chapel diamond, tomorrow.

ROYAL GIANTS' BATTLE POSTPONED FOR AWHILE

The baseball match scheduled to be played between the Royal Giants and the Queen City team has been called off, according to the Queens' manager. The game was carded to be played on Soccer Field, but for some reason or other the managers could not secure the grounds.

The Royals will cross bats with the Tabs on Avon Oval one week from Sunday. The Dunellen City League team will be taken on by the Royals the day before the encounter with the Tabs is played. "Senor" Maiden and "Tune" Kline may be the Royels' hurlers in these two affairs.

AMERICAN TILE TEAM AT HYDE FIELD

St. Joseph's, With Eddie Conshay In Box, Hope to Trim Lincolns.

The American Tile Workers, of Lincoln, will take the Union trolley to this city tomorrow afternoon, in an effort to show the members of the St. Joseph baseball team how the national game should be played. The Tile Workers have been enjoying a fairly successful season and hope to be able to put the skids under the North Plainfield aggregation. The manager of the Lincoln team has not made known his line-up, and in fact has said nothing regarding the game other than to announce that his boys will all be on hand ready for the fray.

The battery for the St. Joseph team will be made up of Eddie Conshay as pitcher and Andy McDonough as catcher. Eddie has been pitching a great brand of ball during the past few months and is eager for the opportunity to add more laurels to his string by defeating the Tile Workers tomorrow.

The following events in the trapshooting world are carded for the coming week:

"E. C." and double target championship and match events, preparatory to Great American Handicap tournament, Sportsmen's Park, St. Louis, Mo.

John Philip Sousa, the band leader, is an enthusiastic trapshooter. When asked his opinion on women taking up the sport, he said:

"Women are finding trapshooting even more enjoyable than golf, tennis and the other games they now play. In the shotgun game she is not classified as a woman. She is not segregated from the men. She meets men shooters on an equal footing, and there is nothing that pleases her more than to beat her lord and master at his own game. Indeed, women have so far advanced in trapshooting that they will be permitted to enter the Grand American Handicap this year.

"Shooting makes a woman agile and alert. I have shot at the traps with many women and never have I seen an ungraceful one who used a shotgun well."

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Wonder why Richard Lawton does not become active in Tab baseball circles. Richard is a prominent and popular member of the society and knows how to play baseball. At one time he was considered one of the most promising young pitchers in this vicinity. Dick, better get ready to start all over again.

We have two queries for today. Therefore, we will make answer in this department. One writer asks if "Ty Cobb is the greatest batter that ever lived." We make reply, stating that Ty Cobb is probably the greatest batter from the point of view of consistency, but, according to the records, Jimmy "Tip" O'Neill, formerly of the St. Louis Americans, was the greatest batter, having the highest average ever recorded. He hit .492 in 1887.

Another fan seeks to learn what we think of the pennant chances of the following teams: Brooklyn, Boston, Phillies and Giants. He requests that we "pick a winner." Now, it's against the rules of sportdom logic—whatever that is—to "pick a winner." Still, we believe that the writer of the communication will realize that we are giving merely an opinion. Our answer is: Watch young uncle Wilbert Robinson. Let the band play on.

If President Walter Dobbins, of the City League, cares to become real fashionable he can call a conference of the magnates of the City League in an effort to ascertain why one of the six teams is not putting up a kick about being "robbed" by the umpires.

According to a little book we have in our possession, the shortest game on record was a nine-inning attraction that consumed only thirty-two minutes of actual playing. That's something that could never be done in our esteemed league.

Did you know, gentle reader, that the first diamond was square instead of the shape that it is now? "Side Partner" rises to remark that the Netherwood diamond always was in awful shape.

The Athletics took a trip around the world in 1874. They saw plenty of sights on that trip. According to reliable information these same Athletics are now in the act of demonstrating some of the sights they saw.

Will the gentlemen who act as umpires in the renowned City League kindly take note of their assignments for tomorrow? In the absence of the league official who usually makes known these assignments, we have been delegated the task. Thank you.

W. W. HUBBARD REGISTERS LOW CARD AT MONTCLAIR

Having long ago mastered the gentle art of doing a great deal in a short space of time, the members of the Eastern Trade Golf Association yesterday teed up in their mid-summer tournament on the links of the Montclair Golf Club, playing for prizes in an eighteen-hole medal play handicap, a competition against par and a best ball event. James Barton Garfield, the captain of the association, was as usual the only man on the scratch mark, and he was the only one to better the eighty mark during the day, his gross being 79. W. W. Hubbard won the first net prize with a card of 87—17—70, A. S. Armagnac the second with 84—12—72, and W. L. Fleischer the third with 92—18—74.

A net return of 79 also won the best ball event for E. J. Hughes and T. C. Oliver, who were around in 90 strokes with a handicap of 20. In the competition against par F. J. Oliver led with a return of 1 down.

SHAMROCKS ENTITLED TO PARKER FIELD PENNANT

According to the youngsters who play baseball on Parker Field, there has been an explosion out that way. The league, which was so carefully organized and managed by Supervisor George W. Wriston, is weathering a severe storm. The Shamrock team is about the only outfit that is willing to play daily or, for that matter, twice daily.

Ever since the Green Boys assumed the overwhelming lead they now possess, there has been jealousy in the ranks. Friendly rivalry—and also rivalry that was not friendly—sprung up and each game was very hotly contested. A dispute over one of the attractions caused a forfeit and then more trouble appeared on the horizon. Certainly, Supervisor Wriston is having his hands full. The Shamrocks have obtained a lead that cannot be overcome and the pennant, and whatever other reward goes with it, will have to be given to those lads.

VERDUN AS SEEN BY A TELESCOPE

Bursting Shells Make Whole Valley Like Volcano.

FIRE OF FRENCH IS DEADLY

Perfect System of Opposing Forces Makes It Possible to Pour 1,000 Shells a Minute Upon Any Target. Range Finding an Interesting Problem, Mathematics Being Used.

There are few portions of any front that I have ever seen where one could gain more than an idea of a single detail of the operations. Verdun is an exception, writes Stanley Washburn in the London Times. In a certain place carefully sheltered from view of the enemy was a dugout, and through the loophole of this peered the long range eye of one of the highest powered telescopes that it has ever been my privilege to look through. I could not have imagined that from a single spot one could see so many of the now famous points which have become synonymous with the defense of Verdun.

Down in the valley of the Meuse lay the town itself, whence, every few minutes, came the distant reverberation of a bursting shell. When one is in the town itself one sees little. Unless a shell falls very near, one never sees it at all. But from our observation point one can see volcanoes of dust and black smoke shoot up here and there about the town, followed a little later by the belated sound of the report drifting up from the valley. Verdun itself is apparently hidden from the direct vision of the enemy, but ranges long ago corrected by aeroplanes have been established these many months. It is questionable, however, how much check the gunners have on the target at present, since it has become unhealthy for the German aeroplanes to show themselves in this vicinity in the daytime.

The country is rolling in all directions and for the most part barren of forest or shelter except the very questionable protection that small villages afford. Through our glasses we can see the shells bursting in and about the village of Fleury, behind which we are told the French mustered for a counterattack against the Germans on Feb. 26 and nipped their advance by way of Douaumont in the bud just at the moment when the Teutons believed their way to Verdun open before them. The village is already desolate from the German shell fire. A little to the north lies Vaux, and we can just see the ruins of the town. So powerful is the telescope that the piles of brick and the remaining walls stand out in clear cut detail.

The plain before us and every portion of the valley that lies beneath us is stripped of any sign of living thing. But for the continuous bursting of shells in all directions one might imagine that the whole landscape had been long since abandoned by human habitant. A little to the west of Vaux stands the sullen ridge of Douaumont fort, whose name has become famous throughout the world as the scene of some of the fiercest fighting which this war has produced.

Birdseye View of Mort Homme.

Down the western slope one can see the lines of the German trench, though the French line is hidden from our view by the crest of a ridge that intervenes. To the north lies the valley of the slow flowing Meuse. A bit to the west is the Mort Homme, that bloody slope which cost the lives of thousands.

Turn in any direction and one always sees in the air half a dozen shells bursting. Now it is a big shrapnel over Fleury, with its clouds of puffy, cotton-like smoke drifting off on the breeze, while a second later, with a crash like the explosion of a volcano, a shell aimed at Verdun tears up half an acre on the slope north of the town. The Germans are sending in large numbers of their 380's today, and their explosions on the slopes and crests of the hills resemble the sudden eruption of a volcano, while for many minutes afterward the craters steam and smoke like internal fires.

Under our eyes, though we see them not, are neatly tucked away I know not how many of the lurking 75's and bigger guns. The country is an ideal one for them to work in. Every conspicuous object now in German hands has long since been definitely located and the range worked out to a nicety.

Leaving our observation point, we motor back to the outskirts of the town, where the general shows us one of his anti-aircraft stations. Here are set up a number of 75's on special mountings. In the center of the station, suspended on a small platform, is a brass bell. The moment an enemy machine is sighted the bell is sounded, and, no matter from which direction it may be coming, every gun is on the target and the three corrections necessary for the first shot have been made within fifteen seconds. The mathematics are extremely interesting. A very intellectual young man with a book of logarithms, a pad and a pencil undertook to explain to me how the ranging was done. While he was drawing neat triangles and polygons and painstakingly propping perpendiculars here and there the enemy dropped three shells not too far away, and I cannot at this time recall a single one of the equations.

HER AUTUMN JEWELS

Small Diamonds Set in White Metal have a Fiery Splendor in the Evening

Nothing More Beautiful than a Necklace of Real Pearls

This Mesh Purse and the Handsome Earrings are Entirely Correct

Diamond-Studded Lorgnette and Chain, Effective Supper Ring, and a Wee Vanity Case that Looks Like a Medal for Valor

Nothing Can Replace Pearls In Woman's Favor - Small Diamonds Set In Unique Fashion - Blazing Supper Rings Make Gloves Superfluous - Bracelet Watches More and More Popular - "Tailored" Jewelry.

COLOR is the important feature in the new "tailored" jewelry—so called—which is correct with street attire. The well dressed woman does not wear her delicate brooches, lace-pins ear-rings and bracelets with her street costume, substituting smart, "tailored" jewelry of special make and design. With sport garb "tailored" jewelry is perfectly correct also, yet the sort of trinket traditionally correct with evening costume would be in very bad taste indeed with sport toggery.

"Tailored" jewelry is bold in color and design and is rather Oriental in suggestion. Basket effects are very popular in this sort of ornament—deep-colored stones mounted in settings of peculiar, individual style, and of platinum, white metal or green-gold rather than the yellow gold which is used for ornaments worn by gaslight. There are massive chains, or chains delicately formed in handcraft patterns—all sorts of chains; for the lorgnette, for the pendant or locket, for the handbag, for the muff, and just chains, to be twisted twice or thrice around the neck falling over the blouse-front in ornamental effect. Rings, brooches and bracelets come in this style also; and gate-tops for silk reticules. Then there are wrist-watches, buckles and even buttons all fashioned to lend color and distinction to the street costume. Color and not glitter is the arresting feature of the stones and though the tailored suit may be somber or neutral in tone, the well chosen "tailored" jewelry, echoed by one bright note somewhere in the costume lends interest and distinction. For instance, with a tailored suit of dark blue serge will be worn a touch of clear yellow in the hat, and ear-rings and a lorgnette chain in amber and dull gold. A very handsome pair of ear-rings has a narrow mounting of bronze, with long pendants of smoked amber and drops of deep red coral. A long pendant of smoked amber set in bronze has small peridots and yellow topaz, the whole forming a long, triangular design which rests on the front of a tan or brown chiffon blouse. With a costume of smoked gray or taupe, dark red coral is very effective.

Diamonds Not Worn With Sport Costumes.

The girl who goes out to the country club in October to play golf all day on the breezy links, will leave her diamonds at home. Diamonds are not considered good taste with sport attire, though almost any other stone may be worn provided it is properly set—in not too delicate a manner. Some jewels are most effective with the bright silk sport coats and striped skirts that accompany them and the woman who is particular about little things matches even her glazed kid sport shoe trimmings to the general scheme of her costume inclusive of her "sport" jewelry. The latter includes wrist-watch, belt buckle, sleeve links and hat pins. Precious stones are not at all necessary. There are excellent composition jewels which, cleverly set in hand-craft settings, give the correct effect, and these ornaments, by the bye, are not at all "cheap" either in looks or actual cost. Some stunning buckles of bronze or copper are noted on new autumn sport hats, a grosgrain ribbon being run through the big buckle and around the hat crown, tying in a tailored bow at the back. Amethysts, jade, garnets, topaz, turquoise, amber and the rich-hued coral; all these are high in favor for "tailored" and "sport" jewelry, with mountings of copper, bronze and gunmetal.

The Lorgnette Always Exclusive.

With the elaborate afternoon, or dinner costume for the restaurant, more brilliant jewelry is en regle. Several very effective ornaments for this type of costume are pictured with a restaurant frock and hat. The lorgnette, with its chain of small amethysts set in white metal, adds tremendous distinction to the costume. Nothing is more impressive than a lorgnette, when the latter is well handled. The lorgnette pictured is a super-elegant trinket, of white metal and small diamonds. Such a lorgnette as this costs a great deal of money, may be bought in gold for about twenty dollars, in gunmetal or washed gold for seven or eight dollars. They are expensive little trinkets at their cheapest and for this reason never become common. The simple gold lorgnette, or the one of gunmetal may be hung on a narrow black ribbon, with tiny metal slides; a handsome lorgnette like the one pictured requires an equally handsome chain. A smartly attired woman in a Fifth avenue bus the other morning, wore a tailored suit of black and white pepper and salt worsted which gave the general effect of very dark gray. Her hat was a tailored affair of black straw with a white tailored bow of grosgrain ribbon echoing the, white machine silk stitching which trimmed her coat and skirt. Her boots were black and gray glazed kid in buttoned style. The effective note in this quiet costume was a gold lorgnette swinging on a black and white ribbon. It lent distinction to the whole ensemble. Her gloves—as an afterthought, were of black kid with white stitching.

Turquoise and Diamonds for the Blonde, Pearls if She Chooses, or Opals

Diamonds on her Frock, on her Neck and in her Hair, for the Opera

The Vogue Of Cameos.

Cameos are again very fashionable and many handsome old ornaments are being remounted with modern settings. Cameos look best with dainty afternoon frocks, and are at their loveliest with rich laces. They may be worn, when correctly mounted, with street costumes, or with evening gowns; but their proper place is with the handsome afternoon gown or blouse. Pink cameos are most beautiful, but white cameos on coral, onyx or shell backgrounds are very smart. Brooches of cameo set in medallion effect are surrounded with narrow oval or eight-sided frames of twisted gold and seed pearls. Cameo buttons, similiarly mounted are used on very exclusive frocks where expense is not counted.

A new wedding ring for the autumn bride is a very interesting affair. The ring, a narrow, heavy hoop in the fashionable width to outward view, is finger divides the sections. The inscription is engraved on the flat inner-side of one of these sections and is known only to the bride and the groom—and to the intimate friends to whom the cherished secret is imparted. A stranger, examining the ring would never guess that it was not an ordinary "one-piece" wedding-ring and in a whole lifetime, if the bride chooses, no one will ever know what tender sentiment the groom has had engraved within the twin sections of her wedding circlet.

There is a new engagement ring also, with "amor"—and every girl who has studied Latin at finishing school knows what that means—engraved inside. The setting is massive with interlocked hearts in openwork effect on four sides of a pediment supporting the large solitaire. And by the bye, the happy fiance whose lady has just said "yes" should be very careful where he purchases his solitaire, these days, for there is a new method of "painting" diamonds. Yellowish stones are immersed in a certain liquid which gives them for a time the pure white or bluish tint which commands a high price. No reputable jeweler would sell a diamond of this sort but sometimes even the best jewelers are deceived by unscrupulous dealers.

Pearls Always In Favor.

The woman who possesses a string of genuine pearls need envy nobody. Her jewels are beyond compare. Not even diamonds have the distinction of handsome pearls and a long string of genuine pearls is worth a king's ransom. One may pay $50,000 for a string just long enough to go around the throat; it may be imagined then what a double loop to hang to the waistline would cost! Yet several society women in New York have such preference to diamond necklaces—which any nobody who has a million dollars may afford. Real pearls are cleverly imitated by "scientific" pearls—and even these are by no means inexpensive. The genuine pearl is very heavy and a string of such pearls is a real burden about the neck—though what woman would object to carrying such a burden? The cheap pearls which one may pick up at a department store for a dollar or two dollars the string look very well—in color at least—but they are made of fishglue and are likely to melt against the neck if their wearer becomes overheated, dancing.

Some very handsome and modish ornaments for next winter's wear, all obtained from authoritative jewelers for today's photographs, will tell you just what fashion has decreed in the matter of autumn trinketry. For wear with a black evening gown there is an odd festoon ornament, fastened to diamond-set bowknots, which blazes across the bodice. The festoon is in chain design, with countless tiny diamonds set in white metal. The upper bowknot matches this design; the one at the girdle is set with diamonds and emeralds. A diamond knot rests in the coiffure and around the neck is a diamond chain with a pear-shaped pendant of diamonds and emeralds. Very well chosen are the ornaments worn by the woman with a feather fan. In the piled-up hair is a bow-knot of diamonds and white metal. A beautifully designed brooch of diamonds and white metal in filagree effect has a topaz at its center—the fan being pale yellow to echo this note. The collar is of diamonds.

Notes and Novelties

PINE CONES ON HER PARASOL.

HAND painted parasols are a fad of the summer, and the woman who can do dainty flower designs with water-colors may purchase an inexpensive sunshade and turn it into an exclusive affair that will look very expensive—if the painting is cleverly done. Not too naturalistic an effect should be aimed at, the painted designs are suggestive of Japanese effects, with well composed masses and very simple light and shade. A charming parasol of white taffeta has a border of sage green ribbon shirred on two cords at the edge and straying across the cover are feathery pine cones in cool tints of gray-green, a touch of warm brown in the cones themselves. With a frock of green linen this parasol is delightful.

FIRST AID TO THE INJURED.

IT is a wise mother who tucks into the vacation trunk one of the complete little kits to be used in case of accident. Sprains, bruises, bee stings, even a serious cut may be treated successfully in camp with the aid of a first-aid-to-the-injured kit; and sometimes one of these affairs will save serious trouble between the time of an accident and the delayed arrival of a country doctor. A good first aid case, containing rolls of gauze bandages, lint, plaster, antiseptic solutions, etc. costs from $1 to $5. No vacation trunk should be without something of this sort for use in an emergency.

SUMMER NECKTIES.

A SMART necktie adds style to the simplest summer outing blouse and is a most important adjunct of the costume. Sets of necktie and hat scarf in bright colors with gay stripes on a plain ground come for about a dollar and are most attractive. Hat scarves and ties of knitted silk cost a little more but are exceedingly good looking. With the right sort of hat scarf and necktie, and a correct pair of washable, or glazed kid sport shoes the simplest cotton duck or khaki sport frock for camp or mountain wear will have an indisputable chic and knowingness.

Sensational Bathing Wear This Summer

THE modern American seaside resort is out-Franceing France these days, in audacity of bathing attire. Not so many years ago a woman of presumably refined taste would not have dreamed of appearing on a public beach in anything more startling than a neat bodice and skirt of black satin or mohair, with black stockings to match and one striking bit of color in a kerchief twisted over her head. The selfsame woman now thinks nothing of stepping forth from her bathhouse bedight in a costume that would have done credit to a vaudeville performance a few seasons ago; a sleeveless, shoulder-strapped chemise of satin, perhaps black, perhaps rose-colored or even pale blue, with flesh-tinted silk stockings made even more suggestive of uncovered legs by the neatly laced black satin bathing shoes that cover foot and ankle; and a picturesque shade hat on the lines of a restaurant chapeau, with dashing brim and even a big bow across the crown.

The prudist may hurl remonstrances at the fin de siecle bathing suit, but it is really an enchanting affair. And what if it is a bit—well, picturesque? It is infinitely pretty and becoming and—in its proper place on the beach by the sea—does not seem so very reprehensible. Certainly it is a vast addition to the general gaiety and delight of a midsummer morning during vacation season!

This year Shakespeare bathing suits are the fad, dating from the country-wide revival of interest in all things pertaining to the Bard of Avon at the beginning of summer. There are suits (very dashing indeed!) and a fetching Hamlet suit, with a deep cape attached by straps passing over the shoulders to the waistband. The costume is black, though of serviceable salt-water satin rather than the silk velvet affected by the Melancholy Dane. The bloomers are shirred in at the knee and are so full that they are a presentable substitute for a skirt; and under them is a fitted hip-yoke with small featherbone distenders at the sides which keep the fullness of bloomers accurately in place when the suit gets wet. A matter of poetic license, no doubt is the cape-lining of brilliant blue silk—there is no record of Hamlet's descending to such frivolity in his somber attire. The sleeves have also cuffs of the blue silk and the cap is of blue rubber with rubber tassels in blue and white. The cape is supposed to be removed for swimming—of course it would float out behind its wearer and perhaps prove a serious incumbrance in floating or swimming on the back. On shore, it is drawn around the shoulders, protecting neck and arms from sunburn.

The square-brimmed beach hat is also intended for sand-bathing; an enthusiastic swimmer would have none of it. It might be worn by a paddler, however, or by a woman who goes into the surf up to her chin and contents herself with jumping over the waves. It is made of rubberized satin, with a wire at the edge of the brim, and is a comfortable, shady and becoming head-covering withal, though it cannot be said to keep the hair dry. For the latter purpose nothing has yet been discovered to equal the tight rubber diving cap which may be drawn completely down over hair and ears. These caps come now in bright colored rubber, red, blue, green and orange. The hair must be taken down and pinned flatly in a coil on top of the head with blunt, shell pins, for sharp wire hairpins thrust themselves through the tight rubber cap in no time. A silk kerchief may be knotted over the diving cap if one insists upon becomingness, or a ribbon can be tied around front. The kerchief is worn gypsy fashion now, with a flat fold drawn around the brow and ears and a knot tied behind one ear. The hair can be kept perfectly dry if a two-inch wide strip of chamois is tied around the head before donning the diving cap.

The one-piece bathing suit is omnipresent. A year ago it was just beginning to appear but so easy to slip on and off, it is, and so comfortable—with no tight waistband to draw up when the arms toss about in the water—that it is being universally adopted. It may be as modest as one pleases; or as outrageous. In the latter class, it is cut like a scant chemise, with shoulderstraps to hold it up at the top; and its lower edge falls only a little way below the hips, over silk bathing tights. Not very much is left to the imagination with such a costume, especially when it is of silk and has just come out of the water. A more modest style, in black salt water satin, is cut kimono fashion and with box pleats over the shoulders to add sufficient fullness across the bust. The little sleeves cover the top of the arm and the neck is cut out in a shallow square, or is rounded, as one prefers. The hem falls well over the edge of full bloomers or bathing tights and comes to the turn of the knee, and a wide, soft sash of satin or rubber, is knotted loosely around the waistline, giving a trim silhouette. Very gay sashes of Roman striped silk, with caps to match, make these one-piece bathing suits of black or navy satin very charming. There are also sashes and caps of bright colored rubber; and the wide sash may be taken off and laid across the shoulders like a scarf, during the sun-bath on the sand. A slip-on model of navy blue mohair has short, kimono sleeves and a narrow belt which buttons loosely over the loose, one-piece garment. The neck is finished with a shaped circular band of the mohair, running down the front about ten inches in tab effect. A lacing of black cord makes the slipping on and off of the garment very easy. This blue mohair suit is stitched with white silk in three rows, at the hem, sleeve-edges, on the belt and around the neck trimming. All bathing suits should be silk stitched, even at the seams, for cotton stitching will not endure long in the hard usage a bathing costume receives; and moreover cotton stitching fades badly whereas silk stitching retains its color almost forever.

The Hamlet Suit Makes A Decided Hit.

There are innumerable "belongings" for the bathing girl now; rubber vanity bags that can be in the swim yet keep a handkerchief dry; beach capes of rubberized silk in charming colorings, beach pillows of rubberized sateen for the loaf on the sand, and so on.

A great comfort is the modern bathing undergarment, of knitted silk or wool—or even cotton—which reaches from shoulders to knees and fits so precisely that any other undergar-

MAN'S DECREASING HEIGHT.

When Adam and Eve Walked Around They Were as Tall as Trees.

It was a French savant named Henrion who 200 years ago gave to the world authoritative statements as to the height of Adam and Eve. He said that the father of the race was 123 feet 9 inches high and Eve 118 feet 9 inches. He noted that from the creation of these enlarged editions of humanity degeneration had been rapid; that Noah was only twenty-seven, Abraham only twenty and Moses but thirteen feet in height.

According to this French authority, if the Christian dispensation had not arrested this decrease man by this time—200 years ago—would have been a mere microscopic object, and we may conclude that by our time he would not have been at all. M. Henrion did not give any explanation as to how he arrived at his estimate of the height of these ancients.

Perhaps the most gigantic story on record is that concerning an immense skeleton, said to have been in Sicily, which measured 300 feet in length. This story, however, carries its own refutation, as it is said that found beside this giant was his walking stick, which was thirty feet long and thick as a telegraph pole. A clever calculator made the estimate that a walking stick only thirty feet in length for a man who measured 300 feet would be as ridiculous as one of seven inches for a man of ordinary stature.—Indianapolis News.

A Story of the Bastile.

In the year 1785 a haughty noble of the ancient regime of France fell in love with a beautiful girl, the daughter of a wealthy tradesman of Paris. The latter, refusing to encourage the nobleman's passion, was soon after thrown into the Bastile. The sweetheart of the girl, who was to have married her in a few days, dreading a like fate, made his escape to Constantinople to serve as a volunteer under the grand seigneur, leaving his intended bride secreted with a woman friend. On the outbreak of the revolution the young man returned to Paris and was the very grenadier who first mounted the breach made in the Bastile, from the dungeons of which he had the happiness of rescuing the father of his future bride.

Soap and Hard Water.

The hardness of water is measured by degrees. When a gallon contains one grain of lime it is said to have one degree of hardness. When soap is used with hard water about two and one-half ounces of it to each hundred gallons of water must be used for each degree of hardness just to overcome hardness. It combines with the lime, forming a mineral product, and not until enough soap has been dissolved to overcome all the hardness does the soap do any good for cleansing purposes.

CAPSTICK WILL SEEK REELECTION

Formal Announcement of Congressman's Candidacy Made Today By Secretary.

EXPLAINS HIS VIEWS

Lengthy Statement of Activity During Two Years' Incumbancy and What He Has Accomplished Given Out—Favors Hughes' Principles.

John E. Nicol, of this city, secretary to Congressman John H. Capstick, of the Fifth Congressional District, today made formal announcement of Mr. Capstick's candidacy to succeed himself at the September primaries. In announcing that the present incumbent's "hat would be in the ring" for return to Congress, Secretary Nicol issued the following statement outlining the accomplishments of Mr. Capstick during the past two years and the platform on which he will seek renomination:

"Two years ago the voters of the Fifth Congressional District honored me by selecting me as their representative in the House of Congress, and although the oath of office was not taken until March 4, 1915, immediately after the election I proceeded to familiarize myself with the detailed work attached to the office, and from that time up to the present, I have endeavored faithfully, honestly and fearlessly to discharge my duties as your representative in order to demonstrate that your confidence was not misplaced.

"Realizing from the beginning that a Representative is a servant of the people, and particularly of the district he represents, I endeavored to place myself in touch with my constituency by sending them a communication advising them of my views and requesting that their Representative be taken into their confidence and advised as to any particular manner in which I could best be of assistance to each individual voter of the district. The heavy response to this communication justified the course I had pursued, and there has been no request made, or desire expressed, by any of the citizens of this district which was not attended to promptly.

"Not since the reconstruction period has there been such an important session of Congress as the one now drawing to a close. Issues as vital to the nation's welfare and future have not arisen during the intervening years to be considered and disposed of by the national legislature. The task was enormous. Especially was this so to one participating in Federal lawmaking for the first time and serving in the minority ranks.

"The paramount issue was that of preparedness. I went on record early as favoring a broad, comprehensive plan of defense, with the navy as the first line, land fortifications next, and third, land forces, such as cavalry, artillery and infantry. I desired to see all of these elements of defense of sufficient strength and proportion to insure safety in any emergency and to uphold our traditions and ideals of peace against all possible aggression. The recommendations of army and navy experts, and advisory boards were approved and acceptable by me, as to the extent of the plan.

"I introduced the first preparedness bill. It called for the establishment of a system of coast defense by means of guns mounted on flat railroad cars that could be moved from place to place and discharged as required. A working model is now being prepared by the War Department for experimental purposes. The same plan has been employed abroad and made possible to a very large degree the successful defense of Verdun.

"When the army bill passed the House I voted for it, although not satisfied with its provisions. I did this rather than vote against it as a rebuke to the administration and majority members—as many of my colleagues did—and somewhat on the principle that half a loaf is better than none. When the measure came back from the Senate I worked for the retention of all the strengthening amendments added to it there.

"The navy bill for the same reason received my unqualified support. I voted in the affirmative for the largest increase in the navy that could be obtained.

"Opposed to government ownership, I voted against the establishment at a cost of $11,000,000 of an armor plate plant and against the shipping bill to establish a government owned, controlled and operated merchant marine. While believing in a merchant marine under government protection, I am not, and have not been, in favor of government trade competition.

"Upon the question of raising revenue I voted against the extension of the so-called 'War Stamp Act.' Never before in the history of our country has a stamp tax been imposed while we were not actually engaged in war. The stamp tax therefore is a 'tariff deficiency' measure instead of a 'war tax,' as it is termed.

"For the same reason I voted in favor of the repeal of the free sugar clause in the Underwood tariff law. Under this measure the finances of the country had reached such an acute condition that it became neces-

LAST TRIBUTE TO A. GILBERT LEWIS

Many Friends at Services for Young Lineman Killed Tuesday.

Funeral services over the body of A. Gilbert Lewis, the 23-year-old youth whose tragic death occurred Tuesday night while stringing electric wires on West Front street near Clinton avenue, were held at his late home on Orchard street yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Co-workers, relatives, friends and neighbors attended the last sad rites, which were conducted at the house by the Rev. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church. The services directly were in charge of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., and Co. H of the Uniformed Rank, of which the deceased had been an active member. The members of the latter were attired in full uniform.

The floral tributes sent by the multitude of friends surrounded the casket and stood as silent testimonials of the esteem in which the young man was held. Many set pieces, sprays and flat bouquets were sent.

A commitment service was held at the graveside in Hillside cemetery. Charles Wilson, of the Uniformed Rank, acting as chaplain and Captain Hartpence as counselor. The pall bearers were Sergeants F. Hampson, G. Olsen and T. Leacock and Corporals H. Tinsman, H. Leavers and J. Mead, all of the Uniformed Rank.

Mr. Lewis was killed instantly early Tuesday evening, when 23,000 volts of electricity passed through his body. His bare hand came in contact with a live wire and his death resulted.

NETHERWOOD HOME CLOSED FOR SEASON

No Paralysis There, But Health Board Orders Are Carried Out.

Miss Curry and the committee in charge of the work of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home have thought it advisable to close the home for the season. There have been no cases of infantile paralysis at the home. Since the children who are at present there have had an outing extending over a much prolonged period, and inasmuch as it is the earnest desire of Miss Curry and the members of the committee to co-operate in every way with the local Board of Health, it has been deemed to the best interests of all that the home be closed at this time.

Those in charge at the home feel deeply grateful to the local health authorities and to the public in general for withholding any severe criticism, which has been so marked in many localities.

While under normal conditions about forty-five hundred mothers and children are cared for at the home each season, still the committee feel that though only the limited number of about three hundred children have been saved from the epidemic now raging in the city, some good has been accomplished.

HABITUAL DRUNKARDS GIVEN SIXTY DAYS IN COUNTY JAIL

Lawrence Wallace and Edward Robinson, two habitual drunkards, were sentenced to sixty days in the county jail this morning by City Judge William G. DeMeza on a charge of disorderly conduct and fighting. The two men, although both are on the blacklist, were drunk yesterday and fighting on Second street when Patrolman McGinley arrested them.

In giving sentence Judge DeMeza said that numerous complaints of the rowdyism about that street had reached him and he was determined to break it up if he had to send the entire gang to jail.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

Local Man Named On Campaign Committee of Twenty Men.

TWO FROM NEW JERSEY

Separate Progressive Body Is Appointed—To Meet Next Tuesday With President For a Discussion of Work Ahead.

The Hon. W. L. Saunders, of Plainfield, has been named as a member of the committee to which President Wilson will entrust his campaign for re-election. This committee has a membership of twenty, and there are two men from New Jersey among its members. The other is Judge R. S. Hudspeth.

All details of the national campaign are to be handled by the general committee, of which Vance McCormick is chairman, and the National Democratic Committee will serve in an advisory capacitl. A Progressive committee of seven has also been named. The two bodies follow Democratic Campaign Committee—Vance McCormick, chairman; Homer S. Cummings, vice chairman, Connecticut; Wilbur W. Marsh, treasurer, Iowa; Carter Glass, secretary, Virginia; Henry Morgenthau, chairman finance committee, New York; Judge R. S. Hudspeth, New Jersey; Hugh C. Wallace, Washington; Fred B. Lynch, Minnesota; Thomas J. Walsh, Montana; Albert Sahm, Indiana; Simeon M. Johnson, Ohio; William F. Benson, Kansas; W. L. Saunders, New Jersey; Francis Peabody, Illinois; Frank E. Doremus, Michigan; James E. Smith, Missouri; M. A. Coolidge, Massachusetts; Gavin McNab, California; D. C. Roper, chairman organization bureau, and Robert W. Woolley, director of publicity.

Associate Campaign Committee of Progressives — Bainbridge Colby, New York; Matthew Hale, Massachusetts; Albert D. Nortoni, Missouri; Francis J. Heney, California; J. A. H. Hopkins, New Jersey; Ole Hansen, Washington, and Henry M. Wallace, Michigan.

Mr. McCormick asserted that the associate committee of Progressives would actively co-operate with the Democratic campaign committee.

"We have no intention," said Mr. McCormick, "to attempt to absorb the Progressive Party. We recognize in it an effective group of independent men and women who are fighting for the same progressive principles for which we stand. Our desire is to secure their spontaneous and hearty co-operation. We think that the record of the Democratic Party under President Wilson abundantly deserves that co-operation, and we rely upon the party's action in the future to continually justify their support."

President Wilson will meet the members of the Democratic campaign committee in Washington Tuesday, August 15, and the members of the associate campaign committee of Progressives on Thursday, August 17, according to Mr. McCormick.

HELD FOR VAGRANCY.

Kate Camen, no home and only a short time in this country from Scotland, was sent to Elizabeth today for ten days by City Judge William G. DeMeza, until disposition can be made of her case. She was tried on a charge of vagrancy. It is probable that she will be sent back to her old home.

MARTIN REFUSES TO MAKE 'EXIT'

Withdrawal of Secretary from Gubernatorial Race Did Not Materialize.

MET WITH GOV. FIELDER

Hudson County Politicians Fail to Make Up Slate at Governors' Day at Sea Girt—Another Appeal Made For Soldier Funds.

Sea Girt, August 12.—So far as slate making was concerned the visit of some two hundred or more Hudson county men here yesterday as guests of Governor Fielder at his last "Governor's Day" was void of results. Even Secreary of State Thomas Martin refused to make his expected exit from the Democratic Gubernatorial race, in order to leave the way clear for H. Otto Wittpenn. Mr. Martin declared to the reporters that he was not out of the race, and did not intend to be pushed out; that he would give plenty of notice if he decided to withdraw, but that at the present time nothing was further from his mind.

The impression seemed to exist that Mr. Martin was basing his position largely upon the situation regarding the surrogateship in the county, and that if a compromise candidate could be found for that job he would have to withdraw so that Mr. Wittpenn, who was also present, could have clear sailing. At present John P. Egan and Joseph F. Norton, both anti-Wittpenn men, want the nomination in the Democratic party, and Assemblyman George J. Bracken and Joseph Carroll, both in favor of the nomination of the port officer, likewise seek it. Early in the day it was rumored that Senator Charles M Egan would not be a candidate for re-election and would be a compromise candidate for the surrogatesnip, but he soon put a quietus on the stories when he arrived, leaving things just as they were. It was generally predicted by those on both sides that a compromise candidate would be found, however, and that the Secretary of State would gracefully retire in Mr. Wittpenn's favor in a short time.

Sheriff Eugene Kinkead, who has been mentioned as a candidate for his old seat in Congress, now held by Edward W. Gray, a Republican, declared that he had nothing to say on that score either as yet, but probably would have within the next week. The fact that Jonn O'Gorman, one of the Hudson county boulevard commissioners brought down a bundle of pictures of Mr. Kinkead, such as might be used for campaign purposes, and submitted them to the sheriff for his approval, led a lot of the Hudson county men to predict that he would throw his hat in the ring, when he does make a formal statement. At present the avowed candidates for the nominations are Mayor Cornelius McGlennon, of East Newark, and Gerald E. F. McDonald, also a resident of Hudson county. Part of the district, the eighth, is in Essex county.

Aside from the surrogateship and the Congressional fight in the Eighth district, there was however, but little of a political nature discussed. The guests spent three hours dodging light showers, shaking hands with the Governor and expressing regret to him that it was his last year. George L. Record, one of those who seek the Republican nomination for Governor, was here with a few of his friends, but had little to say about the outlook. Colonel Austen Colgate, one of his opponents, also came, and he was even more optimistic about his chances than he was a week ago. "It is coming our way now," he declared to the newspaper men, and the prospects for my nomination are brighter today than at any time during the campaign. We have been able to get an excellent organization started in Union county, and will have one in Bergen and Passaic before another week rolls around. In the rest of the counties things look good."

Governor Fielder became a bit rem-

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 3 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

QUARANTINE IS ENFORCED HERE

Board of Health Will Not Brook Violations From Anyone.

THE PUBLIC MUST HELP

Little Is Being Asked of Citizens—Would Cost $30,000 a Month to Stop All Travel, Says Dr. Lufburrow.

Quarantine regulations in Plainfield are as strictly enforced as in any other city in the country, according to those in charge of this work here, and there will be no change either in the orders of the Health Board or enforcement of same.

"It would cost this city approximately $30,000 a month to carry out the letter of the new State Board of Health order," said Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, who, through his office in the Board of Health, is in charge of the safety of the thousands of local citizens. "We do not want to put a man on every road leading into the city with orders to permit no one to pass. Neither do we want to keep the 2,500 commuters who work in New York from going to their business each day. In view of the fact that it is not even known whether infantile paralysis is highly contagious such a procedure would be foolish, and it would work untold hardships on the citizens."

Infantile paralysis will develop within two weeks after the child, or in some cases, adult, has been exposed to the disease. This much is known. The Plainfield plan, then, is to locate all children coming from outside immediately upon their arrival and if they are from a community that is considered dangerous even in the slightest degree they are put under two weeks' quarantine.

So far but little opposition to the quarantine has been found and the people are making the work much easier. Dr. Lufburrow, however, urges even better co-operation, saying that with the proper understanding and aid on the part of every citizen the danger would be entirely eliminated. One local citizen had been ordered to appear in court to day for permitting his children to violate quarantine regulations, but it developed that the case grew out of an honest misunderstanding of the nature of the orders issued by the Health Board, and there will be no prosecution.

The Board is prepared to prosecute those who do not obey quarantine orders, however, and will prosecute in every case, irrespective of the character of the offender. "We are asking but little of the people in face of the danger," said Dr. Lufburrow, "and we expect that little to be given. The orders that are issued must be obeyed to the letter. I will not tolerate the slightest violation, because the health of the community depends upon the actions of individuals."

MISS HORNIDGE TO SING AT CITY PARK TOMORROW

The Public Recreation Committee announces another of the new popular Sunday afternoon musicals which are being held in the City Park every Sunday afternoon from 5:15 to 5:45. There will be two popular soloists tomorrow afternoon. Miss Bessie Gunzelman, soprano, who has been heard in Plainfield in both recital and concert, and who possesses a fine lyric voice, which she used to splendid advantage, will sing one of the numbers on the program, and Miss Gertrude Hornidge, the popular vocalist appearing at Proctor's Theatre, will sing Gounod's "Ave Maria." Miss Hornidge readily consented to sing when approached by the committee, and the arrangement was made possible through the courtesy of the management of Proctor's Theatre, who are always pleased to co-operate with the Civic League or civic government in anything that will directly benefit the city and citizens of Plainfield. There has been a great demand for the services of Miss Hornidge, who is now beginning her fourth week of a summer engagement at Proctors', and her clear soprano voice is just suited to concert work. Miss Hornidge was engaged by the management of Proctor's while substituting for one of the members of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The seats on the platform at the City Park are free to the public, and it is hoped that a very large number will be in attendance.

RELIEF LEAGUE WILL SPEND $500 AT ONCE

Executive Committee Met With Mrs. Fielder at Sea Girt Yesterday.

Sea Girt, August 12.—Members of the executive committee of the New Jersey Soldiers' Relief League held a meeting here yesterday with Mrs. James F. Fielder, the president of the organization, and excellent reports were received of the work now being done.

It was decided to spend $500 at once on clothing and necessities, and Mrs. Arthur Mackie, of Newark, will make the purchases at once from New Jersey firms, consisting of soap, towels, shaving soap, tooth paste, razors, shaving brushes, tooth brushes, combs, pads, pencils and envelopes. Large quantities of abdominal bands have already been forwarded, as well as comfort kits, all of which have been made by volunteers. Literature and magazines are much wanted and should be forwarded direct to Douglas, Arizona.

The league has already forwarded $400 to the Newark Board of Trade for the work, and a similar amount to a citizens' committee in Paterson. Over forty families are now receiving weekly payments, the amount given being the difference between what the bread winners' employer is paying of his salary, or between what he is getting from the government, and what he earns at home; $150 has been sent to the colonels of each of the three regiments now at Douglas, and $50 to the commandant of each separate unit. A second $50 for each of the twelve units was also ordered sent at yesterday's meeting.

A group of Long Branch women, headed by Mrs. Charles A. Wimpheimer, have forwarded everything that Major Harold A. Corbusier has asked for the use of the medical corps and field hospital, including eighteen pairs of rubber boots, soap, towels, aluminum soap boxes, writing material, safety pins, shoe strings, buttons, books and magazines. The women assisting Mrs. Wimpfheimer are Mrs Henry Block, who is acting as treasurer of the group; Mrs. J. Addison Wooley, Mrs. Parke M. Wooley, Mrs Edgar Mason, Mrs. Sidney Sternbach Mrs. Samuel Kridel, Mrs. Leonard B Schoenfield, Mrs. William Rothschild, Mrs. Joseph Blume, Mrs. Frederick Rothschild and Mrs. Louis True.

There was raised $159.45 for the cause by a group of young people at Bay Head, who held a fair at the home of Miss Elizabeth Harris, whose winter home is at Princeton. Those who assisted her were Alice and Coventry Smith, Malcolm Wister, Betty McLaren, Helen and William Harris, May and Catherine Lanier, Mary Whitney, Richard Riegel, Donald Overman and Olivia Lee Young. Mrs. William Elmer also held a card party at Bay Head and raised $103 for the work, and Mrs. J. N. S Brewster, of Elizabeth, will hold a fair at the same resort on August 24, when she hopes to increase the funds materially.

German Losses 3,135,177.

London, August 12.—German casualties in the war during July, according to a table compiled here today from the German casualty lists, totalled 122,450, bringing the grand total since the beginning of the war, taken from the same sources, to 3,135,177.

London, Aug. 12.—With the Russians in possession of Stanislau, the most important railroad city of Galicia, and the Italians holding the entire Doberto plateau and new positions in the Isonzo, captured in Friday's fighting, Austrian armies in their two theatres of war are in continuous retreat.

In Galicia they appear to be utterly demoralized and unable to make any strong resistance against the Russians. On the Italian front they hold to their positions more tenaciously, but are losing ground steadily, the Italian troops forcing them back on all parts of the twelve-mile battle front.

On the western front the French have driven forward again north of the Somme River, pushing their lines closer to Combles. Trenches around Maurepas and at Hem Wood were taken by assault by French infantry.

German Assaults Futile.

Paris, Aug. 12.—Futile attempts were made by the Germans last night to recapture from the French some of the ground lost on the Somme front. No only were the counter-attacks of the Germans beaten off, but the War Office, in a statement today, said that a French reconnaisance north of the Somme River penetrated the German position in Hem Wood.

SALT WATER DAY THE EVENT OF YEAR FOR NEW JERSEY'S "RUBE" F[illegible]ENT

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press.)

Manasquan, Aug. 12.—Whether the sun shines brightly or the rain comes down in bucketfuls, there is one outdoor event of the summer season that is never interfered with. On the second Saturday in August, ever since the memory of the oldest participant here today, and in some cases the four-score mark was passed, the rural inhabitants of the State from points as far back as forty miles in the country have gathered on the beach here or at Sea Girt for a dip in the surf. No posters appear on the sides of barns, there are no notices sent out in the mail, but in spite of that the crowd is always big.

The time was, not many years ago, when the annual "big sea day," as it was called by the farmers, or "Jersey wash," as it is more impolitely called by the city folks who have taken to visiting it of late years, was held at the mouth of Wreck Bond at Sea Girt, btu a few years ago a rapidly growing cottage colony objected to the noise and the owners of the beach here invited the visitors to shift their salt water bathing point. That explains why all roads led to Squan beach late yesterday and again this morning. In this age of automobiles it is surprising how many of the old style "Black Maria" wagons are in use back in the country. It was a safe bet that all of that type of conveyance for miles around were pulled out of the barn, and hitched to the plough team for use today, even by the farmers who have risen to the dignity of 1916 six-cylinder automobiles, for the women folk have learned that automobile curtains do not compare with the black sides of the wagons, when it comes to forming impromptu bath houses on the beach, and everyone takes a dip, rain or shine.

But there are enough of the old-time features left to make the day attractive to even the old-timer, who says that "it ain't as [illegible] ister be," but who for all that enters into the spirit of the day. [illegible] the whips, which he sells "one for a dollar," and seven or eight others thrown into the bargain to make it attractive to the shrewd rustic, and who proudly boasts to the crowd about him that he has not missed one of "these here wash days for twenty years," is on hand and greets old friends. A more up-to-date faker, who hails from Manasquan, this morning commercialized the recent shark scaré, and was showing a seven foot specimen, caught in Height's net here a few weeks ago, and carefully preserved in ice until today so that it could be exhibited at "two bits a view." There was a big turtle, said to weigh 450 pounds, that was also caught last week, and this was gazed upon in open-mouth astonishment by scores and hundreds of the natives at ten cents a gaze.

The smooth talkers and slick fingered gentlemen of other years were nowhere to be seen, unless they hid in the recesss of one of the many bungalows on the beach for Lawrence McCormick, the Monmouth county detective, was on hand early, and he saw to it that gamblers moved off the beach at a rapid pace. A couple of wagons were driven in with fresh sweet cider, made from early apples, and these were the only dispensers of drinks on the beach, although the bibulously inclined could get all they wanted at Manasquan, not far away.

Along toward noon, hours after most of the country folks had taken their dip in the surf, and were beginning to enjoy the beach amusements, summer folks began to arrive, and "look them over." They were probably disappointed if they expected anything unusual, for nowadays farmers' daughters, or most of them, dress in the heighth of style and are hard to distinguish from the "city folk." Truly the old order of things has changed.

WATCHUNG KEEPS STRICT QUARANTINE

Health Officers Tell of Work —$100 For Survey of Washington Rock Road.

The regular meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee on Thursday was one of the longest on record and was attended by many of the taxpayers. Eph Ackor, as special health officer, patrolling the Hillcrest and Warrenville roads, submitted his report to the committee. No new cases of the paralysis have appeared. A long and exhaustive report was submitted by the special health officers, George Mobus and Melvin Cleaves. The whole township was covered by them in a three days' inspection tour. Sanitary conditions were poor at many places and stringent orders were given to clean up within five days. The regulations of the Board of Health are carried out strictly and conscientiously, but with a due regard to the rights of citizens, and in a sensible manner. The quarantine of the houses under observation at present on Hillside road is to be lifted at the expiration of fourteen days. The health patrol is to be continued for the present.

After the routine business of the township was disposed of, C. L. Riley, of the Washington Rock road, appeared before the committee in behalf of the projected State road to the Washington Rock Park Reservation and requested an appropriation for a preliminary survey of the roadway. By a majority vote the committee pledged the township for the sum of $100. After long and earnest discussion the new budget was passed; for roads, $2,100; poor, $900; salaries, 1,300; police, $100; fire department, $300; legal expenses, $150; rent, $100; oiling Somerset street, $100; cleaning Probst pond, $20; forest fires, $100; health department, $300; Washington Rock road survey, retaining wall at Somerset street, county road in Greenbrook, $620; contingent, $560; a total of $6,650. SEES PLOT BEHIND BLACK TOM BLOW-UP

Lehigh Valley Man Says Munition Cars Were Set On Fire.

Jersey City, Aug. 12.—The fire which led to the explosion at Black Tom Island July 30, as well as that which destroyed ten freight cars in the Claremont grain yards of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, near Black Tom, last Sunday night, was of incendiary origin, according to a conviction expressed by Assistant General Counsel Barrett of that railroad.

Commenting on statements of witnesses examined at the instance of the prosecutor's office in Jersey City, indicating that the fire at Black Tom originated in the Lehigh Valley yards, not on barges tied to the docks as was an early theory, Mr. Barrett said the belief that the blaze started on a barge is not held now in his office.

"There is no doubt," he declared, "that some person or persons started a fire under cars in the Claremont yards, and that they did so thinking that the cars contained explosive shells which could be exploded by heat. Although that was not generally known, we had unloaded those cars."

Further than this the statement of the Lehigh Valley's legal representative did not go. It was explained that the railroad company is conducting an investigation of its own and it is not deemed advisable to make known its results yet.

NOTORIOUS SHOP GIRL MURDER ANNIVERSARY

Beautiful Mary Rogers Foully Put to Death 75 Years Ago.

New York, August 12.—Among the oldest resident of New York there are probably a few still living who recall the tremendous excitement that was created in the metropolis just seventy-five years ago this week by the murder of the beautiful Mary Rogers. The beauty of the victim and the impenetrable mystery that surrounded her murder combined to make the tragedy one of the most celebrated in the criminal annals of this city. Edgar Allan Poe made the murder the basis for one of his immortal stories of crime and mystery. Poe was a resident of New York at the time of the murder, and made an exhaustive investigation of all the evidence at hand. In his story of the murder of Marie Rogers" he offered what purported to be a solution of the murder of the Rogers girl. The tale was logical and in accordance with the generally accepted theory at the time, but so far as the discovery of any actual evidence was concerned the police were never able to throw the slightest light on the mystery of the murder or find the smallest clue to its perpetrators.

Seventy-five years ago, Mary Rogers, widely known for her beauty, was employed in a tobacconist's shop in the busy part of the meropolis. She was a girl young in years and of unblemished reputation. Her beauty attracted the attention of every customer of the shop where she was employed, but as far as known she had no intimate male friends.

On a Saturday morning, in the early part of August, 1841, the girl donned her best attire and left the home of her parents to spend the day with relatives in another section of the city. From the hour that she left the neighborhood of her home she was never seen alive by any one who recognized her.

The next day her body was found in Sibyl Cove, near the Elysian Fields, in Hoboken. In those days "the fields" was a similar resort to Coney Island, except that it was much smallr. The one hotel of the place, "Th Shads," a capacious colonial mansion, is said to have been in its earlier days the summer home of the first Astor.

The revelations at the inquest disclosed a crime similar in many respects to the Bosschieter case, which stirred Paterson many years later. The hands and feet of the girl were tied with rope and a part of her apparel was missing. The knots in the ropes led the police to believe that the crime was the work of seafaring men. The resorts of sailors in and about New York were combed in a futile effort to find a clue to the murderers. All persons acquainted with the murdered girl scouted the idea that she had gone voluntarily to the resort near where here remains were found. The theory was advanced and generally accepted, that she had been lured to some house in New York, where she was attacked and murdered and her remains carried across the river under cover of darkness. There was not the slightest evidence at hand, however, to substantiate this story. That the crime must have been committed in broad day appeared a certainty from the fact that the girl had never reached the home of her relatives, where she would have arrived long before the noon hour. Equally fruitless were the efforts of the police to ascertain how and when the remains had been conveyed across the river. Investigation was made of the movements of every boat and skiff along the New York shore, but nothing was learned that could throw any light on the identity of the men responsible for the girl's death.

The last survivor among those known to have been concerned directly or indirectly with the celebrated murder mystery as Michael Roche, who died at his home in Weehawken some ten years ago. Roche was the principal witness at the inquest. His home stood on the edge of the Elysian Fields, and he used to watch the revelers from the upper windows of his house. On the night of the tragedy he saw three men carry a woman over toward the cove.

"Some girl who has drunk too much," he said to himself as he looked; "they are taking her to the water to revive her."

The next day Roche shared in the intense excitement that prevailed among all classes when it became known that Mary Rogers, "the beautiful shop girl," had been foully murdered.

COOL WEATHER HELPS N. Y. PARALYSIS CASES

New York, August 12.—Favorable weather and the use of blood serum today combined to decrease the ravages of infantile paralysis. The Health Department has completed arrangements to start thirty nurses on a home-to-home canvass in the tenement districts in the lower East Side of Manhattan and in the Central avenue district of Brooklyn. Monday, special lecture clinics at Bellevue, Lebanon, Babies', Mount Sinai and Kingston Avenue hospitals will be resumed.

Fifteen ounces of serum was added today to the stock on hand at Willard Parker Hospital through the offerings of five persons, three of whom were women. One of the physicians said the serum treatment had been satisfactory, but was not yet accepted without reservation, because of possible future developments.

NO HOPE OF MEDIATION IN RAILROAD TROUBLE

New York, Aug. 12.—The conference which is to decide whether there will be a break between the railroad companies and the four Brotherhoods was opened at 10 o'clock this morning at Webster Hall. The three members of the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation attended the session with the Railroad Employes' Committee and 600 delegates representing the Brotherhoods. Following the conference, Judge Martin A. Knapp, of the Federal Board of Mediation, made the following announcement:

"We hav told the railroad employes there is no prospect of settlement by mediation and have submitted a proposition of arbitration. The Railroad Employes' Committee then went into executive session to consider the proposal of the Federal Board."

EXHIBITION TO AID RECRUITING.

New York, Aug. 12.—Under the auspices of the American Defense Society, a novel preparedness exhibition, designed to aid in recruiting for all three branches of the naval and military service, was opened today at Glen Island, in Long Island Sound, and will be continued until August 20. Recruiting stations for the army, navy and marine corps have been established on the island. It is hoped by means of lectures, motion pictures and other features in connection with the exhibition to interest young men in the desirability and advantages of life in the various arms of defense, and also to interest parents in what the army and navy has to offer in the way of opportunities for advancement and in educational training. Several warships are to remain at anchor off the island during the period of the exhibition. There will also be practical demonstrations of the use of "wireless" in the army and navy, conducted under the direction of Lee De Forest.

Beauty Secrets for the Elbow

Careful attention to bathing and the application of lotions and creams to the surface of the arms will make the skin soft and white. Even the elbows can be made soft and "velvety."

With good massage, some vaseline or pure cold cream, witch hazel and a stiff flesh brush and a bar of soap every elbow can be made presentable.

The elbows must not rest upon a table or any hard substance, as the rubbing and pressure make the skin harsh and rough and dry. To care for the elbows properly a daily bath with the brush and plenty of good soap, followed by a brisk rubbing with a crash towel, is required. After the elbow is well dried massage it with some emollient, taking pieces of cotton and wiping away the oil at different times in order to remove the dirt which oozes out of the skin as the emollient clears the pores. Thoroughly wipe the cream away when through with the massage and then apply the witch hazel.

Pinching Beneficial.

The best time to give the elbow this attention is upon retiring. In case the elbow is scaly and rough, a strenuous effective method of softening it and making it smooth and white is to apply powdered pumice stone, taking care not to break the skin. Follow the pumice stone rubbing with cold cream and witch hazel, as stated above.

Pinching is the best method to remove surplus flesh from the arm. Pinch the arm all over. Give good, hard pinches, only be careful not to bruise the flesh. The pinching will bring the blood to the surface and exercise the many muscles useless from inactivity.

Exercises which bring the unused muscles into play will also help shape the arm and remove superfluous fat. There need be no fear that any exercises will make the muscles knotty and hard, as woman's body is so built that it is impossible for the muscles to become so.

Every woman's muscles are covered with a layer of fatty tissue.

Sanitary High Chair Bib

Take a piece of soft white oilcloth or rubber sheeting 15x20 inches, make the upper portion in shape of bib to fit the neck. Fasten lower portion as if to make an apron, widening until full width of cloth at bottom. Tack white tape at each side of the neck, also on apron.

To use, tie around neck by tapes, bring apron part up over table of high chair, tying first set of tapes to arm of highchair, just tight enough to allow freedom of motion and to form a slight cup in the cloth to catch all that drops from baby's spoon.

Tie lower set of tapes tightly to main round of highchair, drawing down firmly over table of chair. This will form a perfectly smooth cover for baby's table and can be taken off and washed. It is also splendid for "holding" in a too inquisitive youngster.

To Clean Feather Boa

Few women have success in cleaning feathers at home, and as a general thing it is much wiser to send them to a professional. The cost is not great to have a boa cleaned and if it is a nice one it is money well spent.

However, if you prefer to clean it at home, try the following method:

Prepare suds by shaving and boiling half a bar of hard white or naphtha soap in a saucepan with sufficient water. Dilute with warm soft water. Immerse the boa in this and allow it to soak for ten or fifteen minutes, occasionally drawing it loosely through the hands to strip out the dirt with the suds. Rinse in water of the same temperature.

Draw through the palm of the hand to squeeze out the water, but without twisting. Pin or stitch the boa to a cloth and hang up to dry with as many of the feathers hanging down as is possible.

Shake occasionally while drying or, if time will permit, shake the feathers near the stove until dry.

The Mayflower

Do you give the name "Mayflower" to the anemone that daintily blows to pieces in the boisterous spring winds?

Do you give it to the marsh marigold?

Or do you call arbutus mayflower?

The name mayflower is really given to all these flowers and more.

Did you ever wonder for which of them the doughty little ship that brought such a precious load of immigrants to this country some 300 years ago was named?

For none of them.

No the Pilgrims named their ship Mayflower for the sweet hawthorn of England.

When they reached this country and after a cold and bitterly disappointing winter, first beheld the smiling trailing arbutus in the spring, they called it mayflower, in remembrance of their native hawthorn. The pink and white blossoms of the one were, in color and daintiness, at least, reminiscent of those of the other.

NEW USE FOR ORANGE PEEL.

Orange peel is now used as a simple laxative. Fresh orange peel is boiled and the first bitter infusion poured off; then it is boiled again, in a slightly sweetened water, for about half an hour.

After it has dried it is ready for use, the dose being the peel of a whole orange.

For the House of Good Taste---

The Wanamaker August Furniture Sale (Original)

Self improvement is in the air. Every American man, woman and child wants to grow. Good taste, formerly the treasure of the few, is now the every-day possession of the many.

Our schools and colleges, filled with thousands of mature as well as young pupils, our ever-bettering museums, crowded on Sundays and holiday times with cultured and uncultured, the movies, the great modern educator, which brings to all kinds of people the interior of the homes of all other kinds of people—these are showing the way to everyone to think more clearly, to live better, to surround himself in his home with finer, simpler furniture and furnishings.

It is the dawn of the day of the House of Good Taste.

Every woman prides herself in the hominess and the comfort and the simplicity of her house. Splendor as such does not so much matter. Fewer rooms in most houses, especially in New York, necessitate that everything in the house must be there primarily because it is useful.

The Wanamaker Store has for years set this standard of comfortable, well proportioned furniture. Perfectly built—genuine. This half-yearly Sale offers such furniture at 10 to 50 per cent. less. Copies of Colonial and other classic styles. True woods, through and through. Graceful lines. Small, easily moved about pieces.

Autumn Serge Dresses Full of Fashion Notes

La Galerie Wanamaker has been filling up quietly with many new moderate priced fashions for women.

Tailored suits and all the useful serge and satin dresses that will be needed for the first cool days.

The dress pictured is composed of alternate panels of satin and serge; the dress is made entirely loose without waist band, the fulness held in by the sash which ties in the back. The fringed black satin collar has a smaller turn over collar of white satin. Price $32.50.

Twisted wool fringe in blue edges a charming blue serge dress with black and blue embroidery at $22.50.

Red stitching and red buttons are the advance notice that both are to be much used this season; this little serge dress is only $12.75.

A dress with a short coat effect in front but a long waistline in the back finished with quaint cording is trimmed with wide braid, at $27.50.

An organ piped skirt is another Paris idea; this serge dress has a broadcloth collar and cuffs. $25.

A pretty little dress of all wool blue serge with wide belt and pleated skirt has collar and cuffs of creamy batiste embroidery. $14.50.

So many Autumn fashions there are to see that La Galerie Wanamaker extends an invitation to visitors to investigate the new things now even though they do not wish to purchase at once.

Second floor, Old Building.

Young Women's Pretty Silk Dresses Reduced

Dresses at $7.50 which have been $13.75
Dresses at $10 which have been $17.50

WAR NEWS

mans assaulted the new positions of the British at that place last night, the War Office announced today, but the attack was repulsed. Elsewhere the statement says, the position on the British front is unchanged.

London, Aug. 12.—Field Marshal von Hindenberg, who is now directing Teutonic operations over three-fourths of the east front, has been promised 300,000 reinforcements within a month, says a despatch to the Morning Post from Berne. These are to come from Turkey and the western theatre of war.

High Bridge-Clifaon

Former Committeeman Levi N. Hoffman is ill at his home at Farmersville.

Miss Julia A. Apgar, of High Bridge, is visiting her brother, Postmaster Benaamin F. Apgar, of Hampton.

The Tewsbury Board of Education will meet August 19 to receive bids for the transportation of pupils to the high schools at High Bridge, Somerville and Bernardsville. There are forty-eight high school pupils to be transported.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cogland, of Califon, visited this week Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alpaugh at New Germantown.

Knox Taylor returned Wednesday to High Bridge from the military training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y.

Christopher Dufford, who for several years managed Beaty's Sons branch store at High Bridge, has resigned to accept a similar position at Glen Ridge.

PEACE TREATY FORMALITIES.

London, Aug. 12.—When the present great conflict in Europe comes to an end, a treaty of peace will be signed, sealed and delivered, as between the various belligerents. This will be a most imposing document, written by hand throughout, sealed with many seals and bound about with green silk ribbon.

Following the usual custom, each copy of the treaty will begin with the words, "In the Name of the Most Holy and Undivided Trinity." Should, however, Turkey be one of the signatory powers, as seems probable, this formula will be altered to "In the Name of Allah the Almighty God," in the copy allotted to her.

At least as many copies as there are signatory powers will be signed and sealed, while several certified copies will be signed, but not sealed, for the sake of convenience. The original copies will be securely locked up in the State archives of the different countries, while the certified copies will be used for printing from and for reference.

Peace treaties are not written straight across the page, on pages, like ordinary documents. They are written in parallel columns, on the page, the next in French, the next in Italian, German, Russian and so on, according to the number of languages spoken by the people of the signatory powers. The text of each of these columns is an exact translation of the text of all other columns, and the utmost pains is taken in the selection of words that will convey identical shades of meaning.

The monarchs of signatory powers don't affix their signatures or seals to the peace treaties entered into by them. This formality is carried out by specially accredited peace commissioners.

SAM ROTHBERG BACK-TALKS ON A PERSONAL SUBJECT

Samuel Rothberg returned late last night from a week's trip to Atlanta, Ga., where he visited at the family of his fiancee. "That is a great country for pretty girls," said Mr. Rothberg this morning, "but for business you have to stay in Plainfield." Mr. Rothberg was much impressed with the progressiveness of the Georgia Capitol. However, he spent most of his time boosting his home city while he was gone and there are some people in Atlanta now who have heard about Plainfield. The local merchant was perfectly willing to talk this morning, but most of his conversation was on a subject too personal for publication.

A Curious Advertisement

"It is wrong to believe." That was the heading of an ad for a whole house in a trade magazine that made you want to read more. "It is wrong to believe that ideals are peculiar to artists or poets exclusively—we too have ideals."

That's a new point of view from a dress manufacturer, and yet, as you read on, you realized it was absolutely true. They have certain definite standards in workmanship and design to which they hold. Everywhere in business a new idea of responsibility to the public is being expressed. Advertisements express this in hundreds of ways. Business is not just business—as we used to say so easily—business is dealing with people. To deal with them squarely, to the very best of one's ability, to give the greatest service, that is the kind of business that pays best after all.

Ida Tarbell demonstrated not so long ago in a series of articles that consideration of the welfare of employes paid the employer in dollars and cents. Business firms have a new sense of responsibility to employes as well as to the public.

Furthermore, they have discovered that not only is honesty in advertising the best policy, but it is the only one that pays. The transformation of the slogan "Competition is the life of business," into "Cooperation is the life of business," expresses a vast deal.

All these so called modern ideas come as a great incentive to an old established house that, for years has quietly persistently, sincerely held to these ideas. The slogan "Customers First," accounts for the feeling of confidence that the public places in the house of Hearn. No misrepresentation, just plain fact, straightforward business dealing, mark the dealings of Hearn, West 14th St., New York.

This may be one reason that our sales are so successful. The Twenty-Fourth August Sale has been a surprise. You would expect folks to grow used to an institution that has existed for nearly a quarter of a century. They might take it as a matter of course. But, year after year, the same remarkable value-giving continues to amaze and draw people.

To offer splendid values this year was a particular feat. Just the very articles of the sale departments. Household and decorative linens had soared in price and really were difficult to obtain even at higher prices. But we were equal to do it, and are more proud than ever of our values in Household Dry Goods.

It's curious the way stock goes when clearance comes. It's just like cleaning house. Then you always find things you hadn't thought of—sometimes nice things put quite out of sight that you'd quite forgotten. We do that, of course, and you will be pleased when you see the way prices are marked on our dresses. Evening frocks, simply alluring, marked at half price just to clear. Blouses most elaborate really unusual designs with red tickets on them. That always means a reduction. Of course, tub frocks are marked at just any price to clear. This is really an excellent time to buy clothes for the kiddies. Dainty, simple, durable frocks, serviceable play dresses—all decidedly reduced. Boys' things are included, too. You should see them.

Just two more weeks of the August Sale—ten more shopping days. You didn't realize that, did you?

HIS ANCESTORS THE FIRST IN THIS CITY

James Martin Roll, Descendant of Founders of Plainfield, Dies.

James Martin Roll, whose ancestors founded the city of Plainfield, died Thursday at his home in Washington, N. J., in his seventy-third year. Mr. Roll was formerly a police justice of South Orange and at one time prominently identified with civic affairs in New Jersey. His ancestors were Dutch settlers of the Mohawk Valley and in 1742 they founded a settlement where Plainfield now stands.

Mr. Roll has served as president of the Springfield Board of Education and as a member of the New Jersey Assembly, the Union Township Board of Freeholders and the Springfield Township Committee. His promotion of the construction of street car lines gained for him the sobriquet of "Trolley Roll." He was an early advocate of the scheme to abolish spring elections, and when the elections in Newark and Jersey City were merged, he sought to have a bill enacted affecting the entire State. Subsequently the law was made to apply to second class cities and after Mr. Roll's retirement a State-wide measure was enacted.

Mr. Roll was president of Roll, Sickley & Son, coal and lumber dealers of South Orange. He leaves his wife and one son.

WILL SEEK REELECTION

sary to employ and embrace Republican principles of creating revenue, the administration thereby abandoning its free trade policy in this very important instance and on this very important commodity.

"Among the more important measures which enlisted my support I would quote my vote for the abolishment of all child labor. Enlightened public opinion is unanimous respecting its blighting effect.

"Upon the principle of social and economic justice my vote was cast in favor of all measures acted upon by Congress to compensate and retire incapacitated and superannuated public servants, and therefore, I am in favor of laws looking to an amelioration of these conditions and making for efficiency.

"During the session many money measures affecting labor were considered. I voted in favor of the shorter hour for government employes. My support was successfully given other measures benefiting mail carriers and public employes generally.

"A rural credits act, making it easier for farmers to borrow money and at a lower rate of interest, had my support. It is now a law.

"Among the important measures acted upon by Congress which did not receive my support was the roads bill, for the reason that it was sectional legislation. In other words, States like New Jersey would be least benefited. The sparsely settled ones in the South and West were benefited at the expense of those thickly populated and now having good road system built by their own efforts and at their own expense.

"My vote was cast against the pensioning of Indian War veterans for the reason that most of the men to be benefited saw little or no actual service in these wars, but are really survivors of the Confederacy. To pension men who fought against the Union did not meet with my approval.

"Neither did a bill to revive the right to bring suit under the act of March 12, 1863, without a provision that the original owner must prove loyalty to the United States Government during the Civil War. The bill was defeated.

"On legislation of lesser general and local importance, such as the Haitian constabulary bill, the collection and publication of cotton statistics, the incorporation of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the District of Columbia Juvenile Court bill, rivers and harbors, agricultural and other appropriation bills, and various other more or less needed measures, I voted according to what my judgment and conscience told me was right. In nearly every instance my vote was with the prevailing side.

"As a member of the Committee on Claim I reported adversely more bills introduced and without merit than any other member. Those reported favorably and passed gave me a rank of third among the sixteen Representatives comprising the committee.

"This committee is the clearing house for collecting money from the government. Thousands of people come year after year demanding sums that amount to millions of dollars. Many of these claims are just. Others are without merit as they fail to show any feature or element where actual loss, damage, or injury has developed because of fault on the part of the government or its laws.

"By reason of the unjust criticism to which I have been subjected by some of my constituents, I desire to discuss at length my vote on the McLemore resolution. There were 142 Representatives who voted against tabling the resolution—40 Democrats and 102 Republicans out of a total of 197 Republican members.

"The records show that I voted 'no' on the previous question and 'no' on the rule, and 'no' on the motion to table the resolution.

"The resolution was tabled in spite of the fact that the President, in requesting action upon this resolution, had used the following language in his letter to the chairman of the committee:

"'I therefore feel justified in asking that your committee will permit me to urge an early vote on the resolution with regard to travel on armed merchantmen which have recently been so much talked about in order that there may be afforded an opportunity for full public discussion and action upon them and that all doubts and conjectures may be swept away and our foreign relations once more cleared of damaging misunderstandings.'

"Those who voted in the affirmative evaded the request of the President, and the country does not know to this day whether a majority of Congressmen favored the resolution warning American citizens off armed belligerent merchant vessels or not. What the country does know is that the majority of Congressmen voted to avoid giving a direct answer on the proposition and the President accepted the shifty, evasive, non-committal act as a vote of confidence.

"I am of American birth and I honor and revere my country and the high ideals it represents. I believe in Americanism and the protection of the rights of American citizens both at home and abroad. I am not afraid to meet any issue in which the question of true Americanism is involved. I know no other allegiance except that of my country and to exert my utmost efforts for its benefit. In voting as I did I was not actuated with the idea of securing votes, but with an honest desire to have the wish of the President complied with, and place myself fairly and squarely on record on the merits of the resolution itself, and not shelter myself behind the cowardly parliamentary method of tabling the entire proposition.

"There are two sides to every question of importance and there will always be a division of opinion as to what ought to be done upon every important matter. The vaccilating policy of the President in his management of Mexican and foreign affairs created a situation which had discredited American prestige at home and abroad. The proposition of warning American citizens from sailing on armed belligerent merchant vessels had rallied to the standard both for and against some of the ablest men in the Senate and House. A crisis had arisen, war seemed inevitable. The question was not one of upholding the hands of the President, because no one knew just exactly what the President wanted. One day it was a question of holding to strict accountability, and the next day it was a question of being too proud to fight. Personally I am in favor of peace, but a peace without concession of a single right belonging to our country as a nation, or to its individual citizens.

"I do not profess to be infallible, and there may be others who may conscientiously differ with me in my conclusion, but when we consider that the courts of last resort frequently disagree, it is not surprising that others should disagree with me in their construction of the effect of this resolution.

"I have been criticised for acknowledging receipt of resolutions adopted by some of my constituents commending my action upon this measure, which criticism was unwarranted and uncalled for. I am ready at all times to extend to any of my constituents the courtesy of a reply to any communication received from them, whether of commendation or of criticism, and I welcome the aid, assistance and advice of any of the constituents in the district who have the interest of their country at heart and are willing to rally to its support and maintain its principles and institutions, irrespective as to whether they are of native or foreign birth.

"Having rendered as briefly as I could an account of my stewardship, I take this means of announcing that I am a candidate for renomination as a Representative of the Republican party from the Fifth Congressional District, and in doing so I desire to say that I stand for the principles enunciated in the platform of the Republican Party in convention assembled at Chicago; that I endorse the construction of the issues of the day as defined by our standard bearer, Mr. Charles E. Hughes, in his speech of acceptance in Carnegie Hall; that I am in favor of preparedness, universal training, the protection of American labor and a tariff commission to adjust the differences of the price paid to labor abroad so that we may maintain the high standard of wages paid to American labor by not permitting any goods to enter our ports that will be sold at less price that what the same goods can be manufactured here.

"I stand for Americanism in its true conception of the word, no divided allegiance, but one country, one people, and one flag. I endorse the enactment of such legislation as will insure the prosperity of the country in the future and not contingent upon the sale of munitions of war; the enactment of such laws as will restore American prestige on land and sea and furnish the power to secure proper recognition for American rights; and a policy with the Latin-American races that will restore their confidence in the American people and open their markets to the manufacturers of this country.

"Reposing confidence in the spirit of fairness and justice of the voters of the district, I again solicit your suffrage at the primary election to be held September 26 next, pledging myself to do all that I can for the interest of the Republican Party and the nation at large.

iniscent when he made his speech appealing for funds for the New Jersey Soldiers' Relief League. He expressed regret that it was his last appearance as host on Governor's day, but thought that it was appropriate that his visitors should come from his home county of Hudson. He told of the pleasant and enjoyable time he had had in the office, and what a pleasure it had been to meet with his friends to talk over things which were of common interest to Jerseymen. He then reviewed the work which the New Jersey soldiers have done at the border, and asked if they did not want to contribute to make things easier for the boys. There was $207.45 put in the pans which were passed.

Because of the bad weather, the crowd which came to the gathering yesterday did not number over 200, and provision had been made to give luncheon to twice that number. Mrs Fielder directed that the food that was left over be sent to Ann May Memorial Hospital at Spring Lake, and this was done. Earlier in the day a couple of young women from Point Pleasant started to go through the crowd selling tickets for a benefit performance to be given there, and Mrs. Fielder personally left the porch of the cottage and stopped the soliciting. One of the young women persisted and the Governor's wife went to her, took her by the arm, and showed her the way to the automobile in which the solicitor came.

Other vistors besides those mentioned last night included Surrogate John P. Egan, L. J. Tonnele, secretary of the Democratic State Committee and a member of the State Water Supply Commission; Judge George J. Tennant, former Judge John A. Blair, "Pat" Powers, the baseball magnate; District Court Judge Frank McCauley, James Houghton, John Walsh, Stewart Mitchell, County Clerk John P. McGovern, Public Printer Cornelius Ford, Civil Service Commissioner Theodore Smith, Judge Mark Sullivan, Commissioner George Brensinger, Attorney General John W. Wescott, Assemblyman Henry J. Probst, Oliver W. Holcombe and Judge Paul A. Queen, of Hunterdon county.

UNION COUNTY GROWS IN BUILDING LINE ALTHOUGH COMPARATIVELY SMALL IN SIZE

Union county is comparatively small in territory. It is great among the counties of New Jersey in activity, in industrial and commercial wealth and in population. It is exceptionally rich in opportunity. Its future prospects are monumental.

It is necessary to have in mind two distinctive features upon which the development of Union county must be based when considering its promises of future progress. The entire territory embraced between Elizabeth at its extreme eastern end and Plainfield on its western boundary; between Rahway at the south and the thriving residential city of Summit at the north offers manifold opportunities not alone along the lines of industrial evolution but also along the lines of residential growth.

Union county, with Elizabeth, a city of 84,000, as its metropolis, lies closely and advantageously at tidewater. The industrial future of this city and its outlying environs promise well because of its waterfront advantages alone. Elizabeth has ready access to pathways of the sea upon which are carried the greater part of the burden of foreign commerce.

Stretching westward and southward into the very heart of the nation are at least five great trunk line railways, the rights of way of which fairly honeycomb Union county territory. Union county lies directly between the two great cities of New York and Philadelphia, and is directly in the path of a vast part of the passenger and freight tonnage of the country. It is a terminal for a large part of this traffic and activity.

All along the rights of way of the railways that cut through the territory of Union county are offered manifold opportunities for industrial plants. Abundant acreage for industrial plants are furnished in this county, the official life of which is lived out in the metropolis. Union county offers the promoter of industrial activities the opportunity to establish his factory on abundant acreage in the county and yet not far from his official offices in New York.

The chimneys of industrial plants of unusual variety and exceptional importance rise everywhere throughout the county, indicating that the advantages for industrial building offered by it have not been overlooked. There are already located in various parts of this section industries famous throughout the world for their service to humanity and for their greatness.

Union county, moreover, is becoming yearly more and more popular among home-seekers of the metropolitan district. Thousands of substantial business and professional men of New York, Newark and Jersey City are building their homes in the delightful residential cities and boroughs of this section. The development of Union county as a residential section is going forward with amazing rapidity. It must go forward even more rapidly in the future. The very fact that such beautiful and advantageous residential places as Plainfield, Summit, Westfield, Cranford, the Roselles and Elizabeth as well as many other places of their character lie approximately within a half hour of Broadway, makes home-making in this section attractive.

It means much to the commuter and his family who are seeking a home spot to find themselves able to reach the very heart of the shopping and amusement center of the metropolis as readily as though they lived in what in any sense of the word may be called the desirable residential section of New York, and at the same time make their home far removed from the bustle and din of city life in the delightful environs of such residential places as are scattered thickly over this county. It means much to home-seekers, too, to be able to live in a really delightful and desirable residence environment and be within ready access of the attractive beaches and resorts of the Jersey shore.

The value of real estate has gone up rapidly in this county in recent years. This is not alone true of urban realty, but of plots and farms in outlying sections. The commuter of these times, with his high-power automobiles and his access to modern facilities that make a home wherever located comfortable, does not hesitate to lay his hearthstone somewhat remote from railway stations and city boundaries in the green depths of the country.

Union county, too, is well served by systems of trolley lines that reach in every direction into every part of it. It is no longer necessary for the laboring man to dwell close to the factory in which he toils. It is possible for him to spend his rest hours as far removed from the hum of its wheels as his fancy dictates.

Few counties of the State are increasing in population so rapidly as Union. Few counties have a more promising future before them.

A MODEL FOUR-ROOM BUNGALOW

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

THIS bungalow is one that has attracted much attention and is well adapted to the use of a small family, it has a very pretty and attractive exterior and has many good features that are often absent in larger and more expensive houses. The size is 32 feet front and 24 feet depth, this includes a corner glazed porch or sun room, the eaves have a liberal projection. The story is 9 feet in height and the attic is good and large, affording ample space for storage and if desired a fair sized room could be provided. The exterior is finished with cement stucco and the whole construction is first class, making a good substantial structure. The outside trimmings are stained brown and the sash painted white, the roof shingles stained red. The inside finish is of Washington Fir stained mission brown and the floor is of birch.

The arrangement of the stairs is very convenient, with a grade entrance to basement and kitchen and stairs over to attic, with a good platform making easy stairs. The convenient little pantry with window also is an added convenience, so that the kitchen can be used for eating purposes. There is a full basement and a good hot air furnace. The original cost was $1,800, and should not exceed $2,200, in any locality. There is one central chimney with flue for furnace and kitchen and separate flue for fireplace. The windows are liberal in size and well arranged for making pleasant rooms and with reference to inside wall space as well as outside looks. This plan has had special study and is indeed a "model" home for a small family. With a pretty setting of flowering shrubs and trees it will attract more than usual attention.

MAINE DEMOCRATS CONFIDENT.

Augusta, Me., Aug. 12.—With prominent spellbinders scheduled for speeches in various parts of the State, the Maine Democrats today enter upon the final stage of the campaign which will end with the election one month hence. The party leaders predict victory by a substantial margin in both State and national elections, but at the same time they are not going to risk becoming victims of over-confidence. They have entered upon the campaign with a great deal of zest and they are planning to pursue it with vigor and enthusiasm until polling day. A veritable flood of Democratic oratory will be let loose over the Pine Tree State during the ensuing four weeks. Among the party leaders of national prominence who will be heard on the stump will be three members of the President's cabinet—Secretaries Baker, Daniels and Redfield—and United States Senators Williams of Mississippi, Lewis of Illinois, Hollis of New Hampshire, Underwood of Alabama, and James of Kentucky.

AFTER THE WAR—WHAT?

John the Baptist "stood between two worlds; one dead, the other unable to be born." His message was "Repent," which word as used at that time meant "change your minds." "A new age is dawning. A new kingdom is at hand. You cannot pass from the old to the new without profound changes in your thinking about God and man; about justice and holiness; about the laws of social life; about the world and its destiny."

In our time the great war has brought a similar message to the whole race of man. We too must change our minds, radically, about our social institutions and systms of law, our standards of value, our religions. It is evident that our civilization which we thought so permanent and praiseworthy rests upon too narrow a foundation. A new age is here; an age of universal contact between races. An age of universal commerce in ideas and things. An age in which parochialism in religion and provincialism in politics must perish. The time has come when men must begin to think in terms of the race; when all conscious social development must become a part of a world process. We must find universal moral ideas and standards under which the nations and races may live together in peace. This is the age in which the soul of man must hold dominion over the works of his hands.

Vast and fundamental changes in thoughts and institutions have already been effected. Almost without exception the nations at war have changed in tone and temper. We know of a certainty that there is a new Russia, a new France, a new Britain. Our own nation, invincibly averse to self-analysis and criticism, is questioning the value of her material prosperity, apart from spiritual power, and is beginning to acquire an international mind.

Germany, too, must change her mind. Indeed the war cannot end until she does. Less than two generations ago Charles Darwin gathered up the groping and experimentations of centuries of scientific effort and gave to the world the theory of evolution; chief among its laws was the survival of the fittest by natural selection. In every department of life, since then, men have been trying to find in this law a sufficient explanation of all facts and phenomna. But Germany seems to have been the only nation which, consciously or unconsciously, has adopted this law as the fundamental principle of her national and international policy.

Around this idea has nucleated the whole program of efficiency and frightfulness. The natural right of the strong to do as he pleases with the weak appears in Neitzsche as the Superman. The historian Treitschke sums up his philosophy in this statement: "Weakness is the political sin against the Holy Ghost." Bernhardi lays down the principle that "War is a biological necessity." National and international ascendency by the intelligent relentless use of force is the German creed.

This is nothing more nor less than the law of the jungle adopted by the most intelligent, efficient and socially progressive nation in the world. And against this jungle law as a proposed basis for civilization the world is in arms. For the world has come to see that while the survival of the fittest is the law of natural life, it cannot be applied to any human society without being brought under the restraint of reason and right and love. Strength confers no rights which are not balanced by equally imperative duties.

Nowhere does the change in thought created by the war reveal itself more clearly than in the search which has already begun for a suitable political instrument to be used in the rebuilding of society. Thus far it seems that we shall have to choose one of four methods which hitherto have sought the suffrage of men. And choosing one we may find it wise to add to it the best contained in the others.

The first method of political government is despotism which has long been practised under many forms and with varying degrees of efficiency. This theory derives its authority from above, beginning with a divine right to rule, arbitrarily conferred upon the ruler by Almighty God. There is small doubt that this form of government will not survive the changes of the near future, but it is equally certain that the new society will be forced to a strong, efficient and centralized government.

The second theory is socialism, which has made important progress since the war began and which is destined to wield tremendous influence in the future. Its limitations will appear when it begins to invade the right of the individual to himself. Its relation to this inexpugnable right constitutes the final test of every form of government.

A third theory is anarchy, which is the extreme opposite of socialism. Philosophical anarchy has a long history, reaching back to the Greeks. In modern times it has found brilliant advocates in men such as Proudhon, Godwin, Tucker and Prince Kropotkin. In essence anarchy proposes to abolish all government and all law except the law of individual need and desire. This is a very beautiful theory, but it will not work because it is contrary to the facts of human nature.

We are thus shut up to the choice of democracy as the method, instrument and ideal to be used in building a new age. Thus far democracy has been the most difficult and often the most inefficient form of government. Nevertheless it is the only possible instrument for the future use of civilized societies. Democracy is the key to history. The purpose of all social progress is to place upon every man and every woman in the world his or her full share of burden and responsibility for the welfare of the race, and to guarantee such conditions as shall make this possoble.

As we face a worldwide application of the principles of democracy to government, economics, religion and thought, our supreme need is a general rise in the level of character and intelligence. Without this the new age will fall into disastrous ruin.

A democratic society must have at its centre a government strong, efficient and just, yet without tyranny; deriving its powers from the consent of the governed and not from divine right. It must fully safeguard the individual in the sanctity of his own personality, so that its social life shall have diversity as well as unity. And it must, with utmost courage, make the commonwealth safe from lawless and selfish exploitation in the interests of the individual.

The profoundest conviction of my life is that the mind of Jesus of Nazareth, who was presented to the world by John the Baptist, lie the intellectual concepts and social principles which will suffice to guide the new age to fullest success. And in His spirit is resident sufficient moral energy to impel the whole world forward on its long and tragic journey toward the complete establishment of the kingdom of God on earth.

Advertising.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous wise;
He swore (it was his policy)
He would not advertise.
But one day he did advertise,
And thereby hangs a tale—
The "ad" was set in quite small type,
And headed "Sheriff's Sale."

A hammock slung upon an Arctic flo;
A group of icebergs sailing to and fro;
And thou beside me pelting me with snow—
If that ain't Paradise, I'd like to know.

A lackey standing o'er me swatting flies
From early morn until the daylight dies;
Another through the night to slap the skeet—
Ah, that, me thinks, were Paradise complete.

A shady spot in some sequestered glade,
And thou beside me brewing lemonade,
That tinkles in a pitcher of cracked ice—
That's what I call an August Paradise.

'Proof Is Offered.

Every pint of whiskey a man drinks shortens his life by eleven hours and every pint of beer steals twenty-five minutes from his life.

The foregoing statement is made by an eminent temperance writer and is mostly bosh or rot, adds Polk Daniels in the Kansas City Star. I can take a pencil and show by figures that if every pint of whiskey Gib Childers has consumed had shortened his life by eleven hours, he would have died nine years before he was born.

Yes, Summer Is Here.

Nantucket, August 12.—A monstrous sea serpent with a large horn in the middle of his back and a forked tongue seventeen feet long by actual measurement was seen sporting in the water about five miles off this port this morning. It did not attract much attention, as the natives here are used to sea serpents. This serpent has a nose like a horse and a voice like a circus elephant. It is believed to be 118 feet in length.

Atlantic City, August 12.—A school of singing fish has appeared off the coast and the fish entertain the resorters every night with music, singing many of the classics and lulling visitors to sleep. There are believed to be more than 4,500 fish in the school, which is one of the largest schools of singing fish ever seen in this locality, even by the old inhabitants. There are several inhabitants here who are more than 100 years of age.

A Modern Romance.

Oh, they sat upon the sofy, him and her,
And he clasped her little hand quite close to his'n.
They set their quite a while and didn't stir,
Until the round and yaller moon had risen.

And then he said: By yon moon 'way out yonder,
You'll never wed another man, I swear it.
Take this here solid gold (filled) ring, by thunder,
And on your dainty finger always wear it."

She said: "Thank you, kind sir, I'll take the ring, sir,
I'll always wear it, even when I slumber;
But wedding you is quite another thing, sir;
There's others, and I'll simply take your number."

"He who laffs last laffs best," is an old saying,
Our hero got revenge for his enthralment.
They came and got the ring, for he stopped paying,
The 27-cents-a-week installment.

"Josh Hayrake has quit the farm and gone to the city. Got mad at the old man because he kept making him feed the chickens."

"What's Josh doing in the city?"

"That's the funny part of it. Josh is a waiter in a swell cafe. He writes you oughter see some of the chickens he has to feed."

- Proctor's Theatre -

Charlie Chaplin in his latest comedy, entitled "One A. M.," which appeared at Proctor's yesterday and continues today, presents on the screen a large number of things that he did not learn from a correspondence school. The story of "One A. M.," which deals with Chaplin's adventures in the home of a bachelor friend whose hobby is collecting stuffed animals, in itself is excruciatingly funny, but when combined with the art of the comedy star it becomes a continuous laugh. A novel feature in connection with this production is the fact that aside from about a hundred feet of film at the beginning, Chaplin is the only person in the cast, a decided innovation on the screen and a daring attempt to say the least, for a star is taxed to his utmost to hold the interest and amuse through 2,000 feet of film. This Chaplin succeeds in doing without apparent effort, and "One A. M." will doubtless be acknowledged one of the season's most pleasing comedy creations. In addition, today Mabel Trunelle, supported by a capable cast, is starred in "The Southerners," and Frank Borzage and Anna Little are featured in a heart interest story of the West entitled "Nugget Jim's Partner."

Miss Hornidge, the talented soprano, has been engaged to appear at Proctor's for another week, and, starting Monday, will introduce new film song selections. On Monday the feature photoplay will be a Triangle-Fine Arts production entitled "The Wild Girl of the Sierras," with Mae Marsh and Robert Harron as co-stars. This duo prove to be thoroughly at home in this style of vehicle, and Miss Marsh gives one of the best screen characterizations she has ever attempted in any production. On Tuesday Dorothy Gish and the popular Triangle kiddies will appear in a human interest story entitled "The Little School Ma'am," while on Wednesday of next week Virginia Pearson, the renowned Fox star, will be presented in a highly dramatic offering entitled "A Tortured Heart."

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

Recent Fiction for Summer Reading.

Bonner, Geraldine. Black eagle mystery.

"Those who read 'The Girl at Central' will meet old acquaintances in Geraldine Bonner's latest mystery story. Much of the tale is hardly credible, but this is forgotten in the pleasant excitement induced by unfolding events."

Brown, Alice. Prisoner, The.

"Good as Alice Brown's fiction has always been, in her new novel she has done far and away the best, the largest visioned, the ripest work that has ever come from her pen. In a way, the story deals with the readjustments of the life of a man after his release from prison, where he has spent a term of years as a defaulter. But it is too big in its scope and too far-reaching in its vision to be ticketed as a 'prison reform' or an 'ex-convict' story, or, indeed, as any special kind of a story."

Chambers, Robert W. Girl Philippa.

"In this splendid romance of war and love and adventure, Mr. Chambers returns to the style of his novels of the Franco-Prussian War—'Lorraine,' 'Maids of Paradise,' etc. An English officer, an American artist, a Sister of Charity, and the Girl Philippa are the chief figures in the story, which chronicles the daring attempt to steal the secret of the famous Harkness shell. Dramatic incident piles on incident with bewildering rapidity, and there is always that delightful touch of romance which has made Mr. Chambers a favorite with a million readers."

Dix, Beulah M. Battle months of George Daurella.

"The story contains some analysis of war, and the narrative is at times stirring. It is written from the pacifist point of view. The character of Daurella is cleverly drawn, and the difference between his natural self and the one superimposed by long training is clearly indicated."

Gray, Maxwell. World mender.

"Rising step by step from the place of a poor village boy, George Darrell has all but reached the topmost rung in the ladder of political and social influence. He has become the political hope of the common people and is known as 'The People's Man.' Ambition to rule however gradually dulls his vision of the ideal he had placed before him as his ultimate goal and he willingly makes sacrifice upon sacrifice to gain social and political power. A powerful portrayal of the result of a man's sacrifice of his higher self for selfish ambition, and the splendid handling of this situation and its sequel makes it the best work from this gifted author's pen."

Howells, William Dean. Daughter of the storage and other things in prose and verse.

"There is not one of the whole collection which does not repay reading, if it were only for the beautiful diction, the simple yet powerful wielding of the English language by an acknowledged master."

Hudson, William H. Green mansions.

"He has charged his story with an atmosphere and his reflections with an expressive beauty that are rare. That unity of tone in which Flaubert is almost the only adept among novelists is here sustained almost throughout. The spirit of the whole book is that of absolute remoteness from modern practical life. It has a style of its own, compacted of a quaint simplicity and a great sense of beauty."

Lincoln, Natalie S. I spy.

"The story is about a German spy plot to steal two American inventions deemed of inestimable value for war use. One is a camera for taking a map of the country from an airship. The other is a process for making glass armor—coats of mail of interwoven mica and glass that Mauser bullets cannot penetrate. Washington, D. C., is the locale."

Locke, William J. Viviette.

"The story is a light novelette, frankly intended for summer reading. It is of course cleverly written and amusing enough, though it falls below this author's usual standards, and is without the sparkle and the delightful whimsicality which generally distinguish his work. To speak truth, it is a rather convential tale, with one or two fairly dramatic scenes. The tale moves swiftly and the episode of the duel is not without thrills."

Marriott, Charles. Davenport.

"The book begins in 1908 and ends in the Fall of 1914. To all intents and purposes it is confined to London and to a small group of persons. 'Davenport' might supposedly be described as a study of the Christ in us. The thing which prudence, which good business, which fear and selfishness, every act and word of 'every private individual which denied for profit the brotherhood of man' seeks to stifle, to silence, to kill."

Moore, Leslie. Wiser folly.

"The bare outline of the plot seems commonplace enough—a noble estate of which the owners are in danger of dispossession by a claimant from the wilds of America; the almost miraculous restoration of a long-lost paper; a pretty love story, of which the fair daughter of the endangered castle is the heroine, etc. The novel is a delightful one, with a distinctive quality of its own—a wholesome, sunny, thoroughly companionable romance, which we lay aside with the feeling of having kept good company."

Spearman, Frank H. Nan of Music mountain.

"Mr. Spearman's story is characteristically American, and as true as it is graphic in its local color. But the feature of 'Nan of Music mountain' that most frequently makes the reader remember 'Lorna Doone' is the quality of the romantic spirit in which it is written. It is a romantic story because it deals simply and realistically with the fine, true, elemental things of life and sees them with fresh and reverent eyes."

Stacpoole, H. De Vere. Gold trail.

"Mr. Stacpoole has written, as he always does, a fine, fascinating tale of far voyages for hidden treasure, hair-raising adventures and weird experiences."

Williamson, C. N. & A. M. Lightning conductor discovers America.

"It is ten years since the first Williamson success, 'The lightning conductor,' appeared. In this story the hero and heroine of that tale celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary in America. The scenes of the story are laid chiefly on Long Island, with a motor journey up the Hudson and into New England."

Willsie, Honore. Heart of the desert.

"A romance of the Arizona desert, vivid and enchanting, which does for the American desert what Hichins did for the Sahara."

Fully Complied With—A Plainfield Resident Furnished It.

There are few items which appear in this paper more important to Plainfield people than the statement published below. In the first place, it is from a citizen of Plainfield, and can be thoroughly relied upon. In the second place it indisputably proves that Doan's Kidney Pills do their work thoroughly and not temporarily. Read this carefully:

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 540 West Front street, Plainfield, says: "I had a dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides that clung to me constantly, and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizy spells, especially when stooping or lifting, and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and other medicines, but nothing helped me until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store. They made a lasting cure."

ANNETTE KELLERMANN TELLS HER PUPILS HOW TO FLOAT

By Following Her Instructions This One Lesson Will Teach You How to Stay On Top of Water Without Effort.

Article No. 11.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

By this time, most of you, my pupils have mastered the first rudiments of swimming, and from reports received by me from your editor of the Plainfield Daily Press most of you are progressing remarkably well.

Once more I caution you: Do not go out into the water too far.

Always remain within the safety zone so that if anything should happen to you, help could be rendered at once.

Today you will learn how to float in one lesson. I have purposely refrained from giving you this lesson at the start, because it is far better to be able to swim before learning how to float. One of the main reasons is this, that you must first become acquainted with the water before trying to float so that you have enough self-confidence.

No doubt many of you are able to float without difficulty, especially women and girls. Women and girls rarely meet with failure, even at the first trial at floating. In a way nature has aided woman by giving her smaller bones than man, and this in a way, makes her much lighter in the water. This has proven itself to be a great help to women.

In the case of the men a little practice is required.

One more explanation to those who might find it difficult to float. That is—it is far easier to float in salt water than it is fresh water.

There is something remarkably exhilirating about floating about on the water and I am certain that all of you will enjoy the experience immensely. Now for the lesson. If you follow my directions carefully you will be able to learn how to float in one lesson. Try this on dry land first so as to become acquainted with the movement.

Lie down on the floor, flat on your back, keep the back hollowed. Do not stiffen the body, in fact it should be kept rather limp. Never stiffen the body at any time while floating. You are now lying on the floor, on your back. Now I want you to place your arms extended over your head. Hold them extended resting on the floor.

Stretch the hands and interlock the thumbs. Now rest easily and draw a deep breath and hold it; then exhale slowly and continue to inhale and exhale slowly.

Now into the water. Use the breast stroke until you are away from the side of the shore or pool, as the case may be. Now I want you to turn on your back. This may seem hard to do but really it is very easy and you should be able to do it at once. While swimming turn your body naturally and with a scooping movement of the hands and a little natural kick of the legs you will find yourself on your back. Now the thing to do is to remain there. Use your hands as a balance and slowly assume the position I showed you.

You should be able to float at once.

If, however, you experience any difficulty there is something wrong with your position and you had better read my instructions again. Then again, as I said before, some of you will experience a little difficulty in mastering this part of the swimming course. But stick to it and you cannot help but succeed.

One more important thing to remember is this: Breathe slowly and keep your head so that just the mouth and nose are out of the water. If the rush of water about the ears worries you wear a rubber bathing cap, as I always do. Secure one that will fit snugly.

Monday—Miss Kellermann will teach the members of the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellermann Class how to tread water.

She Led the Fawn by Her Side.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Grethel Left a Daisy Behind Her.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

DADDY began the bedtime story with: "Once Grethel, who had turned into a daisy, was taken home by a shepherd. She did his work for him every day, and this troubled him so much that he asked an old woman who lived next door what to do about it.

"'There must be witchcraft in it,' said she. 'Tomorrow morning wake up early and see if anything stirs about your room. If it does, throw a white cloth over it, and the witchcraft will be stopped at once.'

"The shepherd did as his neighbor said and the next morning saw his window box open and the daisy come out. Then he sprung up quickly, threw a white cloth over it, and in an instant the spell was broken. Grethel stood before him, the girl who had taken care of his home for him. She was so beautiful that he at once asked her to marry him. But she said 'No,' because she wanted to be faithful to her dear brother, Hansel. But she agreed to stay and keep house for the shepherd till Hansel came back for her.

"Time passed, and at last Hansel came back. The spiteful fairy had led him astray, and for a long time he had not been able to find his way, either home or back to his sister.

"Then once more he and Grethel set out for home. But after traveling a long way Grethel became very tired. So she and Hansel laid down to sleep in a fine old hollow tree that grew in a meadow by the side of the woods. But as they slept the fairy—who had got out of the thorns where the children had left her—came walking past.

"She found her wand beside the children, where they had left it when they both fell asleep. Glad to have it again, she seized it at once and turned poor little Hansel into a fawn while he slept.

"Soon after Grethel woke up and found out what had happened. She wept bitterly over the poor creature that lay down beside her. Big tears rolled down its eyes too. Then she said, just as Hansel used to say to her when she was too tired to walk: 'Rest in peace, dear. I will never, never leave you.'

"She took off her gold necklace and put it around his neck. She plucked some rushes and plaited them into a soft string to fasten to it. Whenever she went to walk in the woods she led the fawn by her side. When they were tired they came back and lay down beside the big hollow tree to sleep side by side. But nobody ever came to find them and take them home except the little dwarfs that lived in the woods. As they lodged by the tree these dwarfs always took care of the children while they slept."

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MARIE EVA LEONARD

Ethel Takes Her First Lesson in Cooking and Shows Progress.

"What do you want to learn to make today?" asked Mrs. Morton as Ethel ducked her head and tugged at the buttons that fastened the big apron down the back.

"There!" Ethel pulled the apron in place and settled her dainty cap. "I want to begin at the beginning. I know nothing about cooking. You will be discouraged when you find how stupid I am." There was an appealing helplessness about her that accounted for her being treated as a child.

"All that is necessary to be a good cook is a desire to learn; a desire strong enough to make you persevere when you fail. That is where the test will come. Most any one enjoys cooking as long as everything goes all right. It is the failures that say the courage." She smiled down at the eager face framed in the curls peeping from under the cap.

"I am determined to learn and if you can be patient with my failures——"

"Come now, let's not waste time talking." The practical old lady moved to the pantry and brought out the moulding board and a basin of flour. "I will let you make some biscuits for dinner," she announced, "and you shall cook the vegetables, too. A person who wants to cook vegetables and make them taste good has a big task ahead of her. There are so many vegetables, and I want you to know how to cook all of them, for then you can have a variety on your table. Meat is getting so expensive people will have to learn to substitute other things for it if they want to keep expenses down.

"Here, take off your rings. You will get the sets all full of flour," she directed, glancing at the jeweled hands. Ethel obeyed and waited demurely for further directions.

"Sift this flour and measure it carefully. Exact measurements are necessary for beginners and if you are exact your cooking will always turn out right. Now rub this lard into the flour." Ethel put the tips of her fingers into the bowl and began rubbing the flour and lard between her thumb and forefinger.

"Put your whole hand in; it will not hurt them." A grim smile played around the old lady's mouth. Ethel's face grew pink. "Measure the amount of wetting. It is carelessness about the amount of water used that spoils many a batch of biscuits," announced the instructor. "Now, this time take it with your fingers. Get as little on your hands as possible, for the less biscuit dough is handled the better the biscuit will be. That's it," she said, approvingly. "You are doing all right."

"Now, flour your rolling pin and roll very lightly, so." She took the pin and deftly rolled the biscuits ready to cut. "Cut these out and then you try it." She handed Ethel the biscuit cutter.

"Now about the oven," continued the old lady, briskly. "I tell by the feeling of my hands. But you have not had experience enough yet to do that, and the oven must be right or the cooking is spoiled, no matter how well made it is."

"Perhaps that is what ailed my muffins that were good some times and not fit to eat the next time I tried," said Ethel.

"Very likely. Muffins must have a hot oven. I put a piece of paper in the oven." She suited the action to the word. "When it browns to this color in two minutes"—she removed the paper a fine golden brown—"your oven is right for biscuits. Now put them in." When the biscuits were safely in the oven, Mrs. Morton said: "You may peel these parsnips and we will fry them in this heavy frying pan. I am going to let you mash the potatoes, too, for it is not potatoes mashed just any way that are good and appetizing; the ones that nourish you.

"Don't forget to look at your biscuits," she called from the pantry.

"They are a lovely color right now," called Ethel gleefully, forgetting to watch her parsnips so that the experienced cook rushed from the pantry to save them.

"You see I would spoil everything if you were not here to save the day," Ethel said ruefully.

"My dear, you will not get to the place where you can keep five or six things going at once, and remember them all, and have them ready to come onto the table hot till you have cooked a long time, so do not be discouraged about that. It takes a lot of practice to do that right. Talk about a man's need of a business head. I do not believe it takes one bit more ability to run a business than to get a meal on the table on time, all the different things done to a turn and all hot. That is something to work for, eh?" She smiled encouragingly.

"Now for the potatoes. Pour this heated milk into the kettle and then show your muscle." She handed Ethel the potato masher and the milk.

PARIS GOWN OF NET, LACE AND METEOR.

Simple Lines a Notable Feature—Velvet Hat and Shoes a New Idea.

By Mary Glynn.

The Parisian women appears very often in the afternoon wearing the simplest type of gown and very often in a sombre or dark shade. Nevertheless with all its sombreness she is decidedly chic. A gown is illustrated developed in black meteor, this forming the sleeveless bodice and the drop skirt. A three-tier overskkirt of navy silk net is arranged over this drop, lending a peculiar softness that is most attractive. Black chantilly lace is introduced in the long, snug sleeves which finish with a near cuff edged with velvet ribbon. The soft, low neck line is most becoming and comfortable. The skirt measures three and a half yards wide and is slightly distended by the band of whalebone which is stitched in the hem. A very distinctive and attractive feature of this outfit is the fact that "Mademoiselle" is wearing smart black velvet slippers which fasten with two button tabs. Her hat, too, is of black velvet with close fitting brim and huge bell shaped crown. The effect is very novel and most attractive.

OF COURSE, THE COLLEGE MAID HAS A DANCE FROCK.

For the evening affairs that are a frequent occurrence at college, the young girl must be suitably equipped with dance frock and accessories. Very youthful and coquettish is this model of pale yellow tulle with a deep girdle of gold lace, draped downward at the back, and weighted with a garland of gold roses and leaves. The bodice and sleeve are girlish and dainty, and the skirt with its petticoat of yellow faille matinee floating drapery is distended by a with two featherbone hoops.

BUT LITTLE OPTIMISM.

The annual invitation tournament of the National Golf Links of America will be played over the difficult course on the shores of Peconic Bay the latter part of next week and the majority of the players who have entered are pessimistic regarding the outcome. It is hardly possible that there is one optimist among the whole crowd. In some circles it is believed that Oswald Kirby, who has won two medals and one tourney on the National links, will enter the fray, full of confidence in his ability to make a good showing. It is not believed that there are any other players who are filled with confidence. Some people believe that to be confident is to be unwise. That's not a strictly correct idea. Many a battle has been lost through the lack of confidence, and, we must admit, many a battle has been lost through overconfidence. If a man has no confidence in himself, who is going to have confidence in him? It may be folly for Mr. Kirby to feel confident, but we do not look at it in that way. Time will tell, however.

THE JAPANESE "PERIL."

Of late, the sensational newspapers of the country have been warning us of a mythical "yellow peril." The more sensible of the dailies, however, have disregarded the "flashy" stories and have published but little regarding the matter. But, on the other hand, there is hardly a sport writer in the country who has not referred to Ichiya Kumagae and Hachishiro Mikami in much the same manner as the newspapers mentioned, referred to the "peril." But it seems that R. Lindley Murray, well known locally, has put an end to the better of the two Japs. Kumagae fell before the onslaught of the Californian, although he put up a game fight and made things interesting throughout the entire contest. Murray's victory cannot put an end to the Jap's chances of making little trips elsewhere and defeating the "pride of the village" in each place. Harold Throckmorton can tell something regarding the situation.

ROWING AND RICE.

Rowing is a sport, according to modern thought, while "rice" is a food. However, in the more modern parlance "Rice" is the name of one of the nation's best rowing coaches. And the latest bit of news regarding this gentleman states that he is to remain at Columbia. According to a Mr. Mapes, who is in charge at Columbia, all the reports that rowing is to be abandoned by Columbia are without any kind of foundation. Mr. Mapes has grown weary of reading articles to the effect that the water sport is to be discontinued at the New York college. However, rowing will be controlled at headquarters and not by a subsidiary committee. All of which might be taken to mean that Columbia intends to give more attention to the matter.

POSTPONED MATCHES.

The unusually warm weather has caused a postponement of the matches in the Women's Metropolitan Tournament, according to press notices. The majority of the matches scheduled when the association was organized have already been played off, but there are a number of games yet to be played. These will be run off in September, when it is expected that enthusiasm will run unusually high. Few know that the New Jersey section of the Metropolitan Women's Tournament is about the best of the three divisions and that it is meeting with success. When the season is completed, the winning team from this section will have to do battle with the successful teams in the other divisions.

JAKE DEINZER ASCENDS.

We see by the New Brunswick sporting pages that Scout McCarthy, of the Boston Red Sox, has almost landed Jake Deinzer, the tall hurler of the Knights of St. Peter baseball team. Although other influences are trying to keep Deinzer with Rutgers, it is hardly possible that he will refuse the offer reported to have been made to him by President Lannin, of the Red Sox team. In Deinzer, we believe that Manager Bill Carrigan will get "raw material" that is valuable. We do not believe that there is any one who claims that Jake is a finished product, but everyone has reason to assert that the Knight has the goods. The local batters who have faced him in recent contests are one in the opinion that he is "there." Plainfield High School baseball players are also in a position to express a like view. While Deinzer is not a local boy, still he has a big following here. Success, Jake.

The release of Al Schacht as a member of the Indians leaves Johnnie Enzmann the sole survivor of the team that won the pennant for this city in 1913. Schacht joined the team in the spring of that year. He was then nineteen years old and had been pitching semi-pro baseball in and around New York. When the Indians started here this season Eddie Zimmerman, Schacht and Enzmann were the survivors of the pennant winners. Some of the members of that aggregation had graduated to the major league, some had joined the Feds and later found berths elsewhere, others had gone to other leagues, while a couple had quit the game. Zimmerman recently was traded to Baltimore for Jimmie Ritter and Schacht was handed his walking papers yesterday by Manager Tenney.

Schacht hasn't been able to pitch winning baseball this season. He blamed this on the fact that his arm bothered him. He has taken part in but few games. Al believes that he will be able to land a job with some other team, possibly Louisville, this season. In case he is unable to catch on with Bill Clymer's team Schacht may decide to give his arm a rest and try to "come back" next season. Schacht declares that his arm is as good as ever right now, but his work in the box doesn't bear out this statement.

In 1913 Schacht was used in twenty-three games. He won four, lost six and finished eleven. He was on the mound 114 innings, during which time 719 men faced him and his opponents scored fifty runs or ninety-nine hits. The following year Schacht was in thirty-one games, winning twelve and losing ten. In the 181 innings he worked 653 men advanced to the plate and sixty-five runs resulted on the 158 hits poled out.—Newark News.

NOTE.—Al Schacht performed at Parker [illegible] several occasions and always proved that he was a first-class hurler.

JAPANESE PLAYERS PROMISE TO RETURN

Ichiya Kumagae and Hachishiro Mikami Anxious to Compete at Westfield.

According to the two Japanese tennis stars who performed on the courts of the Westfield Golf Club last Saturday and who were unable to complete their sets, a return match will be played on Labor Day, provided no unforeseen happening interferes with the present plans.

The sets played last Saturday proved that in Harold Throckmorton and E. H. Whitney the two Japs, Hashishiro Mikami and Ichiya Kumagae, met their equals. Although the match was not completed, owing to the fact that Kumagae's eyes were affected by the glare of the court lights, nevertheless the two sets that were played were productive of plenty of excitement.

Kumagae and Mikami were disappointed because they could not finish the match and promised John E. Nitchie, the chairman of the tennis committee of the club, to return on Labor Day if nothing prevents their doing so. The match play between the two Orientals and the American lads was considered the biggest affair ever held at the Westfield club, about 2,000 people witnessing the games.

ANNUAL FISH STORY.

Fred Dixon, of this city, has joined an "Isaak Walton" club at Stroudsburg, where he is spending his vacation. Mr. Dixon recently caught twelve pickerel.

KEARNY BALLISTS TO MEET ABSTAINERS

Contest Between Two Outfits to Be Staged On Avon Oval Tomorrow.

The Erie F. C., a baseball team of Kearny, N. J., will take a little auto trip to this city tomorrow afternoon with the express intention of handing the renowned Tabs of this place a trimming. The contest will be staged on Avon Oval and will begin promptly at the usual hour.

While the Tabs have been going very poorly of late, still Manager Jim Scott confidently believes that his boys will be in fine fettle tomorrow. Benny Rosenson will be back on the job after an absence of two weeks on account of illness. Eddie Coughlan, the Netherwood slugger, has been secured to play third base and it is the opinion of many fans in this city that the Tab outfit that faces the Royals next Sunday will be much stronger than the one defeated by the Kline men a few weeks ago.

HEINIE ZIMMERMAN TO BE SOLD BY CHICAGO

Heinie Zimmerman, Bronx product, star third baseman of the Cubs for numerous years and National League batting champion in 1912, is on the market. Joe Tinker, manager of the Heiniezimm, is willing to talk business with any one who would like to have Zimmerman on his club and is willing to swap good players for him.

Tinker says Heinie is losing interest in the game and especially in the welfare of the Cubs. Zimmerman also got in a jam with his boss for neglecting to show up for morning practice and the differences between the pair recently reached an acute stage when Tinker find Heinie $50.

AMERICAN TILE TEAM EVIDENTLY IN WRONG

Evidently there's a mix-up somewhere.

"Tomorrow afternoon the Westfield A. C. will cross bats with the strong St. Joseph team of Plainfield at Hyde's Oval. The local team has been playing all the first class teams of Plainfield this season. Last Saturday they were defeated by the Plainfield A. C., the score being 3 to 2. The battery for St. Joseph will be Conshay and McDonough, and for the Westfield A. C., Wahl, Clark and Clark. The game will start at 3:30."—Westfield Standard.

NEWSPAPER TOURNEY.

Determining a selected score of eighteen holes in a seventy-two hole tournament with a field of about eighty players is a tedious business, hence it has taken the officials of the New York Newspaper Golf Club three weeks to find that Robert MacDonald, of Buffalo, won the prize of $15 offered for low choice score in the tournament held over the Van Cortlandt Park links. It now transpires that the Buffalo professional would have been around in 58 strokes had he made in one round what he was later able to pick out for the choice score. The card shows that each nine holes MacDonald made in 29 strokes. For the $10 prize for low selected score on the last day of the tournnament Arthur Reid, of Richmond, Va., and Herbert Strong, of Inwood, tied at 64 strokes. Each will have a check for $5 sent to him.

SPORT NOTES

New York fight fans believe Young Zulu Kid is the coming champ of the bantamweights.

Coach Bob Fowell, of the Pennsylvania football squad, has arranged to equip 280 candidates with suits. Another big war order.

The Red Sox have been tough picking for the Tigers this season, the Carrigans having copped 10 of the 16 games played with the Jungleers.

"Knockout" hitched in front of a fighter's monikor may sound like the real goods, but the records indicate that the title doesn't fit champions.

The Cincinnati Reds haven't gone forward under Christy Mathewson's management as fast as Matty expected, and he didn't expect they would.

Headline Says: "Stuffy McInnis is Natural .300 Hitter." From American League batting averages we assume that Stuffy is waiting for nature to take its course.

There are many meal tickets owned by Grand Circuit horsemen, but of the real hand engraved variety is Mabel Trask, the season's trotting sensation, piloted by Walter Cox.

Harry Bay, the old speed merchant, is still pastiming. The former Cleveland star is manager of the Rock Island Three-I outfit and is playing in the game for his team.

Ever Hammer, the blond lightweight, has forsaken Chicago and taken up his residence in Boston. Ever says he quit Chicago because he got tired of fighting in Kenosha.

Ted Meredith, king of the middle-distance runners, is larning the dye business in Philadelphia. Perhaps the fate of the Mackmen may have prompted Ted to pick the Quaker City as the most suitable place to learn how to dye.

Claiming that he beat Freddie Welsh fairly for the lightweight championship, Ad Wolgast is now clamoring for a title bout with Denny Leonard or Johnny Dundee. However, this will not interfere with the White-Welsh championship at Colorado Springs on Labor Day.

For continuous "legging it" in the Marathon game, Sydney Hatch, Chicago's veteran runner, is a wonder. Sydney missed the first Marathon in Greece, but from all accounts he has taken part in every similar race since the original grind.

Acting on the theory that a man's system changes as he grows older, Frank Kramer, the perpetual champion in the bike game, changes his system of training with each succeeding year. Frank has Dr. Osler taking it on the run.

The tall grass that is allowed to grow in the Jones yard is blamed for the defeat of the American League teams that have been taking the count at the hands of the Browns in St. Louis of late. Hard hit ball swatted by visitors do not penetrate the thicket as far as the outfielders, so 'tis said, while the Browns' hits go through grass, outfielders, and all. Trick grass, that.

WOMEN'S FINALS.

Miss Edith Handy, of Tompkinsville, Staten Island, and Miss Ina Kissel, of Morristown, middle States champion, will meet this afternoon in the final of the woman's lawn tennis tournament at the Montclair Athletic Club. Miss Handy went through to the final Thursday, defeating Miss Ethel Tyndale, of West New Brighton, and Miss Kissel won from Miss Hazel Sawyer, the Montclair Athletic Club champion.

"UMPS," TAKE NOTICE.

There has been a rearrangement of the umpire assignments in the City League today. This change has been made at the request of Acting President Daniel Randolph and is as follows: Coriell at Netherwood-Hope game, Hansen at Dunellen-Farmer game, and Winters at Baptist-Farmer game. Will the umpires kindly take notice of this change?

MAINE TENNIS DOUBLES.

Edgar Scott, of Philadelphia, and Frederick Frelinghuysen, of New York, won the Maine doubles tennis championship yesterday by defeating Rudolph H. Kissell, Jr., of Morristown, N. J., and J. R. D. Sears, of Boston, in four sets. The scores were 6-2, 6-4, 6-8 and 6-4.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

The addition of Eddie Coughlan to the Tabs' Sunday baseball team ought to work wonders. Eddie's hitting has featured most of the City League attractions indulged in by the Netherwood team this year. He is a fast fielder and a player with plenty of experience to back up his actions on the diamond.

The fans who follow the Sunday tactics of the Tabs will be glad to learn that Benny Rosenson will be back at his old station tomorrow. Benny, who has been on the sick list for some time, will also be again numbered in the City League lineup of the Abstainer team.

Tony Denitzio, the diminutive second baseman of the Fourth Street team, is regarded as one of the fastest base runners in the City League. Tony goes from first to second in much the same manner as the Chicago Limited goes from the Metropolis to the Windy City. That's going some.

Mr. Umpire, did you notice your assignment for today. Be on hand and bring plenty of confidence with you. No pop bottles are allowed on the local baseball fields. But, the moguls of the city cannot be expected to remove all rocks from the pastures.

There are some fans in this city who do not feel it their duty to pay for the baseball games they witness. There are other fans who believe that all they are required to spend to see these games is their time.

There will be a City League meeting on Monday evening. The discussion regarding that postponement between the Hope and Baptist teams will be viewed from "another angle." We wonder how many angles there are to this affair. No ammunition can be brought to this gathering.

Wonder why Frank Mullin is no longer pastiming with the Farmers? Frank was one of the best men the Farmers had and it is with surprise that we note his absence from their lineup. "Mul" has been playing with several independent nines and has been showing up well.

It is reported that Joe Clark is to go with the Tabs next year. Joe, who can play first base in great style, is entitled to at least a "tryout." That he will make good with the squad is the firm conviction of his friends.

Unfortunately we do not get many "queries" these days. But, nevertheless, we have three for today and we might as well answer them in this department.

The first question is an easy one to answer. Here it is:—"Who will be the next President of the United States?" The answer we make is valauble from several points of view. The next President of the United States will be either a Democrat or a Republican. We might miss our guess at that. There are Socialists and prohibitionists in the race, you know.

Next. "Where is Branck Rickey, formerly manager of the St. Louis Americans? What is he doing?" We understand that Branch Rickey is business manager for the St. Louis Americans.

Still another. "How do you pronounce the name 'Dauss?'" While we are not a linguist, still we have reason to believe that the name "Dauss" is pronounced in such a manner that the "au" section sounds like "ow" in "how." Do you get us? Verstehen sie?

We see by the papers that Johnny Evers is suffering from a bronchial complaint. The umpires in the National League are enjoying a holiday.

At the Traps

A military authority recently called attention to a potential American army in the trapshooters of the United States.

In his remarks, the military man laid emphasis on the fact that in the early stages of a conflict, volunteers lack efficiency, not because of their inability "to keep step" as their lack of familiarity with firearms and the consequent "gunshyness," developed when first handling a model rifle because of fear of the "kick."

"Not until a recruit overcomes his timidity of the recoil of a rifle will he show a satisfactory degree of ability as a marksman," said the militia officer.

"On the other hand, men who weekly or monthly throughout the year visit a trapshooting club and fire 50 to 100 shells during an afternoon, become so used to the recoil of a shotgun that in exchanging it for a military rifle at a time of necessity, they would from the beginning exhibit no sign of 'gunshyness' so detrimental to marksmanship.

"To army officials who have tried for years to provide for an adequate reserve force, it is, no doubt, a satisfaction to know that from the more than 600,000 trapshooters in the United States, there could be drawn, if needed, an army of men who know how to handle firearms efficiently."

The following is the record of competition in the 18 yard mark challenge championship trophy:

MURRAY LOSES.

Eastern tennis scored another triumph yesterday over Western methods in the final round of the tournament for the Achelis Cup on the courts of the Sea Bright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club when George M. Church, of Tenafly, N. J., defeated R. Lindley Murray, recently of Palo Alto, in straight sets. Murray was outplayed by a good margin, as the score of 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 will attest. Church, who has been playing the best tennis of his career this season, lived up to the form he has been displaying right along, and if anything he did just a little better than anything he had shown so far in his match yesterday afternoon. The victory of the slim New Jersey expert gave him the right to play R. Norris Williams, 2d, holder of the trophy, in the challenge round yesterday afternoon.

Dear Boss – a bunch of us took a launch ride last night and you know how swell a song sounds on the water – that is if you are on land – well they asked me to carry the air – which I did because while I haven't any voice I have a good ear for music and thats what I sing with – as you know, Boss – I can sing that while the engine is running – and it being a motor boat engine – it stopped unexpectedly in the middle of our song – and just as it stopped a seagull fell off a nearby cloud and dropped dead in the water – and a fish came to the surface – turned over and stayed turned – and the whole gang seemed to think my singing caused it all – as I say – if I could sing on a boat and be on shore to listen to it – my voice would be very harmonica – yours Scoop.

JUDGE DE MEZA TO FINE FIRE ORDINANCE VIOLATERS

John A. Jones, of West Front street, and Nathan Merilus, of Watchung avenue, were fined $2 apiece this morning when they were arraigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza for violating the fire ordinance and lighting fires in the rear of their places of business.

The fire department has been having considerable trouble of late with violations of that sort and Judge De Meza is determined to break the practice up.

FIVE YEAR OLD BOY WENT ON RAMPAGE WITH GIRL

Tessa Pontelo, of Cottage place, was fined $5 by Judge William G. DeMeza this morning for having a gun in her possession and where five-year-old Tony Galaso could get hold of it.

The woman said she kept it to protect money she had, but when the youngster saw it in her house yesterday he took it fully loaded out into the street and threatened to shoot his playmates. It was taken away from him before he could fire it.

AL SMALLEY TELLS OF ELECTIONS IN THE SOUTH

Al Smalley, formerly a resident of North Plainfield and still a property owner in the borough, is visiting relatives across the brook. Mr. Smalley is now a native of Viking, Florida, and claims Fort Pierce as his postoffice address. In speaking of the political conditions in his home town, Mr. Smalley stated that the Democrats held sway inasmuch as there was no local Republican ticket. He also stated that he has seen as many as four men at a time running for the Democratic nomination for the office of sheriff. Political campaigns in Florida, according to Mr. Smalley, are the "real" thing. Intense rivalry exists and usually the best man is elected. Mr. Smalley intends to "head South" about August 19.

DEATH SUMMONS HOLMES CLAWSON

Popular Eighteen - year - old Youth a Victim of Pneumonia.

ILL SINCE FEBRUARY

Was Prominent In Athletics at Plainfield High School, Class 1916, and a Faithful Member of Congregational Church.

Augustus Holmes Clawson died at his home, 672 West Seventh street, Plainfield, Sunday evening at 11 o'clock, of bronchial pneumonia, with which he was stricken about ten days ago. With this disease he was unable to cope because of his weakened condition, resulting from a protracted illness with severe heart trouble covering the last six months and from which he was recovering when the fatal illness developed.

He was the son of Frank T. and Augusta Holmes Clawson, in his eighteenth year, having been born November 12, 1898, in the house where he died.

Holmes, as he was always called, was a member of the Congregational church and for several years a faithful member of the church choir. One of the original members of Mr. McClymont's Tuckabatchee Sunday school class, he was a faithful attendant and earnest and interested in this and the other church work.

He was a member of the class of 1916 at the Plainfield High School and active in its athletics until his illness in February last compelled him to give up school work.

A strong, brave boy with an ever kind, genial and sunny nature, he won and kept a large circle of friends among both old and young.

The funeral will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and the service will be in charge of the Rev. H. E. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

PLAN INTERESTING SESSION FOR PLAINFIELD DEMOCRATS

Former Congressman William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, has consented to be one of the several prominent speakers who will address the members of the Plainfield Democratic Club at a meeting to be held in the Depew building tonight at 8 o'clock.

It is expected that a large gathering of representative Democrats will be present tonight inasmuch as notices have been sent out to all members and party candidates. Discussion relative to the fall elections interesting to all Democrats will be held during the evening.

ALLEGED TO HAVE DRIVEN AUTO WHILE INTOXICATED

John Garner and Margaret O'Neil, both colored, and living on East Fourth street, were arraigned in police court before City Judge William G. DeMeza this morning charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated. Bath pleaded not guilty and will be arraigned for a hearing tomorrow morning. Garner was held in $500 and the woman in $200 bail.

Chief Kiely, with two patrolmen, caught the pair yesterday afternoon as they were driving recklessly about the west end of the city in a touring car.

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN DIES AFTER MOTORCYCLE MISHAP

Found lying along the road near Whitehouse yesterday afternoon in a serious condition, Arthur LaMontheu, of New Brunswick, died in St. Peter's Hospital, New Brunswick, at 4 o'clock this morning as the result of a fractured skull, a broken arm and internal injuries. LaMontheu was found in the gutter along side his demolished motorcycle by John O'Brien, of New Brunswick, who took him to the hospital.

The injured man died without regaining consciousness and so it is not known how the accident occurred. He moved from Trenton to New Brunswick but a short time ago and was on his way back to that city to see his wife and two children.

GOSPEL TENT MEETINGS.

ITALIAN GETS AWAY AFTER USING KNIFE

John Peddy Cut Daniel La Pointe at Lincoln Saturday.

The police authorities of Middlesex Borough, Bound Brook and other nearby places are today searching for John Peddy, an Italian of Lincoln, who after cutting Daniel Pointe, a contractor of the same place, Saturday afternoon, made a get-away and is still at large. Pointe is today recovering from several cuts about the neck that narrowly escaped his windpipe.

The stabbing grew out of an argument Saturday afternoon when La Pointe, who is a contractor, was paying off his men. Peddy, who had been drinking, was dissatisfied with his pay and after arguing with his employer suddenly drew a knife and began slashing. After he had cut La Pointe several times he jumped on a bicycle and got away.

NEW QUARANTINE LAW IN DETAIL

Goes Into Effect Tomorrow—Will Work Hardships On Violators.

Children who attempt to travel over the State of New Jersey, or to pass into New Jersey from another State, after today are likely to find themselves suddenly set down in some strange locality and forced to live there for two weeks.

Tomorrow the new quarantine regulations of the State Board of Health go into effect. Instructions have been sent to Health Boards in every city in New Jersey to strictly enforce the order, which reads, in part, as follows:

"No child under sixteen years of age shall enter the State of New Jersey from any other State, territory or country, unless such child is accompanied by a certificate issued by a competent health authority, stating that (1) said child has not resided in a dwelling or other building in which a case of infantile paralysis is known to have existed within a period of two weeks preceding the date of such certificate, and stating that said child is not known to have been exposed to the infection; or that (2) such child has recovered from infantile paralysis and has been regularly discharged by the health authorities of the district in which it was under quarantine; or that (3) said child, having been exposed to infantile paralysis, has been kept under observation by the health authorities of the municipality in which it resides for at least two weeks after exposure, and has been regularly discharged by said health authorities.

"No child under sixteen years of age shall pass from one municipality to another in this State, unless said child is accompanied by a certificate issued by the local board of health of the municipality in which it last resided, which certificate shall contain the information required by regulation 1 of this chapter.

"No common carrier shall bring into the State of New Jersey, except for continuous transportation through the State, any child under sixteen years of age, unless said child shall be accompanied by a certificate as provided in regulation 1 of this chapter."

The clause which is likely to cause much trouble for those caught in the act of violating the order follows:

"Any child under sixteen years of age, not accompanied by a certificate as provided for in regulation 1 of this chapter, who shall enter any municipality of this State, shall be placed under observation or quarantine, at the discretion of the local Board of Health of the municipality in which said child is found, for a period of two weeks, dating from the day of its arrival in said municipality."

The provisions for a health certificate follow:

WILSON ONLY CAN PREVENT STRIKE

Railroad Men Called to White House For Conference Today.

LITTLE HOPE OF PEACE

Brotherhood Men Still Refuse to Arbitrate—Managers Will See Wilson at 3 P. M. Today—Tie-up Order Expected Tonight.

Washington, August 14.—Unless President Wilson can find a way out of it, an order will be issued before tomorrow morning, calling for the stopping of every train, passenger and freight, in the United States. This morning the President conferred with representatives of the Brotherhood and this afternoon he is to meet the railroad managers.

His task seems impossible. A. B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, said after the White House conference: "We have refused arbitration. There is nothing to indicate that we could accept the suggestion any more coming from one man than from another."

He refused to indicate whether the men would accept if President Wilsson himself were the arbitrator. The conference between the President and the men of the brotherhoods lasted more than an hour. The case of the unions was presented and details of the negotiations were gone into. The union men told the President what they desired from the companies. When the conference adjourned at 11 o'clock President Wilson called the representative of the companies to the Write House. The White House announces that President Wilson has made an engagement to see the representatives of the railroad managers at 3 o'clock. He will hold a conference witr Jupdge Chambers of the Board of Mediation and Conciliation immediately and go over the entire situation with him, partly in view of the representations made by the brotherhood leaders. President Wilson will mage no statement regarding the situation until after his conference with the managers.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR CHESTER E. DENNIS

Rev. Edward S. Ralston, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, conducted the funeral service over the body of Chester B. The service was attended by many relatives and friends, and large delegations from both the Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M. and Queen City Lodge, I. O. O. F. A profusion of flowers were sent by sympathizers of the family and the two lodges sent handsome set pieces.

A commitement service, in charge of Franklin Council, was held at the graveside in Hillside cemetery, William J. Hartpence acting as councilor and Charles S. Woolston as chaplain. LATSKO WILL HAVE BERRIES CHRISTMAS

He Says He Is Picking Off "Ever-bearing" Vines Every Day.

Morris Latsko, the Somerset street liquor dealer and erstwhile horticulturist, is today proudly telling his friends that he had strawberries for dinner yesterday. He is also telling them—or, at least, he told us—that these strawberries were raised on his own farm on Rahway road. Prophecies were also in order, Mr. Latsko stating that he would have strawberries for dinner at Christmas time. According to the North Plainfielder, these berries are of the "ever-bearing" type, and are the best in the East. Mr. Latsko is enthused over his present crop.

Speaking of truck farming and fruit growing in general, Mr. Latsko stated that, in his opinion, this would be a banner year, although he expected an early frost. It is interesting to note that the United States Weather Bureau has sent predictions to that effect broadcast over the country and farmers are taking heed of the warning.

"COUNT" VAN NESS PUTS MAIR'S HORSE IN POUND

Another episode in the long-standing feud between "Count" Van Ness and "Jimmy" Mair in the East End is now in progress and as soon as the former recovers from a slight illness that has forced him to take to his bed the whole matter may be aired before Justice of the Peace Clark, sitting in executive session at Scotch Plains.

According to information received from people in the vicinity, the "Count," being unable to speak for himself because of illness, Mair's horse got the wandering fever and strayed from the Mountain avenue pasture to the "Count's" domain on East Front street. After seeing the equine peacefully feeding on his property the "Count" took upon himself the rightful title of poundkeeper and impounded the beast.

Having need of his only animal, Mair took the horse from the pound without letting anyone know of it and so the whole matter will be decided by Judge Clark.

JAPANESE RACQUET STAR DEFEATED BY MURRAY

R. Lindley Murray, the Palo Alto left-handed tennis player, for the second time within a week, triumphed yesterday over the Nipponese crack, Ichiya Kumagae, in the final round in singles of the annual open tournament of the Crescent A. C., at Bay Ridge. The speedy Californian was compelled, however, to summon all his tennis prowess to win in straight sets from the little Oriental at 8—6, 6—4, 7—5. The New York State champion made Murray play at his fastest pace throughout, and there never was a moment when the national indoor champion could take matters easy. From the minute when he shot his first service at Murray the Oriental covered the court in catlike fashion, and with remarkable agility. Save for Kumagae's wonderful gets, which were as frequent as they were spectacular, Murray would have been returned a much easier victor.

After two colored men had been arraigned at a regular session of court this morning it was found that they had obtained their liquor from an Italian, and Captain Flynn and Lieutenant Higgins made a raid on the place. In the rear of the house the officers found a variety of different brands of "hard stuff" that would have done credit to an up-to-date saloon.

RIVER ROAD ACCIDENT CAUSES GIRL'S DEATH

Helen Pendergrass, of New Brunswick, Killed Yesterday In Auto Mishap.

Helen Pendergrass, aged nineteen, of 61 Commercial street, New Brunswick, is dead today as the result of a fractured skull; her sister, Alice, aged seventeen, has numerous contusions and cuts, and Edward Melcher, of 36 Central avenue, New Brighton, S. I., has a wrenched back as the result of an automobile accident yesterday afternoon on the River road between New Brunswick and Bound Brook when a machine driven by Melcher turned turtle. Melcher was arraigned before Judge Peter Daley at New Brunswick this morning charged with manslaughter and was held under bail.

The dead girl and her sister accepted an invitation early in the afternoon from Melcher to go for a ride in his automobile. As they were riding along the River road near "Pierce's Curve" Melcher turned out to allow a trolley car to pass and in so doing ran his car on to the soft dirt. Just as he was getting back on the road again an automobile approached and he had to turn back quickly to avoid a collision. The machine could get no hold on the soft roadbed and, turning turtle, rolled down an embankment. When passersby reached the scene they found death had been instantaneous in the case of Helen Pendergrass. The other two will recover.

Yesterday's accident resulted in the second death in the Pendergrass family within six months. The father of the dead girl died over five months ago after a long illness.

"BOMB" LOOSE IN NORTH PLAINFIELD

When Patrolman Keller Finds It, the Story Is Changed However.

Many residents of North Plainfield were led to believe that there were Nihilists in the borough this morning or last night. The suspicion, or rather fear, that such was the case was caused by the report that Acting Chief Marshal Charles Keller had found a "bomb" of sufficient calibre to blow Somerset county into the Atlantic Ocean or thereabouts. The story, which gained considerable circulation, stated that the diligent police officer, ever alert for business, received a call early this morning to the effect that a "bomb" was loose in the borough. Investigation was begun at once and, according to the story, a visit was made to a house on Somerset street and the "bomb" recovered. No damage was done. No arrests were made.

However, Roundsman Keller has a different version of the story and attributes all the excitement to the fact that several persons to whom he showed the "death-dealing" implement were suddenly afflicted with a bad case of fright. According to Mr. Keller, the "bomb" was found on Somerset street and was acting strictly within the law. "What's more," said Keller, "the bomb was only a telephone fuse."

Many are the persons who are explaining today that, of course, they "saw the joke as soon as the trap was sprung." Of course, they did.

FATHER RYAN, KNOWN HERE, HURT IN AUTO SMASHUP

Father John Ryan, pastor of St. Peter's church, New Brunswick, is in St. Peter's Hospital today recovering from cuts, bruises and the shock of being in an automobile accident this side of Princeton yesterday. Father Ryan was driving his car toward Princeton when he collided with an automobile driven by Henry Bornheimer, of New Brunswick. He went through the windshield and landed at the roadside. It was said at the hospital this morning that he would recover.

He is well known in this city where he is a frequent visitor. He comes from Jersey City, and has charge of St. Peter's for the summer.

7 CASES FOUND OVER WEEK-END

Total In Local Community Greatest Since Epidemic Started.

TWO IN THIS CITY

Frank Moutto, Netherwood Avenue, Dies—North Plainfield, Piscataway Township and Scotch Plains Suffer.

Seven cases of paralysis, one resulting in death shortly after it was found, was the week-end toll in this section. Two cases were found by the Plainfield Board of Health in the city, and one was also found by the local authorities that turned out to be just over the line in Piscataway Township; two were found in North Plainfield, and Scotch Plains had its first touch of the plague when two were found in that place.

After a two days' illness Frank Woutto, the three year and seven months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woutto, of Netherwood avenue, died yesterday morning of infantile paralysis. Interment was made yesterday afternoon in St. Mary's cemetery, services being held at the grave.

James Aramdell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Aramdell, of 630 West Fourth street, was stricken with the plague yesterday. He is two and a half years old, and the case is a light one.

Piscataway's first case was originally reported to the local Board of Health, as it was thought it was in the city. After investigating the case of John Watson, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Watson, of Sherman avenue, local Health Officer Chandler diagnosed it as paralysis in a mild form and turned it over to Health Officer Hain.

Two new cases of the child plague, infantile paralysis, were discovered in North Plainfield. Harold, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Apgar, of 28 Stone street, was found to have the disease on Saturday. Fortunately this case is light.

The other newly discovered case of infantile paralysis in North Plainfield is that of Richard Fairclough, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fairclough, of 6 Du Pont street. This case is a light one and it is hoped that it will not develop a serious turn. The father of the Apgar boy is a well-known local letter carrier, but he has not been in his home since his son's sickness developed. Mr. Fairclough is an iron worker, employed in this city. The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leach, of Manning avenue, who was stricken with paralysis some time ago, is now doing very nicely and high hopes for her complete recovery are now held. The discovery of the two new cases in North Plainfield brings the total of cases in that municipality up to four, one of the stricken children having died.

Both of the cases in Scotch Plains had been under observation for several days, but were pronounced only yesterday. Dr. Ray Munger found that Nellie Lees, a niece of Mrs. William H. Roberts, and eight years of age, had a light attack of the plague. Dr. F. Wescott decided that Helen Schenck, the twenty months old daughter of John Schenck, had the disease after several days' observation. That also is a light case.

The health officials of Plainfield, North Plainfield, Piscataway and Scotch Plains all are taking stringent measures to keep the cases as much isolated as possible and to see that the quarantine is strictly observed. With the sudden increase in the number of cases in this vicinity it is likely that the agitation for an isolation hospital will be renewed at the next meeting of the Boards of Health of the county.

PRINCETON TO HAVE DINING HALL CEREMONY

Princeon, Aug. 14.—Announcement was made today by the authorities of Princeton University that October 26 has been set aside as the day for the laying of the cornerstone to the handsome new student dining halls now being erected at the corner of Nassau street and University place. It was also announced that the dining quarters and the kitchens will be far enough advanced to accommodate the number of undergraduates who formerly took their meals at "Commons," comprising about one thousand students.

The ceremonies of the corner-stone laying in October are to be held on the date of the regular fall meeting of the Board of Trustees and will be attended by friends of Princeton from many parts of the country. At that time it is expected that from one-third to one-half of the quadrangle made up of the dining halls will be either entirely or practically completed.

DUNELLEN

All the Happenings of the Day in Plainfield's Hustling Suburb.

DUNELLEN GUARDS ALL MAIN ROADS

Even Automobiles Are Stopped and Searched—No New Cases.

The Dunellen Board of Health took a further step yesterday in guarding against an epidemic of infantile paralysis there, when policemen were stationed at the main entrances to the borough to stop all automobilists. If there were children in any automobile who did not have health certificates that automobile was obliged to turn back. On the other hand, if everything was all right the driver was given a card with the license number of his machine and number of its occupants filled in, together with the time of day. This card he was obliged to hand to the officer on duty at the other end of the borough. If the same number of people were in the car he was allowed to pass on.

The trolley cars were also watched, as were the incoming railroad trains, and no children were allowed to leave without health certificates. Children on a visit with relatives or friends in this borough with health certificates have been placed under quarantine for two weeks.

Another step by the Board of Health was its command to the local ball club not to allow children to enter the ball grounds. Marshal Harry Shugars co-operated with the management of the club in enforcing this decree Saturday afternoon.

Health Inspector Smith reported this morning that there is still but one case of paralysis in the borough and no suspects.

VAIL MANSION SOLD AFTER 123 YEARS IN FAMILY

The mansion of F. Percy Vail, the village squire, and thirty-four acres of surrounding land have been sold through the realty brokerage concern of Nelson, Lee & Green, Inc., 47 West Thirty-fourth street, New York city, of which Abram G. Nelson, of this place, is president, to Edwin Rowley, of North Port, L. I., for $25,000 cash. Mr. Rowley purchases for development purposes. The house and other buildings with five acres of land will be kept intact and placed on the market, while the remaining ground will be cut up into building lots. Mr. Rowley, who has the reputation of being a high class realty developer, will restrict all property fronting on New Market road.

Mr. and Mrs. Vail and daughter, Miss Virginia, are at present stopping at Spring Lake and it is not known what their plans for the future are. It is the general opinion, however, that they will move to California, where they spent last winter, as Mr. Vail recently told a friend, in speaking of the State of the Golden Gate, that he and his family liked the State very much and hoped to live there some day.

The land disposed of passes out of the hands of the Vails after a possession of 123 years, it is said. The mansion itself, which is of colonial design, was built eighty years ago by William Vail, a grandfather of F. Percy Vail.

"KIDDING THE FRESHIES" OF OUR TROOPS

Many "Third Lieutenants" Are Appointed by Experienced Men—New Ones Seek Ten Yards of Skirmish Line and Key to Parade Grounds.

DESPITE punishment of the "morning after," there is more real fun in camp than in any other phase of military life on account of the serious background and tension contrast.

Private Edward J. Radcliffe, Company I, First Pennsylvania infantry, writes about some of the things that are causing a laugh among the soldier boys in El Paso. He tells of the manner in which recruits are "kidded" and about the institution of electing a third lieutenant.

"After the first thrilling call to arms by the commander in chief of the land has echoed into action and awakened the spirit of the past," he writes, "after the blare of the trumpets and the heavy tread of the troops off to the concentrating camps has ceased, when the sobs of anxious mothers, wives and sweethearts have settled deep in their breasts and when the first nervous tension incident to pre-front days has been relieved, then the fun of camp life begins.

"In fact, even before the soldiery, I believe, are imbued with that spirit of resigned fatalism concerning the future which is essential to the making of a good soldier, the sport with the recruits and rookies has begun. All the traditional pranks of camp life are carried out once more. The 'freshies' are sent to the commissary department for the key to the parade ground, ten yards of the skirmish line; the issue of lavender gloves for dress parade, etc.

Election of Third Lieutenant.

"No more have the troops pitched their canvas and partially settled on the bosom of Mother Earth than the time honored election of 'third lieutenants' take place. This is the pet prank of camp life. The ball is usually started rolling as the men lie in their tents after taps. A couple of the older men engage in a conversation concerning the choice of a third lieutenant. A guileless recruit becomes intensely interested when the old hands in a casual way make it clear that it is one of the cherished traditions of the service that the third lieutenant shall be chosen from among the new recruits in order that the new men may have some one to look out for their interests up in the officers' street.

"The next day the ambitious recruit is putting out 'feelers' to see how his chances are for the coveted honor. He is highly flattered to find that his 'feelers' are coddled and nursed along by the 'vets.' After the various candidates have retained 'campaign managers' through the payment of 'treats' at the various 'canteens' about the camp and have run their legs off getting signatures of those who pledged themselves to vote for them, an election is held in the company street. Usually the most guileless of the bunch of candidates is chosen and he is henceforth subject to all sorts of orders as long as he falls for the 'bunk.' The morning after election he finds himself ordered to rise before reveille and deck himself out in heavy marching order in order that he may go to brigade headquarters to get his sword and horse and various other equipment that a third lieutenant is supposed to have.

Can't See Brigadier.

"The fact that lieutenants are not provided with mounts seldom wakes up the dazed new commissioned officer to the fact that he is being kidded. After he is all ready to march away he is informed that the brigadier general is busy with his war maps and cannot receive the new officer that morning. If the 'lieutenant' falls for this he is up the following morning and the morning after that only to be disappointed by the occupation of the brigadier general in other matters than conferring commissions on 'third lieutenants.'

"When this line of horseplay becomes tiresome, the new third lieutenant is solemnly presented with fake 'dispatches' by a joke loving company clerk, which informs the candidate that he has been transferred to Battery Q of the right field artillery, some miles from the camp. Attired in the heavy marching order that he had become accustomed to since his 'promotion,' the candidate is sent across the fields to some imaginary or it may be actual neighboring encampment. There he may learn wisdom, or he may not, and come home to learn through the medium of a hard hearted 'top' sergeant who informs him that he is scheduled for a sojourn in the guardhouse and some extra heavy duty for being absent from camp without leave.

"The greatest fun, however, lies in running the guard after 'taps.' Some of the dialogue of camp life later finds its way into vaudeville camp sketches and may be familiar to some.

"Sentry—Halt! Who goes there?

"Wayfarer—Nobody.

"Sentry—Come ahead.

"Another sample is as follows:

"Sentry—Halt! Who goes there?

"Night Wayfarer—A friend with a bottle.

"Sentry—Advance, friend, with the cork out.

"Another follows:

"Sentry—Who goes there?

JOLLY PASTIME NOW ON THE BORDER

Little Stories of Interest About the Various Regiments Now Fighting Texas Sun and Rains—Some Camp Repartee Officers Do Not Hear.

"Wayfarer—You're not blind; come and see.

"Many other exchanges between sentries and wayfarers in typical camp vernacular which is overheard by those lying in their tents within the camp in the stillness of the night often set the entire camp in a roar until the sergeants of the quarters come down the company street with their lanterns, calling sternly: 'Steady! Steady!'

"Of course this 'vaudeville' at the expense of sentries brings sure punishment, because a sentry is supposed to receive almost the respect that is accorded a commissioned officer. Punishment usually consists in extra duty, as digging trenches, chopping wood, etc.'

Cannot Decline His Pay.

The comptroller of the treasury has decided "that the conditions involved in enlistment in the national guard do not permit an election to refuse pay for service under enlistment so as to receive the pay of a civil position under the government" during the leave of absence period granted an enlisted man.

The decision was brought out in a case submitted by the attorney general. It was that of a special agent of the department enlisted in the national guard of Pennsylvania. This agent refused his pay as an enlisted man for the leave of absence period that he might draw his regular salary of $6 per day.

The comptroller goes on to repeat a former important ruling of his office that employees of the government who are members of the national guard may, after actual muster into service receive pay as a civilian employee until expiration of leave of absence if the combined pay does not exceed $2,000 per annum. Above that figure pay as civilian employee would be prohibited under the act of May 10, 1916, the army appropriation bill.

Michigan Men Drill.

Following another foot examination of both the Thirty-first and Thirty-second regiments, under direction of Major William Reno, Michigan troops have entered upon the first stage of the three months' drill which has been laid out for them by the war department.

Every man in the Michigan contingent must submit to the re-examination of his feet for corns, bunions, ingrowing toe nails, hammer toes, overriding toes, broken arches and fit of shoes. This is to determine if the new shoes which were recently issued are of the nature which is conducive to foot health. Major Reno is an expert and examines feet at the rate of one pair every sixteen seconds.

Colonel Coville, acting brigade commander, has appointed Major Stewart of the Thirty-second and Major Dumas of the Thirty-first to interpret the order for troop work for the next three months. They will outline a plan of action which will be followed by captains, brigade and division commanders.

For the month of August the work will be confined to company drills. Each company must devote three and a half hours a day to this work. Besides the drills, lectures on military discipline and courtesy will be delivered.

The new order requires that every one must engage in the work with the exception of the sick, guards, cooks and one noncommissioned officer in charge of quarters. This would relieve the cook of all assistants, such as kitchen police and mess sergeants, and would work a hardship on the entire company. To alleviate this condition Colonel Barlow has addressed a letter to General Bell asking that sufficient help to care for the mess be allowed to remain in camp.

Variety In Indiana Food.

The home folk may think that there is no variety in the commissary supplies issued to the Indiana officers. Here is the list that was issued to the thirteen organizations of the Third regiment recently, on orders of Colonel Kuhlman: Bread, fresh beef, rice flour, beans, potatoes, corn, tea, vinegar, bacon, asparagus, milk, sirup, prunes, pickles, rice, sugar, table salt, soda, crackers, washing powder, onions, coffee, lard, oatmeal, salmon, tomato soup, canned peaches, baking powder, canned pears, cinnamon, pepper, canned cherries, peas, graham crackers, evaporated apples, macaroni, hard bread, ginger, assorted jam, prepared mustard, lemon extract, vanilla, peaches, blackberry jam, soap, matches, candles.

Lieutenant Frank Buschmann, quartermaster of the First battalion, Indiana field artillery, has issued the following to the 557 men in the batteries, in addition to what they received at Fort Harrison: One thousand four hundred and forty-five undershirts, 1,107 drawers, 880 pairs of stockings, 503 sweaters, 181 pairs of riding gloves, besides the riding breeches and fatigue uniforms. So, you see, the artillerymen are not in rags.

One of the interesting characters at Llano Grande camp is Paul Benson, private Company K, Third regiment, from Auburn, Ind. He is instructor in Spanish in the officers school of the Third regiment and says they are getting along well with the language, which is confined largely to everyday phrases and sentences that are needed in dealing with the Mexicans. The officers have learned that certain English words like "much and guard" may be changed to Spanish by adding the sound of "a." The rule is not a general one. For instance, Major Healey called for "soap" at the Mercedes hotel and the Mexican waiter brought him a bowl of soup. Had the major asked for "jabon" he would have got the soap. Benson for several years was connected with a mining company in Armado, Mexico, where Villa last was reported. Benson says that the natives are courteous and will divide their last bite with a stranger who is hungry.

Troopers About In Aprons.

Twelve hundred of Colonel Milton J. Foreman's Chicago troopers tossed aside their rifles and sabers the other day and donned the housewife's apron. It was a week end housecleaning. The camp was combed from stem to stern, if such an expression can apply to land operations. Every tent was set in the finest order, every stray piece of paper was gathered from the troop streets and grounds, every hummock was leveled and raked, and even the mesquite brush to a distance 1,000 feet from headquarters was given a trimming it never before had. Clouds of dust arose from all parts of the cantonment. At the end of the day Colonel Foreman promised to have the cleanest camp in Brownsville.

"It is the first bit of real manual labor the boys have had since they came here," said the regimental leader. "Heretofore all work of this character, cleaning, digging, etc., has been done by Mexicans, hired by me. But if the boys go into Mexico they will have to do this work, so it won't hurt them to try their hand at it now. Tidiness and cleanliness prevent disease, and the health of my men is my first concern."

Visits His Son.

He raised his boy to be a soldier. Captain L. F. O'Donnell of Chicago, seventy-two years old, who served through the civil war in the Forty-sixth Ohio volunteers, has reached Leon Springs, Tex. He came all the way from the shore of Lake Michigan to visit his son Elmer, who is a husky young private in the machine gun company of the First Illinois infantry. The veteran walked down the perilous slope of "Hell's stairway," which leads to the camp, with a firm step and his head erect in defiance of the Texas sun. The boy did not expect to see his father, and it was a surprise party. When they came face to face in Texas, Private O'Donnell briskly saluted Captain O'Donnell, and the salute was gravely returned. Then they greeted each other as a fond father and a joyful son would be expected to do.

"Gee, father, it's good to see you here!" cried Elmer. "What did mother say when you left her?"

"Is he making a good soldier?" Captain O'Donnell asked First Sergeant Jacob Zahn. On being assured that the boy was doing his full duty, the veteran drew his son aside, and they talked of home. Later in the day Captain O'Donnell was taken to see the Maxims being fired at the rate of 500 shots a minute.

"One of those little things might have settled the battle of Gettysburg," said Captain O'Donnell. "I envy my boy the conditions under which he is serving his country. The comforts and sanitary arrangements provided for American soldiers in the field were beyond the dreams of the boys in blue of '61. Mother will be glad to know how well her boy is being taken care of by Uncle Sam."

The gray veteran messed with the youths of the machine gun company and confessed to a growing desire to re-enlist.

"I'm strong enough and healthy enough, but mother would never stand for it," he explained.

To Talk by Phone to Chicago.

"Hello, Chicago!" will be shouted by every member of the First Illinois brigade in Camp Wilson, Tex., and their voices will be heard by wives, mothers and sweethearts in Chicago. This at least is the long distance telephone plan under consideration by electrical experts who are serving in the Illinois national guard. Captain George E. Boyd of Company K, Second infantry, is sponsor of the plan. He is an official of a large electric company, and forty-seven members of his command are employees of that firm. Captain Boyd is certain that he can arrange for wholesale telephone communication between these men and their families in Chicago. The idea of placing the entire brigade and possibly other Illinois units here in connection with Chicago by telephone is now under consideration.

"Chiggers" Club In Southwest.

Chicago has its clubs of ultra exclusiveness, but "Camp Chiggers," where the First brigade is encamped at Leon Springs, has a club which takes the hard tack for exclusiveness. It was known as the Chigger club and its membership is confined to officers who have sustained at least thirty chigger bites during the present tour of duty. There are about twenty-five full fledged members and about fifty more are on the "itching list." Captain Thomas Nolan of the Seventh regiment has been chosen president. Lieutenant Robert S. Givens of the Second regiment is chairman of the entertainment committee. The duties of this committee are light, but active, as they are merely called upon to entertain the chiggers.

RUNNING SOME!

Frank Jenkins, the two-mile interscholastic champion and record holder, yesterday ran the fastest mile ever recorded in competition at Macomb's Dam Park when he won one of the feature events of the St. Christopher Club members' games in 4 minutes, 31 1-5 seconds. He clipped four seconds off the former record made by Henry Biddle of the Mohawk A. C. a year ago. Jenkins started from scratch in the mile, and made the pace after the first quarter ,winning easily.

PEACE FOR UMPIRES.

Captain John J. Evers, of the Boston National League club is at his home in Troy, suffering considerable pain in his left arm from a renewed neuritis attack. The leader of the Braves has been spending sleepless nights recently, as the sore spot does not yield to treatment. Evers doesn't know when he wil be able to don his uniform.

TRY OUT FIRE ALARM.

A new system has been installed for the use of the fire department to be used in case of still alarms. Hereafter when there is a still alarm the house that receives the call can pull the box nearest the fire so as to give all places where there is a clapper notice of it. The arrangement was tried this afternoon and found to work all right.

HERE'S A CAR THAT DON'T USE GASOLINE

Detroit Man Has Perfected An Engine That Startles Auto Makers.

And now comes Abner Doble, of Detroit, who threatens to put the gas engine out of business and bring joy to the motorists who have been woring about the high cost of gasoline. Nine years ago Doble decided in his own mind that the ultimate car would not be a gas car. Steam had all the requirements—but the steam car had never been a success. It was unreliable. It was expensive and bothersome—sometimes it was even dangerous. Today he has a car that will do things that no gas car ever did. It will creep along so slowly that you can scarcely see it moving——and almost instantly jump to 30 or 40 or even 80 miles an hour. It will climb any hill upon which traction can be secured. There are no gears to fuss with. The car starts from the seat and on the turning of the ignition switch. A little lever on the steering wheel that is worked by the finger applies the service brake.

The only lever in the body of the car is the emergency brake and the only pedal is a small affair placed at the side, which is used in reversing the engine.

There is no sound as the car gets into action and glides away. And the operation is so smooth and vibrationless that it seems rather uncanny. Even at the slowest speeds there is no sign of effort.

In appearance the car resembles any high priced car and there is nothing about it to indicate its unusual character.

But by all odds, the most remarkable thing about this particular car is that it has been running over three years and has gone a total of 33,000 miles. Yet today, after all that service and without any repairs, it is in as perfect operating condition as it was when it left the shops.

There is not a rattle or loose joint or a leaking valve anywhere about it.

The fuel used is kerosene. The engine gets about 14 miles to a gallon.

Owing to a condensing feature invented by Mr. Doble, the water is used over and over again and the tank requires filling only once in 1,300 miles.

Every one has known for years that the steam car would do things in actual performance that the gas car could not duplicate. But the difficulties in the use of steam have seemed insurmountable. Valves had a habit of leaking. The lighting of the fire and starting of the car were bothersome and frequently took a good deal of time.

The water tank had to be refilled two or three times a day while touring.

Boiler scale and rust were bothersome factors.

All these difficulties Doble seems to have eliminated.

And the best evidence that he has eliminated them is the fact that the car he is now driving has been running for three years, and if there were any bugs in his ideas they would probably been showing their heads before this.

Three new cars are now being built by Mr. Doble. They will contain refinements and improvements in design and construction that have been developed during the last few years and will be good enough, the builder confidently claims, to make the entire automobile world sit up and take notice.

They will be ready about October first.

In the meantime, some of the foremost automobile engineers in the country are busy driving and investigating the Doble engine with the idea of adopting it if it is all that it seems to be.

ART SMITH TO FLY AT TRENTON THIS YEAR

Art Smith, the famous aviator, who will return to the Trenton State Fair this year, gains the admiration of every assemblage that witnesses his skillful performances. Gallons of ink and acres of newspaper space have been devoted to this young man and his marvelous flying machine exhibitions the past summer, and some seemingly extravagant statements have been made. But after watching the young man's work, day and night, the unbiased mind is compelled to admit that he is deserving of it all, the Iowa Fair publication declares.

The critical public many characterize him as foolhardy and various other things, but nothing of the sort applies. Of course, he is getting well paid for his exhibitions. That is his right, but it is plain the youngster is flying for the pure love of the business, rather than for financial remuneration. If tomorrow were to close his last contract and he could never get another he would keep on flying.

He is wrapped up soul and body in the science of aerial navigation. He is not a crank on the subject. There is nothing chimerical about his plans. He is intensely practical. He knows his business. He builds his own machines. All changes and repairs are made either by himself or by assistants working directly under his eye. He is a fine, modest, unassuming, earnest, hard-working youngster, in love with his work, an enthusiast concerning the future possibilities of air machines, and with all his daring there is nothing of the grand-stander or notoriety-seeker about him.

CIVILIANS BEGIN CRUISE TOMORROW

Four Weeks of Fitting Themselves For Work of Sailors In Time of War.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Several thousand strong and sturdy young Americans will embark tomorrow on a fleet of Uncle Sam's warships, preparatory to spending four weeks in learning the fundamentals of naval science and thereby fitting themselves for service in the event of war. Officials of the Navy Department believe that the importance of these practice cruises can scarcely be over-estimated, since they will mark the initial step in the elaborate program mapped out by the administration to build up an adequate and efficient naval reserve. In the line of "preparedness," the practice cruises of the civilian sailors are expected to do for the navy what the civilian military training camps at Plattsburg and elsewhere are already accomplishing for the army.

Numerous ports on the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts have been designated as the points of embarkation for the civilian recruits from all sections of the country. The warships leaving the Atlantic and Gulf ports, carrying the recruits from the whole section of country east of the Rockies, will rendezvous at Gardiner's Bay, off Long Island. The Far Western recruits will depart from Seattle and other Pacific coast ports on battleships and cruisers that will rendezvous at San Diego and later proceed to Magdalena Bay.

CONFERENCE OF AGENTS ON FARM IMPROVEMENT

A conference of county agents and other extension workers in agriculture in New Jersey was held at the New Jersy State Agricultural College on August 8 and 9. Prof. Agee, director of extension, told of the growth of the work, pointing out that there are now about 1,000 counties in the United States organized for farm demonstration. He emphasized the fact that the work is educational, and must not be commercialized in any way. Papers were presented by the different county agents and extension specialists, followed by open discussion. Among the more striking features developed were: The practical value of a demonstration to the community as the real index of its success; methods of developing local leadership and arousing the feeling of local responsibility through publicity; the projects of the extension specialists in the State; the automobile tour as a successful means of demonstration; the desirability of coordination between the farmers' institutes and the extension division; the growth of home economics work, especially in Monmouth and Mercer counties; and how the market problem is being met through cooperative methods. Extension work in agriculture and home economics is growing rapidly in New Jersey. It cannot fail to result in a higher degree of efficiency in the agriculture of the State.

ASCRIBE BAD WEATHER TO WAR FRONT GUNS

Steamship Officers Convinced Firing Causes Rain and Wind.

Captains and officers of the Atlantic liners trading to New York are firm in the belief that the unusual rains and violent windstorms which have been so frequent this summer are partially due to the continuous firing of the heavy guns on the continent added to the explosions on the sea.

Captain Capper and the officers of the Cunarder Pannonia said the weather in the channel was the worst they had ever experienced at this time of the year, and in London there were not five sunny days the whole of July.

Reports brought from Paris by the officers of the French liner Rochambeau stated that the sun had only shone for three days out of the thirty-one in July, which is usually the sunniest and hottest month of the year at the French capital.

Captains of Italian liners trading to New York from Genoa state that the weather in the Mediterranean instead of being calm and hot is subject to frequent violent windstorms with heavy downpours of rain similar to those which occur in the latitudes of the "doldrums"—that is, ten degrees either side of the equator.

Reports from northern Europe state that the summer weather there is the same as it is in England and France and more resembled March in its boisterous winds and rain than June or July. Russian meteorological statistics show an unusual amount of rain and excessive cold. In Moscow up to the middle of July there had been no sign of summer or of the hot weather which usually sets in before June. In the Scandinavian countries the weather has been as dull, damp and chilly as it has been reported in England.

Southern Germany has been subjected to violent rains, and Lake Constance is abnormally high, according to reports just received. Austria, Hungary and the Balkan provinces, as well as Turkey, have experienced a series of storms all through June and July.

$10 OR FORTY DAYS.

The Review of Reviews, of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land —well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

REGNAULT'S "SALOME" GIVEN TO NEW YORK ART MUSEUM

George F. Baker Presents Masterpiece That Cost $125,000.

Regnault's famous painting, "Salome," has been presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by George F. Baker of New York. Mr. Baker is said to have paid more then $125,000 for the picture.

"Salome" was the sensation of the French salon of 1870. It was bought in Paris in 1912 by Roland Knoedler the New York art dealer, for $105,000 at the sale of the collection of the Marquise Landolfo-Carcano. There was spirited bidding at the time in which representatives of the museum of the Louvre were in a rivalry with Mr. Knoedler. Mr. Knoedler later offered to sell it to the Louvre for what he paid for it. A public subscription was started in France, but a sufficient amount was not raised, and early in 1913 the painting was brought to America, much to the disgust of French art lovers, who resented what they called the capture by American dollars of another European masterpiece. It was especially loved by the French people because of the history of the artist, who lost his life in the siege of Paris in 1871.

The history of "Salome" has been peculiarly dramatic. The picture was started in 1868, when Alexandre Georges Henri Regnault was at the Villa Medici, in Rome, where he had gone two years before as the winner of the Prix de Rome. It was finished at Rome in 1870, a few months before the artist met death in a skirmish before Buzenval at the siege of Paris Jan. 17, 1871. He was only twenty-seven years old.

In Regnault's "Correspondence" it is told that the artist's first idea was to make a mere study of the model, to be called the "Study of an African Woman." Then he decided to add accessories and to paint a picture of "The Favorite Slave." Afterward he conceived the idea of "Salome." He wrote of draperies and shawls and the like that he utilized before he achieved his memorable final effect. After its first exhibition Regnault was amused by some of the critics, who credited him with philosophical and profound intentions, and he wrote to a friend:

"I have wished, however, to express certain things, and I am glad you have understood them. Yes, a caressing ferociousness is the foundation of her nature, as she is, as you have perceived, a sort of tame black panther, but always savage and cruel."

The picture shows the dancer at the end of her performance before Herod seated, holding on her lap the platter to receive the head of John the Baptist, which her mother had told her to ask as the price of her dance. Resting on the platter, her hand playing with the hilt, is a sheathed scimitar. It is said that the artist considered placing on the platter the head of John the Baptist, but he did not, and the picture was sent to the salon of 1870, where its success was instantaneous.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

What is meant by shunt generator, series generator, field and reverse windings?

In a shunt generator the field magnet coils are placed in a shunt to the armature circuit—in other words, through a resistance unit—so that only a portion of the current generated passes through the field magnet coils. A continuous balance of the current occurs, the current dividing at the brushes between the field and the external circuit in an inverse proportion to the resistance of these circuits.

In the series wound generator the field winding and the external circuit are connected so that the entire armature current must pass through the field coils. Since in a series wound generator the armature coils, the field and the external circuit are in series, any increase in the resistance of the external circuit will decrease the electromotive force for the decrease in the magnetizing currents. A decrease in the resistance of the external circuit will in a like manner increase the electromotive force from the increase in the magnetizing current. The use of a regulator avoids these changes in the electromotive force.

Field means the area of magnetic force between the positive and negative poles of a magnet, or, as a concrete example, between the generator brushes.

Reverse winding is the process of winding a coil counter clockwise, its purpose being to carry the current in the opposite direction from that set up in a clockwise wound coil.

What makes the hand or dial of a speedometer move? Is it a governor or is it through a spring?

In fundamental principle there are four methods of operating the needle or dial on a speedometer. These are by magnetism, by centrifugal force, by air or by hydraulic drive.

The magnetic principle utilizes a revolving magnet positively driven from the car wheel or other part. The magnet exerts its influence on a metal part which is separated from it by an air gap and which in turn is connected with the indicating mechanism. The metal part is generally aluminum, as the inertia of the part must be kept as low as possible to make the speedometer quick to sensible to speed changes. A feature of the magnetic design is that the travel of the dial bears a direct ratio to the speed of travel of the magnet, and in order to compensate for changes in the drag due to temperature differences, a compensating unit is fitted.

Centrifugal control as utilized in speedometers is very much the same as that on a fly ball engine governor. Weights are mounted on the revolving shaft by bell crank levers, which allow them to travel further from the axis of the shaft as the speed of the drive increases. The centrifugal force of the weights increases as the square of the velocity of the shaft.

This tendency of the weights to fly from the axial center of the shaft under the influence of centrifugal force furnishes the basis of the indicating needle movement. An ingenious feature in centrifugal design is that, although the movement of the weights would naturally vary as the square of the speed, the levers or cams governing the movement are so calculated that calibrations on the dial are uniform or nearly so. Another feature which is carefully watched is the balance of the weights. The governors are made very sensitive so that even at low speeds the correct rate of travel may be indicated. Improvements in this direction have been made within a year by at least one of the centrifugal speedometer manufacturers.

The air principle is used only on one make, in which a blast of air from a pump within the speedometer forms the source of operation of the indicator needle. As the speed of the drive increases the volume of air flow becomes greater, thereby increasing the travel of a pivoted dial, calibration of which is effected by governing the size of the passages through which air flows.

One instrument employs the hydraulic system and uses a centrifugal pump which is connected with the drive and which lifts a liquid to a height proportional with the speed of the drive. The tube in which the colored liquid is lifted is calibrated to register speed.

In my car the No. 2 cylinder has no compression or power. I find that the exhaust valve does not seat. Do you suppose the spring has lost its strength or is the valve worn out?

The valve stem is probably bent and should be removed and straightened. If bent or worn badly it would be more advisable to use a new valve. In replacing valves care should be taken to reseat properly.

What remedy do you suggest for sticky valves?

Clean thoroughly with kerosene both the valves and guides. Valves should not become sticky unless a very poor lubricating oil is used. All the old oil should be drained from the motor and the whole system cleaned with kerosene. Then use fresh oil of better grade.

When I run in high gear there is a grinding noise in my car, but as soon as I throw it in neutral the grinding stops. I have had the motor and transmission out, and there is nothing that is cutting out or seems to be wrong. I have noticed this noise for more than a month. What is the matter?

As far as can be determined from the data furnished, the grinding noise probably originates in the rear axle assembly. There is also a probability that it is more noticeable at certain speeds. Noisy rear axles, as a rule, result from worn parts, which cause play, resulting in improper meshing of the gears. The usual remedy is the complete overhauling of the rear axle, with replacement of all the worn parts, including the differential, drive gear and the drive shaft pinion. There have also been cases of a tapping or grinding noise, especially noticeable with turning corners or traveling on rough roads. This follows the universal ball cap gear being too tight, and in such a case a shim can be installed between the ball cap rear and front.

Will you please explain the cause and remedy of the trouble with a gasoline motor when the cylinders are flooded and will not start? By that I mean why is it so difficult to start an engine after the cylinder has been overprimed and wish to know how one can tell when it is overprimed and what is the quickest way of remedying it?

A great many persons make the mistake of priming the motor too much. Too rich a mixture will not ignite any more readily than a poor mixture. Raw gasoline will not explode, but simply burn slowly. Most carburetors have a priming lever attached. If this lever is pulled once or twice it is sufficient to fix the mixture for starting. When priming the cylinders direct from the petcocks very little gasoline should be inserted. The average petcock has a cup, which if filled is sufficient to prime the cylinder. If too rich a mixture is drawn into the cylinder the petcocks should be opened and the motor cranked a few times in order to free the cylinders of the rich mixture. If the petcocks are then closed and the motor cranked without priming it should start without further trouble.

What is the proper way of lapping new piston rings in one-year-old cylinders; also the best type of piston ring to use?

In lapping piston rings great care must be observed by any amateur. The objection to allowing a novice to lap piston rings is that he is apt to push the piston too far into the cylinder, causing it to stick or break a ring or possibly both. To overcome this difficulty the rings are be clamped between two wooden disks slightly less in diameter than the cylinder. The rings are arranged between the disks, a rod is slipped through and the nuts at each end tightened. A handle on one end of the rod is used for the lapping process, which consists in moving the rings slowly in and out with a rotary motion. The lapping compound can be secured from any well equipped supply store, or emery dust and oil may be used.

How many cubic feet of vapor will a gallon of gasoline produce, and how is this calculated, having given the ratio of mixture and the test or gravity of the gas?

The amount of vapor that will be produced from a given quantity of gasoline depends on the composition of the gasoline and the temperature. It is not affected to any definite degree by the gravity, as you seem to indicate. The calculation is one which is very lengthy and involves a great many theoretical formulae. A vapor is the gaseous or elastic fluid which emanates or evaporates from the surface of a solid or liquid at temperatures below its boiling point. Gasoline, being volatile, evaporates rapidly at ordinary temperatures. When the vapor is allowed to accumulate in a closed space, such as in a carburetor or a motor, the saturation point will be reached when the vapor pressure is sufficient to prevent further evaporation of the gasoline. It has then reached its saturation pressure. The volume that a given amount of gasoline will occupy at its saturation pressure is a definite quantity and depends altogether on the temperature and the volatility of the gasoline.

The formulae involved in the calculation of saturation pressures and volumes are so complicated and require such a fundamental comprehension of the basic laws of thermodynamics that space does not permit a complete review of the entire subject. The fact is that actual results do not coincide with the theoretical, due to losses of heat in changing from the liquid to the vaporous state. The changes in the specific heat of the liquid undergoing vaporization are also very complex and indeterminative. For actual calculations data regarding water and steam is more reliable than other vapors, due to the extended amount of study which has been put upon this particular topic.

STRIKE SITUATION CRITICAL.

Unless some neutral force can quickly bring to the railroad strike conference a plan for arbitration that the brotherhoods and the corporations can accept, the country faces the most gigantic tie-up in its existence this week. More than 400,000 men threaten to quit their jobs and leave the freight and passenger trains standing idle on the main line tracks. If this should happen the business of America would be paralyzed and the disaster would be felt in every corner of the country. President Wilson evidenced unusual firmness and command yesterday when he ordered the Federal mediators to prevent a strike until the brotherhood representatives had come to Washington for a conference with him. He has no authority in the situation, but will use his high office to bring about a peaceful settlement. If he can perform the duty that Strauss did in the New York street railway strike he will have earned the thanks of every individual in all the States. A factor that may later dominate the situation showed up in the negotiations yesterday, and if arbitration should fail, and Wilson should fail, Big Business still remains. Because of the enormous amount of freight being shipped daily, the shippers are in a position to force the railroad companies to accept almost any terms, and they are organizing for the purpose of preventing a strike. They will take no action, however, except as a final resort, for they can have no influence with the trainmen, and can only force the railroads to give in to the demands of the employes.

ASK THE BOARD OF HEALTH

There are many situations arising each day for the ordinary citizen trying to combat the infantile paralysis plague, and most mothers and fathers simply do nothing when they are in ignorance of the proper procedure. A parent told yesterday of the arrival of juvenile visitors in his neighborhood, from what State he did not know, who were allowed to mix freely with other children on the street. He did not know whether this was permitted by the Board of Health or not, he said, and did not inquire. One of the most important duties of the Health Board at such a time is to give intelligent information. Its experts have made a study of the prevention of infantile paralysis, and they are prepared to answer any and all questions. They are very busy just now, trying to do a work that is ten times as difficult as in ordinary times, and should not be bothered with foolish or unimportant matters, but where the health of even one child is in jeopardy they are glad to be of service.

WHAT'S UP ON THE BORDER?

The act of President Wilson in suddenly ordering 2,000 more State troops to the border has caused the entire country to speculate on the possible causes of another international crisis. No explanation has come out of Washington, which strengthens the belief that there is something behind the sudden moving of troops which cannot be publicly discussed at present. Recent reports from Mexico City have told of decided unrest there and it would not be surprising if Carranza were overthrown by his own men and a new revolutionary government set up. If a new danger for the men on the border had come, the country will shut its ears to political attacks on the Wilson administration, and with fear and hope for the safety of its loved ones who have dared in the service of their country, put its confidence and trust once more in the man who has so long kept us out of war.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Short and Ugly.

Man's wife wants little here below,
A poet sang, with fire.
There's only one comment to make—
That poet is a liar.

She wants a great deal, yes, indeed,
And yet, ah, vain regrets;
We're telling you of what she wants,
And not of what she gets.

The spiders read this sheet and then,
They prove that they are wise;
They go and spin their webs with men
Who never advertise.

The New Cult.

William H. Crane, the actor, has established a new cult, whose principal fad is to eat. He has cured himself of dyspepsia, which he suffered thirty years, by eating everything he wants every time he wants it.

Now says William Henry Crane:
When you have got a little pain,
Just eat.
When dyspepsia shakes your frame,
Don't prepare to quit the game,
But eat.
When you've got the tummy ache,
Don't give up for mercy's sake;
Grab a good big sirloin steak,
And eat and eat.

Don't go 'round forlorn and sad
When you think you're feeling bad,
But eat.
Don't make up your mind to die,
Get a slab of good mince pie,
And eat.
When your dizzy head careens,
Just forget what sickness means,
Buy a plate of pork and beans,
An eat and eat.

Give the lumbago and the grip,
And paralysis the slip,
And eat.
If appendicitis tries
To promote you to the skies,
Just eat.
When the little microbe imps
Into you would put the crimps,
Buy a salad made of shrimps,
An eat and eat.

The Retort Courteous.

Hogan had died.

Casey, a friend of Hogan's, had been away and arrived in town on the day of the funeral. With his satchel in his hand, he passed Hogan's house, just as the pallbearers were carrying the casket out to the hearse. Hogan had been a very large man and the pallbearers were straining every muscle.

Casey stood aghast, but finally approached one of the pallbearers.

"Who's in there?" he demanded pointing to the casket.

"Hogan," panted the pallbearer.

"What, is Hogan dead?"

The pallbearer turned upon Casey disgustedly and said: "For the love of Mike, you don't think we are just rehearsing this, do you?"

Uncle Abner

A little deception now and then is practiced by the best of men. Also women.

Hank Tumms says when he and his wife were married they were mad one, and it didn't take long to guess which is the one. The lady admits it herself.

A Pittsburgh minister says he would rather see the women going about the streets naked than dressed the way they are nowadays. Well, mayhe he would, at that.

Any durned chump around town thinks he could run a newspaper a blamed sight better than the editor does.

Old Lem Stubbs sent Ame Hilliker a bar of soap. He says he tried to give useful gifts. Ame hasn't used it yet.

Matilda Hanks wants to take vocal lessons, but her old man says it ain't necessary, as she kin holler so loud now you kin hear her 'way down to the postoffice.

It takes a mighty versatile feller to admire his own wife's clothes after the first year or two and make her believe it.

"SEND HIM OVER HERE—I CAN USE HIM"

EXPERT WHO SAYS MILITIAMEN ON BORDER ARE HEALTHY AND ARE BEING WELL CARED FOR

DR. THOMAS DARLINGTON.

I[illegible] was sent to the border [illegible] health investigator by the National Civic Federation. His first report, just made public, shows that the men are being well cared for and that there is a very small percentage of illness. He has visited every camp on the border, including that at Douglas, Arizona, where the New Jersey troops are stationed.

At Eagle Pass, Texas, where 7,300 militiamen are stationed, Dr. Darlington says he has found conditions excellent. He says that the food served is excellent and the diet well balanced.

Concerning the hospital arrangements he said:

"The hospital has accommodations for 160, but there were comparatively few in it, as the health of the troops in the camp is excellent. There are only 1.08 per cent. sick, and most of these cases are due to typhoid vaccination. There are seven cases of mumps. So far there have been two deaths—one of a young man who disobeyed orders and went into the Rio Grande; he could not swim and was drowned. The other was a cook who put kerosene on the fire and was burned to death.

"Since the beginning, the United States Army's Medical Department has endeavored to seek the co-operation of all local health officers, as it is not only necessary to have all the camps kept in a sanitary condition but also the surrounding premises, and to have control over food and drink sold on the outside."

Dr. Darlington has made a thorough investigation of the dairies contiguous to the camps and in order to improve the situation has taken up the matter with the military authorities at San Antonio. Until a solution for this problem has been reached he recommends that only c[illegible] dried milk or pasteurized local milk be used.

At the time this report was mailed Dr. Darlington was on his way to General Pershing's camp in Mexico to investigate the methods of shipping food to the forces there.

As showing the spirit of co-operation existing between Dr. Darlington and the Army Medical Corps, it is stated that a suggestion by Dr. Darlington that large steam sterilizers be purchased to disinfect all bed clothing used by sick soldiers in hospitals was immediately acted upon and the sterilizers were ordered by telegraph.

One of the recommendations in the report to be made by Dr. Darlington upon his return will be to suggest that a definite type of railway car be used in the transportation of soldiers. These cars would be made of steel and would have other uses in times of peace.

The authorities agree, he says, that in transit each soldier should have a bed to himself, avoiding contact with the bodies of other men and in this way lessening the chances for the spread of contagious diseases. Men who travel comfortably, he says, are better able to resist climatic disease, and it is his opinion that no other single factor counts so much for disease resistance as plenty of sleep, next coming drinking water, waste elimination and wholesome food, in the order mentioned.

On the whole, Dr. Darlington finds that conditions on the border so far as sanitation is concerned are good. He says that the methods now used to meet these conditions are so effective that when thoroughly understood by the relatives of the men now in the military camp it will do much to alleviate worry now felt by them and change the attitude of those who now wish to prevent future enlistments.

The White Road Home

The white road winds through endless twisted miles,
Low woods that stretch away on either side
Into the shifting sands, and clutch
At rocks with gnarled roots to anchor them,
Deep shade and peace it has, lulled by the low voiced surf
And gentle rustling of the wet sea breeze
That slowly bends the tree tops to and fro
Over my dear road home.

It leads through straggling fields with bowlders strewn
And here and there a little cypress tree,
Past low gray cottages and flowers
Jealously hedged against the wild north winds.
It links a countryside of kindly souls—
Women with steady eyes and work worn hands,
Men with an old time faith that still holds firm—
Where my white road winds home.

• • • • • •

Long in the stifling room I lay awake,
Racked by the maddening noise above around.
I rose to watch the night crowd drifting by,
Under the flaming sky signs, and I heard,
From some roof garden snatches of a song
That winged toward me on the torrid air,
So bitter sweet, through tears I watched the stars
That light my white road home.

FOOTBALLS WIN A CHARGE.

Surreys Boot Them Along Until They Capture German Post.

Describing some of the many thrilling incidents of the great advance on the Somme, a correspondent refers to the exploits of the east Surreys.

"The captain of one of the companies," he says, "had provided four footballs, one for each platoon, urging them to keep up a dribbling competition all the way over the mile and a quarter of ground they had to traverse. As the company formed on emerging from the trench the platoon commanders kicked off and the match against death commenced.

"The gallant captain himself fell early in the charge, and men began to drop rapidly under the hail of machine gun bullets. But still the footballs were booted onward, with hoarse cries of encouragement or defiance, until they disappeared in the dense smother behind which the Germans were shooting.

"Then when the bombs and bayonets had done their work and the enemy had cleared out the Surrey men looked for their footballs and recovered two of them in the captured traverses. These will be sent to the regimental depot at Kingston as war trophies worth preserving."

- Proctor's Theatre -

A legend of the Sierras, according to which there was once discovered in the mountains a girl who, as far as she could remember, had never come in contact with other humans, is the basis for the Fine-Arts Triangle production, entitled "The Wild Girl of the Sierras" appearing at Proctor's today with Mae Marsh and Robert Harron as co-stars. The presentation of Mae Marsh, Robert Harron and Wilfred Lucas in a single picture is enough to insure its success, even if it were not distinctive in other ways. But the picture has other merits, particularly its extraordinarily beautiful exteriors. These wood and hill scenes, in which the play of light is so perfect that it looks almost as if it were artificially supplied, give the appearance of having been painted instead of photographed. As to the story, the picture is fanciful, but it ought to be a welcome relief because it gets clear away from the ordinary run of plots. There is no attempt to create a big "punch." The photography and settings are of the first importance in this picture, because it is the romance of a girl who has grown up in the wilds and it is absolutely necessary that the settings harmonize with her nature. In addition today one of those extemporaneous Keystone comedies is shown, and the last episode of "The Mysteries of Myra" is also included in the program.

Tomorrow, Dorothy Gish appears in "The Little School Ma'am," a picture that takes you back to your boyhood days when bare-footed you tramped the lane to the little red school, or as a shy maid brought wild flowers to the village school teacher. You'll enjoy this picture more than any you've seen in many a long day, for it brings back the spirit of youth—of the days when there were no cares or worries.

On Wednesday a William Fox offering, entitled, "A Tortured Heart," starring Virginia Pearson, will be the headline photoplay attraction.

THE FORUM

A MENACE TO PLAINFIELD.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press,
Plainfield, N. J.

Sir—According to your esteemed paper the Lehigh Valley Railroad has seen fit to store its munitions cars in a section of wood, near the South Plainfield staton of the road. No less than twenty cars are at present sidetracked at that point.

If this is true, does it not constitute a grave menace to our city? The terrific havoc created at Jersey City two weeks ago must not be repeated.

Can not the Plainfields take the same steps to stop all freight trains entering the city limits until the manifests have been examined and the cargo proved non-explosive?

It is assuredly poor policy to lock the stable after the horse has been stolen.

Yours truly,
H. RUSSELL PHILLIPS.

TODAY THE ANNETTE KELLERMANN SWIMMING CLASS WILL LEARN HOW TO "TREAD WATER"

The World's Most Famous Swimmer, Possessing the Most Perfect Feminine Figure, Explains How You Can Keep Upright In the Water. Another Caution About Improper Bathing Suits.

Article No. 12.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Every swimmer, good or bad, should be able to tread water. Treading water is one of the most important assets a swimmer can have. While its importance cannot be overestimated, the method by which one is able to tread water is an easy one.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN,

The fact is, there is nothing at all difficult about the art of swimming. It should come as a second nature to all of us. Don't believe that the art of swimming is something one must strive for to gain. No, not by any means. The only thing to strive for is perfection in swimming.

To be able to tread water means that at all times you are able to conduct yourself the same in the water as on land. When you know how to tread water you can, if in a difficult position, direct your rescuers and also see when they approach you how they intend saving you, whereas if you were swimming you would hardly be able to do anything but swim about blindly and perhaps lose your life.

There are a thousand reasons why you should learn how to tread water. I won't bore you with any more for I am certain that you are all wide awake enough to realize its importance.

Before entering the water we will have our usual Dry-Land lesson. The first thing to do is to place yourself beside the dining room table. Now place your hands on the table, keep your elbows about one foot from the table, move them rapidly back and forth sideways, meanwhile pressing the palms downward. Try to keep your wrists supple. Keep up this movement until you understand it perfectly. Then while they are still moving slowly raise one foot until the knee touches the bottom of the top of the table-board. Now drop the foot and raise the other foot, then reverse and keep up this movement, alternating the movement of the legs while still keeping up the movements of the hands.

Now into the water again, and before entering deep water try the movement in shallow water until the movement of the hands is perfect.

You will notice that your hands are pressing down on the water and that they are cutting the water sharply. You are now ready to go to deeper water.

Be sure to keep the head well back and do not worry if you sink under the surface. Hold your breath and then you will find yourself coming up again after a few little "duckings" you will secure a balance and from then on it will not be long before you will be able to tread the water with ease.

One most important item is a proper bathing suit. Please, please do not wear those awful water overcoates. Those awkward, unnecessary lumpy bathing suits are all right for a few old fossils that make you wear them, but not for the members of the Plainfield Daily Press Annette Kellerman Swimming Class. A sensible bathing suit that is light and comfortable must be worn.

A heavy bathing suit has caused just as many death by drowning as cramps.

Members of this class should wear comfortable bathing suits, especially the women, and if you are stopped by anyone in authority you demand an explanation as to why you can't wear the suit.

I am certain that there isn't a single reason under the sun why everybody should not wear light suits and anyone who tells you that you have to wear the heavy skirty suit is endangering your life.

Of course I do not ask you to wear the one-piece suit but you should all wear what is called a two-piece boys suit. In fact I request you to wear this kind of a suit if you wish to be at all safe in the water.

Tomorrow—Miss Kellermann again answers many of the more important questions asked by her pupils. Her replies to these questions will be of great benefit to you in attaining swimming perfection. You gain solutions of your own problems.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Hansel Piped and a Witch Danced.

He Planted It in His Window Box.

[Adapted from Grimm's Fairy Tales.]

SOON as Jack and Evelyn kept still daddy told them about how Hansel met an ugly fairy that wanted to pick a rose by the roadside. "But this rose was really Grethel herself. She had turned herself into a rose, you see, and Hansel had played his fairy pipe that made people dance when they heard its music.

"So this old fairy was forced to dance a merry jig. On and on she danced without any rest, so fast she could not pick the rose. Hansel kept on playing music without resting too. So finally the old fairy danced right into the rose's thorns. They tore off her clothes and pricked her body. At last she was so tired dancing that she stuck fast among the thorns.

"Then Grethel set herself free once more, and on through the woods the children went. At last Grethel felt very tired, and Hansel said, 'Now I will go home for help.'

"'I am so tired that I will stay here and wait for you, dear,' said Grethel. So off Hansel dashed, and she sat down to rest.

"But when she had waited there in the woods a long time and no Hansel came back she grew very sad and turned herself into a little daisy. 'Now, some one will come and tread me underfoot and all my sorrows will end,' she said.

"But this is how it really happened. A shepherd was keeping watch in a field near by and espied the pretty daisy growing beside the wood path. He liked the daisy so much that he took it home and planted it in his window box. 'I never found such a pretty daisy before,' said he.

"From that time on everything went wonderfully well at the shepherd's house," daddy went on.

"Why?" cried Evelyn.

"Oh, because it held a little enchanted flower that was really a good child!" daddy explained. "When the shepherd got up each morning all the housework was already done. The room was swept and dusted, the fire made and the water fetched from the spring. Afternoons when he came in from the fields the tablecloth was laid and a good meal all ready for him.

"He could not make out how this happened, for he saw no one in his home. Although he was much pleased to have his work done, he was finally troubled to think how it could all happen. So he went to a wise old woman who was his next door neighbor and asked her what she thought he had better do."

"Oh, daddy, was she an old witch, too?" cried Jack.

"My son, that old woman will make another bedtime story!" cried daddy.

Marrying a Butterfly

Ethel Discovers That She has Been Very Extravagant in the Purchase of Food.

"In these days of high prices you must not only know how to cook, but you must learn to manage." Ethel sat by the kitchen table, pencil in hand, making out a menue for a week. "I believe in the budget system."

"Budget? I do not understand." Ethel's forehead had a thoughtful puckr.

"I suppose you do not know anything about governments. It is a mistake. Women should keep themselves informed about all the affairs that interest men. How else are they to be companions to their husbands?

A budget is a sum set aside for a certain purpose You will never get anywhere saving till you decide what would be a reasonable amount to spend on food and clothing, etc. Then make your expenses come inside of that amount"

"How can you? You must eat" The girl's eyes were wide with astonishment

"That is where managemont counts. Everything does not cook the same. Choose things that will make your meals come within the price set." The old head nodded her emphasis.

"What do you think is a reasonable amount?"

"I have never kept house in town and there are so many things that a farmer produces on the place that my budget would not be of any help to you, but Nell has studied this question. She has become quite a manager She says their expenses average two dollars a week apiece for each person.

"Do you mean for everything?" queried the girl

"All table expenses. Of course, that does not include any fuel."

"Why, that would be only sixteen dollars a month for food for Ralph and me." The voice was full of astonishment "Our meat bill alone was as big as that sometimes and our grocery bill ran around thirty dollars."

"With meat as high as it is, you cannot serve it more than once a day, and keep within the limit I have named, and then the expensive cuts cannot be bought very often." Mrs. Morton gave a decided bob to her head.

"We lived on sirloin and porterhouse steak. It was the only thing we could cook. I say we, for Ralph fried it." The old lady shook her head gracely at this recital.

"Oh, I could help Ralph save for a home if you will help me make out a menu that will come within that figure." Ethel's eyes shone.

"As I said, it will take management. No one can do it who does not make a study of her meals. No one who begins to wonder what she will have for dinner about half an hour before it is time to serve it can keep within any fixed amount. And no one with a servant will be able to do it unless strictab is kept on all that comes in the house and what is done with it."

"There will be no servant, not for a while at least," interrupted Ethel.

The old head nodded approval. "We will make out a month's menue, figuring up the cost as nearly as we can. Make your meat come to ten cents apiece a day on an average. When you buy steak cut off the tails and parts that are no good to broil or fry and put them through the food grinder. They will make you a fine roast loaf. If you need a little more get some good pieces of neck meat. Ground up it is just as good as any other. If your pot roasts cost sixty cents make it do for three days. Have a meat pie the second day and chop the fragments that are left for a dish of curry and rice or put them in a brown gravy over toast for the third day. So much can be done with scraps if you are wise in their use." Mrs. Morton paused and rubbed the side of her nose with her finger as she did when thinking.

"Why, it is a real study. I will have to put my brains to work as I would do to a problem," said Ethel thoughtfully.

"Exactly, assented her friend. "People say housework is so tiresome. They have never used their brains."

"It will take a long time for me to learn to do this well," mused Ethel.

"That is the encouraging part about it," resumed the old lady. "It gives room for growth. Nothing is really valuable to do that does not develop you and give you a chance to develop it."

NET FOR THE EVENING GOWN.

Black Again to Be Favored—Elaborate Embroidery and Metal Trimming Popular.

By Mary Glynn.

The evening gown for this season is not to be the extremely youthful affair that it has been during the last year and a half. Instead, it takes on a more dignified aspect, which no doubt, is to be a welcome feature. The fact, too, that rich, dark shades, also black, will be fashionable, will also take away from the airy "debutanty" appearances, so evident in all of the gowns shown in light tones. It is said that all evening gowns will have trains, whether the gown is short or long, this also giving a decidedly dignified appearance to the garment. The gown illustrated, while one of the new ones, does not feature a train However, this fact does not detract from its dignity and grace. Black silk net is introduced in three layers over a foundation of black satin. The outer layer is exquisitely embroidered in silver in rich floral design. The low edge is bordered with a narrow metal insertion. The bodice is extremely simple, draped in surplice effect, with one sleeveless side. The other is a gracefully arranged bell sleeve of shadow lace veiled with the net. Black silk hose and satin button pumps complete the outfit.

THE LONG-WAISTED FROCK BECOMING TO GIRLHOOD.

For special afternoon occasions here is a charming frock of brown mohair and worsted mixture with a pleated Russian tunic of brown georgette over apricot silk. Bands of the heavier material form a sort of suspender arrangements passing under the low placed belt. The wide sailor collar is of brown soiree silk with a collar of the apricot-colored silk turning over it. Both tunic and skirt are stiffened at the hem with facings of witchtex, the modern crinoline, and the band trimming on the pleated tunic is a specially smart detail. Buttoned boots of tobasco brown glazed kid, with ivory tinted tops harmonize with the dainty frock.

FUR NOVELTIES FOR FALL.

By Mary Glynn.

Fur novelties will be the notable features this fall and especially those fashioned of flat pelts. Attractive collarettes and muffs to match will be the most evident, also wide and long stoles of these flat furs. The animal scarfs will be worn again, though there is little or no radical change in the arrangement of these. The secret of their smartness is in the manner which the animal scarf is worn. Coats will be dress length with close fitted effect at the waistline and very often belted. The flat furs are also used for these garments while the long haired furs such as fox, skunk and Kolinsky are introduced in trimming. Some of the sleeves are loose cuffed; others fitted snugly at the wrists. These coats are invariably lined with pussy willow or soft satin, and fastened with buttons of self fur or novel bone affairs.

WOMEN SHOULD GET THE HABIT AS WELL AS MEN

Don't eat bite of breakfast until you drink glass of hot water.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexion; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's idigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

Baptists vs. Netherwood.
Hopes vs. T. A. B. S.

William Shakespeare, the Bard of Avon, had his inning Saturday. At least one of his later plays went "strong" in this locality over the week-end. The play in question, "A Comedy of Errors," was enacted by the Hopes, Baptists and Farmers. And at this writing the Tabs have yet to make known their liking for the masterpiece.

If the City League had to put up all season with the brand of baseball exhibited on Saturday the circuit, we, fear, would not last long. The only game that was worth the price of admission, according to one fan, was the Dunellen battle with the Tabs. This attraction was a stellar one, with Johnny Dixon in the title role. Johnny hurled one of "the" games of his young career and had the Teetotalers at his mercy from the start to the finish of the contest.

The conflagration—yes, reader, it was all of that—participated in by the Farmers and the Baptists was witnessed by a large crowd, many of the fans in attendance wishing that they were home. The Firsts contributed nine errors during the afternoon, with the Farmers throwing in eleven more to make things "exciting." The Netherwoods won the pennant, but the victory was not an auspicious one. The Hopes presented the flag in a gentlemanly way, not even showing any inclination to lend Dick Schott a helping hand.

It seems unusual, but it is a fact that three of the pitchers in the league games hurled good ball. These pitchers were Freddy Mills, Dick Schott and John Dixon. Lest we forget, Thorne did well.

NETHERWOOD TAKES CITY LEAGUE FLAG

Although Dick Schott Made Mighty Effort, East End Team Rushes On.

In a game that, like the Farmer-Baptist attraction, was marred by errors to the number of twelve, the Netherwood baseball team captured the City League pennant for the second successive time. The stunt was exhibited on Parker Field and the score was 8 to 1.

Nothing of unusual merit occurred during the game, but every now and then a Hope error would be chalked up. The Netherwood outfit could not touch Dick Schott, reaching him for only five hits. Eddie Coughlin, with a double, annexed the only extra-base hit of the day. In the absence of Johnson, the regular catcher for the East Enders, Earl Moran, the old standby, caught an excellent game.

In the fourth inning the champions ran up a total of six runs, the feat being made possible by the rapid appearance of four glaring Chapel errors.

BAPTISTS INDULGE IN "CHAPLIN" ACT

They, Aided By Farmers, Duplicate Feats of "Lone Star" Idol.

In a game marred by no less than twenty errors, indulged in by the members of both teams, the Baptists defeated the Farmers on West End Field Saturday, the score of the listless attraction being 8 to 7.

While the score of the game would indicate that the Baptists had a hard time winning the game, such was not the case. Errors on the part of the Firsts gave their opponents plenty of opportunities to score. The Farmers were especially adept at the art of making errors and ran up a total of eleven misplays during the afternoon. All of the twenty errors made had but one effect on the game. That effect was felt in the main by the fans, who avowed that they never saw a more uninteresting contest.

But the day's work was not all listless. Freddy Mills, the Baptist hurler, did his best to make the afternoon pleasant. And Freddy certainly did shine. Aside from the fact that he did what only one pitcher in a thousand can do—i. e., hit a homer—Mills fielded exceptionally well and handled all but one of the chances afforded him accurately. "Hub" Stine, working behind the bat for the winners, had a great day and was one of the stars of the battle.

In the error line Mehaffe and E. Friele led, the two men, by means of their combined efforts, running up a total of six errors.

JOHN DIXON DEFEATS REJUVENATED TABS

Dunellen Youth Holds Abstainers to Five Bingles and Allows No Runs.

Dunellen defeated the Tabs by the score of 4-0 at Maurer Oval, Dunellen, Saturday afternoon in one of the best played games of the year. Johnny Dixon again occupied the mound for the Apgarites in place of the veteran McLaughlin, who is out with a charley horse. Johnny displayed the same form that he flashed when he shut out the Farmer A. C. two Saturdays ago. Not a man received a free ticket to first from his hands and he struck out eight men and allowed but five hits. He further contributed to his team's victory by scoring the first run. After one was down in this inning he reached first on a clean hit between Rosenson and Clark. He went to third on Wilson's two-sacker and registered ahead of the latter on Emery's timely bingle.

In the Tabs' half of the sixth Manager Scott, of the locals, and Trust, a North Carolina lad, came near clashing as a result of Scott disputing a decision in which the umpire called Denitzio out on an attempted steal of second. It is probable that the umpire's decision will be protested.

Dunellen increased its lead by two more runs in its half of the ninth on a free ticket to Brown, a double by Trust and Bergen's sacrifice.

CLIFF RANDOLPH FAILS TO DEFEAT RIVALS

Allows Only Five Hits, But Loses Attraction—Mullin's Bat Features.

Cliff Randolph, pitching for Frank Hand's Washington team, lost a hard-fought tussle to the Hackettstown team Saturday, the score of the match being 5 to 1. Opposing Randolph on the mound was Jimmy Clinton. While each pitcher allowed only five hits, Cliff was in better form than Clinton and fanned six men. Clinton fanned but two men.

The fact that Randolph and his mates got off to a poor start made it impossible for them to make up for the loss. Tommy Mullin was the batting hero of the day, getting two hits, one of these being a double. Joe Harter, Bill Stallings and Art Pickering played with the winners, Stallings being the only member of the trio who could hit the local pitcher's offerings. Bill garnered a triple. Frank Hand failed to hit during the attraction, but fielded well. Four errors made by the losing team paved the way for the Hackettstown victory.

TILE WORKERS LOSE TEN INNING TUSSLE

Francis McDonough's Single Pushes Over Winning Run In Extra Inning Affair.

The American Tile Workers of Lincoln were defeated on Hyde Field Saturday afternoon, the St. Joseph team turning the trick, 5 to 4, after a ten-inning tussle.

The game was well played and was interesting from start to finish. Eddie Conshay was tight in the pinches. While Van Fleet was reached for more hits than Conshay was, still he was almost as invincible in the pinches and puzzled the opposing batters. In the tenth inning, however, with Pasch on second and with two out, Francis McDonough singled, ending the game, Pasch scoring. Conshay fanned ten men during the course of the attraction.

GUARDSMAN WAS JILTED.

Josephine Thinks Life Too Short to Wait For Him.

A private in the Second Illinois infantry is looking for another girl.

He received a letter from his fiancee, who lives in Chicago, in which she upbraided him for enlisting in the guard and saying she couldn't wait for him. Here is the letter:

Freddie Dear—Such nonsense! How silly of you to enlist! Bob and Lester had better judgment. I couldn't think of marrying you now, my boy. Life's too short for waiting. I am provoked with you because I really wanted to be your wife but the war may last years, and you mightn't come back at all. Send me some camera pictures and all the news from the front and come back soon. Yours tenderly,

JOSEPHINE.

The young man threw the letter to his comrades, with the remark:

"Ain't that a h—l of a letter?"

Then he laughed.

STATE CHAMPIONS TO SHOOT FOR TITLE IN NATIONAL CLASSIC FOR AMATEURS

Every State Will Be Represented By Best Trapshot in St. Louis Event—Classic Carded For August 22—Trapshooting Notes.

By Peter P. Carney.

The national amateur trapshooting championship title will be shot for over the traps of the St. Louis (Mo.) Sportsmen's Association on Tuesday afternoon, August 22.

This is the event of the season for the amateur trapshooters. The hope of every State is entered in it. The national championship for amateurs is shot for only by the State champions. Therefore, it is necessary to win a State championship before a trapshooter becomes qualified to shoot for the American title.

Every trapshooter in the State has the opportunity to shoot for his State title—and invariably the best trapshot wins. Hence 46 of the best amateur trapshots in the United States will appear before the traps in St. Louis. The District of Columbia, New Mexico and Nevada are annexed to other States in shooting for the title, so that every State in the Union will be represented.

This will be the third time that the national amateur title has been shot for, but in neither of the other two competitions were the field of shooters as good as the one this year. This will be the first time, too, that every State has been represented.

Woolfolk Henderson, of Lexington, Ky., and Charles Newcomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., won the amateur championships in 1914 and 1915 each breaking 99 targets. Neither will shoot for the title this year, as Henderson was beaten in the Kentucky tournament, getting second to Gay, and Newcomb finished third in the Pennsylvania event. "Dol" Richardson, who broke 96 targets in 1914 and 98 targets in 1915 in the national title event, met with a fatal injury a few days ago and could not participate in the Delaware championship, and the Peach Tree State will be represented by another this year.

The Interstate Association for the Encouragement of Trapshooting, which is to trapshooting what the national commission is to baseball, makes it possible for each State champion to attend, all owing each winner $75 towards expenses. This doesn't cover all expenses for some, but it greatly aids in cutting down the bills.

With the Delaware and Arkansas tournaments missing from the compilation—as these tournaments were not shot when this article was penned—the figures show that seven trapshooters made the perfect score of 100 in winning their titles, seven others made 99, 14 broke 98, 4 broke 97, 1 broke 96, 4 broke 95, 5 broke 94 and one 92 and 91. Every winner bettered 90 per cent., and only one of the runners-up got below 90 per cent. Six of the runners-up broke 99 targets, which will give an idea of the shooting in some of the States.

Pfirrman, of California-Nevada; Burmeister, of Illinois; Heil, of Pennsylvania; Biggelow, of Utah; King, of Colorado; Pendergast, of New York, and Ridley, of Iowa, are the trapshooters who go into the national championship event with a perfect score. Only two perfect scores were made in the State championships last year and one the year before.

NOVEL TENNIS TOURNAMENT IN PROGRESS ON COURTS AT ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

John Powelson and Joseph Gallagher Record Six Victories and One Defeat—New Team, Composed of Garret Keating and Anthony Deady, Leads—Other Scores.

A novel tennis tourney is now in progress on the courts at St. Mary's School. The affair is a doubles event and there are four teams entered in the competition. According to the rules of the tournament, twenty-four sets will be played by each team and trophies will be awarded to the winners.

Competition in the tournament began Saturday, sets being played on that day and yesterday. As a result of the first two days' play the team composed of Garret Keating and Anthony Deady is in the lead with one victory and no defeats. The victory was recorded at the expense of the team composed of John J. V. Powelson and Joseph A. Gallagher. The score of the set was 6—4. The defeat suffered by the Powelson-Gallagher combination was the first one encountered in seven starts. The victories earned by this combination are as follows: John Powelson and Joseph Gallagher defeated Joseph McEvoy and Jerome O'Leary, 8—6, 6—3 and 6—4. Powelson and Gallagher also defeated Frederick L. Greene and Edwin L. Sullivan in straight sets, 6—1, 8—6 and 6—4.

The longest set yet played on the courts at St. Mary's was one indulged in by Joseph McEvoy and Jerome O'Leary opposing Fred Greene and Edwin L. Sullivan. Twenty games were played before a decision was reached, McEvoy and O'Leary finally winning, 11—9.

The tourney will be continued next Saturday and Sunday. The standing of the four teams shows that the Keating-Deady combination is in the lead with one victory and no defeats, with the Powelson-Gallagher duo close behind with six victories and one defeat. The other two teams are tied with one victory and four defeats each.

Do You Want a "Guest-Tenant?"

When you rent a room of your home to someone, you secure a "guest-tenant." Your "roomer" is a guest of your house, on a business basis—but still a guest, somewhat in touch with your home, and this makes it highly important that the person should be of the right sort.

In advertising a furnished room it is a simple matter to indicate that the tenant-to-be must have reasonably convincing credentials as to character. You will thus have applications from a desirable class of people while a door sign or window card would merely bring to you the chance passer-by.

BUILDING GIANT ZEPPELIN.

Description of Air Craft Has Been Received In Washington.

The giant Zeppelin transoceanic air liner promised by Germany to help her merchant submarines defeat the purposes of the British blockade is nearing completion near Lake Constance. Official information was received in Washington telling of the giant air craft.

The great passenger carrying balloon is hundreds of feet longer than the largest of the war Zeppelins which have been used in the bombardment of English and French coast towns and the air raids on London and Paris.

Inflated the newest German product will be 787 feet in length, more than one-seventh of a mile. The giant air ship is designed to carry a dead weight load of 88,000 pounds. This is the equivalent of 580 persons of average weight.

Work on the huge machine is being pushed as rapidly as possible. However, the information contained no definite estimate of the probable time of the completion of the Zeppelin that is designed to break the British cordon about Germany and free German commerce.

THE CAR AHEAD
A Hudson Super-Six

When you buy a car in the Hudson class you buy that car to keep. So the question is a big one. What that car is or isn't matters much for years and years. Let us look facts in the face.

Always the Master

The Hudson Super-Six, under every condition, will or can be "The Car Ahead."

No other stock car ever went so fast. None ever went so far in one day. None ever climbed such hills on high gear. And none ever picked up so quickly.

Those are facts based on official tests. And no car built can successfully dispute them.

So the Super-Six owner, in traffic or on highways, on hills or on levels, feels himself the master of the road.

Why You Should Care

We hear men say, "Well, I don't care. I don't want speed. I don't need that power."

But you do want—don't you?— the best car in your class, when you pay about the price that gets it.

Let the extra capacity remain latent capacity. Keep the speed and the power in reserve.

You can out-distance your rivals without going faster, because of the quick pickup. In traffic and in hill climbing you have less change of gears. Everywhere you get effortless performance. And you rarely tax the motor to half its capacity. That means long life and economy.

80% More Efficiency

The Super-Six invention—patented by Hudson—has added 80 per cent. to this motor's efficiency. It does this by reducing vibration, the cause of motor friction. So it adds just as much to motor smoothness. And it adds just as much to endurance.

Our radical tests—like those cited below—seem to prove that the Super-Six doubles endurance.

The motor is the heart of your car, and the life of it. The leaders of motordom have always led on motors. Why should any man buy a fine car now without demanding that motor supremacy?

14,000 Now Running

More than 14,000 Hudson Super-Sixes are now in the hands of owners. You can anywhere learn how men like them. Parts are ordered or on hand for 31,000 more. So there will be no change in the Super-Six so far as we can see ahead.

By quadrupling our output we are now, for the first time, keeping close to the demand. So fine-car buyers can now get the car they want.

No Feats Like These Ever Before Performed

All made under American Automobile Association supervision by a certified stock car or stock chassis and excelling all former stock cars in these tests.

FOUR TROOPERS NEARING HOME

Great Sendoff For Goodenough, Anderson, Houghton and Williams As They Leave.

ALL HAVE FAMILIES

Life at Douglas Not as Bad as Claimed by Guardsmen—Move to Gain Release of Troopers Cregar and Bird—Flies Still Bothersome.

(By Telegraph to the Daily Press.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 15.—Four Plainfield troopers left here Sunday night for Sea Girt, where they will be discharged and sent immediately to their homes in Plainfield. All gave family wants as causes for making application for releases and each was deeply affected by the send-off given the quartet by other Troop D members as their train pulled out of Douglas. The discharged men are Troopers Arthur T. Goodenough, of 1030 West Front street, Plainfield; Douglas Anderson, 1011 Park avenue, and William Houghton, of New York, and Trumpeter Lewis A. Williams, of 903 Crescent avenue.

All of the men are married. Goodenough is a member of the Plainfield coal firm of Wadley & Goodenough; Houghton is connected with the New York Tribune; Williams is interested in the firm of C. D. Barney & Co. of New York, and Anderson handles marine insurance.

This makes five men who have received discharges from Troop D since it arrived here, Trooper George McGrew being the other one. It was rumored that papers for the release of Trooper John Calder would be issued because of an illness, but he has since recovered and refuses to make application for them. It is known here that steps are under way to secure the release of Troopers Wells Cregar and Richard Bird, both of Plainfield, and petitions are now being circulated in behalf of their wives. Cregar was married only a short time before enlisting and Bird is married and has a small child dependent upon him.

Aside from the five who have already left camp and the two prospects, it is believed that no other Troop D man will quit Douglas until government orders come. All are well and working hard. The fellows have all gotten pretty well used to the climate and have gotten down to the steady grind of regular army life.

Our horses are now rideable after an exciting breaking-in period. The rough riders of the troop had their hands full for several weeks domesticating the beasts, but they now seem to be as well acclimated as the men.

Plainfield troopers, under the direction of Trooper John T. Caulfield, have been building a new mess hall and it was completed yesterday. It is the pride of the camp. We expect to receive a supply of wire netting from home in the near future and will use this to make it flyproof. These pests are thick down here and screening for the sleeping tents as well as the mess tent would be welcome. It costs too much down here and the supply is limited anyway.

Cook William Daniels demonstrated to the rest of the troop the best thing to do with a frisky horse the other day when we went on a hike. Daniels' mount appeared to be bent on throwing him and succeeded admirably. After a couple of falls the cook decided that the troop still needed his services in the culinary department and knowing that the boys were all too nearly "broke" to think about buying flowers of a respectable specie, he decided on leading the unruly animal instead of riding him. It was a long walk back to camp, but Daniels led the equine home.

Our camp has been made pretty comfortable and on the whole we are all enjoying life now. We get furloughs and many of us have visited nearby towns. Trolley service here is good and if you have enough cash you can buy nearly anything you want right in Douglas.

RUNS AUTO INTO PLUG TO DODGE MAN IN STREET

In order to prevent striking a man who failed to hear her horn, Mrs. William H. Clark, of 214 East Ninth street, this morning ran her automobile onto the sidewalk in front of the Depew building. The machine struck a mail box, knocking it from the post, and brought up against a fire plug. No one was injured.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

NARROW CIRCLE AROUND LEMBERG

Russians Press Forward and Take More German Positions.

FRENCH LINES HOLDING

Germans Win Part of Salient, But Are Driven Back—Bulgars Meet Heavy Losses—300 Die On Italian Warship.

London, Aug. 15.—Surging steadily forward in Galicia, advancing across the lower Zlota Lipa toward Halizsh and capturing the town of Tustobaby, the Russians are narrowing the semicircle around Lemberg, according to today's advices.

During the past week the Czar's troops have captured 83,200 men, 1,720 officers, 69 guns and 342 machine guns and bomb throwers, reports from Petrograd say.

General Sakharoff, commanding the Russian right wing in Galicia, has captured the town of Zborov on the Stripa, pushing his lines within forty-nine miles of Lemberg.

Air Raid on Namur.

London, Aug. 15.—An air raid by Allied aeroplanes on Namur, Belgium, has resulted in terrific explosions in the munition factory there, according to a report of a commanding officer of the air squadron.

Italian Sailors Drown.

Paris, Aug. 15.—The Italian battleship Leonardo da Vinci caught fire and after several explosions turned over and sank in the harbor at Taranto, according to a Turin dispatch to the Petit Journal today. About 300 of her crew were drowned.

One of the ship's magazines exploded while efforts were being made to beach her. The blaze is thought to have started in the kitchen.

Bulgarians Lose Heavily.

Paris, Aug. 15.—Refugees from the Lake Doiran area, where the Anglo-French and Serbian forces are attacking the Bulgarians, reached Kilkitch today and asserted that the Bulgarians have suffered heavy losses. The bombardment of the Bulgarian positions was terrific. The populace of the nearby villages have sought refuge behind the Allied lines, where they are being succored by the British and French.

Deny German Statement.

London, Aug. 15.—The British press bureau today controverts the German official statement with regard to the locality where the British torpedo boat destroyer Lassoo was sunk, saying that the sinking occurred "a few miles off the Dutch coast and not in the channel, as the German Admiralty pretends."

It has not been determined whether the destroyer was torpedoed by a submarine or struck a mine. Six of the crew are missing. Two men on board were injured.

Lines Hold on Somme.

Paris, Aug. 15.—German artillery both north and south of the Somme River was very active all night carrying out a vigorous bombardment of British and French positions. French positions south of the Somme were under a particularly heavy fire. Infantry attacks southwest of Peronne the Teutos were successful in penetrating a small salient north of Estrees. French counter assaults ejected the Germans from their freshly gained ground.

Turks Gain Minor Victories.

Berlin, Aug. 15.—Turkish troops have chased the followers of former Emir Vaussein from their entrenchments in Ashar Pass, eighty kilometers south of Medina, says a dispatch given out by the Overseas News Agency.

Sheik Hamid Elmansur has submitted to the Turks.

Drop Bombs on Steamer.

Christiania, Aug. 15.—A dispatch to the Stavenger says that a German Zeppelin which was being chased by British destroyers dropped a score of bombs on the Swedish steamer Norzand. A majority of the bombs missed their target, but slight damage is said to have occurred on the steamer. It is the belief of the correspondent that the Germans in their excitement mistook the nationality of the Norzand.

DOCTORS FIX FEES FOR ALL HEALTH CERTIFICATES

Many communities in the State are complaining to New Jersey Board of Health officials that physicians are "holding up" those who apply for health certificates. Citizens who are forced to pay for a certificate for each child feel that the Health Board is the proper place for an appeal, because its order makes the possession of such a certificate compulsory. The board has no authority, however, and physicians may charge $2 each for certificates if they choose. It is not the spirit of the quarantine laws that such a sum should be charged for certificates, but no price is fixed.

DEMOCRATS "FEEL" FOR TIDE OF VOTE

Keenly Interesting and Enthusiastic Session Held Last Night at Headquarters.

One of the largest gatherings that ever attended a meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club was present last night when the annual election and general discussion of things political were held in the Depew building. So keen was the interest evidenced that it was decided to hold another session while the "iron is hot" next Monday night.

The following officers were selected last night to serve during the ensuing year: President, Richard A. Claybrook; treasurer, Seymour Perkins; secretary, James J. McCann; assistant secretary, Barton Davis. The offices of president and secretary were re-elections and the office of assistant secretary was created last night.

Former Congressman William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, was present at the meeting and delivered an address endorsing Wilson's administration and making a plea for his support at the fall elections. Mr. Tuttle's petition for Congress was also circulated and found many ready signers.

About fifty new members were added to the roster and during the evening the officers and several well known members delivered addresses.

MOVEMENT FOR SMALL BOARD ALLOWED TO DIE

The move for a small Board of Freeholders is dead. Despite the fervent protestations just after the special election and the promises to revive the referendum at the general election in November, the agitation has gradually subsided until now the time limit for filing a petition to have it placed on the ballots has come and gone without the slightest move by its one-time ardent supporters.

According to the law, petitions for the small board referendum must be filed with the county clerk ninety days before the election, which would mean that the limit for such filing this year would be August 9, last Wednesday. As far as can be found, there was not even a single petition in circulation for the referendum since the special election.

The move for a small board of freeholders was started in the spring and petitions were circulated to call a special election on June 13. The agitation was general both for and against the move throughout the county, and the election resulted in the defeat of the referendum in nearly every district in the county. The total vote was light.

One of the arguments used against the move at the time was that the special election was an unnecessary waste of county funds, and that submitting the question at the general election would have served as well. The small board advocates declared that they would bring the matter up at a special election and at the general election also, if necessary.

It is quite probable that during the coming session of the Legislature an act will be passed similar to the Wells act, providing for small boards of freeholders, to be elected under a district plan. The lack of a district plan helped defeat the small board proposition here in June, and if the new law is passed, the move for the smaller body will probably be revived next year and passed in this county without any considerable opposition.

"AMBITION" AT PROCTOR'S FRIDAY OF THIS WEEK

By special arrangement with the Fox Film producers, the management of Proctors' Theatre will present Friday afternoon and night, Bertha Kalisch in the feature photoplay "Ambition." This production has been booked at the special request of the West Front street theatre patrons and will be seen here only for one day. The story is one of intense interest and Miss Kalisch appears in the leading role.

FUNERAL OF HOLMES CLAWSON HELD TODAY

Schoolmates, friend and relatives in large numbers attended the funeral of Augustus Holmes Clawson, held this afternoon at 2:30 from the home of his parents on West Seventh street. The service was in charge of the Rev. Howard E. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church. The floral pieces sent by friends of the young man were numerous and beautiful.

Three members of the Plainfield High School senior class, of which the deceased had been a member, and three members of the Tuckabatchee Bible class of the Congregational church acted as pall-bearers. These were John Hannon, J. Greenleaf, Herbert Peacock, Irving Hand, Alex. Brandt and Frederick Disbrow. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

WATCHUNG HAS A PARALYSIS CASE

Three Year Old Poggio Boy Dies One Hour After a Diagnosis.

NEW YORK IS BLAMED

Carelessness In Issuing Health Certificates There Results In Spread of Disease, Say Residents—Health Board Called For Tonight.

Following the death of Arthur Poggio, 3-year-old son of the proprietor of Poggio's Hotel on Sterling avenue, North Plainefield township, from infantile paralysis this morning, a special meeting of the Board of Health of North Plainfield township has been called for tonight.

It is likely that the board will take some steps toward barring New York certificates of health. It was charged this morning that the carelessness of health officials in New York city has resulted in persons coming to North Plainfield township without proper examination.

The Poggio child has not been allowed to play with other children since the infantile paralysis epidemic started in this section, and has been kept carefully guarded from possible infection. A short time ago a family came from New York to the Poggio Hotel. There were children under 16 in the family, but they carried health certificates issued by the New York Board of Health, and were admitted by health authorities. It is charged by residents of Watchung that no examination was made in these cases, but the inspectors simply asked the children whether or not there had been paralysis in the family.

Dr. Pittis was called to attend the Poggio child this morning. Shortly before 10 a. m. he diagnosed the case as infantile paralysis and within an hour death resulted.

The Watchung Board of Health will meet at 8 p. m. tonight. In the call that was issued at noon today it stated that the meeting is to take action in an "emergency." William De La Roche Anderson, chairman of the township committee, will attend the meeting and arrangements for a strict quarantine will probably be made.

The four children afflicted with infantile paralysis in North Plainfield are doing nicely and have the disease in light form. Thomasina Howell, of Duer street, is improving, as are Harold Apgar and Richard Fairclough, the two youngsters stricken Saturday. The Leach child of Manning avenue, is reported as being on the road to recovery.

Inspector Louis Olliff, of the borough, is acting in accordance with the State regulations regarding health ordinances. He is receiving the earnest co-operation of the North Plainfield police and reports that conditions are good. Warnings have been issued to several residents of the borough regarding the disposal of garbage and refuse. Up to the present time the residents of North Plainfield have acted in accordance with the health code and have done all in their power to assist the authorities in the pursuance of their duty. It is the belief of Inspector Olliff that the end of the hot weather will witness a decrease in the number of paralysis cases in the infected district. Blanks have been received by Mr. Olliff and these will be filled out and signed by him upon request. One of these blank form certifies that a person has not been in the infected district and is entitled to pass through certain regions. There is also a form to be presented by persons who have come into contact with infaantile paralysis cases.

CUBAN TO DETROIT.

The Vancouver club of the Northwestern Baseball League has sold "Jack" Calvo, the Cuban outfielder, to the Detroit Americans. Calvo will finish the present season with San Francisco and report to Detroit in the spring.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

HOW SOLDIERS WILL CAST THEIR VOTES

Secretary of State Martin Issues Instructions For Collecting Border Ballots.

Trenton, Aug. 15.—The regulations under which the 5,000 New Jersey soldiers on the Mexican border will vote at the primary and general elections are contained in the official pamphlet on elections for this year, which was issued yesterday by Secretary of State Thomas Martin. Attorney General Wescott recently rendered an opinion that there was law enough for the National Guardsmen to vote, even though an actual state of war does not exist, as they were formally called out by the President and are now in the service of the Federal Government.

The law under which they will vote is the act of 1898 passed for the benefit of the New Jersey voters who had enlisted in the war against Spain. This act is given in full in the election pamphlet.

It provides that each legal voter in the actual service of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, may empower a legal voter in the district in which the absent voter has a legal vote to vote for him. Each absent voter must make an affidavit that he is a legal voter, naming the district in which he votes. This must be attested by two subscribing witnesses and sworn to before any field officer, captain, adjutant or commander of any regiment, company, battalion or detachment.

The absent voter then prepares and folds his ballot, enclosing it with his affidavit in an envelope duly sealed. On the outside of this envelope there must also be an affidavit of the voter that he is a legal voter, naming the voting district in which he resides, and showing that he is actually in the military service of the United States. This is for the authority of the election officer in receiving the ballot.

R. R. STRIKE IS AS GOOD AS SETTLED

Washington Believes Managers Will Give In To Brotherhoods.

Washington, August 15.—The general opinion in Washington today is that the strike is as good as settled. It is believed that the pressure upon the railroad managers that they yield some essential points of the positions they have taken has brought results. The general opinion is that the railroads will grant the eight-hour day the employes demand and that the brotherhood will waive their demand for fifty per cent. extra pay for overtime. This, however, is only speculation, but the feeling is growing stronger that the strike will be settled before the day is over.

Stops Border Movement.

Washington, August 15.—Because of the threat of a general railroad strike the War Department suspended all troop movements toward the border until further orders.

SIXTY DAYS FOR DRUNKEN AUTOIST, GIRL FINED $10

Rearraigned from yesterday morning, Gordon Trot, who at first gave his name as John Garner, was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail this morning by City Judge William G. De Meza, for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Margaret O'Neil, who was with Trot at the time of his arrest, was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 or serve forty days in the county jail.

The two, who are both colored, were on their way from Newark Sunday afternoon to see relatives on West Fourth street. By the time they reached this city they were both drunk and at West Fourth street and Plainfield avenue the car struck a trolley. The pair were arraigned yesterday morning, but were remanded until today.

ACCUSE PROSECUTOR IN FIGHT FOR STIELOW

Albion, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Grace Humiston, of New York city, who is here in the interest of Charles T. Stielow, declared today that she will perfer charges against District Attorney Knickerbocker, of Orleans county, and apply to a county judge for the rearrest of Irving King, the peddler.

King was discharged from the accusation of murder on the strength of his quick repudiation of his confession to the Phelps crimes for which Stielow was convicted. He was held in jail, however, in default of bail on commitment as a material witness at the special Stielow hearing on August 23.

SECOND WARD REPUBLICAN CLUB URGES CALKINS TO RUN AGAIN, BUT NOT COUNCILMAN HAMILTON

PROHIBITIONISTS SHOW THEIR STRENGTH—THAT THEY WILL MAKE FIGHT IN FOUR WARDS IS INDICATED.

CALL FOR MAYOR CALKINS IS UNANIMOUS

Would Be "Great Misfortune" If He Were to Retire to Private Life Now, Say Those Who Are Familiar With Municipal Affairs—Hamilton Refuses to Say He Would Be Influenced By Sentiment of Voters.

The opening gun of the fall campaign for the election of municipal officers in Plainfield was fired last night when members of the Second Ward Republican Club passed a resolution indorsing the administration of Mayor Leighton Calkins and urging that he again accept the nomination, even at a sacrifice of personal business. A similar resolution addressed to Councilman Christie P. Hamilton failed of passage.

Mr. Hamilton attended the meeting. Opposition to his renomination came from Republicans who favor the election of Prohibition advocates to the four positions that must be filled in the Common Council this fall, and developments of last night indicate that there is an organization already at work to make prohibition an issue in each of the wards that elect in an effort to have all saloon licenses refused when the matter of renewal comes up in the Council next January.

The prohibitionists were willing to indorse the record of Mr. Hamilton during his two years in the Council, but refused to vote for a resolution urging him to run again.

The call for Mr. Calkins was unanimous. A committee of five was named by President Williams to draft suitable resolutions of indorsement of all official acts during the two years he has been in office and to send to him a letter insisting that it is his duty to again accept the nomination. The resolution and letter are to go at once, as Mr. Calkins will not return from Massachusetts until the first of September. Those on this committee are George S. Clay, chairman; J. Henry Crane, William R. Townsend, Harry C. Runyon and Howard Williams. Mr. Williams was nominated for a place on the committee by Mr. Clay.

That it would be a "great public misfortune" if Mayor Calkins were to persist in his determination not to again become a candidate for Mayor was the opinion expressed by many of the influential citizens who attended last night's meeting. President Williams, who presided for the last time after six years as head of the Second Ward Republicans, explained that the purpose of the meeting was to suggest in an informal way candidates for Mayor and Councilmen and he personally declared that there were none in the city who would dare to put forth a candidate for Mayor so long as there was a possibility of Mr. Calkins being persuaded to accept.

Councilman Hamilton told of his friendly and harmonious relation with the Mayor during the past two years. In view of the many important public improvements that have been inaugurated under the Calkins administration and are yet to be finished, he felt that the services of Mr. Calkins would be invaluable to the city during another term. He mentioned the new City Hall, the survey of municipal departments, with its exhaustive report and recommendations for improvements that are to be carried out, the permanent paving of local streets and the improvement of side-walks as matters in which Mr. Calkins is interested and with which he is familiar.

"The people would make a great mistake if they did not demand that he run again," concluded Mr. Hamilton.

Mr. Calkins does not want the nomination, explained J. J. Carroll, city clerk, but that does not mean that he will not accept if it can be forcibly brought to him that the people feel a need for his leadership during the coming two years. Mr. Carroll told of the personal sacrifices

BRIDE OF ENVOY PAGE'S SON DIES; IS VICTIM OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Mrs. Katherine Sutton Page, wife of Frank C. Page and daughter-in-law of Walter Hines Page, Ambassador to Great Britain, died in her home at Garden City, L. I., a victim of infantile paralysis. The case puzzled physicians. Mrs. Page lived in surroundings that were considered ideal and decidedly inimical to the existence of germs, yet she contracted the disease and died within three days. She was 25 years old and a bride of five weeks. Mrs. Page's symptoms were the same as those of the children who have been stricken. With her husband she returned from her honeymoon ten days ago and moved into a new house in Garden City, a residence in which no one had lived before. On several occasions since her return she had been in New York buying furnishings for her new home, and that she might have come in contact with the disease on those occasions is the only explanation that can be offered by physicians. They point out, however, that the places visited by Mrs. Page are known to be cleanly and sanitary, and that no cases of the disease have been found at any of them.

LITERARY

There will probably be a shortage of harvest hands on the great Western wheat farms this year. There was in the year of Charles Moreau Harger's story, "Shanghaied," in the September Scribner. The young college man who got left at a prairie station had some exciting times as foreman of a lot of wandering farm hands.

"The Call of the Mountains," by Le Roy Jeffers, F. R. S., and secretary of the Mountain clubs in the September Scribner, describes the fascination of mountain climbing, and tells of some notable ascents in the Rocky Mountains and in Canada. There are some superb photographs of famous peaks.

Captain X., whose articles have been so widely read, reveals himself in his article on "The Battle of Verdun," in the September Scribner, as Raymond Recouly. He has been in the battle and describes it from the French point of view.

Here are three very different stories in the September Scribner: "Down River," by James B. Connolly, a Mississippi River tale of colored roustabouts and the old half-white problem; Lawrence Perry's "The Landlubber," a yachting story with the cruise of the New York Yacht Club as a basis, a regular sea yarn with all the flavor; and Vesta Tharp's "A Proper Spirit of Regret," about a ragged little chap in a Western public school.

Ernest Peixotto describes the historic and picturesque charm of "The City of the Holy Faith—Santa Fe," in the September Scribner. His new book, "Our Hispanic Southwest," will be published this fall.

The last chapter of E. H. Sothern's "My Remembrances," to appear in a magazine, is in the September Scribner. It deals with some early days. Richard Mansfield, Charles Frohman, who was lost on the Lusitania and some of the great parts Mr. Sothern has most admired.

Randolph S. Bourne's article in the September Scribner on "The Gary Public Schools," with an introduction by the founder, William Wirt, explains the whole system. Mr. Wirt has been paid $10,000 a year to introduce the system in New York.

The first authorized account of the famous Charles L. Freer Collection presented by him to the nation appears in the "Field of Art" in the September Scribner. It is written by Dana H. Carroll, a well-known writer on art subjects, who has assisted Mr. Freer in preparing the catalogue.

LEHIGH VALLEY HAD A PROSPEROUS YEAR

Annual Report Shows Income of $7,666,439.91 For 1916.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, whose sixty-second annual report was made public yesterday, earned a net income of $7,666,439.91 for the year ending June 30, 1916, an increase of $1,343,994.95 over the previous year. Operating revenues for the fiscal year just ended were $47,582,569.40, an increase of $4,856,607.46 over the previous year. Operating expenses were $53,092,977.61, an increase of $3,145,590.07.

Merchandise freight earnings amounted to $20,363,250.65, an increase of $4,357,749.20 and passenger earnings were $4,300,182.81, an increase of $256,383.81. Coal freight earnings were $18,811,099.51, a decrease of $384,655.99, which, it is explained, is due to lower freight rates on anthracite ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission and to a decreased tonnage as a result of unsettled conditions during the negotiations between the miners and the coal companies.

After paying four quarterly dividends of 2½ per cent. each on the common and preferred stocks, amounting to $6,600,800.00 and making various adjustments the profit and loss account of the company on July 1 showed a credit of $23,961,862.93.

Aside from the actual figures the report is a story of a year made busy with important improvements to the railroad company's property—both terminals and rolling and floating equipment. President E. B. Thomas points out that the revenues were the greatest in the history of the company. At the same time he shows that $10,642,896.12 was expended on additions and betterments against $2,974,042.42 for the same account the previous year. In addition $9,364,628.69 was expended for the maintenance of the company's equipment and $4,657,854.14 for the maintenance of way and structures.

SOME OLD GAME THAT WORKED SO WELL HERE

Mineola, L. I., Aug. 15.—It took Stanley Gosky, of Glen Head, L. I., a few minutes to lose $5,000 that it had taken him thirty years to save. He bought a "money-making" machine from a stranger after the latter apparently had made four $1 bills out of two. His confidence had been won when the stranger talked Poland.

Gorsky drew his life's savings from the bank, paid the stranger the modest sum he asked for the machine, gave him the $5,000 to place in the machine properly, and then hurried home to show it to his wife and children.

"It may take a little longer to duplicate such a large sum," the stranger had told him on parting. At the end of forty-eight hours Gorsky's curiosity led him to look into the machine. He discovered that instead of his $5,000 having been doubled it had vanished completely.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Miss Pauline Newman has been nominated for Secretary of State by the Socialist party in New York State.

Lady Sybil Grant, eldest daughter of Lord Rosebery and wife of Col. Grant, of the Coldstream Guards, is running a newspaper for her husband's regiment at the front, telling the news and tidings of the soldiers' wives and families at home. Lady Sybil in peace times is a writer of romances, and has already published several novels.

The third National Service School for Women opens this week at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, under the auspices of the Navy League of the United States. Mrs. Villa Poe Wilson, who was commandant at the first camp, the Chevy Chase one held last May, will have charge. First aid to the injured, preparation of diets for the sick, knitting and plain sewing, signal work, which includes heliographing, wigwagging, cipher study and code work; surgical dressings and military calisthenics will be compulsory courses for all recruits.

Mme. Melba, the famous prima donna, already made very wealthy by her gift of song, inherits a fortune of $215,000 with the recent death of her father, David Mitchell, of Melbourne, Australia, millionaire contractor, whose riches are partitioned among seven children. David Mitchell was a "hard-shell" Scotch Presbyterian, clinging to a horror of the stage, and his gifted daughter began to sing in public only in the face of the bitterest family opposition. The story runs that he succeeded by the use of personal influence in limiting to thirty persons the number of people present at the first concert she gave in Melborune.

Mrs David Lloyd-George, wife of the famous British statesman who has just stepped into Kitchener's shoes as Secretary of State for War, is described as ideally domestic and yet a true intellectual helpmate to her great husband, who says that all his speeches "may be regarded as the joint efforts of the family partnership." It is a fact that any public utterance of moment is first submitted to her approval before delivery. Mrs. George is, like her famous husband, of Welsh birth, and their wedding took place in 1888 in the little chapel of Penoalnwydd, in Wales. The match had long been opposed by her parents, prosperous farmers, who looked with askance upon a fiery young lawyer "of uncomfortable ambitions" as a match for their daughter. Lloyd George is now fond of relating that upon his first visit to the House of Commons he was not at all stirred with boyish ambitions of becoming a member, but kept ruminating as to how he would win Maggie Owen (now Mrs. George) and circumvent her parents' opposition.

OLD TIME PITCHERS

Some of the Former Stars Who Won Fame on the Diamond.

THEIR FEATS OF ENDURANCE.

Spalding All Alone Twirled the Old Boston Nationals to Victory Four Years In Succession — Radbourne's Great Record—Some Sad Finishes.

What becomes of all the great pitchers who thrill the baseball populace for a day? That depends upon the age in which they lived. If a man won his fame in the period from twenty to forty years ago he probably went back penniless to manual labor whence he came, or else he found an early grave. But if he was fortunate enough to make his baseball fame within the last score of years he may still be drawing a good salary from some club treasury. Or he may be enjoying prosperity as a successful business man.

A. G. Spalding was one of the few men who won nation wide fame on the diamond in the earlier period, was absolutely unspoiled by it and then followed it up with even greater fame in the business world. Spalding jumped into the limelight as a seventeen year-old boy with the Rockford (Ill.) club way back in 1867. Talk about the endurance of the modern twirling giants! Just consider what this original iron man did in the early seventies. During that period he was a member of the Boston Nationals and he won the league championship for his team four years in succession. He was Boston's only pitcher, and he twirled every game the team played, though in those days games were scheduled only every other day and the season was shorter than it is now.

Old timers love to dwell on the prowess of Charles Radbourne, who shone with quite as much brilliance as Spalding until consumption cut short his career, about twenty-five years ago. Radbourne was a member of the Providence team, and when Charles Sweeney deserted that club in midseason only Radbourne was left for slab work. But that didn't bother Radbourne, for he not only jumped right in and did all the pitching, but made a new world's record by winning eighteen straight games and the championship for Providence. This gameness, however, cost Radbourne his life, for his health broke under the strain, which was generally credited with having caused his consumption.

From day laborer to the world's premier pitcher and then back again, is, in brief, the history of Amos Rusie, who from 1889 to 1894 thrilled the baseball world. Rusie had a narrow escape from being cast into the utter darkness of oblivion before he could get started. The first day he entered the big league he was weighed by Bancroft, the manager of the Cleveland team, and found wanting. After watching him pitch one game Bancroft let him go. But John T. Brush, owner of the Cincinnati club, had faith in this youngster, gave him his chance, and suddenly the recruit blossomed forth into the greatest pitcher of his day. But prosperity and the applause of the unthinking crowd were too much for Rusie.

Then there were Tim Keefe and John Clarkson, about whose respective merits the fans are still divided. In 1888 Keefe won nineteen straight games for New York, while in 1899 Clarkson pitched seventy-two games for Boston, winning forty-six of them. These two men, whose exploits were heralded from one end of the country to the other, were radically different in temperament. Clarkson utterly ruined his health by not taking proper care of himself and died in an insane asylum. But Tim Keefe retired with money in the bank.

Probably more printers' ink was used to tell of the exploits of the eccentric Rube Waddell than any other baseball player that ever lived. Rube was always good for a story, no matter what he did. On the diamond this man was forever breaking records, first in jumping from one team to another and then by making new strikeout records. Probably his greatest feat was when he called in all the outfielders and then retired the side in order. But consumption finished his broken down constitution.

Cy Young belongs to a different school of pitchers. He was a shining example of baseball longevity founded upon clean living. This marvelous man, who broke into major league baseball in 1890, pitched every season for twenty-two years, a record still unequaled.—Philadelphia Ledger.

REVENUE BILL APPROVED.

THREE DEAD IN COLLISION.

Pittsburgh, August 15.—Three trainmen were killed, three seriously injured, and four slightly hurt when two heavy freight trains, each drawn by two engines, come together in a head-on collision on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Vance, Pa., early today.

CUBAN POLITICIANS KILLED.

Havana, Aug. 15.—Two Liberals and one Conservative were shot dead and two Liberals and one Conservative were wounded in a fight after a political meeting at Marguito on Sunday night.

The two dogs in the above pictures have been capturing prizes in all A. K. C. Shows in the East and it is highly probable that they will be entered in the local show.

BATTING AVERAGES OF LEAGUE CHAMPIONS SHOW THAT NETHERWOOD BOYS HIT

Matty Coughlan and Brother, Eddie, Lead Team With Stick—Eddie Hannon Registers Long Hits—The Official Averages.

The Netherwood team, champions of the City League for the second successive season, has an official scorer who is alert and who, taking the hint from the Baptist scorer, has compiled the team's batting average for the season just passed. The results show that Matty Coughlan leads the team with the willow, having an average of .444. However, his brother, Eddie, the demon slugger of the city, has been clouting the ball at a .343 clip. Eddie played in all the seventeen games and can be considered the champion clouter of the team.

Eddie Hannon, the Dunellen and Bound Brook wizard, is leading the team in long hits, having eight doubles and two triples to his credit. The Coughlan brothers are second in this respect, with eight doubles and one triple each.

The averages as compiled by the Netherwood official scorer follow:

SHOWER PRAISE ON CARROLL, "ERIE" MAN

Pitcher, Who Has Performed Here, Highly Respected By Newark Batters.

The following clipping may be of interest to the Tabs, who have met the Eries on several occasions:

"To Carroll, the young twirler who is setting a fast pace in semi-pro company, belongs the lion's share of the glory in the victory of the Eries of Kearny over the Nutley club Saturday afternoon at Nutley. Carroll was master of the situation at all times. He allowed five hits, fanned eight and won his game, 9 to 3. To appreciate this performance, it is necessary to go back to a week ago yesterday, when the Nutley contingent routed both the Speedways and Meadowbrooks.

"Carroll's team-mates were good to him. They solved Nichols early in the game, and in the second inning punched him full of holes. The Eries staged another batting rally in the eighth, putting the game on ice. Carroll incidentally collected two hits."

30 YEAR OLD PUPIL RUNS AWAY FROM SCHOOL

Dr. Maximilian Groszmann reported to the police today that Conrad Grisman, aged 30, had escaped from the Groszmann school near Watchung. Dr. Groszmann says the man's face is distorted as if in pain. Although the doctor denies that it is true, he says the man will probably complain to whoever he meets that he has been mistreated at the school.

JAPANESE TENNIS STAR WINS FROM J. S. O'NEILL

The invitation lawn tennis tournament at the Newport Casino opened yesterday with the best of weather conditions and an entry list which included the majority of the players from the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and the two Japanese, I. Kumagae and M. Mikami. There were no upsets in the day's matches, the leading players generally having little difficulty in defeating their opponents.

The feature contest between Kumagae and J. S. O'Neill, of Columbia University, did not develop any spectacular tennis, although the Japanese made a number of excellent places and there were a few long rallies. Both played the back court game, Kumagae coming up to the net more frequently. Neither was altogether accurate, a majority of the points being made on outs or nets. Not a single point was made on service and each player made a number of double faults. Kumagae won by 6—1, 6—3, 6—3.

PIRATES ISSUE CALL.

Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburg National League baseball club, announced today the purchase of "Jack" Scott, a pitcher, from the Macon South Atlantic League club, and the release of Paul Carpenter, a pitcher, to the Charlotte club, of the same league. The Pirates have also recalled Oltenburg, an outfielder; Blackwell, a catcher; Cleveland, an infielder, and Douglas, a pitcher, from the Wheeling club; Hill, a pitcher, and McAuley and Siglin, infielders, of the Rochester International League club; Madden, an infielder, of the Syracuse club; Smith, an infielder, of the Toronto International League club, and William Wagner, a catcher, of the Terre Haute Central League club.

MURPHY LEAGUE OF BUSINESS MEN

New Organization Is at Work Trying to Influence Votes of Workers.

The "New Jersey Manufacturers and Business Men's League" is the name assumed by the men who met at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, last month, to organize for the purpose of increasing the number of business men in Congress, and at the initial meeting approved the candidacy of Franklin Murphy for the United States Senate. The league has greatly increased its membership since it was formed and its members are taking an active interest in the Senatorial and various Congressional district contests. Letters are being sent to manufacturers, merchants and other business men, all over the State, and those who are in sympathy with the movement are asked to sign enrollment blanks which are enclosed.

A TOY STRIKE, BUT A REAL ONE.

The toymakers of New York laid down their tools recently and went on strike. They demanded shorter hours, larger luncheon time, recognition of the union, and more pay. The thirty or forty shop owners have formed an association and say they will not grant the union demands, which they claim are impossible. About 1,800 workers of the 2,000 in the industry are on strike. The toymakers of Germany are now too busy to worry over wax faces or hemp wigs, and the whole world of children is practically dependent upon the toy industry of the United States. The diffferences might well be submitted to Santa Claus.—The Christian Herald.

The Review of Reviews, of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land —well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

COLGATE TO RESIGN FROM THE SENATE

Will Get Out Before August 26, So Candidates Can Go After Job.

Newark, Aug. 15.—Austen Colgate will resign from the State Senate before August 26, the last day for filing of petitions of candidates seeking primary nominations. Mr. Colgate so announced yesterday, upon receiving a letter from Edmund B. Osborne, reminding him that if he did not resign before that date the county committee, and not the Republican voters, would pick the regular Republican nominee for his place in the upper house of the Legislature. Of course, the way would be still open to any who pleased to be nominated by petition.

Commenting on the Osborne letter, Mr. Colgate said he would relinquish his legislative membership in ample time to permit candidates to seek the nomination for the Senatorship. Assemblyman W. Clive Crosby will be the Republican organization choice for the place. The Republicans who follow George L. Record and Mr. Osborne will have a candidate for the nomination on a local option platform.

"I had intended to resign before now," said Mr. Colgate yesterday, "but Governor Fielder asked me not to do so, in view of the possibility of an extra session of the Legislature. I shall see the Governor as soon as possible, and, if he does not wish me to withhold my resignation longer, I shall send it in at once. Under any circumstances I shall resign in ample time to permit nominations to be made in the primaries. I shall so reply to Mr. Osborne, to whom I am much obliged for taking so kindly an interest in my political welfare."

URGE CALKINS TO RUN AGAIN

that the Mayor has made in attending every Council meeting, and said that to fail to re-elect him would be a most unfortunate thing for the city.

City Collector William R. Townsend has seen mayors come and mayors go and therefore felt that he was qualified to discuss their merits. "No Mayor has worked harder or accomplished more for the good of Plainfield than Leighton Calkins," declared Mr. Townsend. "We need him in there two years more."

George S. Clay, former president of the Common Council, was another who had been officially intimate with the present Mayor as a member of the municipal family and he bore witness to loyalty, efficiency and intelligence of his friend. "It would be a great misfortune to lose him now," said Mr. Clay.

Similar expressions were heard from others present, after which the special committee was appointed to take action toward securing the consent of Mr. Calkins to the placing of his name on the ballot.

The meeting was held in the Bryant School. President Williams asked that he not be considered a candidate in the annual election of officers, as he has served since the club was organized and before that as chairman of the old Second Ward Republican organization, and he suggested George S. Clay for the presidency. Mr. Townsend put Mr. Clay in nomination and he was unanimously elected. J. Henry Crane was elected secretary and treasurer and the following vice-chairmen for the four districts were re-elected: Arthur Lovell, First district; J. H. Case, Second district, F. B. Dorman; Third district; W. W. Corlell, Fourth district.

Prohibitionists to Have Majority.

While there were more than twenty men at the meeting, only thirteen proved to be members of the club when a vote was taken, and seven of this number were in favor of barring the saloons from Plainfield, at least their vote on the Hamilton resolution indicated prohibition tendencies.

After the question of a candidate for Mayor was disposed of, President Williams explained that another matter to be decided last night was that of a representative in the Common Council from the Second ward. Mr. Hamilton had represented the ward faithfully and efficiently, he said, but really did not want to run for re-election. Mr. Williams said that the first time he approached the Councilman on the matter he met with a flat refusal, but that a second conversation brought something near a promise to accept if it was shown that his presence in the Council was needed for another two years.

Mr. Clay declared that Mr. Hamilton was a valuable member of the Council, and that in view of the many important matters pending before that body with which he was familiar it would be a pity to lose him now. He felt that it was the duty of Mr. Hamilton to bow to the wishes of his constituency and serve another term.

"My work is congenial enough," said Councilman Hamilton, when he was called to his feet, "and I get along very well with most of the members of the Council, but not with some of them. I am interested enough in the work, but feel that there are many men in the ward better qualified, and I would rather some one else should make the sacrifice for the coming two years."

Mr. Hamilton in discussing his attitude toward city affairs, criticized the management of the fire department. He said this department was poorly run, and that it had made little progress. "The men are all right," he said. "There is good material there, but they do not get the right training."

His acceptance of the nomination for re-election was made conditional upon the acceptance of Mr. Calkins. He said that if Mayor Calkins went back and felt that his experience would be of benefit during the next two years, he would be glad to serve, but that he would not consider the nomination for a minute under any other circumstances.

"We'll wait and see what my wife says and what the Mayor says," he told the club members, when an effort was made to indorse him for another term.

President Williams said that he knew of a desire on the part of Mayor Calkins to have Mr. Hamilton back in the Council if he should accept the nomination for Mayor.

Collector Townsend said that it would be a serious mistake to leave out any member of the present body with the many important matters that are to come up during the next two years, and George B. Zimmer was anxious to see him re-elected.

Mayor Was Misquoted.

During a discussion of the attitude of Mayor Calkins here Mr. Carrol explained that the Mayor had been misquoted in one of the local papers. The first interview was the only authentic one, he said. That was in the Daily Press. The second statement concerning his candidacy credited to Mayor Calkins, in which he said he would not be a candidate under any circumstances was not true, said Mr. Carroll. Mr. Calkins was out of the city when this interview was printed.

Mr. Clay then made a motion that the club indorse the work done by Mr. Hamilton within the past two years and ask him to become a candidate for re-election.

About this time Collector William R. Townsend and a bat came near putting an end to the meeting. The bat, being blind, was attracted to the meeting and flew around over the heads of the members for several minutes. Mr. Townsend threw his cap at the winged beast. He missed and the cap went sailing out a second story window into the darkness of the school yard. He got it later.

While the resolution was open for discussion, A. N. Neilsen, of Watchung avenue, arose to ask Mr. Hamilton a question. He wanted to know if the councilman would be in favor of doing away with open saloons in Plainfield if it were proven that sentiment among the voters of the ward was in favor of this, and, if so, in what form he would want this sentiment expressed.

Mr. Hamilton's answer was frank. He said he had been a member of the license committee and had made an inspection of all the saloons in Plainfield. He saw little drunkenness, he said, and found that the law was enforced here. Mr. Hamilton said that while he was for prohibition as a national issue, he would never be a prohibition candidate in this town.

"Nearly every man in this town who says he is for temperance is not entirely sincere," said Mr. Hamilton. "You visit him at his house and he will give you a drink. I am not for one law for one class of people and another for a different class." He said that if the saloons were closed in Plainfield the man who had money enough to buy in New York would always have his whiskey, while the poor man would be forced to do without. Mr. Neilsen later attempted to have him withdraw, or at least modify, his statement that most temperance advocates were hypocrites, but he never did.

"If you want the saloons closed," Council man Hamilton told Mr. Neilsen, "start out yourself. Get elected and close them up."

He said he advocated playing safe with regulated saloons. The sentiment to close them up isn't here, he insisted, and until a majority of the people are behind a prohibition movement there will be no bootleggers and violations of the law in other ways. When he was again asked directly whether or not he would vote for eliminating the saloons if it were shown to his satisfaction that sentiment in his ward was in favor of it, he said that he "didn't believe it would be best for Plainfield to close the saloons."

"I cannot vote for the resolution," Mr. Neilsen announced after this statement. "Suppose we were to take a petition signed by 100 or even 200 Republican voters of this ward to Mr. Hamilton urging him to vote against the saloon. He would say no. I can't indorse that kind of a man."

The question of Mr. Neilsen was unfair to Councilman Hamilton, in the opinion of Mr. Clay. If there is a sentiment in the city in favor of prohibition it should be expressed through election, he said. He is not in favor of closing the saloons, and said he only heard of prohibitionists once a year, when it came time for the Common Council to renew saloon licenses.

John H. Doane explained that he wanted to vote for Mr. Hamilton but that he could not after the defiant attitude toward prohibition.

Secretary J. Henry Crane took issue with Mr. Clay as to the fairness of the question put by Mr. Neilsen. It was a fair question, he said, and he read from the misutes to insure a clear understanding of the query. Mr. Hamilton't attitude toward prohibition sentiment, as he understood it, was "sentiment be damned," and Mr. Crane refused to vote for the resolution asking him to run again.

In the course of Mr. Hamilton's answer to Mr. Neilsen he said that he would rather the ward put out a candidate on a dry ticket, and Henry Manning agreed with him. "We ought to have a man who will stand out for prohibition," Mr. Manning said.

Adjourn Without Action.

Harry C. Runyon also agreed that it was a fair question to put to a prospective candidate, but he did not favor absolute prohibition for Plainfield." There is no reason for saloons in the city of Plainfield," said Mr Runyon, "but there are reasons why the hotels should be allowed to sell whiskey."

When a vote was taken on the original resolution the ayes were very strong and the nays were weak, after which President Williams justly announced the motion carried, but Mr Doane called for a standing vote. There were six for the request that Mr. Hamilton run again. Among them were Mr. Townsend, Mr. Clay and Mr. Runyon. Seven votes against the resolution included Mr. Neilsen, Mr. Doane, Mr. Crane and Mr. Manning.

"I am glad you have decided the question for me," said Councilman Hamilton, laughingly. "I hope you will get a man to carry out your wishes. If I go to the Council I want to go down there free."

In an effort to pour oil on the troubled waters Mr. Williams suggested that Mr. Hamilton had been misunderstood. He was an ardent prohibitionist, he said, because he knew the distress caused by the drinking of whiskey through his association with local charity organizations but he could not see that the question put to Mr. Hamilton was purely one of prohibition. He believed that if the sentiment of the ward was shown to be in favor of closing the saloons Councilman Hamilton would vote that way, but Mr. Hamilton himself corrected him, and a motion to adjourn was carried without action being taken on a candidate for Councilman.

SPONSONS ARE LATEST.

May Be Feature of Future Submarine Craft.

A new turn in submarine construction which is said to promise greater safety for the crew is the development of the sponson. Steel sponsons may be made a feature of future models of underwater craft.

They will make the submarine ride higher when she is sailing on the surface and as a result are expected to make her a more effective platform for gunfire.

High riding would also help in loading and unloading and add to the comfort of the crew. It is not expected that the addition of sponsons would materially diminish the speed of a submarine so equipped.

SECOND WARD LEADS THE WAY.

Republicans of the Second Ward have made the first move in what should be a united effort to urge Leighton Calkins to again become a candidate for the nomination for Mayor of Plainfield. When such men as George S. Clay, William R. Townsend, John J. Carroll and Christie J. Hamilton, all of whom are familiar with the management of the city, declare that it would be a "great misfortune" for the city at large if a public official should fail to accept a second term and all the people should be interested. They know what Mayor Calkins has done. They know of the time he has given to the duties of the office, of the long nights he has spent at the city hall attending committee meetings, Council meetings and conferences; of the work that he has been given, the letters and personal tours that have been gone into, investigations leading to a better understanding of the needs of the city, and of the improvements he has planned. If these men who have worked with him and under him during the past two years feel that Plainfield needs him, how then should the ordinary voter, who is so far away from the real government, view his candidacy? Every voters' organization in the city, irrespective of politics, should follow the lead of the Second Ward Republican Club and send a request that Mr. Calkins consent to accept the nomination for a second term.

MONEY FOR CLOSED SCHOOLS.

Apprehension has been caused in some communities of the State that if the schools should be closed for a time on account of the epidemic of infantile paralysis, there would be a heavy loss to the districts because the school moneys are apportioned on the basis of the average days' attendance by the pupils, says the Newark News.

This apprehension, however, is based on a misconception, for a law to meet the threatened condition was passed by the Legislature of 1912. The law provides that "if a school in any district shall, on account of contagious disease, destruction of the school house by fire or otherwise, or for other good reason, be closed, for the purpose of this apportionment such school shall be deemed to have been in session, and the total days' attendance upon such school for the time it shall have been closed as aforesaid shall be determined by dividing the actual days' attendance of the pupils enrolled in such school by the number of days it shall have actually been in session, and multiplying the quotient by the number of school days such school shall have been closed."

There is no need to worry over the closing of the schools, if found desirable, on the financial end of the transaction. No district will lose by such closing.

THE DEADLY THIRD DEGREE.

After snatching Stielow from the death chair by an eleventh hour confession, King, the peddler, has now repudiated his life-saving statement and denies his guilt. The repudiation came after he had been put through the tortures of the "third degree." Detective Newton, the same who forced a confession from Stielow, was in charge of the squad that forced King to "switch" again yesterday, and New York does not know who or what to believe. The people had been warned against Newton. They were told that his brutal methods would force King to make any statement that was wanted. If Stielow is guilty, Newton knows it. If he has drawn a lie from the lips of King, the State should know it. Perhaps Detective Newton would make some startling disclosures if the "third degree" were tried on him. He is a firm believer in its efficiency. Why not see what he would tell after a few hours in the sweat-box and a real man-handling by the strong-arm squad.

There is no need for alarm over the discovery of seven new cases of infantile paralysis in the Plainfield section over the week-end. Only two of the cases were in Plainfield proper, and two in North Plainfield. One little town in upper New York, with no commuters and little direct communication with the outside, had more cases in a single day last week, and still its residents do not refer to the paralysis situation as a plague. Plainfield has been more fortunate than other communities so closely connected to New York, and so long as the local Board of Health continues in its efficient efforts to prevent contagion there will be no general epidemic here.

Sufficient publicity has been given the new order of the State Board of Health to make it familiar to every person in all of New Jersey. Those who are put to discomfort because of its requirements deserve no sympathy.

- Proctor's Theatre -

The story of Nan Cartright, a Southern girl who becomes a schoolteacher in a small Western town, is told in "The Little School Ma'am," the new Triangle play, starring Dorothy Gish, which is to be seen at Proctor's today. There is only one grade in the school, which contains children of all ages and sizes. The little teacher mothers them all, but outside of school hours she is very lonely. Her life is made still more unhappy by malicious gossips who resent her "Southern airs" and spend their time spying upon her in the little boarding house where she lives. One evening she goes alone to the brook, to have a good cry and is found there by Howard, a young playwright from here native State, who is visiting in the village. He attempts to offer here his sympathy, and she accepts him as a friend. Before long there is more than a friendship, and Howard becomes a frequent visitor at the school house, where the children take a great fancy to him. Of course, the scandal mongers soon find in Howard's calls at the school an opportunity to say unkind things about the girl. For a time she pays no heed, but one evening, when she has gone for a drive with Howard, their horse runs away, and the two are thrown out. It takes them until morning to find their way home in the dark, and the school board soon afterward requests the teacher's resignation. This leads to a stirring series of events and an interesting climax. The supporting cast includes Elmer Clifton and twenty little Triangle kiddies. Today also, a famous Keystone comedy provides thirty minutes of hilarity and the 16th episode of "The Secret of the Submarine" is also shown.

Tomorrow William Fox offers Virginia Pearson in a vehicle admirably suited to her ability, entitled "A Tortured Heart," in which she is supported by a splendid cast, including the polished villain, Stuart Holmes.

Miss Hornidge continues to evoke much applause at each performance and here rendition of the film song hits of the day is a popular innovation among local amusement seekers.

On the Spur of the Moment

Let 'Em Talk.

If a feller stays at home, everybody says he's henpecked;
That he's a mollycoddle with no soul to call his own.
If a feller stays out nights, everybody says he's sporty.
That his wife had ought to quit him and let him go on alone.
If a feller does his worst, all the gossips jump upon him.
And they criticise him, too, if he tries to walk the chalk.
'Bout the only thing to do is to do just what you want to;
Just be natural and then let the doggone critters talk.

Gaining a Fortune.

A short time ago I noticed an advertisement in one of the 15-cent magazines which interested me. It read:

"SEND US ONE DOLLAR and we will tell you how to amass a great fortune."

The more I read the advertisement the more it was impressed upon me that this was just what I wanted to do. I had done almost everything else in my life and amassing a fortune would be a new experience to me. I imagined that it would be a pleasant experience as several of my neighbors who had amassed fortunes seemed to be enjoying life.

My wife had often told me that I should amass a great fortune and this magazine advertisement happened along just at the psychological moment. I wasn't doing anything else at the time and I felt I could expend a little energy on this matter without having it detract from my other business affairs. Amassing a great fortune! Strange, indeed, that I never had thought of it until I read the magazine advertisement.

I sent the dollar and broke the news to my wife. "We are about to amass a great fortune," said I. "Of course, it will change our social status to some extent. We will move in the six-cylinder set, whereas heretofore we have been in the runabout class."

Of course my wife went out immediately and blew $400 for clothes and I placed a mortgage on the house and bought a larger automobile than the peanut roaster which we had before we thought of amassing a great fortune.

In due time we received a letter from the firm which had advertised in the magazine. The letter read: "Dear Sir: We said we would tell you how to amass a great fortune. The way to amass a great fortune is to make a great deal of money and hang onto it."

A Blighted Romance.

It was long ago I met her.
Gosh! I never will forget her.
She was pretty,
She was witty,
And a vision, on the dead.
But she turned me down completely
And informed me very sweetly
That another
Lovelorn brother
Was the one that she would wed.
Then I thought of suiciding
And for days I kept in hiding.
I was crazy,
I was hazy,
And the world was nought to me.
But before I pulled the trigger,
I just started in to figger
I would linger
Till the finger
Of old Fate was kind to me.
Now I'm glad I didn't get her,
And I'm very glad I let her
Wed the other
Lovelorn brother,
Though the sentiment sounds mean
For she now is suffragetting
And her husband is just getting O'er a fracture
So they tell me
Where she soaked him on the bean.

It Makes a Lot of 'Em.

MISS SKYROCKET WHEAT, THE CATCH OF THE SEASON

ST. MARY'S T. A. B. SOCIETY IS 44 YEARS OLD--TWO CHARTER MEMBERS STILL ACTIVE

(By Joseph A. Gallagher.)

At the regular monthly meeting of St. Mary's Total Abstinence Benevolence Society held in the T. A. B. S. Hall last evening a report from the two delegates to the annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America was heard. The report was made by Michael O'Keefe, who, with Francis Donnelly, was the elected delegate of the local society. In addition to reading an account of the history of the organization, Mr. O'Keefe gave a pleasing address in which he cited many instances and occurrences that had happened while he was in Washington, where the convention was held on August 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, was one of the speakers at the convention and his strong support of temperance was greeted with much applause. Mr. Daniels said in part:

"The example of the crowned heads of Europe, great admirals and generals, who, because they feel the necessity of cool heads and steady nerves, have joined the ranks of the total abstainers gives a mighty impulse to your own and all like organizations seeking the only way to the highest efficiency in peace and war."

A statement to the public was issued by the executive council and is as follows: "In view of false and misleading statements frequently made regarding the attitude of the Roman Catholic church regarding the use of and traffic in intoxicating liquors we call attention to the formal and official utterance of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, in which the faithful are solemnly warned against the many dangers incident to the use of intoxicating beverages and those engaged in the sale of intoxicants are exhorted to choose a more appropriate way of making a living." The speakers at the convention were introduced by William H. De Lacy, former judge of the Juvenile Court. The more important speakers were Dr. William J. Kerby, professor of sociology in the Catholic University; J. Washington Logue, formerly Congressman from Philadelphia, and the Rt. Rev. J. Regis Canevin, Bishop of Pittsburg.

There were 800 delegates at the convention, representing about 60,000 members of T. A. B. S. organizations. About two hundred of these delegates were women, who represented the various auxiliaries. There were eight Sioux Indians from the Blackfeet reservation present at the gathering. These Indians wore their tribal outfit, although each one is a college graduate. The fact that there are temperance organizations among the Indians, who are generally thought of as being very fond of liquor, speaks well for the wide range of the work being done by the Catholic Temperance Union.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Rev. John G. Bean, of Pittsburg (Very Rev. P. J. O'Callaghan is the retiring president); first vice-president, Rev. L. J. Kane, of Scranton; second vice-president, J. E. Dougherty, of Philadelphia; third vice-president, Mrs. Thomas J. Hackett; treasurer, Rev. Morris J. O'Connor, and secretary, Thomas G. McCloskey, of Connecticut.

Regarding the report submitted by the local delegates, much favorable comment was heard and the local delegates felt proud of their organization. The report, exactly as read in Washington, follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Brother Delegates of the C. T. A. U. of A.:

"Since this is the first occasion upon which St. Mary's T. A. B. Society of Plainfield, N. J., has been represented at the annual convention and because of the rapid growth, work done and financial success of our branch, a brief outline from the time of organization in 1872 up to the present time cannot but be of interest to the delegates. We feel justly proud in presenting the following:

"St. Mary's T. A. B. Society was organized on May 19, 1872, only two years later than the National Union itself. There were nineteen charter members, two of whom are still living, Mr. John Walsh and Mr. John Barry. Both these men are in good health and are still active and interested members. Mr. Walsh has been on the executive committee for the entire forty-four years. The society was organized by the late Father John Morris, then pastor, while the pledge was administered by Mgr. Patrick Cody, now pastor of St. James' church, Newark, N. J.

During the society's forty-four years of activity but nineteen of its members have died. This fact alone is a strong proof of the physical value of total abstinence.

"The society also undertakes to give financial benefits to its members. The death benefit is $60 to the family of the deceased. During illness $3 a week is given.

"We attribute much of our success to the active part always taken in church affairs. Every year in May a Vesper service is held. This year we had as our speaker the Rev. Father Walter J. Shanley, of Danbury, Conn. A gold medal is given to the parochial school every June. We have always been ably advised and helped by our spiritual adviser, the Rev. B. M. Bogan, who has been the chaplain for the past twelve years.

In the field of athletic sports our society has been well represented by a baseball and a basketball team. These teams always render a good account of themselves and are enthusiastically supported. A fife and drum corps composed entirely of T. A. B. S. members has been in existence for a number of years and is often heard upon the streets of Plainfield and has been in nearly every large city in the State.

"An adjunct of the society is the St. Mary's Social Club, organized recently and composed of the young ladies of the parish. The social club takes part in all entertainments, such as fairs, dances, euchres and theatricals. The members also take a deep interest in bowling and pool. All these affairs tend to keep the members together and to interest new ones.

"We are equipped with a splendid clubhouse, thorough modern in every way. It was formerly the parish church, which was purchased by us, remodeled and enlarged to suit its new purpose. It is equipped with everything a clubhouse needs, such as bowling alleys, pool table, dance hall, basketball court, card rooms, stage, dressing room, shower baths, and a well appointed kitchen.

"Although our membership was small at first, being only nineteen at the start, it is rapidly increasing until now there are nearly two hundred members. During the forty-four years we have expended over $40,000. From a bazaar held in the hall last winter we realized $1,200.

"From an organization which until recently had an initiation fee of only $1 and monthly dues of 25 cents this is none other than remarkable.

"But the distinction of which we are the most proud is not the financial one, but the practical Catholicity and the well standing in the community of the members."

During the course of their stay in the capital city the local men were given an opportunity to view the sights and to get a glimpse of the inside workings of the government. The Hotel Raleigh was the headquarters of the delegation and the extensive program arranged by the committee in charge included addresses by many of the most prominent citizens of the United States.

The local organization is the only New Jersey T. A. B. society that is a member of the National Union. There are many temperance organizations in this State, but the local branch is the only one registered as a member of the Union. A committee, of which Michael O'Keefe was made a member, was appointed to try to bring about the entrance of the other organizations into the National Union. In Elizabeth there is a very successful organization, but it is not a member of the National Union.

At the meeting last evening a communication from the Father Mathew T. A. B. Society of Elizabeth was read. This communication urged that the local society start a campaign for new members. In Elizabeth there has been inaugurated a campaign to obtain a membership of 1,000. Acting according to the suggestion offered by the Elizabeth organization, the president of the local society appointed a committee to form plans for the conducting of such a campaign in this city. James Scott was made chairman of the committee, the other members being John Willis, Daniel Guinee, Rufus Larew, John J. V. Powelson and Joseph Gallagher. Plans for the coming campaign will be discussed at a meeting to be held in the near future.

ANGER OVER GO-TO-CHURCH ORDER HAS DIED DOWN

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 14.—The excitement over the incident in the Fourth Regiment last Sunday, when the troops were ordered to attend church and many of them attended against their wishes, has quieted down, and will not lead to further developments. Rumor that Chaplain Hare will be asked for his resignation is given less credence every day. Colonel Vickers has stated that the whole mix-up was due to a misunderstanding of his wishes in the matter, it having been his only desire to have the men attend church and give the chaplain an encouraging turnout on the occasion of the first regimental church service. He attributes the whole upheaval and subsequent publicity to the impetuosity of one of the "wildcat" newspapermen that infest the encampment.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN TELLS YOU HOW TO PREVENT DROWNING; LEARN HOW TO RESCUE

If You Remember Her Instructions Accidents or Fatalities Will Be IMPOSSIBLE—Hold Your Breath, Float and Remain As Still As Possible.

Article No. 13.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

I wish to write today about how to prevent drowning. Therefore I am delaying replies I told you yesterday I would make in this article.

I will first speak to the person who is to be saved, for it is he that can do more than his rescuer. That is, if the drowning person keeps his wits about him or her and does not go mad with fright.

I am now talking to all of you. There are over three-quarters of a million members of this organization who read my articles carefully. I consider this article and tomorrow's the most important of them all. I want you all to read and remember them, so that should you find yourselves in a like position you will know what to do.

The reason why I attach so much importance to the person who is drowning is this: In nine cases out of ten a person struggling in the water can and does drag down to a watery grave his would-be rescuer, no matter how good a swimmer the latter may be.

Now read carefully: Should you find yourself in danger of drowning, shout for help, then close your mouth and keep it closed. Do not let the fact that you are sinking below the surface of the water frighten you for you will come up again.

Watch your breathing and remain still for then you must float. Even if you cannot swim you will have a good chance of being rescued for you will have been sighted and help will arrive shortly.

Try hard not to lose your nerve and do not struggle. Remember that aid is coming and your rescuer must be able to approach you easily. Listen for his or her voice and remain still and your rescue will be only a matter of time.

Of course, there are a lot of you who could not control your feelings and would struggle and shout to the last breath. To those I appeal in another manner. If you must "carry on," please try to control yourself when your rescuer comes in sight. Don't grab him or her as though they were logs of wood.

The one great sceret of floating when you feel yourself drowning is to remain as still as possible. In a way this article covers what I have stated before in my floating article, still there are a great many to whom this article should appeal.

If when you find yourself in so unfortunate a position as drowning do as I have just said.

Don't try to strike out with the hands. Keep them at your side and try hard to keep the mouth ond nose out of the water.

Almost any person will be able to do this long enough to be rescued. Even if you cannot swim a stroke.

Tomorrow—Confidence—the greatest asset to swimmers. Miss Kellermann tells you how self-confidence in the water adds to your skill and to the grace and perfection of your swimming.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Youngest Mermaid Has a Fifteenth Birthday.

Each Petal of the Lilies Was Half a Pearl.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WHAT daddy told for the children's bedtime story was a sea tale: "Beautiful evenings five mermaid sisters used to link arms and rise to the top of the water. But their baby sister always had to stay behind, looking after them as if she would cry. Only mermaids have no tears, you children must know, so they suffer much more than mortals who can weep.

"'Oh, if I were only fifteen!' she used to sigh. 'I know how I shall love the world above and the mortals who live there!'

"At last her fifteenth birthday came.

"'Now we shall have you off our hands, always sighing to visit the earth!' cried her old grandmother, the dowager queen of the sea.

"So the old lady put a wreath of white lilies around the little mermaid's hair, but each petal of the lilies was half a pearl. Then the old grandmother had a crab fix eight oysters on to the princess' tail to show what high rank she was.

"'But it hurts so!' cried the little princess mermaid.

"'Never mind. You must bear the hurt for the sake of the finery,' answered her grandmother.

"But the little mermaid would gladly have shaken off the wreath and laid aside all the splendor of being a princess. The red flowers in her garden pleased her much better, but she did not dare displease her grandmother.

"'Goodby!' she at last cried. And she mounted the water as lightly and airily as a bubble.

"The sun had just set when her beautiful head rose above water. But the clouds were still lighted up with a rosy and golden splendor, and the evening star twinkled in the soft pink sky. The air was mild and fresh and the sea as quiet as a millpond.

"Close beside the little mermaid a big three masted ship lay with only a single sail set, for there was not a breath of wind, and the sailors were sitting about the rigging, on the crosstrees and at the mast heads. There were music and singing on board, and as the night fell hundreds of gayly colored lanterns were lighted. They looked like the flags of all nations waving in the air.

"Of course the little mermaid swam right up to the cabin windows. Every time an ocean swell lifted her she could look through the window panes and see crowds of gayly dressed people. But the handsomest of them all was a young prince with large dark eyes who was celebrating his sixteenth birthday," daddy finished.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel Is Confronted With the Task of Getting a Meal Alone.

"You have done so well that I am going to go away and leave you to get the dinner all by yourself today." Mrs. Morton smiled at Ethel over her glasses. "It is one thing to cook with me right here to tell you when everything is just right, and to decide all knotty questions, and another to do it alone. But you will never really grow independent till all props are removed and you carry the entire responsibility."

"I am afraid I will make a miserable fizzle of it if I am left alone." There was a note of worry in Ethel's voice.

"Nonsense! You will do no such thing. Besides, what if you should? No great harm would be done; there is enough in the house to eat, so do not worry. More dinners have been spoiled by fluster than by anything else." Ethel smiled a relieved little smile. "Just set your teeth together and say, 'I will succeed, and I will not be nervous about it either.'" The old lady laid her hand on Ethel's shoulder.

"Father and I are going to drive to town this morning. We will be back here in time to eat your good dinner." She peered in the glass and smoothed her hair down over her ears with the palms of her hands. "If you have any letters to go we can take them. I have not seen you write to that husband of yours since you have been here and you do not want him to worry."

Ethel flushed and looked down. "I wrote him after our talk, but I did not tell him where I was. It is to be a surprise." She looked up with all the child's pleasure in surprises.

"H—m! You are sure he will not worry?" she persisted. Ethel nodded confidently, and ran to look at the bread that was rising by the fire.

"How long will it be before this will be ready to go into the pans?" she asked.

"About half an hour. It will rise to this." She indicated a ring on the mixing bowl.

"What shall I get for dinner?" asked the girl.

"You are housekeeper. You are to have company for dinner; an old man and woman who are easy to cook for, so you will have just an ordinary well-cooked dinner." Ethel plumped her curly head down on the old lady's shoulder, saying softly:

"You are so good to me. May I call you mother? I never had a mother before. Never anyone who tried to bring out what was in me, to make a woman of me." She stole an arm around the gaunt, kindly old lady.

"I need a daughter. I lost mine over a quarter of a century ago." The rough hand patted the soft cheek.

"Now, daughters wait on their mothers," she announced briskly. "My coat and bonnet are in the wardrobe, and you will find a clean handkerchief in the box on the bureau." Ethel sped away radiant with the happiness of service.

"Now let me tie it on. There, I puffed your hair a little and it looks fine." She put her head on one side to regard the labor of her hands.

"She has ways like a bird," thought the kindly soul, from whose makeup all grace had been eliminated. "No wonder everybody spoiled her."

Ethel put a shawl over her head and went out to the buggy to see that the robe was well tucked in, for the weather was again cold. She cast her arms, shawl and all, around the kindly old man, into whose heart she had crept long before, and kissed him goodby.

"Don't get too hungry," she called after them, "for there may not be anything fit to eat when you get back."

"I'll risk you," replied the old man, waving his mittened hand as he drove down the lane.

"I will have a good dinner." Ethel's lips were set. "Who could disappoint such friends as that; friends who believe in you."

85 YEAR OLD VOTER IS STRONG FOR FRELINGHUYSEN

Somerville, Aug. 15.—Trembling from lameness and not on account of age, despite his four-score and five, Dennis Wyckoff walked into the Frelinghuysen headquarters the other day and said: "Where's Joe? I want to sign one of his petitions." He had made the journey from Perth Amboy to sign one of the petitions of J. S. Frelinghuysen, who is a candidate for United States Senator. Wyckoff had been a resident of East Millstone for many years and was well acquainted with former Senator Frelinghuysen.

"I've voted for Joe, and I voted for his father," said the aged man, "and I not only want to sign his petition but I hope to vote for him at the primary and later at the election. I want to see him elected and go down to Washington as our United States Senator." After signing the petition Mr. Wyckoff journeyed back to Bound Brook where he expected to visit his daughter-in-law. He holds his voting residence in East Millstone, as he is only living at Perth Amboy temporarily, and he expects to make the trip to East Millstone on primary day to vote for Frelinghuysen, and in the event of his nomination he will make the same journey on election day to vote for him the second time.

HUNTING TOGS FOR THE 1916 GIRL.

American Girls Going Into Out-door Sports in Earnest—Necessarily Her Garb Must Be Appropriate.

By Mary Glynn.

Since military camps have come into vogue, Mademoiselle has taken heart and courage and followed her European sisters, by clothing herself comfortably, above all things. The divided skirt was considered quite daring a season or so ago, but now that is deemed passe, and in its stead breeches have been inaugurated. They are infinitely more becoming, very practical, and undoubtedly very smart. Women in Europe who have stepped in where men have stepped out have adopted the trousers in one form or another without comment, and this simply because wearing skirts would be out of the question. Now our American girls have followed suit, the result being that Madame and Mademoiselle will hunt, ride, and fish from now on in comfortable, roomy breeches. One of the season's most popular debutantes has elected a suit of black and white checked permo, with reinforcements of black leather. She wears smart black leather shoes and leather puttees. For hunting she dons a sensible gray flannel shirt with soft collar, a soft hat and gauntlet gloves. The coat is a natty, boyish affair, in Norfolk style, trimmed with bone buttons, the plainness broken by the two large square pockets and the narrow belt.

PONTINE EVENING WRAP A NEW ITEM.

This Dual Faced Fabric Charmingly Introduced in All Types of Wearing Apparel.

By Mary Glynn.

There is one thing "new under the sun," and that is Pontine. We ask, "What is it?" Well, it's difficult to state just what it is—it is so truly novel—very new and most practical. Pontine is a domestic fabric with two sides, one a leathered finish, and the other either crepe de chine, meteor, satin, moire, or taffeta. The effect is produced by some extraordinary treatment whereby any fabric may be coated on one side by this leather finish. The color combinations obtainable are endless and most attractive. Pontine has been adapted in coats for sports wear, motor, or street occasions, also as trimming on millinery, gloves, suits and bags. Perhaps the very smartest effect obtained outside a utility garment is evident in an evening wrap that has just been designed. The garment is featured apparently in a soft rose kid or pliable leather, while the reverse side proved to be a daintier shade of crepe de chine. A smart collar in cape effect of moleskin afforded an exquisite finishing touch, blending beautifully with the rose pontine.

INNOCENT MAN IS SAVED FROM CHAIR

Guilty Person at Last Confesses to Authorities.

ALL HOPE HAD BEEN LOST.

Preparations Had Been Made For Execution and the Final Goodby Had Been Said to His Family—Convicted of Double Killing—Robbery the Motive.

The death house at Sing Sing prison was filled with activity on the night of July 28, for there was to be an electrocution the following morning. Charles Frederick Stielow had been sentenced to pay the death penalty on a charge of murder that morning. The prison ministers were in his cell, the chair had been prepared, his death suit had been given him, with the slits in it for the electrodes. His hair had been cut so as to make a clear space for the deadly instrument. The condemned man's family had said their last goodby, and all hope had disappeared.

Outside the prison, however, friends were at work on the case, convinced that a man was about to be sent to the great beyond for a crime he did not commit. Stielow was popular. A good natured, jolly German, he proved himself to be one of the most likable men in the prison, and other prisoners and guards were convinced that a man of his disposition was not guilty of the crime with which he was charged.

Justice Guy of the New York supreme court then sent a stay of execution to the prison in order that the evidence might be reviewed. This reprieve put new life and new hope into Stielow and his friends. They went to work with renewed vigor in their endeavors to prove him innocent.

Now Irving King, a junk dealer, has come forward with a confession that exonerates Stielow. King has admitted that on the night of March 21, 1915, he killed aged Charles Phelps and Miss Margaret Wolcott, the object being robbery. The confession is also said to exonerate Nelson Green, who is serving a sentence in Elmira prison for complicity in the crime.

King had been suspected of the double murder for some time. His arrest followed weeks of investigation. The story told by his confession is this:

On the Sunday of the murder he went to the home of Mr. Phelps. He arrived in the afternoon, made himself agreeable to Mr. Phelps and Miss Wolcott and got an invitation to take supper with them. He accepted this invitation.

The meal over, King engaged them in further conversation, and, the hour having grown late, he got an invitation to spend the night.

Meant to Rob His Host.

He accepted it, and some time before 11 o'clock he was escorted to the guest room, which Mr. Phelps in his hospitality put at his disposal. In the room he waited until things grew quiet. He had determined to rob his aged host.

Shortly after 11 o'clock King left his room and stole out. His mission was to rob Mr. Phelps. He did so, but aroused the aged man.

King confessed that he took his pistol and shot and killed Mr. Phelps, that then he took the same pistol and shot and killed Miss Wolcott.

The conviction of Stielow was originally procured mainly through an alleged confession obtained by a private detective, George W. Newton. Stielow could not sign his name, but Newton had him make his mark at the end of the typewritten "confession."

Badgered Into "Confessing."

Affidavits were submitted in motions for a retrial asserting that a lawyer for Stielow had trapped this detective into a description of the methods by which he obtained the alleged confession. Stielow has consistently told his lawyers that he made his mark to the confession without realizing what the paper was and simply to avoid constant badgering by the detective.

Charles Phelps, a wealthy farmer, seventy-one years old, and his housekeeper, forty, were found shot to death in West Shelby, Orleans county, N. Y., on the night of March 21, 1915. The man was in his own home. Miss Margaret Wolcott was on the steps of the cottage across the road, where Stielow, a newly engaged farm hand, lived with his wife and children; Nelson Green, his brother-in-law, and the latter's wife. As Phelps was known to have had a large sum of money in the house, and as this was missing robbery was given as the motive.

Rewards aggregating $6,000 were offered, and before the month ended Stielow and Green were arrested. They got "the third degree" from private detectives, who later produced an alleged confession. This was unsigned, but at the trial in July, 1915, they swore it had been obtained from Stielow. He was sentenced to death, and Green was sent to Elmira for life.

Four dates were set for Stielow's execution and a stay granted each time.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

WHO WOULD HAVE THOUGHT IT?

The announcement that the Athletics defeated the Yankees on the Polo Grounds in both ends of a double bill Saturday certainly did surprise local fans as well as the sporting public in general. While most every fan knows that in Elmer Myers and Joe Bush the Mackmen have two of the best pitchers in captivity, and while it is not denied that Connie Mack is a manager of the first calibre, still there were but few fans who picked the Philadelphia corps to defeat the New York cripples. But, the unexpected happened and the Yankees are now mourning the loss of two games, which they hoped to win. When Connie Mack's misfits can defeat the New Yorks, we know the poor Yankees are crippled. By the way, gentle reader, there is no truth in the rumor that Mr. Mack is to don a uniform and get into action in the near future. That rumor seems to have been founded on mythology.

CONGRATULATIONS, MR. COUGHLAN.

Through these columns, we wish to congratulate John Coughlan and also his brothers, Eddie and Matty, who have so successfully led the Netherwood team through the recent campaign. The Netherwoods won the pennant last year and have repeated this season. The team, in general, deserves plenty of commendation and is getting it. The boys have all worked with a will and have played "clean" baseball. It was supremacy and not trickery or shady tactics that won the pennant for the East Enders. Again, we congratulate the boys and venture the opinion that they will be right on hand next year. The top rung is none too good for Netherwood. Now, boys, let us have the battle for second place.

BROOKLYNS OR BRAVES.

The trouble has started, although Johnny Evers is ill at his home in Troy. The Brooklyn baseball team and the Boston Braves have begun the race to the finish. They have already clashed with the Braves showing the way. Many fans are of the opinion that the Dodgers are about to crack and that the Braves will have clear sailing. Now, while Wilbert Robinson does not want to lose to any team, he is heartily in favor of pushing Boston out of the league. Stallings and Robinson have never wasted any "brotherly love" press notices on each other, and the climax to a "sad" tale was reached not so long ago. Stallings stated that the Brooklyn team was weak in many ways. He was offered a chance to prove his contention and it is the belief of many fans that he is just doing that little thing. At any rate, there is no love lost between the two teams and a most exciting race to the bitter end can be looked forward to. If the Braves win, it is very probable that the World Series will be strictly a private affair for Boston. To us the Red Sox look very good. How do things look to you, gentle reader?

CHURCH AND WILLIAMS.

Many who watched the tennis at Sea Bright Saturday when R. Norris Williams defeated George M. Church and thereby took permanent possession of the Achelis cup, seemed to have believed that the Jerseyman would have won had it not been for the muscle cramp which bothered him after the first set. In the first set Church outplayed Williams at every turn, and if the Tenafly man had kept up such a pace throughout the Philadelphian never would have had a chance. Such tennis was unbeatable. McLoughlin at his best could not have beaten it. Church was master of the net and in offensive work in the back court, and outplayed Williams on service. On the defense Church returned sharp drives of the sort that generally bring Williams victory. In such instances Church got the ball back placed well enough to permit him to regain a strong position. Generally such plays leave the court open for scoring drives on the next shot.—Newark News.

HERZOG AND HISTORY.

When the Giants rescued Charles "Buck" Herzog from the Reds it gave McGraw just the needed man for his infield and the necessary punch to the club to make it a formidable one in the race for the National League gonfalon. The acquisition of Herzog gives the Giants a fighting chance for the pennant which they otherwise were decidedly shy on before the deal was jammed through. With Herzog in the daily line-up spilling his "pep" among his pals and better pitching the Giants are still very dangerous for the Phils, Dodgers and Braves to consider in the closing end of the National race.

To the Phils, however, the fact that Herzog went to the Giants instead of the Dodgers was a blessing. Had Herzog joined forces with the Brooklynites the Phils could have probably kissed their chances for the pennant good-bye.

In Herzog the Dodgers would not only have secured probably the second best shortstop in the game, but in addition a mighty dangerous hitter and a fine base runner, and one who would have brought to the team that spirit in which the Dodgers have always been lacking—the old fight and "pep." With a batsman of Herzog's stamp to mix in with that already dreaded Brooklyn batting order of Wheat, Daubert, Cutshaw, Stengel, Myers, etc., added to that fight and "pep" that he would bring to the team and his base running ability, it is doubtful if any ball club would have ever been able to dislodge the Dodgers from first place.

It is not generally known, but the Phils had a hold on Herzog back in 1905 when he was still playing for the University of Maryland. Herzog came to Philly to get a trial under Hugh Duffy, who was then trying to give the Phillies a winner, but as he was not the finished article he is now he was quickly sent back to Maryland. To cover up any complaint which might arise from playing professional ball while still attending college Herzog used the alias of McGhee while working out with Duffy and nobody ever became the wiser down in Maryland.

JUST RAY SCHALK.

"The best catcher in the game," is a designation often applied to Ray Schalk, the able young backstop of the White Sox, and while all such honorary titles are open to question, it is certain that Schalk's name stands somewhere in close proximity to the top of the list of great maskmen. He has won his pre-eminence in a very brief time, as it was just four years ago this month that he joined the Comiskey brigade.

JACK MARTIN HITS TO GOOD ADVANTAGE

Plainfielder Rapidly Improving With Milwaukee Squad.

Local fans will be interested to know that Jack Martin, the Plainfield youth who is playing in shortfield for the Milwaukee American Association, baseball team, is rapidly improving in his batting and is living up to his reputation as a fielder. Jack, who was hitting below .200 according to the last reports, is now batting around .221 and is going higher every day. He is no longer the weakest hitter among the regulars, but is rapidly forcing to the front as one of the most valuable men on the team.

Jack is now hitting in eighth position and seems more at home here than he was in the second position. He is still making those great plays, according to the Milwaukee Sentinel, his latest feat being a wonderful stop of La Longe's smash back of second base and throwing the runner out. However, he still "boots" the ball, once in a decade. Jack has made seven doubles, two triples and two home runs, in addition to being responsible for twenty-two sacrifice hits. He has scored forty-seven runs and has made seventy-eight hits out of 53 trips to the plate.

Jay O'Connor Wins Over Barry at Nineteenth Hole.

The best match, according to information received this morning, was played between Barry and O'Connor, the match being won by the latter on the nineteenth hole.

Inasmuch as the caddies of each club have won a match a piece, the deciding match will be necessary and will be played on a neutral course in the near future. The score of the match played yesterday was as follows:

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

William Shakespeare missed an excellent rendition of the famous piece, "A Comedy of Errors," enacted by the Baptists, Hope and Farmer players on Saturday. The farce was staged in a perfect manner and was "enjoyed" by the large audience present.

One of the Hope players made so many errors on Saturday that the scorer refused to wear out any more pencils trying to keep up with the pacesetter. Anything that was hit to the gentleman with the tendency to err went straight through to the outer works, where it was not always perfectly fielded.

Pugilism on the baseball field was a near result of the weekly attraction between the Tabs and Dunellens. Manager Jim Scott, who is correctly classed as a heavyweight and who is perfectly capable of retaining that reputation, was on the verge of a battle with a lad named Trust, who hails from the South and who is said to be a "pippin." Fortunately, no battle was permitted. If a fight is what these fellows are looking for correspondence with Jim Coffey or Charley Weinert should be begun at once.

About the middle of this week noise will begin in the vicinity of West Third street. Many predictions regarding the outcome of the coming battle between the Royals and the Tabs are sure to fill the air before long. These predictions are liable to fill the newspapers, too.

There's a little chap named Tinsman who scores for the Dunellen baseball team. This little fellow is one of the best qualified scorers in the City League realm. In addition to being accurate he is very careful regarding the most minute details. More power to him.

Warry McLaughlin, erstwhile pitcher of the Dunellen baseball team, is now out of the game with a "charley horse," according to the press agent of the club. Warry has not been pitching very frequently of late and the fans of this community are beginning to get anxious.

Well, if Mickey McFadden hurls against the Royals next Sunday in the same manner that he pitched against the Eries Sunday there will be excitement galore. Mickey allowed but five hits against the Erie clan, four of these hits going to Eddie Collins. Now, what amateur pitcher is expected to keep "Eddie Collins" from hitting?

Those Athletics find themselves in the same boat with the Farmers. When one has company in misery very little worry results. Therefore, the Farmers should worry. The Mackmen are liable to stay just where they are for some time to come.

Eddie Coughlan is a valuable addition to the Tab team. Eddie treated himself to four hits on Sunday. If he hits in that manner next Sunday, good-by, "Senor" Maiden.

This office will be open until 10 o'clock every evening in order that Managers Kline, Simmons and Scott may file their press notices for the coming fray. Nothing little convenience, say we all.

POSSIBILITY OF JAPS PERFORMING HERE

Report In Circulation That Ichiya Kumagae and Hachishiro Mikami Will Play.

Arrangements are being made to bring the two Japanese tennis stars, Ichiya Kumagae and Hachishiro Mikami, to this city during the coming week for singles and doubles matches with a pair of local stars. Either the Plainfield Country Club, Parker Field or Park Club courts will be used. Another match at Westfield has been arranged for Labor Day, when they will meet Harold A. Thockmorton, the Elizabeth boy, and E. H. Whitney, of Yale University. The teams played before at Westfield, but the first match was not completed owing to the fact that it was played at night under strong arc lights, the glare from which caused Kumagae to quit with the score tied.

Who will meet the Japanese here has not been decided, but probably Ludlow VanDeventer, a former Princeton University player, will be one of the opponents. His brother, Philip VanDeventer, now a student at Princeton and at one time recognized as one of the best schoolboy players in the State, may team up with the former Tiger star.

Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned to such bidders. All bids must be in writing, enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the "City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.", and endorsed on the outside of said envelope "Bid for City Hall contract" and must state explicitly upon what portion of the work the bid is based.

All bids so received will be then and there publicly unsealed and opened and the contents publicly announced and recorded. No bids will be opened by the Council before the time designated nor thereafter.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and waive any unessential formalities. Successful bidder will be required to furnish satisfactory bond of fifty per cent. of his contract.

WESTCOTT ASKED TO PLAINFIELD

Democrats Here Invite Him to Carry Fight to Martine's Home.

THE DATE IS NOT FIXED

May Make Several Speeches In Union County—Those Behind Attorney General Here Not Known—Statement to Public.

Attorney General Westcott will carry his fight against Senator James Martine into Plainfield, the home of the Farmer Orator. Just when he will appear here has not yet been announced, but a number of local Democrats who are Westcott supporters have organized for the purpose of arranging Westcott meetings in Union county, and their invitation has been accepted by the candidate they favor.

Those who are behind the Westcott boom in Plainfield announce that they "resent the attitude of Senator Martine towards the administration in general and toward President Wilson in particular," and they predict that Farmer Jim will have serious opposition even in his own city. The local Democrats who are giving their time and energy to the Westcott campaign are not known, but will probably be prominent enough in the next few weeks to stand out clearly before the people. Following is a statement given out with the announcement that Judge Westcott would speak here:

"Dissatisfaction with a course pursued by Senator Martine arose early in his Senatorial career. Those who have followed the political fortunes of the Plainfield Senator are well aware that he owes his seat in the Senate to President Wilson alone. A candidate who had run for every office within the gift of the people of Plainfield, Union county, and the State with defeat always as a result, he did not win until Woodrow Wilson said the word that permitted him to have a clear field for election after the primaries of that Presidential year.

"It was the belief of all whose votes had seated Martine that he owed his political being to the President and that it was his duty to stand shoulder to shoulder with the President in those stirring days when Mr. Wilson was whipping House and Senate into line and compelling them to live up to platform pledges.

"In the more critical fights that arose Martine could be counted on to line up with the opposition, explaining in his vote in some instances as acts of Senatorial courtesy. Since Senatorial courtesy in the Senator's view is paramount to party fealty, the voters are eager to see him supplanted by a man tried and true and one whose loyalty can never be doubted.

"Judge Westcott is a brilliant and forceful speaker. It is assured that his appearance in Plainfield will bring forth a big audience to greet him, for all know that none is better qualified to dissect utterances of the Republican Presidential candidate than he.

"Some of the leaders of the Democratic party in Plainfield were loathe to take the initiative in inviting Judge Westcott to Plainfield and arranging the meetings here, saying that they deemed it discourteous to Senator Martine, but there were others in the party who have no such qualms and these men will work hard to make the meeting one of the biggest ever held in Plainfield.

"In a recent letter to friends in Plainfield Judge Westcott said that he hoped to attend the annual picnic of the Union County Democratic Club this month, and then, no doubt, many of those who have remained in the background so far, will come forward and join in the invitation to the Attorney General to come to the county and address its voters."

WARD CLUB LAUDS CALKINS' SERVICE

President Hetfield Urges G. O. P. Leaders to Endorse Present Mayor's Term.

Unanimous endorsement of the administration of Mayor Leighton Calkins and outbursts of political eloquence delivered by prominent members last night led to the passage of a resolution by the First Ward Republican Club to request the Mayor to reconsider his statement that he would not be a candidate for re-election this year. This was the initial session of the club preliminary to launching an active campaign on behalf of the G. O. P. this fall and the following offiers were elected: President, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.; vice-presidents—First district, Vincent W. Nash, Jr.; Second district, Elias H. Bird; Third district, William L. Gloak; Fourth district, Charles Smink; secretary, Walter Firstbrook; treasurer, Robert McCormanck.

Discussion regarding councilmanic candidates was of an informal nature and President Hetfield appointed the following committee to sort the timber: Joseph Allen, Elias N. Bird, S. P. T. Wilbur, Albert I. Littell and Daniel McCormack. The candidacy of City Judge William G. De Meza for re-election was endorsed as was also the candidacy of former Mayor James Buckle for the Union County Board of Freeholders. Names for councilmanic material will be submitted at the next meeting, which will be held August 29.

Many expressions of approval regarding the service rendered to the city by Mayor Calkins and confidence in his ability to handle municipal affairs in an efficient and faultless manner were heard at the meeting, notable among the addresses being those delivered by President Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., City Judge William G. De Meza, Councilman Charles Sminck, Judge William Newcorn and City Clerk John J. Carroll.

In placing the subject of inducing Mayor Calkins to reverse his decision regarding re-election President Hetfield declared that during his four years' connection with the corporation counsel's office he had become intimately acquainted with the chief city executive's office and believed that during Mayor Calkins' term the duties had been discharged in a manner that called for very favorable commendation. He stated that the present incumbent had given his unstinted time and attention to the affairs of the office and that various important measures in which Mayor Calkins was the initial mover are now in progress of completion and for this reason, if for no other, he should be returned this fall. Mr. Hetfield's plea for support struck a popular chord and the enthusiastic endorsement of the entire club was the outcome.

TO SING "AVE MARIA" AT PROCTOR'S MONDAY

Gounod's "Ave Maria," the popular classic, which was to have been rendered at the City Park under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee on last Sunday by Mabel Hornidge, the popular soloist now singing at Proctor's Theatre, will be rendered by Miss Hornidge at Proctor's on Monday afternoon and evening at all performances. The management have had so many requests because of the disappointment occasioned by the cancellation of the last concert at City Park that they have arranged for Miss Hornidge to give the patrons of Proctor's the benefit of this selection on Monday. Miss Hornidge will doubtless add new laurels to her ever increasing popularity and Monday, August 21st, will be a gala day for lovers of such a classic as "Ave Maria."

BOND OF KLINE IS INCREASED TO $4,000

Charles A. Kline, of 823 South Sixteenth street, Newark, who was arraigned before Judge W. B. Toucey in Westfield last Wednesday evening on complaint of Lieutenant William McNeely, of the Westfield police department, for entering several vacant houses and removing plumbing and other fixtures, was given another hearing Monday on a complaint made by Motor Vehicle Inspector Harry M. Shedd.

The complaint was made before Recorder Springstead, and charged Kline with having illegally used an automobile number on a different car than that for which it was issued. The license number which Kline used in traveling about the town on the Ford car which he drove last Wednesday was 2650. The records show that this number was issued to Kline for a Metz touring car and not for a Ford auto by Chief of Police Rosencrans. As a result of Monday's complaint Kline was held under an additional $2,500 bail, bringing the total amount of the bail to $4,000. He was committed to the county jail Monday afternoon. He was already under $1,500 bail on the breaking and entering charge, and could not furnish the security.

NEW CHARGE FOR FATHER M'GRATH

Popular Stony Hill Priest Goes to Hackettstown Saturday Next.

HAS DONE GOOD WORK

Parish In the Mountains Has Prospered Under His Guidance—Succeeds Rev. P. J. Quinn—Father Waldron Comes Here.

It was announced yesterday that Rev. Joseph A. McGrath, who has been pastor of St. Mary's church at Stony Hill and of St. Vincent de Paul's church at Stirling for the past three years, has been transferred to the Church of the Assumption in Hackettstown. There Father McGrath will be pastor, taking the place of the Rev. P. J. Quinn, who recently died. The churches at Stony Hill and Stirling will be taken care of by Father Waldron, at present stationed in New Brunswick.

Father McGrath has been a priest for nine years, coming to Stony Hill from Asbury Park, where he was an assistant curate. During his stay there he made many friends and did much for the two parishes under his care, removing the debt on the Stony Hill church and building a hall. The parish is in an unusually flourishing condition, and was made so almost entirely by the efforts of Father McGrath. The transfer comes in the nature of a promotion in recognition of the good work accomplished by the priest. The appointment was made by Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, and will take effect next Sunday, inasmuch as the sudden death of Father Quinn has left the Hackettstown parish without a priest.

Owing to the fact that the change will be made so quickly, Father McGrath will be unable to bid good-bye to his many friends in this city and elsewhere. He wishes to thank all those who have so kindly helped him in maintaining his parish in the hills. Many Plainfielders have planned to attend the social and dance to be held in Stony Hill this evening, and they will be afforded an opportunity of saying good-bye to Father McGrath.

It was rather a coincidence that the transfer of Father McGrath to the Church of the Assumption was made on the Feast of the Assumption, August 15. It is thought that Father Waldron will take charge of the Stony Hill and Stirling parishes on Sunday, and that he will continue to hold the social gathering that have been so successful in the past.

SICK BABIES NEED CRIB AND A CARRIAGE BADLY

The Charity Organization Society has two needs in this season so hard for babies. One need is a small bed or crib so that two children now sleeping with parents may sleep alone. Another child needs a baby carriage so that she may be taken to the baby clinic twice a week. In one of these families the father is absent; in the other, incapacitated, so help given will assist mothers who are struggling under heavy burdens. Persons desiring to supply either of the articles mentioned will please telephone 103.

JUDGE DE MEZA ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR RE-ELECTION

Following the unanimous endorsement by the First Ward Republican Club last night, William G. De Meza told a reporter for the Daily Press this morning that he would accept the nomination for re-election as city judge at the coming election on the Republican ticket. In a few days a petition will be circulated in his behalf, and so far there does not appear to be any opponent in the field.

Judge De Meza is now completing his second term and sixth year as local police magistrate and appears to be the only logical candidate for the next three years. A number of important changes have come over the police court since Mr. De Meza has been on the bench and a considerable portion of the rougher element has been quieted.

JUSTICE CLARK DIES SUDDENLY

Prominent Scotch Plains Resident Victim of Uraemic Poisoning.

WAS 78 YEARS OF AGE

Long Identified With Progress of Community—Was Veteran of the Civil War—Justice Twenty-seven Years.

Joseph Clark, oldest resident and justice of the peace at Scotch Plains for more than a quarter of a century, died suddenly at his home on Front street, shortly after noon today, of uraemic poisoning. He was in his seventy-eighth year, and was around his usual duties about his farm this morning.

Mr. Clark had lived in Scotch Plains all of his life, and was one of its pioneer farmer. At the outbreak of the Civil War he joined Company I, Third New Jersey Volunteers with a number of other Scotch Plains boys, and served with merit throughout the four years of strife. When he was mustered out at the end of the war he returned to his farm on the outskirts of Scotch Plains and has conducted a dairy business along with his farming ever since.

As justice of the peace for the past twenty-seven or eight years his fame as a magistrate reached even to New York, and some of his decisions in cases famous in the annals of Scotch Plains history found their way into the metropolitan papers. Until the law was passed in New Jersey prohibiting justices of the peace from performing marriages, he was well known all over the State as the "marrying justice."

Many were the times that he was awakened in the early morning hours to perform the ceremony for some young couple, oftimes elopers from New York and other places.

Besides a wife, Mr. Clark is survived by six children, three sons and three daughters. The sons are Fred, Clinton and George, all living in Scotch Plains, and the daughters are Mrs. Fred Clauson, who makes her home with her parents; Mrs. C. E. Smith, of Plainfield, and an unmarried daughter, who also lives at home.

Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

N. Y. STRIKE AGAIN SEEMS IMMINENT

Workmen Say Street Railway Company Violated Agreement.

New York, August 16.—Charging that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company has violated its agreement with workers, motormen and conductors on all lines today threaten another strike.

After a session of union men that lasted throughout the night at Lyceum Hall, Eighty-sixth street and Third avenue, William B. Fitzgerald, general organizer of the union, said that the New York Railways Company would be given twenty-four hours to reply to new demands made by the men.

"If we do not get a satisfactory answer," said Fitzgerald, "we will call a strike within twenty-four hours. We are twice as strong as we were a week ago, because we have organized the men in the barns and the power houses. If the company wants a fight it will get it this time."

TENT MEETING TONIGHT.

There will be evangelistic services held tonight at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the Christian and Missionary Alliance in the Gospel tent located on Watchung avenue, between Front and Pearl streets. There will be special music and an old-time gospel service. Services are held every evening but Monday.

EMERGENCY!

By order of the Board of Health, which will be effective until further notice, all hotel keepers, landlords, tenants and householders generally, are hereby requested to report daily to the Board of Health, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., the arrival of all persons from out of town, INCLUDING PLAINFIELD PEOPLE WHO HAVE BEEN ABSENT FROM THE CITY (DAILY COMMUTERS EXCEPTED). Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

ONE DEATH HERE, NO NEW CASES

Warren Township and Scotch Plains Find Patients, However.

DUNELLEN BOY DIES

Forty Adults and Twenty Children Quarantined In Poggio House Where Two Paralysis Cases Have Developed—New Health Rules.

One new case in Warren township, another in Scotch Plains, and a death each in Plainfield and Dunellen is the infantile paralysis report for this community for the past twenty-four hours.

The Warren township patient is a brother of the boy who died at Poggio's boarding house on Sterling road, yesterday morning. It was reported that this case was in Watchung, but health officials found that it was just cross the border line. The boy who died was not the son of the proprietor, but Arthur Gatti, member of a family that came from Brooklyn last Sunday. His brother, a few years older, has developed paralysis.

In the Poggio house there are forty adults and twenty children, all under absolute quarantine for the next two weeks. The child that had paralysis has been removed to an isolated house in a nearby field, and will be treated there.

Watchung health officials met in emergency session last night. They were called in the belief that the Gatti case was in North Plainfield townshnp, but decided to co-operate with Warren township in every possible way.

The new case in Scotch Plains is that of Hamilton Allston, 2-year-old son of Mrs. William Allston. Mrs. Allston came from Brooklyn about five months ago to keep house for Robert Hodge on Westfield avenue. Her son has been complaining for several days, and Dr. Sinclair, after a consultation with Dr. Hedges, of Plainfield, this morning pronounced the case paralysis. This is the third ase in Scotch Plains.

Herman Eder, the 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Eder, of Columbia street, Dunellen, died early this morning of infantile paralysis, after an illness of only two days. The boy's throat was paralyzed. It had been known that death would occur yesterday afternoon when Drs. Hedges and Whitford held a consultation. The funeral was held at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The house quarantine will be continued for a period of two weeks and a semi-quarantine on the street for the same period of time. Officers will be kept constantly on duty, three shifts being employed.

The boroughites are highly alarmed this morning because the parents of the departed boy had taken every precaution to prevent him and their other children from being infected. They kept them off of the streets, made them use an antiseptic throat gargle and a nose spray and had entertained no visitors from out of town.

John Arandell, 2½ years of age, colored, of 639 West Fourth street, who was stricken with infantile paralysis on Sunday last, died yesterday afternoon. Interment will be this afternoon in Hillside cemetery.

The death of the Arandell child makes the third in this city from the plague. All of the other victims of the disease are reported to be either improving or holding their own.

The following information regarding the new quarantine regulations was issued at the Board of Health office this morning and will be carried out in every detail by the health authorities.

"The new chapter of the State Sanitary Code, now effective, refers only to children under 16 and does not affect adults. It requires that all children coming into the State or passing from one municipality to another within the State, shall have a certificate from the health authorities of the place from which they came.

"Whenver it is desired that a child leave town the following procedure is necessary:

"A certificate as required by the State Department of Health must be secured at the office of the local department.

"If the child can write the certificate must be signed by him; if not, then the parent or guardian must sign it.

"The certificate is good only for twenty-four hours after the time of arrival at the destination.

"The following procedure must be observed when a child under 16 arrives in the Plainfields:

"The certificate issued by the health authorities from whence they came, must be filed at the local Health Department office.

"All such children will then be quarantined to the premises at which they are to stay for a period of two weeks.

"If it is desired that visiting children return to their homes within the two weeks, the Health Department must be notified and the necessary certificates issued.

"During the present emergency the Plainfield Health Department office is open daily (including Sundays) from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m."

After months of suffering borne with great fortitude and patience, Sylvester Lord Richtmyer, aged forty-five years, passed away yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his home, 721 Monroe avenue. Although a comparative stranger in Plainfield, Mr. Richtmyer had made many warm friends since taking up his residence here. He was a member of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, having taken his letter there from the Madison Avenue Reformed church, of New York city.

For many years he was identified with real estate interests in New York, and at the time of his death was president of the Shen-o-Rock Mineral Springs Water Company, of Baldwin street, New York.

FATHER BOGAN ON MARTINE'S HUMANITY

Says Senator Has Not Lost By Appeal For Life of Casement.

Of the many hundreds of letters received by Senator Martine, of New Jersey, from all parts of the State of New Jersey and the United States, commending him for his efforts to save from execution the late Sir Roger Casement, none stand out with greater prominence than that of our own Rev. Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, who, seeing in the Congressional Record a quotation from one of his letters to the Senator wrote from the quiet of his vacation study:

"My dear Senator: I am indeed gratified to know of the value you put upon my congratulation on your effort—though futile—to save the life of Sir Roger Casement, and the honor you have accorded my words in reading them into the official record of Congress. Long before this note reaches you, the world will have known of his execution. It needs not the sight of the seer to read in prophesy the page not yet written in the history of Ireland—the Nation—that from such failures for humanity her final triumph shall come.

"You have added a new name to the long list of fearless men who, not of the nation nor of the Faith of her people, have risked—but not lost—popular favor in daring to be right in fact and in form of stating it. Placating pleadings voiced in accents angelic had as much hope from England's heart as the demand made in the name of humanity by you. Though Sir Roger has gone but a little before our following, he has not died but shall live even though it be that "'The dreamer lives forever

But the toiler dies in a day.'

"Very truly yours,
"B. M. BOGAN."

DUNELLEN COUNCIL TO FIX NORTH AVENUE

Situation There Demands Instant Action, Decides Borough Officials.

There was a short adjourned session of the Mayor and Common Council last evening at which all of the councilmen were present.

There was a general talk over what to do with Washington avenue as a result of the petition which was filed at the last Council session praying that it be improved and it was decided to look into the methods of building roads by assessment as practiced by other municipalities.

Speaking of the condition of North avenue south of the trolley tracks, the Mayor said that it is high time something be done towards fixing that part of the road. In answering an inquiry as why the sewer contractor had not attended to this, Borough Engineer Churchill stated that the Public Service Gas Company has Contractor Lentz, who is doing the road work, scared. It seems that the company has told Mr. Lentz that if he put his steam roller on that side of the road it might be blown up as a result of its depressing the earth to such an extent that the gas main would be broken. After some discussion it was decided that it was the duty of the sewer contractor to get together with Mr. Lentz and the Public Service Gas Company and relieve the situation so that something can be done towards improving the road.

Councilman Craig, of the fire and water committee, was authorized to purchase 200 feet of hose for the fire department.

Engineer Churchill, who is inspecting the sewer, says that he has looked through three miles of pipe to date and that with but a couple of minor exceptions everything is all right.

Bills aggregating $50.90 were ordered paid; $26.40 of this amount is chargeable to the Board of Health.

The monthly report of the borough treasurer showed a cash balance of $854.44.

South Plainfield.

A special meeting of the Board of Health of this township was held in New Market on Monday evening in reference to the epidemic of infantile paralysis which is sweeping the country and which has already claimed two victims in this township. The Board is preparing to take stringent measures in an effort to prevent the disease from gaining any more victims and it is expected that South Plainfield and New Market will be under strict quarantine in a few days.

The Board resolved that children under 16 years of age should not enter or leave the township unless they have a health certificate from a doctor and also signed by the health officer. They also invested each member of the Board with the power of signing these certificates. A thorough investigation will be made of children who recently moved to this place to see if they have the proper certificates.

The Board also resolved to inaugurate a vigorous campaign throughout the township for cleanliness, safety and quarantine and earnestly requests the support and co-operation of all citizens.

Miss Helen Marran was tendered a surprise party at her home on Monday evening by a number of her friends. The dining room and lawn were elaborately decorated for the occasion. "TWILIGHT SLEEP" GIVEN UP--CALLED DANGEROUS

Baltimore, Aug. 16.—Johns Hopkins Hospital has practically disapproved the "twilight sleep" method in child birth. The hospital authorities abandoned experimental use of the method more than nine months ago. The conclusion reached is that it is too perilous, that the menace to the life of the child is too grave to warrant its use except under the most favorable circumstances.

After more than a year's use of the twilight sleep drug, scopalomin, the obstetricians found that it could be safely used only under exceptional conditions because of questions regarding the proper dosage.

"Scopalomin is far from the ideal drug for child bearing," said Dr. Miller today. "The attendant dangers are so great that it can never come into general use."

NO CHARGE ALLOWED FOR HEALTH CERTIFICATES

Trenton, August 16.—Rumors have reached the State Department of Health that in many localities fees are being charged for issuing certificates required for children in traveling. In the enactment of the regulations of the State Sanitary Code requiring certificates for children that enter the State, or travel from one municipality to another within the State, the State Department of Health did not contemplate that fees would be charged for issuing of such certificates.

The certificates provided for in the State Code do not require a medical examination, and may be issued by any competent health authority. It is not necessary to secure a physician's certificate of health before applying to the health officer for the kind of certificates required by the State Sanitary Code.

The State Department of Health does not expect local health officials to charge fees for making certificates or to refer people to physicians who will require fees for certificates. As a medical examination is not necessary the health officer is expected to issue certificates without requiring the assistance of a physician.

In fact, the State Department of Health regards the charging of fees by local health officials who issue certificates as wholly unjustifiable, and as unwarranted by any considerations except those of mercenary character. Blanks used for certificates are furnished free of charge to local boards of health by the State Department of Health, so that no expenditure for printing is required of local boards. This is a time when local boards of health should appreciate the opportunity to serve the public without setting a money value on their service.

Plimsoll's Mark.

Any sailor will tell you that the plimsoll is a conspicuous mark on the hull of a vessel, usually an oval or eclipse of white paint with an arrow drawn through it to indicate the extreme water line when the ship has been loaded. As long as the plimsoll mark shows above the water the burden of freight in the ship's hold is not too great for her carrying capacity. The curious word is the badge of immortality of a philanthropist, Samuel Plimsoll, who was born in Bristol, England, in 1824. When he went into the coal business he learned of the horrible conditions under which the men of the British merchant marine had to work. Owners figured that it was cheaper to lose an occasional ship with all on board than to restrict the load and make the voyage reasonably safe. In order to thwart this rapacity Plimsoll entered parliament in 1868. His persistent work resulted in the passage of the "merchant shipping act" in 1876 to prevent ships from going to sea in an unsafe condition.

Hetty Green's Firmness.

Hetty Green nearly brought Collis P. Huntington to ruin once. She had $1,600,000 deposited in one of his banks and found that he was using the bank's money in investments that she regarded as ticklish. Besides, there had been deals in which she thought she had cause to make Huntington sit up and take particular notice of her. She appeared before an officer of the bank, a Mr. Stewart, and said:

"I'd like my money right away—not in checks; in cash, please."

"Is there no other way, Mrs. Green?" he asked, beginning to perspire.

"None," said she. "Cash, please."

She got it—after a scurrying of many bank messengers—in all kinds of money and in such bulk that four messengers had to carry it for her, the while the rumor got out that Huntington was going to smash. As a matter of fact he did have a narrow escape.—New York World.

No Husband Is Perfect.

Don't expect all the virtues in one man. If he is good natured he may be lazy; if he is scholarly he may be cold; if he is thrifty he may be stingy; if he is generous he may be wasteful; if he is smooth he may be deceitful. The man who charms you with his immaculate appearance is likely to be something of an old maid; the man who is careful to pick threads off your skirt is prone to pick flaws in you; the man who takes an undue interest in the selection of your hats may take an undue interest in the bill which comes home; the man who before marriage jumps to open the door, lest your fingers be contaminated by the knob, may after marriage allow those same fingers to be contaminated by the washboard.—Woman's Home Companion.

A Valuable Tooth.

There is an amusing story of the economy necessary in the early days of the Norwegian theater at Bergen. It was in 1849, when Ibsen and Bjornson were creating the national drama. A lady had been engaged for the part of "second old woman" when it was discovered that her elocutionary powers were impaired by the fact that she had lost one of her front teeth. Impoverished as she was, the management came to the rescue and bore the expense of the necessary dentistry. When she retired, however, after two seasons, she had to leave the tooth behind her, the example of the dentist's art being the property of the theater. The management was too poor to part with it.

She Was One of Them.

Once a high school principal was having a dispute with one of his teachers, a vivacious young lady. She claimed that the word "man" meant mankind as a whole, while "men" always signified the masculine gender.

The principal maintained that there were exceptions and triumphantly quoted, "Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels."

But the young lady answered demurely, "That won't do, for, you see, both genders are mentioned there."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Art of Carpentry.

How many common figurative expressions in our language are borrowed from the art of carpentry may be seen from the following sentence: "The lawyer who filed the bill, shaved the note, cut an acquaintance, split a hair, made an entry, got up a case, framed an indictment, impaneled a jury, put them into a box, nailed a witness, hammered a judge and bored a whole court, all in one day, has since laid down law and turned carpenter."

Wasted Labor.

Little Edna, who was watching the men working a pile driver in the lot opposite, said to her mother: "I'm so sorry for those poor men, mamma. They've been trying and trying to lift out that big weight, and every time they get it almost to the top it falls right back again."—Boston Transcript.

The Signs.

"Miss Gladys got no fewer than six gold headed umbrellas for birthday presents."

"She must be something of a reigning belle."—Baltimore American.

Not Much Resistance.

"Did the prisoner offer any resistance?"

"Only a shilling, your wurshup, and I wouldn't take it."—London Tit-Bits.

Princes and lords are but the breath of kings. An honest man's the noblest work of God.—Burns.

FRANKLIN MURPHY FOR SENATOR

A Manufacturer to Represent A Manufacturing State In the United States Senate

IN the Sixty-third Congress there were 356 lawyers, 120 members of other professions, and only 55 manufacturers, merchants and farmers combined.

MEMBERS of Congress legislate for the wage-earner and the business man. They pass upon questions involving conditions of labor, they regulate tariffs which affect the importation of raw materials and finished products, and to this extent have a direct voice and vote in determining whether American workmen shall be subjected to unfair competition, based upon cheap foreign labor, or given an opportunity to earn wages that will make possible a decent, American standard of living.

WHO is better qualified to pass upon these questions, so all-important to the wage-earner—the man who never turned raw materials into finished products, or the manufacturer who has been engaged in such work all his life?

THE answer is obvious. And it is because of the necessity of having a larger percentage of business men in Congress that the New Jersey Manufacturers and Business Men's League has approved the candidacy of FRANKLIN MURPHY for United States Senator.

THERE is no class selfishness in the motives of the league. As manufacturers and business men they appreciate the mutuality of interest of the employer and the employe. They know that one cannot be prosperous without the other. The more orders the manufacturer has to fill the more help he must have and the greater the demand for help, the higher the wages will be. On the other hand, if the demand for labor falls far below the supply, wages surely will go down.

MORE work means more wages. Less work means less wages. That's the whole story.

THE workman is just as vitally interested as the employer. Whether the American workman will be able to reap the full benefit of his talents and his earning power depends very largely upon the measure of protection he is to have from the competition of cheap foreign labor.

HERE'S where the tariff comes in. Here's where the need of the business man in Congress will come in when the war in Europe is ended, and here's where the New Jersey wage-earners can safeguard their own interests by choosing to represent them in the United States Senate, a practical manufacturer who knows their needs and will uphold them.

SUCH a man is FRANKLIN MURPHY. During a long business career he never has had any labor trouble in his plant. He has earned the respect of his employes because he has been always fair and just. And if elected to the United States Senate he will be fair and just to all citizens of New Jersey.

A Vote for FRANKLIN MURPHY at the Republican Primaries, September 26, Means a Vote for

THE GIRLS AT HOME SADLY MISSED BY OUR BOYS NOW ON THE BORDER

No One There to Cheer the Troops With a Word or a Smile—El Paso Women Pay No Attention to Men In Khaki

Little Stories About Daily Life of Those Who Are Protecting Country Under Rays of August Sun In Texas.

IF the girls "back home" could know how much the soldier boys now on the border yearn for woman's society they would or should feel both sorry and glad—sorry that they cannot be there to cheer their young men friends with a smile and a word and glad that their sex is receiving the compliment it is from the boys in khaki.

If any one wishes to know the greatest deprivation of camp life far from home, tell him it is just this—the loss of women's society.

To every man in the 25,000 or more citizen soldiers now concentrated near El Paso women have had a part in his home life. If he is not married, he has perhaps a girl in whom he is interested, and if not that he has had at least the benefit of meeting women in his everyday life of store, workshop, office.

His evening stroll usually has been brightened at least by a "how-de-do" from some girl of his acquaintance.

Heroes Can't Understand It.

How much this meant to him Johnny Doughboy did not understand until he reached the border. On the way down, at towns through the middle west, he was feted by motherly women and cheered by girls who gave him their addresses and gazed at his uniform and accouterments as at the trappings of a knight.

Being a hero, he made acquaintance among the fair sex without trying. They came to him and, casting aside maidenly reserve, asked his name and gave their own.

Here in the lonesomeness of camp, amid heat and dust and an eternal sunshine that blazes at him all the time from morning to night, the soldier boy finds himself deprived of even a single word with a woman.

No women visitors come to his camp. It is a working camp. Visitors are not welcomed. The only woman seen in it for days on end is a prim old lady who teaches Spanish, accompanied by her daughter, a pretty girl of seventeen, who walks with her eyes on the ground.

It is good to look at this fresh and modest girl, but it only serves to accentuate the heart hunger of the boys who gaze at her. "Oh," say they, "if a fellow could only speak to her! Just to hear her say it was a fine day would be a relief."

This may seem odd to folks at home who have never experienced the great loss of being excommunicated from the society of the gentler sex, but the feeling is exactly the feeling of ninety-nine in every hundred men who see an occasional woman in camp.

Lonesome as a Desert Island.

But, say the girls at home, don't the soldiers get a chance to go to town and meet people socially?

They go to town. But in the case of the enlisted men their diversion there consists of wandering about the streets for an hour or two in the evening, buying a few postcards and some simple refreshment and "beating it"—soldiers' term for hastening—back to camp before 9:30, empty handed, empty hearted and as lonesome as a man on a desert island.

This lonesomeness is increasing from what the soldier sees in town. The streets through which he lounges lonesomely are filled, between 7 and 9, with promenaders, El Paso people, who, lightly dressed and clean, look as if they were cool.

They look contented, and in their content they gaze right through Johnny Doughboy from up north without seeing him or betraying any consciousness of his presence in the same street with them.

This particularly is true of the feminine portion of the crowd in the street. The soldier in his dusty khaki is no hero to them. As he passes through their vacant gaze he feels that the warm greetings he received on his way across the country must be part of a fantastic dream.

A Study In Brown and White.

The soldier from the north discovered early in his stay here that womankind in El Paso is of two kinds, presenting a study in brown and white. Possibly in no other American city may you see such contrasts in large numbers of women.

Half the women one sees on the street are Mexican, in all shades of brown, from deep, old bronze through sepia to nearly white. Some of the darkest are of Indian type, and only braids on either shoulder and a blanket would be needed to transform them, visually, to children of the wild.

Others have a cast of features suggesting the Asiatic clear cut, with the regularity of the Aryan race, racial relics, one would say, of some forgotten people out of the dim past who migrated to this part of the world before recorded history began.

Here and there you see a face almost purely Spanish, pale, large eyed, delicate, with black hair on a low brow and full red lips.

All these women wear black with a black cloth or mantilla on the head. Their skirts are long as the fashion goes today and they walk the streets with the quietness of nuns.

Lawson's Decoy Dog.

Occasionally an enlisted man of social training has the hardihood to carry off a girl at the roof garden for a quiet chat under the trellis and the stars and a glass of lemonade. El Paso women are abstainers.

One such adventurous youth is Douglas Lawson of Boston, son of Thomas W. Lawson, who won his way into the restricted circle of the roof garden by a gentle stratagem.

He was encountered one evening recently in his uniform of a sergeant in the First artillery carrying a tiny Chihuahua dog in the bend of his mighty arm. He is something more than six feet and a giant in muscular development, and the dog might weigh a pound.

"Why the dog?" said the correspondent.

"Sh-h!" said "Dug." "This is the greatest decoy in the world. He is my Siberian bloodhound."

We watched the dancers trotting about the floor. At the end of the dance the decoy began to function. The prettiest girl in the hall dropped her partner's arm and came straight at "Dug."

"Oh, what a love of a dog!" said she. "May I hold it?"

Sergeant Lawson was willing, and the party adjourned to the pergola. Introductions followed.

Other girls came up and petted the dog. Before his leave was up Sergeant Lawson had greatly enlarged his social circle.

"There are more ways than one of beating this game," he remarked as he tucked his "Siberian bloodhound" into the front of his tunic and started back for camp.

Married Men Should Leave.

Married men among the Illinois troops in Brownsville should, unless they be officers, take advantage of the dependency clause provided by congress if they feel the welfare of their families is jeopardized by their sojourn on the border.

This was the positive declaration of Brigadier General James Parker, the commander of the Brownsville district, when the subject of coercion on the part of some Chicago employers was brought to his attention.

"This situation was bound to arise," said the general. "When the employers consented to take care of families of their employees who would suffer keenly by deprivation of salary the impression was general that the army was going into Mexico soon. This has not happened. Now this problem arises. The married man's place is back at home unless he feels his family is not going to suffer in any way by his absence."

"But, general," protested some one, "these boys feel that an odium will exist if they leave. What will the folks back home say?"

The gray haired veteran scowled.

"Odium?" he repeated harshly. "From whom would the odium come? There are thousands and thousands of single men, scot free, walking the streets of our big cities, enjoying themselves. Why aren't they down here? This is where they belong, not the married men. Let anybody in Chicago criticise a married man for going home and I'll give him reasons for his going. When I mustered in New York regiments in the Spanish-American war I refused married men because I wanted soldiers who did not have family troubles worrying them. And study in after years convinced me that I did right."

Miss Cudahy Sends Provisions.

Miss Mary T. Cudahy, daughter of the late Michael Cudahy, the Chicago packer, has the comfort and happiness of the boys of the Seventh infantry close to her heart. As proof she mailed a key which was received by Colonel Daniel Moriarty. It was not the key to her heart, however, but her letter explains.

"I am inclosing a key," she wrote, "for a trunk which I am forwarding by express. It contains some of the things which I saw by the newspapers you have asked for from the Red Cross. These things will add a little to the comfort of the men.

"P. S.—The trunk is an old one which I do not need any more."

A Satisfied Soldier.

Following is a copy of a letter received from a New York soldier in Texas, giving rather a vivid but truthful picture of the conditions prevailing in Camp McAllen:

We are extremely comfortable now, and I don't know when we have been so cheerful since our arrival here. Personally I have never felt so wonderfully happy in my life. I adore it all. The work is extremely hard and the heat terrific, but as they give you a siesta from 12 until 4:30 every day it saves the man a lot and gives you time to do a lot of personal things. Yesterday and the day before I worked constantly without stopping from mess to mess. The food now is delicious and nice cold water on tap constantly. We also have built an exchange, where you can get all soft drinks, ice cream, shoe laces, etc., and they take one's clothes and have them washed for you. It is run by the sheriff of the county. So any sympathy you waste on me personally must stop immediately. Some of the fellows in other regiments and outfits have suffered terribly and been very ill, but haven't done half the work. The squadron, on the other hand, are in the pink of condition and working like mules. That's what good physical condition, a great deal of precaution and two weeks at camp before arriving have done for us. The camp is kept immaculate and great care taken for the prevention of any disease. We get the daily papers only five days late, but it's all the same in the end. I wish you could be here and see us work. Our day consists of getting up at 5, dressed at 5:10, grooming and feeding until 6, drill at 7:50 until 10:30, feeding, watering and grooming at 4:30 again. Then nothing to do until "taps" except eat, smoke, talk and sleep. Of course we have to board on floors build a woodshed for the horses, police camp, etc., but they have details for that. Then there is very strict sentry and outpost duty at night, as times are a bit uncertain in this district, and precaution of best kind must be taken. We go on sentry duty about every fourth night.

Some of Villa's Traits.

Dr. Jerome Triolo, a soldier of fortune who has served several years in Villa's army in a medical capacity with the title of lieutenant colonel, told some stories that show he is quite an interesting person to meet after all.

"There were several reasons why Villa was a great man," said Dr. Triolo, "but the chief were the fact that he was always reliable about paying his men. If he ever had money his men got their share and he was an unusually clever strategist. No one could have taken Juarez in the clever manner in which he did without being one.

"It was commonly believed in the latter part of November, 1913, that Villa was on his way to storm Chihuahua City. Several miles outside, however, his army held up a train which was leaving Juarez for that place. He forced the conductor to send a telegram back to the Juarez authorities that he was returning, as Villa was advancing toward Chihuahua with a large force and he feared that the train would be unable to get through. After this message had been sent Villa and his merry band hopped on the train and rode back into the city of Juarez. The inhabitants had prepared no greeting for him and were so surprised to see him that they were able to offer no resistance to his invasion. It was surrendered to him almost without a struggle.

"Of course Villa was cruel, but that detracted in no way from his generalship, for Villa is no more cruel than any of the Mexican people. He thought nothing of taking life. At Torreon he lined them up seven deep for their execution in order to save ammunition. In Juarez one day Villa stopped a peon with a bundle of stolen calico under his arm.

"'Where did you get that?' asked Villa.

"'I found it on the street,' was the rather flimsy answer. Villa turned to a soldier by his side.

"'Shoot him,' he said calmly, and walked on. The man was shot.

"On another day in the same town Villa spied a rider wanted for some crime going down the street. He pointed him out to a guard with his usual laconic request, 'Shoot him.' I doubt if the man shot ever knew what struck him.

"If a person asked a favor of Villa when the latter was in a bad mood he was just as apt to be shot as to have his favor granted. After executions he was particularly morose, and it was an extremely hazardous proposition to approach him for two or three days afterward."

His Cry of Wolf.

The bad boy of the legend who cried "Wolf!" was a poor amateur in results obtained compared with Corporal Franklin King, Eighth Massachusetts, in charge of a border patrol near Torcer, eight miles from El Paso.

He told of the discovery of a band of at least 150 bandits moving over the border through Lasca pass and toward Finlay, and that started two companies of cavalry thundering out of El Paso on a freight train and also out of El Paso an entire battalion of infantry packed tight in ten motor trucks intent on saving the population of that hamlet and with orders from General Bell to mete out drastic punishment to the Mexican marauders.

But Corporal King had sent out his report on an observation with the naked eye over a distance of five miles, and with the coming of the cavalry and infantry, hot for a tilt with the bandits, came the information from a scouting party that the "bandits" were a harmless herd of about 200 horses, the property of Dave Allison and Dad Finlay, famous rifle shots and ranchers, who had been making their way toward Finlay.

"The cavalry has the honor to report that here are the bandits," said Lieutenant Rabogg, pointing to the two ranchmen, "and we have also found 200 horses that belong to them."

The investigation showed that Allison had stopped at the precise time and place described by Corporal King to tighten up his pack and look over his herd grazing at the place.

A Bit Lonesome.

Down in Donna, Tex., doing border duty is Private Kit W. Hilman of the hospital corps, Second Texas infantry, who apparently is lonesome. He has written the following letter:

I am very lonesome, for, believe me, this is some lonesome and also hot place. And every one in our outfit has some one to write to and some one to write to him, while I have no one at all to hear from anywhere, any time. And you people in that country can't imagine how lonesome it is here without a word from civilization. And if you would be so kind you might help me out. I am twenty-one years old, height five feet three inches, hair dark, eyes dark, complexion also dark—tanned in this sun. Have no bad habits. Am straight and honest and can give references if needed.

The Review of Reviews, of Plainfield and Its Business

The "Loyal" Plainfielder takes pride in the city's progress.

"Where do you live?" is frequently asked of travelers, and those travelers take pride, if they're loyal, in naming the city or town from which they came.

Plainfield "is" progressive; she's reached a period of decided progressiveness, preparedness.

The government of our city is doing wonders, the marks of progressiveness of our Council stand out in bold relief. As a mark of efficiency, national attention is attracted here to our automobile manufacturing, machine shops and printing press works, and other great plants.

And they're not over-night promotions, either, these industries, but, they're substantial institutions that have been tried and found true, by many long years of successes, through good, bad and indifferent times, and again, results, Plainfield stands on the brink of a still greater prosperity, so prosperous that not a hint of its inefficiency in any direction can be pointed to by the most jealous rival of our city's progress.

Our city has been most fortunate in avoiding ever, serious labor troubles, serious business failures, serious calamities of any kind that have been noted so frequently in many directions throughout the land—well, all things to Plainfield, "Plainfield Right or Wrong," but, Plainfield's right.

Our Plainfield retail mercantile establishments, what of them? Barring a very few, they have been successful to an extent made possible by a combination of the conservative and the progressive; both must go hand in hand to bring about successful results, and so Plainfield can point with pride to her retail mercantile establishments.

May we especially point out the stores of the members of the Business Men's Association of Plainfield? Stores that have had uninterrupted growth for as long as the oldest inhabitant can remember. But, in all their growth, nothing has equaled that of the past year; and incidentally, nothing has equaled that of the present spring season.

Three Large Lots of FURNITURE in the August Sale at Exactly Half Price

Special purchases that come from three of the foremost manufacturers of the country—procured at half price because of changes in the factories necessitating the closing out in bulk of certain stocks.

No other store was offered the privilege of buying because no other store could handle the large quantities.

Library, living room, den, sitting-room, dining-room; and odd pieces; "the best lot of the kind we have ever offered," says our expert.

The illustrations show a little of the character of this furniture, but they fail to depict the great charm and large variety of pieces.

Practically all of it is of the Jacobean period, mostly of Charles II. design, with twisted legs and posts, turned in spiral or twisted designs; many of the pieces embellished with carving and cane insets in panels. Finished in soft grayish brown of the oak, a warm neutral tone, which harmonizes with so many interiors.

Chairs, rockers, davenports, stools, tables, sideboards, china cabinets, serving tables, extension tables and dining chairs; some upholstered in leather or tapestry.

Between $60,000 and $70,000 worth to sell for $30,000 to $35,000—each piece at exactly half price.

Ready tomorrow—Thursday.

COLGATE'S RECORD IN LEGISLATURE

His Managers Insist He Has Done Much For People of State

Newark, Aug. 16.—In connection with the resignation of Colonel Austen Colgate as State Senator, which is to be handed in some time prior to August 25, the statement is put forth by his campaign managers that few, if any, of the members of the Legislature who have served so long as he are able to show such a record of attendance. During his three years in the House of Assembly and his five years in the Senate he has been absent not more than half a dozen times. This is the more noteworthy, they say, because of the fact that he is a man of large business responsibilities, who has constantly assumed an active interest in civic affairs.

The attempt of his opponents to belittle the importance of his services as a legislator is met with the statement that while he has been in the Senate he has introduced or handled more bills than any other member of that body and has been sponsor for or instrumental in the passage of many of the best measures which have been presented there during his period of service. Although he has handled most of the bills of the twelve Assemblymen from his home county of Essex and a very large proportion of those of the twelve Assemblymen from Hudson county, where his business interests are located, his activities have not been confined to the interests of any section or to any particular class of legislation.

He has been especially interested, his managers set forth, in the so-called humanitarian measures, such as deal with the criminal classes and the State's dependents, prevention of tuberculosis and care of tuberculosis patients, widows' pensions, child labor and workmen's compensation. It is claimed that he has done more than any one else to put the workmen's compensation act on a practical and workable basis. At the last session of the Legislature he fathered the bill which, enacted into law, gives to the State Labor Department, instead of the courts, the authority to act as arbiter in disputes between employers and employes under the workmen's compensation act. The system is thus greatly simplified and improved.

His successful efforts in behalf of automobile legislation, inculding the reciprocity act and other important measures, are also referred to, as well as the assistance he rendered in obtaining the enactment of such laws as the corrupt practices act, reform election law, pure food laws, jury revision acts and acts creating mosquito extermination commissions and the Department of Charities and Corrections.

This is said to be only a foreshadowing of what will be set forth in due time regarding Senator Colgate's record as a legislator. His managers are aroused by the manner in which the opposition has sought to falsify this record, as they allege, and it is declared that the real facts will be set before the people so that they can judge for themselves.

The Colgate campaign has been active for only a comparatively short time, but in that short time there has been much doing, and there will be much more doing between now and the primaries on September 26.

DR. C. B. LUFBURROW REPLIES TO LYONS

Tells of Work Being Done By Health Board, and Defends the Local Plan.

Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, president of the local Health Board, has written the following letter to Charles Lyons, a citizen who publicly criticized the work of the Board:

To Mr. Charles Lyons,
816 First place,
Plainfield, N. J.

Dear Sir—In reply to your letter of yesterday I would state that I did not write the article you refer to. I submit an abstract of the course we have taken, and with all the facts before you, I believe it will meet with your approval.

When the epidemic broke out in Brooklyn and New York children came to Netherwood Camp. They were examined, found well and were allowed to stay on the premises only. No more children were brought out. No case has occurred there. The Health Department advised against all gatherings of children under 16 years of age, and Sunday schools, day schools and the day nursery were closed. Sunday school excursions were postponed and the theatres closed to children. Through the newspapers parents were advised to keep children at home, and all visitors from out-of-town were required to register name, age, where from, local address and probable length of stay. Children were admitted to Plainfield and quarantined on their own premises for two weeks. The quarantine has been as thorough as it is possible to make it and there have been few violations. Some have come in without our knowledge and have escaped us. These instances are rare. People will escape, even from prisons. All reasonable precautions are used to prevent such violations. A wilful disregard of quarantine rules has been and will be punished. Children are allowed to enter and leave town. Plainfield children returning to Plainfield have been and will be quarantined on their own premises for two weeks.

When a case of infantile paralysis occurs the patient is carefully quarantined, as are the attendants. We know of no instance in which it can be shown that a second case has developed as the result of exposure to any one of our quarantined cases.

These measures were inaugurated early in July and have been in force since, and will continue from day to day with such modifications and additions as may seem necessary. Inasmuch as the physician has always been the custodian of the public health, the Health Department called a meeting of the physicians of Plainfield and North Plainfield, outlined its policy, and had the unusual gratification of having every detail of its action endorsed without corrections or additions.

We publish the opinion that the above procedure is the most effective one known today, and the one calculated to do the least harm and injustice to all concerned.

There is no evidence to show that this disease is contagious. It is believed to be infectious, and the manner in which it is transmitted from one to another is not known. Most probably when all the evidence is in, and infantile paralysis is known as is typhoid and yellow fever, it will be treated as are those diseases insofar as isolation is concerned. In some of the large hospitals in New York city they are even now putting their infantile paralysis cases in wards with other children free of that disease. They have done so for years and no cases of cross infection have ever been known to occur.

I thank you for your letter. It is temperate. I cannot say as much for all the communications we receive.

We believe we are entitled to the support of the entire community at this time. It is essential to success.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) C. B. LUFBURROW,
President.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 16, 1916.

NAGGING THE HEALTH BOARD.

The Daily Press is in receipt of a letter addressed to Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow, president of the Plainfield Board of Health, by Charles Lyon, a citizen, who lives at 816 First place. Mr. Lyon takes exception to the statement of Dr. Lufburrow that "quarantine regulations in Plainfield are as strictly enforced as in any other city," and seeks to create a controversy over the estimate of $30,000 a month which Dr. Lufburrow thinks would be necessary to absolutely enforce the new order of the State Board of Health. Some of the arguments put forth by Mr. Lyon are based on fact, as, for instance, his statement that a few towns in New Jersey and New York are enforcing an absolute quarantine. Watchung township is one of the towns to which Mr. Lyon refers. Its officials have enforced an absolute quarantine as to children for weeks. Mr. Lyon will perhaps note that Watchung had two cases of infantile paralysis yesterday; showing that such enforcement only works hardships on the community at enormous expense without really accomplishing anything in the way of disease prevention.

As a layman, Mr. Lyon confesses ignorance of the manner in which infantile paralysis is communicated, which admission should also prevent him from putting forth his personal opinions as to the proper precaution necessary against those of men who have given years of study to the nature of paralysis and its prevention and cure. He would hardly seek to criticize the strategy of the German war staff, yet he knows as much, if not more, about war than he does about paralysis.

The proper course for Mr. Lyon to have taken, if he feels that his opinions should be considered by the Plainfield Health Board, was to pay a personal visit to Dr. Lufburrow. Perhaps he thinks he has not the time to give. He should know that Dr. Lufburrow is serving without one cent of pay; that he is giving more than an ordinary working day to the public good every twenty-four hours, at sacrifice of his personal practice, and that he is seriously handicapped, even in this volunteer service, by the careless criticisms of those who have not a proper understanding of the work. The Health Board is accomplishing almost a miracle here now in the infantile paralysis situation, for which most of the credit is due Dr. Lufburrow, and it could do even more if it were not for the antagonism of some citizens who really are not qualified to criticize. If Mr. Lyon could spend but one hour with Dr. Lufburrow at work some day, he would feel differently about the efficiency of the Health Board, and so would many others who are airing their opinions before the public.

A PROHIBITION FIGHT IN PROGRESS.

That the Prohibitionists of Plainfield have organized for a fight in the municipal election of this year is strongly indicated by the Hamilton incident at the Second Ward Republican Club meeting of Monday evening, and some life will be injected into the city campaign through their activity. There are four councilmen to be elected this year. The plan of those who want to rid the city of saloons is to put four men in office who are pledged to vote against renewal of the licenses when this matter comes up in January. They believe that if the entire city shows a strong sentiment for a dry town, two more men already in the Common Council will bow to the will of the people and make the six votes necessary to close the town. This plan includes two separate campaigns, each of which must be waged independently. The first, of course, is for the election of four Prohibition councilmen, one from each of the city wards. If this should be successful it would then be necessary to win over two votes among those already in the Council.

Whether or not independent councilmanic candidates are to be put out in the separate wards depends upon the attitude of those who represent the party organizations. No man can hardly become a candidate for the city governing board without clearly stating his position. Most voters, whether for or against Prohibition, will disagree with former President of the Common Council George S. Clay, who said that it was unfair to ask Councilman Hamilton whether or not he would vote against the renewal of saloon licenses. This would be a fair question if addressed to a candidate for public office on any subject pertaining to government. The frankness of Mr. Hamilton in responding is highly commendable, and, while he lost the votes of the Prohibition element in his ward, he still holds their individual respect. Such frankness is to be demanded of every aspirant for a seat in the Council, and when the votes are cast every man will face the issue squarely. If the campaign is carried out as planned other issues will be forgotten, and the vote will really tell whether or not Plainfield wants Prohibition, which will be interesting news to every voter of intelligence, no matter what his views on the subject.

WESCOTT AND MARTINE TOGETHER.

It is only fair and proper that Attorney General Wescott, who is also a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator from New Jersey, should come to Plainfield, the home of his oppenent, for a campaign speech. Senator Martine, we think, would invite a joint debate on the issues of the campaign, and it would prove both entertaining and educational if the candidates could be persuaded to speak here on the same night. Friends of the Farmer Orator should seek to arrange such a meeting.

TROOPERS GIVEN NEW JERSEY MADE CLOTHING

(Staff Correspondence.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 16.—Practically all clothing and ordnance equipment for the New Jersey brigade is now ready for distribution. The Fourth and Fifth regiments already have been largely supplied. The First Infantry was outfitted with new uniforms yesterday and there is a supply of clothing to be issued in quantities sufficient to last the men six months.

It may be interesting to note that the hats are of Newark make, the underwear comes from Egg Harbor City and the sweaters from a Red Bank factory.

The names, not yet selected—or, at least, made public—of one lieutenant and two non-commissioned officers from each of the New Jersey regiments have been ordered submitted as candidates for machine gun instruction at the school of musketry opening at Fort Sill, Okla., September 20. The men selected will be among forty-five students from the Southern Department.

RUNAWAY INJURES CHILD.

A horse belonging to Augustus Colucco, of 805 North avenue, took fright early last night and ran into the yard of Tony Cintco, who lives at 764 North avenue, and knocked down a young child. Although injured about the head and shoulders the youngster was all right after it had been attended by a doctor. Colucco agreed to pay the doctor bill.

Easy Street.

The things you hear on Easy street
Would the impression give
That it must be a treat to see
And quite the place to live.
We credit it with pomp and wealth
In making up the sheet,
But is all happiness and wealth
Confined to Easy street?
Not on your life— to put the thing
In terms denoting heat.
Fine work is done and folks have fun
Afar from Easy street.

The Doc.

This fellow sit up nights to think what he can make his patients drink to cure them of their ills; he fills a glass with horrid dope, that tastes like coal tar mixed with soap, to alternate with pills. At other times he takes a knife and threatens then and there your life, with unconcern supreme; and if he fears you'll raise a howl, with chloroform upon a towel he chokes attempts to scream. He says, "Oh, no, you will not mind, I'll aim to be so very kind," and then proceeds to trim; he sinks his lance clear to the bone, you'd give a million you could own one chance to wallop him. But you are anchored to the table—bound around with two-inch cable and so what chance have you? You may well sink back and groan and let him cut and scrape the bone until he says he's through.

He wants us all to understand
He's dead agin' it from the start,
No ekel suffrage fer his part.
His better half will never mix
Up in no gul-dum politics;
He'll see to that, for he's the boss.
He says the subject makes him cross.
Them is his sentiments, by gum,
The wimmen folks should stay at hum.

That's what he said down to the store;
He'd said it many times before.
His style of argyment is such,
We think he don't protest too much.
Fer some of us who have been 'round
Within an easy sight and sound
Of Hod Binks' house when trouble's rife,
Know purty well about his wife.
Hod lets off all his steam to us,
But 'round home he don't make no fuss.
You'd think to hear him talk to her
That he was simply' living fer
To see her vote fer president,
And that he would then die content.
He's fer it and he's fer it strong;
He's told her that much right along.
He's mighty liberal with the salve
And tells her that she ought to have
The rights men have had in the past.

Say nothin' that don't please her whim;
Most all the fellers are like that.

Plainfield Theatre.

Norine, with "London Belles," at Plainfield Theatre next Saturday, Mat. and Night.

The attraction at the Plainfield Theatre Saturday afternoon and evening is that banner of all musical shows, Rose Sydell, herself and her Famous London Belles, who are the real leaders of all organizations of this kind. The five or six big star specialties which are introduced through the comedy alone would repay one for the price of admission paid. The show is all action for two and one-half hours, a riot of entertainment reigns supreme, and there is a whirlwind of fun, laughter, singing, music, pretty faces and graceful forms. Most costly costumes of new design are worn, and all is set off by the electric display that is a decided novelty. It goes without saying that this company will do the banner business next week.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Handling the stellar role in "A Tortured Heart," the Fox feature appearing at Proctor's today, Virginia Pearson again gives a demonstration of her ability to play old age and youth to excellent effect in the same picture. Melodrama has a very wide appeal, particularly when it is beautifully and skillfully put on, which is the case of "A Tortured Heart." The locale is a small Southern town, and the scenes are made, for the most part, in the sort of picturesque setting to be found nowhere save in the South. The exteriors are therefore right in every case, and furthermore they lend an air of authenticity to the whole. From Director Will S. Davis we have come to expect swift action as well as scenic beauty, and he does not disappoint us in this production. Miss Pearson is supported by a well selected and talented cast, including Stuart Holmes, who gives a thoroughly effective rendition of polished villainy, while Stephen Grattan and Fuller Mellish are very fine in their respective character parts. Other features today include Art Acord and Nita Davis in "A Modern Knight," Ben Turpin in "The Iron Mit," and George Ovey in "The Masque Ball."

Tomorrow William H. Thompson, the veteran player who already has made three distinct appearances in Triangle plays, will be seen again as the star in Thomas H. Ince's "The Eye of the Night," a heart interest drama, from the pen of G. Gardner Sullivan. In this production Thompson plays the part of an aged keeper of a lighthouse in a small village on the coast of England, and his characterization is said to be one of the most impressive of its kind ever seen on the screen.

On Friday, by special arrangement with William Fox, Mlle. Bertha Kalich will be starred in a powerful dramatic production entitled "Ambition."

QUARANTINE UPHELD BY STATE COURT

To Interfere Now Would Cause Rebellion, Says Chancellor Backes.

The inconvenience or suffering caused an individual by quarantine is insignificant when compared to the protection afforded the community that may be affected, ruled Vice-Chancellor Backes yesterday in Trenton, in denying an injunction applied for by Frank L. Tyson, of West Orange, restraining the West Orange Board of Health from continuing its quarantine upon his residence. Judge Backes said that judicial interference with the health regulations just now would lead to a rebellion in New Jersey.

The decision of the vice-chancellor, coupled with his remarks at the close of the case, is accepted as indicative of a disposition on the part of the court to give the widest possible range to public health officials in enforcing regulations against infantile paralysis.

"I do not think," said the vice-chancellor, in expressing his view upon the question of public policy involved, "the court should interfere with health officers, although I might modify their regulations. Too great care cannot be taken in view of the fact that we do not know what the disease is and the fact that the germs have never been seen."

MRS. MARY LAIRD DIES AT AGE OF 83

Injured Six Weeks Ago By Fall At Her Home.

Mrs. Mary Laird, widow of Nathaniel Laird, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her son, Nathaniel Laird, of 940 West Sixth street. Six weeks ago she fell down the stairs of her home and sustaned injuries which, coupled with complications, resulted in her death. She was 83 years old and a native of Ireland. She came to America and had made New York her home until about two years ago, when she removed to Plainfield.

Beside her son, with whom she lived, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. A. L. Guy, of Llanerch, Pennsylvania. Seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild also survive her. These are Mrs. V. R. Carrick, Mrs. B. D. Fountaine and George Lester Guy, of Llanerch; Mrs. C. F. Fine, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Alma G. Laird, Howard N. Laird and Allyn V. Laird, of Plainfield, and Master G. Rayner Carrick, of Llanerch.

The funeral will be held at the late home, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, and the interment will be Friday morning in Hillside cemetery.

WILSON CEREMONY ON SEPTEMER 2

Acceptance Address at Shadow Lawn, On That Date.

Washington, Aug. 16.—Formal notification to President Wilson of his nomination will take place September 2. That day was definitely selected yesterday, when arrangements were made for the President to go to Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, for the ceremony. The President has already completed his speech of acceptance. The notification speech will be made by Senator James.

The President probably will remain at Long Branch until he leaves for Hodgensville, Ky., to speak September 4 at the Lincoln ceremony.

President Wilson conferred with the Democratic campaign committee at luncheon. He will see the associate committee of Progressives later.

CENTRAL CAN NOW SHIP MUNITIONS

Injunction Is Secured Against Jersey City Commissioners.

A decision that will be received with interest in Plainfield was handed down by Judge Rellstab in Federal Court at Belmar yesterday in the case of the Central Railroad of New Jersey against the Jersey City Commissioners. Application for an injunction restraining Jersey City from interfering with shipments of munitions over the lines of the Central was granted and the restraining order was issued. It covers munitions of all kinds.

In nearly every way, the injunction is similar to that granted by Judge Rellstab last Thursday to the Canadian Car and Foundry Co., Ltd., of Kingsland, whose shipments of explosives over the Lackawanna Railroad had been stopped by the Jersey City embargo, laid immediately after the explosion at Black Tom, July 30.

Immediately after the hearing, Peter Bentley, counsel for the Lehigh Valley Railroad, asked permission to make application for a similar injunction in behalf of his railroad. This was granted, and there will be a hearing next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, at Newark or Trenton.

It was brought out in the argument of Frederick J. Faulks, representing the railroad company, that all the munitions held up by the embargo have not been consigned to the Allies. The prohibition, he said, has prevented the United States Government from sending munitions from the arsenal at Pickatinny to Communipaw, to be distributed from there to the forts around New York Harbor. How great a quantity of American munitions has been stopped, or how great is the need at the forts, was not stated by Mr. Faulks.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN'S CONFIDENCE TEST PREVENTS SWIMMING BEGINNERS SINKING

World's Greatest Woman Athlete Tells Members of The Plainfield Daily Press Class Simple Methods By Which They Can Banish Fear In the Very Beginning.

Article No. 14.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

My lesson today while short, is a very important and interesting one.

I feel certain that after today every pupil, no matter how nervous, will be able to enter the water and overcome the fear of the deep. You should, after you have gone through the following experiment, know absolutely that it is impossible for you to sink.

I will prove to your own satisfaction that it is impossible for you to remain under water.

Before trying the experiment I want you to secure a tin can, then have it painted white, the purest white. Now fill it with earth. Put the lid on it and carry it down to where you bathe. Enter the water until you are waist deep.

Keep your face toward shore after you have reached the depth I asked you to find and from now on make your way slowly back toward shore. But before you start I want you to place the white can in the water and let it sink to the bottom. You should be able to see it plainly. You are now standing in water up to your waist with your face towards shore. Now try to reach that box with your hands.

Remember you are not in deep water and can secure a footing any time. So don't worry about that; just dive for that box. You will find that it will be difficult to reach that little box without struggle.

Time after time you will attempt it and find that you will not be heavy enough to sink to this level. As your body only weighs something like a pound in the water you can realize how difficult it really is to sink if you breathe properly. A deep breath before diving will bring you to the surface in a hurry. After your first experiment is successful, back out into the water and try the same stunt in water that is a little deeper. Always face the shore until you are accustomed to the water. This will give you added confidence.

Keep up this experiment until you have proved to yourself that you cannot sink and remain there. That little can should prove to you how difficult it is for you to sink to the bottom.

Some Important "Dont's" for the Kellermann Class.

1. Don't try to hold your head far out of the water. To do so increases the strain. All that needs to be out of the water is the nose, for breathing.

2. Don't make hard work of it, for that tires you quickly. The strokes should be slow and complete. Try counting ten during each stroke.

3. Don't wear any more clothes than you need. They hinder your movements and make the body much heavier. Many of the costumes I have seen along the shore are inspired more by vanity than by modesty.

4. Don't, above all, wear a corset or a tight belt, for these hinder the circulation. Many cases of cramps have been traced directly to corsets and tight belts.

5. Don't swim after eating, nor eat for an hour after swimming.

6. Don't go into the water unless the body is thoroughly warm. Don't stay in the water after your teeth commence to chatter.

7. Don't stay in the water more than fifteen minutes the first time or two. Then you may increase the time by five minutes each day. Unless the conditions are exceptionally fine, you should never stay in the water more than half an hour.

8. Don't go in swimming on a cold, raw day, even if the water seems warm.

9. Don't try to dive until you have perfect confidence in your stroke. Don't at any time try to dive in shallow water.

Tomorrow—Cramps and How to Avoid Them. Thousands of swimmers have died from cramps. Miss Kellermann will tell her pupils how to avoid them and safeguard against them. She explains what to do to avoid drowning if attacked.

Thunder Boomed and Lightning Flashed.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Mermaid Princess Sat on An Iceberg.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

WHEN the children stopped wiggling daddy told them about a family of mermaids who took turns visiting the earth when their fifteenth birthdays came: "At last the fifth sister's turn came. Her birthday happened in the winter, so she saw sights that none of her sisters saw.

"In the winter the sea looked quite green, and large icebergs were floating about. The little mermaid thought they looked just like huge pearls. But they were much higher than the church spires that she noticed were built by men around sea towns. These icebergs took the most wonderful shapes and sparkled like great diamonds in the sunshine.

"She was rather tired swimming around them, so she sat down on the biggest one and watched great ships sheer off to one side in alarm when they saw her sitting there with her long hair streaming in the winds.

"When night fell the sky became overcast with dark clouds. Thunder boomed and lightning flashed. Huge icebergs glittered in the bright lightning and were lifted high in the air by big black waves. The little mermaid raised down under the water had never even imagined anything so terrible and so lovely.

"All the ships in that part of the sea shortened sail. On all sides was fear and trembling. But the mermaid princess sat quietly on her floating iceberg watching the blue, bright lightning flash in zigzags down on to the shining sea.

"Now, the strange thing about all these mermaid visits to the earth was this: The first time any one of them came up to the top of the water she was delighted by the new and beautiful things she saw. But as soon as they grew up and were free to go where they pleased each sister became bored and longed for her deep sea home. In a few days all the mermaids said that their own home in the deep sea was far better than land visits because it was so cozy there.

"Many evenings the five sisters would all take hold of hands and rise to the top of the water together. They had lovely voices, much clearer and sweeter than mortal sisters have. When a storm was rising and they expected ships to be wrecked they would all sing the most beautiful songs about the wonders of the deep, bidding all seafarers to have no fear of them.

"But the sailors could not understand the words. They thought it was the voice of the storm. When their ships sank they were drowned and only reached the mermaids' palace in death."

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel's First Attempt at Getting a Meal Alone Ends Happily.

"If they do not have a good dinner it is because Ethel Gordon is a helpless incompetent," said that young woman as she watched old Mr. and Mrs. Morton drive out of the lane into the road. "I'll get a regular chicken dinner; just spread myself."

"Oh, Jake," she called as the hired man hove in sight. "Catch a chicken and kill it, will you? Choose a plump one," she added as the grinning Jake started for the barn, while Ethel hurried to the kitchen to see if the kettle was full of boiling water to scald it. She removed her rings and placed them in a little chamois bag that the old lady had made for her and hung around her neck on a ribbon.

"Shall I pluck it, Miss?" Jake stuck his head in at the kitchen door. He never could get it through his head that Ethel was a married woman.

"Yes, if you will; though I could do it." She tossed her head with an air of conscious pride. Jake disappeared with the kettle of boiling water. Ethel gathered her baking materials around her and propped the recipe book open on the table before her.

"I'll have stewed chicken with biscuit dumplings and cream gravy," planned the cook, rolling her sleeves above her dimpled elbows. At this point Jake appeared with the chicken and singed it with a burning paper.

"Shall I cut it up?" asked the grinning giant.

"No, I prefer to do that myself. Put it on the table, please. Thank you." Jake was dismissed. Ethel wanted absolute quiet that she might not get confused.

"I will bake the potatoes with the biscuits, and escalloped tomatoes will be a good vegetable, if there will be room for it in the oven with the bread." She fitted the bread tins into place and found that her plans could be carried through.

"Now the bread must be attended to," she thought, continuing her planning. As she molded the loaves into shape she caught her reflection in the old mirror that hung above the kitchen sink.

"I wish Ralph could see me now," she dimpled at the pleasing reflection. "I wonder what he would say? In another week I shall be ready to go home and take up housekeeping in earnest. Dear Ralph, won't he be surprised when he finds I can really cook?" She placed the pans of bread by the fire nicely tucked in to keep warm, then cut up the chicken and put it on to boil. She set the table very carefully with the company china so it would be all ready before the rush and hurry of the big enterprise came on. Everything was going well. She took a refreshing peep at the plump loaves of bread browning in the oven. Big sweet apples, their cores stuffed with sugar, were bursting like small volcanoes in eruption.

"I wonder if I can see them coming." Ethel went to the front window dows and gazed far up the road through the leafless trees. She saw the old white-faced horse ambling slowly homeward and ran to the kitchen to put the finishing touches to the dinner. The kitchen was full of blue smoke as she opened the door. She rushed to the oven; all was right there. It was the chicken. She caught the kettle from the fire without waiting for a holder, burning her hand on the hot bail.

"It's spoiled, my good dinner," she almost sobbed, wrapping her hand in her handkerchief, "and the bread." She threw the oven door open and took out the loaves, the heat making her hand smart painfully.

Mrs. Morton walked into the smoky kitchen, and without waiting to remove her bonnet poured out the scorched chicken. Ethel was sitting helplessly by with her face buried in her handkerchief. The chicken rescued, she walked up to the disconsolate girl and laying her hands on her shoulders said kindly:

"The chicken is not spoiled. If you had turned it out of the kettle at once no one would have known the difference."

"But I wanted to have cream gravy and——"

"My dear, I did not expect a perfectly prepared dinner, but I did expect you to be a woman. Children, not adults, cry over mistakes." The old lady took the hands from the tearful blue eyes. Ethel threw her arms around her neck.

"Forgive me, dear mother," she whispered. "I did not want to disappoint you."

"Now, lay my things on the bed and I will show you how to make a good gravy for your biscuits." She patted the girl's shoulder.

"The chicken does not taste of scorch enough to spoil it, and everything else is just right. I am proud of you."

Ethel smiled happily up into the kindly old face through her tears.

RIBBON HATS A NOVEL FEATURE

Hat in Turban, Sailor and Tam Shapes Entirely of Ribbon—Moire, Grosgrain and Satin Ribbon Used.

By Mary Glynn.

The ribbon hat has made a decided hit, that is, speaking for those creations launched for summer wear. The sport hat in soft-brimmed sailor effects have been very attractively worn by some of the smartest women. As a completing touch to a costume of La Jerz, the ribbon hat is most attractive. Charming affairs of narrow grosgrain ribbon in pastel shades either in one or two tones, have been shown that served as ideal summer millinery. In a number of fall hats already exhibited the darker shades are introduced, and the hats take on a more dignified aspect.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Two lucky young maidens are Margaret and Alice Burnstein, of Chicago, 16 and 10 years old, who have just been adopted by Captain Edward W. Morrison, former hotel owner, whose wealth is estimated at $8,000,000, and who described himself in his petition for adoption as "of sufficient means to care for the children." Mr. Morrison is 82 years old, a widower and childless, and has expressed his intention of leaving his wealth to the girls, who have taken the name of Morrison. The adoption came as a result of the request made by the girls' mother to Mr. Morrison when on her deathbed that he should care for them.

Cornelia Bentley Sage, who has just received decorations from the French government and the directors of the Louvre and the Luxemburg Museums and from the Societe Nationale des Beaux-Arts, is director of the Buffalo Fine Arts Academy and of the Albright Art Gallery, of the same city. Under her management the latter institution has become known nationally and internationally for its wise and generous encouragement of art and artists, and for its adaptation of such an institution to highest civic uses. These honors from the French are highly significant of the esteem in which Miss Sage is held abroad. She is a native of Buffalo, and her training as an artist and critic has been exclusively American as far as formal technical instruction goes. She became assistant secretary of the Buffalo Fine Arts Academy in 1904, and has steadily risen to her present place of eminence both for her high service locally and because of her share in organizing high grade exhibitions elsewhere in the country. She holds the degree of L.H.D. from Syracuse University.

MANY TO RETURN TO FOREIGN HOMES

Steamship Agents Expect Great Exodus After War.

MOST WILL REMAIN ABROAD

Foreigners In This Country Whose Native Land Has Been Devastated by War Are Expected to Leave United States and Assist In Building Up Cities—Immigration Here Not Expected.

Steamship passenger agents who have just returned to New York from a trip to the Pacific coast assert that from information obtained at their offices in many cities the exodus to Europe after the declaration of peace will reach a million persons. The agents say that 50 per cent of the men who thus leave the country will remain abroad to help restore the cities of their native land. About 75 per cent of this travel, which will jam the liners sailing from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore for several months, will be steerage and the balance second cabin.

Thousands of Slavs, Hungarians, Poles, Austrians, Lithuanians, Bohemians and Germans among the laboring classes all over the United States have paid small deposits on their passages and have money in bank so that they can start for Europe as soon as the war is over to see what has become of the relatives they left behind.

These persons are so eager, the steamship agents say, to see their native land that when the news was printed in the newspapers about the Deutschland returning to Germany there was a rush to the steerage ticket offices in all the principal cities by men and women anxious to book passage on her. They did not know or care what kind of craft she was and did not inquire whether the Deutschland traveled above or below the surface so long as she landed them in Europe.

Few First Class Passengers.

There will be a limited number of first class passengers to German and Austrian ports after the war, it is expected, but not a great number of casual sightseers if the public health service in Washington has its way. To head off such tourists officials intend issuing a warning to Americans not to visit the battlefields on account of the bad sanitary conditions. Moreover, the inhabitants of the countries which have been devastated by the war will not be eager to have strangers walking about snapshotting with their cameras the ruins of their homes.

The North German Lloyd, Hamburg-American and Austro-American Steamship companies are keeping their crews on the ships in American ports busily employed in painting and cleaning so there will be little delay in getting ready for sea when peace has been declared. The two big German lines will have ten new passenger ships to put on the New York and Boston service from Hamburg and Bremen, of which five will be more than 25,000 gross tonnage each.

The Cunard, White Star and French lines will be handicapped by having lost steamships like the Lusitania, Arabic and Provence and also because of the majority of their finest ships of the Olympic, Aquitania, Mauretania and France class having been chartered by the allied governments for use as auxiliary cruisers, transports and hospital ships, which has necessitated the removal of all their expensive cabin fittings.

Officials of the British and French steamship lines in Liverpool and Paris assert they have received assurances from their respective governments that a clause will be inserted in the peace treaty prohibiting German steamships from calling at any ports in the allied countries for a certain number of years. This prohibition will embrace Australia, India, South Africa, Canada and all British colonies. It is understood also that in the event of Germany's having to beg for terms steamship companies of the allied nations expect to receive a quid pro quo for the ships which have been sunk by submarines—for example, the Vaterland for the Lusitania, the Kaiser Wilhelm II. for the Provence and the President Lincoln for the Arabic.

Big Business For Holland Line.

The company which has its passenger and freight steamships in perfect working condition and will reap the greatest benefit for the first year or two after the war is the Holland-America line, as the vessels have been in operation steadily right through and earning from 50 to 80 per cent in dividends.

The steamship agents generally do not believe there will be a big westward rush of aliens when peace is declared because the governments will not allow any ablebodied men to emigrate from European countries. For the 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 of disbanded soldiers in Great Britain arrangements are already being made with Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Canada and other colonies to give the men plots of land to prevent them emigrating to the United States. They will also receive a sum of money to enable them to start farming on a small scale.

"Enemy" Wives.

An Italian deputy wants all army and navy officers who have German or Austrian wives stripped of their commands.

WITTPENN MIXES IN UNION COUNTY RACE

His Efforts to Have Leonard Withdraw Will Not Succeed, However.

Interference of H. Otto Wittpenn, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, in the political affairs of Union county will not leave Abram P. Morris with a clear field for county clerk. Former Assemblyman William A. Leonard, who was announced as a candidate for this office some time ago, will not withdraw, he says, despite the efforts of Mr. Wittpenn to get him out of the race. Mr. Leonard had a conference with Mr. Wittpenn and Dennis Collins, Monday, in which he was asked to withdraw.

It has been known for some time past that the naval officer who is seeking the Governorship on the Democrtic ticket has been interesting himself in Union county with a view of obtaining the elimination of factional fights, and the consequent danger to the Democratic ticket at the general election. While nothing official has been forthcoming concerning the conferences it is understood that General Collins and Leonard were closeted for some time with the Gubernatorial candidate, and Leonard, while he refused absolutely to talk of the meeting, declared positively last night that he is still a candidate and will be right up to the primaries.

Wittpenn, it is said, has had no thought of the personal factor of interesting himself in the county clerk race. He has been told, however, by some of the prominent Democrats in the county, that Morris is the strongest candidate the Democrats could put up at the general election, and it was on that ground that he urged Leonard to drop out. He has been interested entirely in paving the way for a big Democntic vote in every county as it is possible to get, and his standpoint is political strength entirely aside from personal likes or dislikes.

TELLS FATHERS TO SHOOT FLIRTS IN AUTOMOBILES

Asbury Park, August 15.—Auto flirters are the latest victims of an attack by James A. Bradley. Mr. Bradley, in an advertisement in an Asbury Park newspaper, classes the auto flirters as persons "worse than thieves," and recommends fathers to punch them and, if possible, shoot them.

"Have you seen them?" asks Mr. Bradley in his advertisement. "Them," according to the advertisement, refers to "the rascals who have automobiles and who nod to girls (some of our school girls) and if they are not rebuked ask the girls to take a ride." Mr. Bradley says: "They are worse than thieves and if you see them tell them so, and if you are a father punch them, and if after a few hours' ride you should catch them, shoot them."

GIANTS OUT OF IT.

Johnny McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is about resigned to his fate. There is now very little possibility of the Giants annexing the pennant and what goes with it. If Jawn still holds out high hopes for his boys, he is one of the most optimistic managers in baseball. Just now the Giants are going very poorly, although they are not losing games in rapid succession. Still, there is something lacking. And although the owners of the club have tried to find out just wherein the mystery lies, the situation has not improved. The Giants may finish second and they may finish third. Even the rival managers state that McGraw will always be in the thick of the fight. But as far as annexing the bunting goes we think, as do hundreds of others, that the Giants are through.

NETHERWOOD BATTING AVERAGES.

It was with mingled joy and surprise that we secured a copy of the batting averages of the Netherwood team. Up to this time, we were of the opinion that the manager of the Baptist team was the only leader who was in possession of an official scorer. But it appears that the East End manager has had his scorer working nights to get the records out. And these records are something to be proud of. They tell a tale. And it is the tale of a victory fairly won and earned by heavy hitting, heady base-running and all around superiority. The Netherwoods are the one outfit that can weather all criticisms. And very little of it will be forthcoming.

THAT CHALLENGE, WILLIAM.

It was not so long ago that William Kline, et al., spoke of challenging the winner of the City League flag. Mr. Kline thought that he would experience difficulty in getting the manager of the successful combination to agree to a match, but, just now, he believes that Manager Coughlan will be ready to talk things over in a short time. Get busy, William. Now is the time to do something. We are anxious to see that team of yours do all those "nice" things to Netherwood. Yes sir, we want to see it all.

AMERICAN A THRILLER.

It requires almost an hourly report to know how the teams rank in the American League. Every day brings new upsets, and with things getting more complicated, with clubs turning into the stretch, it is going to be one of those neck-and-neck affairs right down to the wire, when it will take a judge's decision to pick the winner. The return of Morton and Speaker to the Indian team has put them up in the running, and Fohl's club is now in second place, just one point ahead of the White Sox. It does not look like Cleveland can stand the pace, however, as both the Red Sox and White Sox look better than ever and are prepared for a dash home that is expected to carry the Indians into the rear. New York is not to be considered unless Donovan gets his hospital list into action soon, as his heavy material is lounging around in sick rooms. The race seems between Chicago and Boston. The fact that Eddie Collins has felt the beneficial rays of the midsummer heat is a big factor in the spurt of Rowland's outfit, as Eddie is headed straight for the .300 mark after loafing around the .250 figure for half the season. It is setting a real precedent in a baseball race and bringing in big financial returns. Even the Athletics look like money winners this year, due to the other clubs being bunched.

MACKMEN MAKE GOOD.

Connie Mack slipped in part on his judgment. He released a lot of men recently who have gone to other clubs and are making good. For a while it looked like the handicap of being with a losing club had fastened on fellows like Collins and Baker and some of the others, but they have come through in great style when most needed. Baker will be back in the lineup soon for New York. A lot of the rookies turned adrift have belied Mack's judgment, too. There are 10 or 11 clubs in the major leagues that have a good chance to figure in the next World's Series, and seven of these clubs contain players who formerly wore the uniform of the Athletics. Seven of these clubs are in the American League and three or four are in the National League. The clubs which do not have former Mackmen on their payrolls are the New York Giants, Washington, Boston Braves and Detroit. Cleveland has two men who were let out by Connie Mack when they were youngsters and who did not figure in the World's Series divvies of the White Elephants. These players are Steve O'Neill, the catcher, and Stanny Coveleskie, the pitcher. Philadelphians are interested in the Tigers because Manager Jennings formerly played with the Phillies and has many friends there, because "Pep" Young and George Burns are Philadelphia boys and because Harry Coveleskie, the "southpaw," won fame for himself and the Phillies as a member of the Quakers in 1908 and 1909. Mack's World's Series players are scattered through the Boston Red Sox, Chicago White Sox, New York Yankees, St. Louis Browns, the Phillies and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

COMPARISON OF RACES.

Every team in the American League is in better shape for a gruelling finish than National clubs. The American League policy has been to get their double-headers off the boards as quickly as possible. Rain bumped the Johnsonians just as hard as it did the Nationals, but it seemed to be the idea of the older circuit to book their two-timers late in the year. As it looks now, the National League will run shy of their games played, while the American will get most of their postponements registered. Only four National teams—Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati—have played 100 games. In the American League every club is away above the century mark. Each team plays 154 games a season. That makes a total of 1,232 games to be counted in the league. In the National League 409 games have been won and, of course, the same number lost. The American circuit shows 433 games on each side of the ledger, so that an advantage of 24 full games is shown for the younger combination. This is a big factor at this time of the year. The fact that the double-headers were booked early has made the American League race so close now, as, if the National policy would have been followed, there would be a lot more postponements to play off. Looks like good business judgment to play off the postponed games in the middle of the season as much as possible, as there are generally enough forced at the finish to make bargain days come pretty regularly.—Pittsburgh Leader.

MILLIONAIRE TO ROW IN BAYONNE REGATTA

Interest in the Bayonne (N. J.) People's Regatta, to be held on the Newark Bay course on Saturday afternoon centres about the single scull race, in which Thomas J. Rooney, of the Ravenswood Boat Club of Long Island City, the new champion oarsman of America, and John B. Kelly, of the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, who held the title for a number of years. Whether Rooney will be able to retain the honors which he won on Saturday last at Duluth is the big question of the day in rowing circles. In the single sculling race Rooney and Kelly will be entered with Heller, of the Metropolitan Boat Club of New York. They will also be lined up against each other in the double shell event.

H. R. Blackman, Boston millionaire, will be in the bow in the senior four barge. He will row for the St. Alphonsus Boat Club of the Hub City. The club has also entered crews in the senior and intermediate eights.

The first contingent of visiting crews arrived in Bayonne last night, and today will go over the Newark Bay course, which is regarded by those experts who have seen it as the finest racing course east of Detroit, for the first time.

JOY IN ONE'S WORK.

Every person should take a pleasure in his work. The idea of joy in one's work has been often ridiculed, but nevertheless it is fast taking root in the minds of many and proving its value and merit. To perform the day's work joyfully and joyously may not be possible, in cases, without effort, but the fact is being realized more and more that it is very much worth while to develop the habit.

CHAMPIONSHIP EVENTS TO TAKE PLACE PREVIOUS TO GRAND AMERICAN CLASSIC

All-Around Titles To Be Shot For By Amateurs and Pros On August 19—Two World's Titles At Stake On August 20—Event At St. Louis

By Peter P. Carney.

While the Grand American Trap Shooting Handicap tournament doesn't get under way in St. Louis until the morning of Monday, August 21, there will be hundreds of clay target cracksmen in the Mound City several days previous to the beginning of the trap shooting classic to participate in the special events that will take place there.

For instance, on the nineteenth, there will be two all-around trap shooting championship events and on Sunday, the 20th, there will be two world's trap shooting titles up for decision. Three of these events are for trophies given by the Hercules Company and are known as the "E. C." trophies.

The first event on the tapis for the nineteenth is the all-around championship trophy competition, a new event. The shooters will fire at 50 targets from 19 yards; 50 targets from 20 yards; 50 targets from 22 yards, and 25 pairs from 16 yards. This event is for amateur shooters only. The other competition will be under the same conditions but will be open to all trap shooters. In the amateur competition a loving cup valued at $250, will be given the winning shot, while in the event open to all the trophy is valued at $100. There are half a dozen other trophies and cash prizes in each event.

Besides the double target championship—world title—between G. V. Dering, of Columbus, Wis., and George Nicolai, of Kansas City, Mo., Sunday, the final competition of the "E. C." cup, emblematic of the world's championship at clay targets will be shot. This match is open only to previous winners of the cup and will bring together R. O. Meikes, W. R. Crosby, Fred Gilbert, J. A. R. Elliott, C. A. Young, H. D. Freeman, J. S. Day and Homer Clark. The late George Lyon and the late E. D. Fulford were other winners of the cup.

The two all-around competitions and the Hazard trophy, which Nicolai and Dering are shooting for—are challenge events, the holder having to defend the title when challenged.

The day was known as "Ford Day," and was given over to athletic sports, balloon ascensions and a grand parade of live stock. In the horse racing event the "Baron," owned by Dr. H. E. Winters, of this city, captured a first prize after five heats and in competition with a field of seven starters.

The "Baron" experienced little difficulty in winning the [illegible] the horses finishing in the [illegible] order:

POSSIBILITY OF JACK MARTIN AS LEADER OF MILWAUKEE BASEBALL AGGREGATION

Harry Clark, Manager, Resigns to Benefit Team—Jim Thorpe Is Re-called—Jack Martin Making Errors.

It was announced yesterday that Harry Clark, manager of the Milwaukee, American Association, baseball team, has resigned his position because he believed that the team would get along better without him. Clark had led the squad to two pennants, but finished in the second division last year. This season the team is going along as poorly as the Athletics and is due to become much worse than it is at the present time. Clark was a third baseman and a fair fielder, but he could not hit. He has never been in the "big show" and experienced considerable difficulty in keeping those who had been in the major league under control. Much dissension has devastated the ranks of the club, and as a result of the unrest, Al Timme, president of the organization, has suffered a nervous breakdown.

And Johnny McGraw has not been aiding the cause any. John has just recalled Jim Thorpe, who has done what little hitting the team is credited with. With Thorpe gone or going, the logical choice for manager of the team is Jack Martin, of this city. Jack is playing shortstop for the team and has, at times, been acting manager. In fact, once or twice, he was acting manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, when Pat Moran was away from camp. He had entire charge of the second squad for the whole training period and was, on several occasions, acting manager of the Yankees. That he would make a capable leader for the Milwaukee team is the opinion of all who know him. But, Jack, you will have one patched up squad to lead to the finish.

In the last few games played Martin has not been setting the world on fire. He has been hitting, but he is falling down on easy plays. It is believed that the strain of being considered a managerial possibility is preying on his mind.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

There was no meeting of the City League moguls on Monday evening, the conference being postponed until next Monday evening, when President Walter C. Dobbins will be in charge. Mr. Dobbins is enjoying his vacation at the present time.

Keep it up, Yankees. If you do not get busy, those pesky Athletics will nose you out, Bill Donovan. To have that happen indicates that New York city is no longer on the map.

Many Plainfield fans are already writing congratulatory letters to "Uncle" Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn team. Following these letters, there will be a shower of requests for free passes to the World's Series, which, some fans believe, will take place in Brooklyn. It might be so, old top.

A constant reader of our sporting page wants to know how he can get a tryout with the Athletics. While we have a sneaking suspicion that the gentleman is indulging in a little joke, still it is our duty to answer his query. Therefore, we do solemnly state that there is only one way to get on the Mack team. Obtain a "tryout" with the Netherwoods and fail in the attempt to succeed. Connie Mack will have a scout out here in less time than it takes to toll. Connie is in possession of plenty of material of this calibre, but is constantly on the alert for more.

There is one team in this vicinity that has one of the most difficult pair of bookings to keep. That team is the Royal Giant outfit and the clan has to oppose the Dunellen and Tab squads next Saturday and Sunday respectively.

And, lest we forget. The manager of the Netherwood team is patiently awaiting that challenge from Managers Pete Simmons and William Kline of the Royal forces. Get together, gentlemen, get together.

Politics and baseball are two phases of life that are bound to keep Plainfielders occupied during the coming weeks. With the time for both the World's Series and the Presidential election rolling around, things are sure going to be exciting.

"Senor" Maiden can be seen daily rehearsing the part he expects to play on Sunday. "Senor" can see no reason why he should not repeat his feat of two or three weeks ago when he had the Tabs completely at his mercy.

We would put a little poetry in this column now and then, had we the ability to oringinate blank verse. Unfortunately, our muse does not work in the summer—in fact, we wouldn't work ourselves, if it was not absolutely necessary.

Would that we were Tom McNulty and were showered with queries. While we do not pretend to be any way near as able as Mr. McNulty, still we would like to have some fans send us many pieces of "filler" as Mr. McNulty gets. Still, every bit of so-called "filler" that Tom gets is very interesting.

GIBSON JOINS GIANTS.

George Gibson, since 1905 a catcher for the Pittsburg National League baseball club, was today released to the New York club of the same league. Barney Dreyfus, president of the club, in announcing the transfer, said he had asked waivers on Gibson, intending to give him his unconditional release, but the New York club needed a catcher to take the place of Raridon, who was injured last Saturday, and put in a claim for him. Gibson was considered one of the hardest workers in the league and established a record in 1909 by catching in 140 regularly played games.

TITLEHOLDER OUT.

Belated entries received yesterday brought the field for the Western open golf championship, which starts at the Blue Mound Country Club, in Milwaukee, on Thursday, up to eighty-three. The field is stronger than that of last year. Tom McNamara, the titleholder, is not entered.

MATCH ARRANGED.

Elmer W. Loving, professional at Quaker Ridge, and "Willie" Macfarlane, of Hudson River Country Club, are matched to play thirty-six holes over the Mahopac Golf Club, of Lake Mahopac, N. Y., on Sunday, August 27. There will be something like $100 for the winner and $50 for the loser.

TO DEFEND TITLE.

Miss Elaine Rosenthal, of Chicago, announced today that she would defend her title in the women's Western golf championship, which is to be decided at Kent Country Club, Grand Rapids, Mich., on August 21 to 25.

A Moneyless Man.

A man without money is a body without a soul, a walking death, a specter that frightens every one. His countenance is sorrowful and his conversation languishing and tedious. If he calls upon an acquaintance he never finds him at home, and if he opens his mouth to speak he is interrupted every moment so that he may not have a chance to finish his discourse, which it is feared may end with his asking for money. He is avoided like a person infected with disease and is regarded as an incumbrance to the earth. Want wakes him up in the morning, and misery accompanies him to bed at night. The ladies discover that he is an awkward booby, landlords believe that he lives upon air, and if he wants anything from a tradesman he is asked for cash before delivery.—Bruno's Weekly.

Genius and Mediocrity.

Corneille did not speak correctly the language of which he was such a master. Descartes was silent in mixed society. Themistocles, when asked to play on a lute, said: "I cannot fiddle, but I can make a little village into a great city." Addison was unable to converse in company. Vergil was heavy colloquially. La Fontaine was coarse and stupid when surrounded by men. The Countess of Pembroke had been often heard to say of Chaucer that his silence was more agreeable to her than his conversation. Socrates, celebrated for his written orations, was so timid that he never ventured to speak in public. Hence it has been remarked, "Mediocrity can talk; it is for genius to observe."

The Louis Styles.

It was the French King Louis XI. who invented gold lace, and it was Louis XIV. who ordered all the silk upholsteries of the palace done in white with figures of gold and blue and a touch of red. The louisine silks are named after him, and all the French kings of the name of Louis have had their names brought down to posterity through the invention of some article of dress, whether it be a Louis Quinze heel or a Louis Seize coat, while to Louis Quatorze belongs the honor of a cuff and a hat.—London Telegraph.

High Tribute.

"Don't you think Miss Sweetthing's complexion is perfectly lovely?" inquired the infatuated youth.

"I do, indeed," replied the cynical young woman. "In fact, I have told her several times that that shade harmonizes best with the present color of her hair."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

NEEDS OF UNION IN ROAD WORK

Local Men Appear Before Commission On Legislation.

MR. DEPEW A SPEAKER

He Says European Engineers Build Good Roads—Advocates Heavier Tax On Automobiles and Other Vehicles.

The needs of Plainfield and Union county in the matter of road improvement were well set forth at the hearing before the New Jersey Commission on Road Legislation held Tuesday in the rooms of the Newark Board of Trade. Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, president of the Plainfield-Union Water Company; County Engineer J. L. Bauer and R. Henry Depew, president of the State Trust Company, of this city, were prominent among those who appeared before the commission by invitation and made addresses.

A noticeable feature of the meeting was the absence of freeholders. They were expressly invited to attend the meeting, according to Chairman John W. Herbert, but none showed up. This led to the statement by Commissioner Horace A. Bonnell that there was a lack of harmony between the commission and the freeholders.

Delegations from Essex, Bergen, Hudson, Passaic, Sussex and Union attended the meeting.

Union county road problems constituted the theme of Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, president of the Plainfield-Union Water Company. He told how repairs in Union county had grown, in a few years, from modest beginnings to an annual charge of $100,000. He warned that the State authorities would go slowly in building roads which would create an enormous bonded debt. "It was improving the roads of Elizabeth," he said, "that forced that city into bankruptcy."

The cost of a really good road was, Mr. Bregen declared, prohibitive and he asserted that engineers had yet to discover a permanent road pavement. Even concrete roads were rapidly going to pieces when laid by the average contractor.

"Well, if Americans can't build good roads, let us send to Europe and get engineers who can," said R. Henry Depew, president of the State Trust Company of Plainfield, who advocated that heavier taxes be levied on automobiles and that horse-drawn vehicles also be taxed for road maintenance.

George E. Blakeslee, of Jersey City, president of the Crescent Automobile Company, emphasized the need of trunk line roads. The bond bugaboo was not so bad as might be made out, because 73 per cent. of the present income from motor vehicle taxes is being spent in road building, whereas all of this fund is available for road upkeep.

"Use your credit," Mr. Blakeslee said, "and you will go forward. That is what you do in your private business. Why can't you do it in public business?"

By 1925, Mr. Blakeslee averred, the motor vehicle tax would amount to $2,500,000 annually. He advocated the adoption of the Egan bill.

Jacob L. Bauer, of Elizabeth, engineer for Union county, said that engineers were not at fault in the break-down of roads under automobile traffic, as that had brought in an element unforeseen when they built present roads. During the last four years traffic over the roads of the State had quadrupled.

In his review of the highway situation Chairman Herbert said of Union county:

"Taking up now our last county, we see that Union ranks sixteenth, with an estimated mileage of 728.48 miles, 52.9 per cent. of which are improved. Her 414.47 miles of improved roads place her ninth on the list in point of mileage. The balance of roads 251.01 are graded and 117 miles are unimproved.

"Of the improved roads, 367,964 miles were built by the county unaided, while 46,506 miles were constructed by State aid, the State contributing $219,868.49 and the county spending $424,291.40, making a total spent for State aid roads of $644,149.89. This is an average of $9,489.12 a mile for these roads. Where the county stands in the matter of money contributions from the State has not yet been determined.

"Turning to repair work, we find that the county herself has spent in eight year $325,704.90, the tenth largest amount by the counties and 3.1 per cent. of the whole amount spent by them, and occupies the tenth position also in aid from the motor vehicle fund with contributions of $155,076.99, or 5 per cent. of the entire fund. Totaling the two sums places the county ninth.

"Union county is fifth in the State in matter of population, twentieth in area, fourth in taxable values. In contrast with the other counties taken up it is clear that, with a total of $374,945.48 given her by the State for road construction and repairs, Union county has fared very well."

DR. DUNDON IS BACK.

GIVE INFORMATION TO MUNICIPALITIES

Acting Mayor Blatz Notified of New Bureau of State League.

Mayor pro-tem Francis J. Blatz, of Plainfield, has been notified that the New Jersey State League of Municipalities has established a bureau of information at Princeton University. Claude H. Anderson has been placed in charge, a preliminary appropriation of $1,000 has been fixed for the purchase of books and all details have been arranged for useing the bureau. This means that any member municipality desiring information on any subject need only address the director of the bureau, stating the matter desired and the information will be promptly furnished without expense.

It is pointed out that such a method avoids duplication of effort, as it has been shown that often a municipality may be seeking information on some subject, not knowing that full information thereon has already been collected and was available, had the municipality known where to secure it.

Under this plan it will become possible for a municipality to secure information regarding municipal plants, light, water, etc., sewer, bulkhead and other construction, pavements, garbage collection and on practically all other subjects appertaining to municipalities.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

KEEP YOUR CHILDREN HOME.

ONE DEATH, AND SINGLE NEW CASE

Plainfield Section Shows a Decrease In Paralysis Epidemic.

PATIENTS DOING WELL

Some Will Be Crippled For Life—New Warning Tells of Symptoms and Urges Prompt Communication With Health Board.

One death and one new case was the reported advance of the infantile paralysis plague in this city today. After being sick since Monday, Charles Eggleston, aged 2 years and 8 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eggleston, of 309 Plainfield avenue, died yesterday. Although he had been ill several days the youth did not show any of the symptoms of paralysis until a short time before his death. The boy is the second colored child in the city to die of infantile paralysis, the Arrindell boy dying on Tuesday.

The new case that was reported to the Board of Health office this morning was that of Leon Cantor, the 2-year-old son of Abraham Cantor, of 306 East Fourth street. The Cantor grocery store has been closed until it is fumigated and all other precautions have been taken.

Reports from Scotch Plains, Fanwood and Watchung showed that there were no new cases of the pleague and those youngsters having the disease were all doing nicely. The Schenck and Lees children in Scotch Plains showed a decided improvement over their previous condition, and word came from Watchung that the Ratti boy showed only slight effects of paralysis.

The 25-year-old Brooklyn girl, Clara Petri, who was stricken while visiting at Fanwood, is about the same and officials at the Elizabeth Isolation Hospital say she has an even chance for recovery. The Palcanis girl, who was the first one in Fanwood to be stricken with the disease, is practically recovered, although she will be crippled for the remainder of her life.

A new pamphlet contains this warning:

"The germ of infantile paralysis is present in discharges from the nose, throat and bowels of those ill with infantile paralysis, even in the cases that do not go on to paralysis. It may also be present in the nose and throat of healthy children from the same family. Do not let your children play with children who have just been sick or who have, or recently have had, colds, summer complaint, etc. For this reason children from a family in which there is a case of infantile paralysis are forbidden to leave their home. If you hear of their doing so report it at once to the Department of Health."

CHIEF DEMAREST VISITS CHIEF DOANE FOR DAY

Fire Chief Doane had as his guest yesterday Battalion Chief Demarest, of the New York Fire Department. He is in charge of the repair shop of the New York department and has charge of every vehicle all over the city. Mr. Demarest praised Chief Doane for the efficiency of the local department, but gave the view that it could successfully use more apparatus and men.

NO FIRES IN CITY FOR THE PAST TWO WEEKS

The local fire department has not answered a call since August 3—two weeks ago today—when a small blaze caused by old rags was put out with little damage. The record is not the longest on file at headquarters.

In speaking of the absence of fires to a Daily Press reporter this morning Chief Doane said he thought that fire prevention had been helped considerably by his crusade recently against violators of the fire ordinance, because people were more careful when they saw residents fined. He also added that he hoped there would not be any more during the hot weather, at least.

HORSE ROAMED, FINED $10.

Antonio Colucci, of North avenue, was fined $10 this morning by Judge William G. De Meza, for allowing his animal to roam about the East End of the city. Colucci's horse did considerable damage to gardens among the Italian section, and several days ago one roamed into an adjoining yard and knocked down and seriously hurt a little girl.

CHILD KILLED OVER A LOAF OF BREAD

Bayonne Father Tells of Throwing Plate at Wife and Striking Girl.

A loaf of bread is blamed for the death Tuesday of 2-year-old Anna Brown, of 640 Avenue C, Bayonne, for which her father, Benjamin Brown, 42, was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of manslaughter, yesterday forenoon. Brown, who was arrested yesterday morning by Detectives Russell and Lee, admitted his guilt before Recorder William J. Cain when he was arraigned in the police court. He was held without bail.

According to a statement from the police Brown declared the trouble between him and his wife, which resulted in the child's death began over a loaf of bread.

Brown had sent his wife for a loaf of rye bread and she returned with white bread, the police say, which started a quarrel, resulting in Brown throwing a plate at Mrs. Brown. Mrs. Brown dodged it, and it struck squarely on the infant's head, inflicting a deep wound.

JUMPED FROM MOVING TRAIN--IS IN HOSPITAL

The condition of Edmund Hewitt, who was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Tuesday afternoon from Dunellen, continues to be better and it is expected that within a few days he will be able to leave the institution. Hewitt was bound for Dunellen from Philadelphia to inspect some work which the Levgar Structural Company is doing for the firm of the Midvale Steel Company. When the express on which he rode did not stop at the Dunellen station, it is said by spectators that Hewitt jumped off the moving vehicle at the Grove street crossing. He suffered cuts about the head and a broken right arm. He was removed to the local hospital immediately afterward.

STRIKE CALLED AMONG NEW HAVEN MACHINISTS

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 17.—A strike of 5,000 machinists at the plant of the Winchester Repeating Arms was called by the union organizers today but only about 200 men went out. The following statement, signed by all the largest employers in this city, was issued, "We the undersigned employers in New Haven have given careful and impartial consideration to the living and working conditions in this city."

NEW JERSEY FARMERS ON A WAVE OF PROSPERITY

Mullica Hill, August 17.—The rather unusual combination of big crops and high prices has lifted farmers of South Jersey to the crest of one of the biggest waves of prosperity that has swept this agricultural region for many a season.

Farm products of nearly every kind are high in price this year, and the big prices have not been caused by any local shortage in crops, as the yields of the fields and orchards generally are as abundant as ever. The early tomato season has just closed, with all tomato shipping records shattered and new high marks reached in prices. This year was the most prosperous in the history of tomato growing in this part of the State, and many growers have stowed away modest profits, having cleared anywhere from $150 to $300 an acre from this crop.

The digging of white potatoes is well under way and prices for these have soared to the highest point in four years. It is estimated that the crop will run well over 5,000 carloads, in addition to the several thousands of bushels that will be carted direct to city markets by autos and wagons. Just now the prices are hanging around the point of $3 a barrel, and any tendency of the market to drop below that mark will result in the growers stopping their digging of the tubers until the price comes back again, as they are sure it will.

Sweet corn is selling a third higher than it did a year ago, and other products are correspondingly high. Cantaloupes are now selling at $1.25 a basket, while last season they were plentiful at 40 cents. The peach, pear and apple crops are plentiful and prices are firm for the season, with the prospect of their getting better as the season advances and the quality becomes better.

STATE REUNION OF ELKS.

Hoquaim, Wash., Aug. 17.—Gayly decorated in festoons of purple and white, this city today extended a royal welcome to the hundreds of Elks and their friends who have assembled here for the annual reunion of their State association. To-day was devoted largely to the reception of the visitors. During the remainder of the week there will be a succession of festivities for the entertainment of the delegates.

WILSON ARMED WITH BIG CLUB

Does Not Intend to Permit Strike Without Drastic Efforts to Stop It.

SOME DECISION TODAY

Railroad Managers to Hear Final Appeal of President—Statement to Public Threatened If They Are Not Reasonable.

RAILROAD HEADS GATHER.

Chicago, August 17.—In response to President Wilson's call to Washington, President Aishton, of the Cicago Northwestern; President Ripley, of the Atchison, and President Markham of the Illinois Central, left on a train over the Pennsylvania Railroad at 12:40 this afternoon.

Boston, August 17.—President J. J. Hurtis, of the Boston and Maine Railroad, went to Washington this afternoon in response to President Wilson's summons.

Washington, August 17.—President Wilson will appeal to the American people if such action is necessary in order to prevent the gigantic railroad strike. This is the club that he is holding over the heads of the railroad managers and the brotherhood leaders, and it gives him the whip hand. If they refused to agree to reasonable terms he will make the public a statement to include a stenographic report of his conferences with both factions, and will frankly state just where he thinks responsibility for the tie-up of American commerce should be placed.

All parties agree that this is the decisive day in the controversy, and that it will be settled one way or other before night. Railroad men have been called to confer at the White House this afternoon, when they will be asked to accept the eight-hour plan. If they refuse President Wilson will appeal to the highest railroad authorities to the directors and presidents of the corporations, and to the brotherhood heads before taking any drastic action.

Although the railroad managers have been in constant touch with the presidents of the companies since the beginning of the negotiations in Washington, President Wilson believes that a personal appeal to them will be effective. President Wilson is also determined that they either accept the proposal he has made or give specific reasons why they reject it.

The President's position is:

The eight-hour day has been adjusted to less arduous and technical employments; if it cannot be applied to railroading it is time for the country to find out why.

Casting aside technical questions of overtime and specially adjusted wage rates, let the railroads get an eight-hour labor schedule under way at once, leaving it to an impartial Federal commission, to be appointed by the President under existing or special legislation, to learn within five months to what extent it is impracticable or unfair to either side.

FELL INTO PIT WHILE WORKING ON TRESTLE

Charles Franshook, of Chestnut street and South avenue, Dunellen, is a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital, suffering from bruises about the body received in an accident this morning. Mr. Franshook fell off a trestle into a pit while at work in the railroad yards in Dunellen early this morning and his condition was such that his removal to the hospital was necessitated. His condition this afternoon was reported as improved.

Harry Huff took as his guests early this morning John Powers, Walter Crowley and Charles Terry.

MISS TRAYNOR WEDS HENRY BRYNIARSKI

Popular Young Couple Married at St. Mary's Church Last Night.

Miss Mary C. Traynor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Traynor, of 117 Oxford place, became the bride of Henry J. Bryniarski, son of the late Bartholomey and Mrs. Bryniarski, of Duer street, the borough, at a wedding solemnized at 6 o'clock last evening in St. Mary's church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph S. MacDonald, and was witnessed by a large number of relatives and friends of the young couple.

The bride, who was given away in marriage by her father, wore a gown of bridal satin trimmed with lace and a tulle veil caught up with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Sarah Traynor, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, while the Misses Marguerita Traynor, Helen A. Bryniarski, of this city and Miss Lillian Bradley, of Brooklyn, acted as bridesmaids. All four wore frocks of white net, with handkerchief pointed overskirts, trimmed with pink and blue ribbon. Each wore a picture hat of net and ribbon and carried an arm bouquet of pink asters.

Albert F. Bryniarski, a brother of the groom, was the best man, and Daniel McCormack and James Traynor, the ushers.

As the bridal party entered the church, the Lohengrin wedding march was sung by Miss Mary Donnolly and played by Miss Mary Smith, the organist.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and was attended by guests from this city, Brooklyn, Newark, Jersey City and Dunellen. The bride was the recipient of scores of beautiful gifts, among the number being cut glass, linen, silverware, etc.

Both Mr. Bryniarski and his bride hold a large circle of friends in the city and borough. The former is connected with the Proctor playhouse of this city. After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in this city.

LATZKO SHOWS BERRIES IN HIS STORE WINDOW

When it was announced a few days ago that Morris Latzko, the Somerset street horticulturist, was still eating strawberries picked from his own garden and that he expected to be eating them on Christmas, many of Mr. Latzko's friends became incredulous and stated that they were from the "show-me" State.

Therefore, it was with surprise that these friends glanced into the Latzko store window this morning, to read this sign: "Do you like strawberries?" This sign still safely reposes over a dish containing about a dozen of the finest looking strawberries ever exhibited in this vicinity. Mr. Latzko is today explaining how the feat was accomplished.

ALLIES WIN IN SOMME ASSAULT

Carry Three Miles of German Trenches At Important Point.

DEADLY BAYONET USED

Petrograd Admits Russian Offensive Has Been Checked—Germans Stubbornly Defend Lemberg From Czar's Armies.

Paris, Aug. 17.—French and British troops in a smashing combined offensive against the advancing Rus- totaling three miles in length and in one place a third of a mile in depth on the Somme front, according to today's advices. In impetuous bayonet charges the Allied infantry captured his desperate effort.

The gains of the Allies in this fighting are the most important made on the French front in weeks. They practically assure the occupation of Maurepas, where the French already have a foothold, seriously threatening the village of Combles, and put the French nearer the village of Berney, to the south.

No greater assault has been made along the Somme since the initial onslaught of the Allied armies which began the great battle seven weeks ago.

Russian Advance Checked.

London, Aug. 17.—General Count von Bothmer, commanding the Teuton armies defending Lemberg, today continued his furious counter ogensive against the advancing Russian hosts. The fate of the Galician capital depends on the outcome of his desdesperate effort.

The Czar has been checked, Petrograd admits, but the Russian commander has not been forced to give back ground gained, and on other parts of the eastern front the smashing drive of the Muscovites continues.

Bothmer is launching his counter blows principally in the centre, on the west bank of the Zlota Lipa, but has been unable to prevent the Russians from advancing further toward the important railway city of Bretsiani (Brzezany), forty-six miles southeast of Lemberg. Petrograd has announced officially that the region to the south of this point has been occupied by the Russians.

Scotch Plains and Fanwood

MRS. ROBERT WALPOLE TO CELEBRATE HER EIGHTY-THIRD BIRTHDAY NEXT SUNDAY

The wife of Robert Walpole, who last week observed his eighty-fourth birthday, Mrs. Robert Walpole, one of Scotch Plains' oldest residents, will celebrate her eighty-third birthday next Sunday. Dangerously ill and confined to her bed for the past two weeks, Mrs. Walpole is still optimistic and expects to live to be 100 years old.

Born in Halifax, England, in the year 1832, Mrs. Walpole spent her earlier days in the same British town that her husband did. Mr. Walpole at the age of 7 sailed for America with word that he would return for his childhood friend.

Married to Anthony Dobbins, an Englishman, shortly before, she, too, sailed for this country when she was 23 years old. When he met her at the pier "Bob" Walpole had his first intimation that she had married. She settled with her husband in Scotch Plains, where Mr. Dobbins was a wheelwright and Mr. Walpole a blacksmith.

Shortly before he went to the Civil War, Mr. Walpole married, but during that time the Dobbins family moved to Newark, so that the two sons, Anthony and Thomas, might have a better time to succeed. There Mrs. Dobbins took a keen interest in the First Baptist church and helped build that edifice. She is a charter member of the Christian Endeavor Society and each year the members come to Scotch Plains to spend a day with her.

Shortly after Mr. Walpole's first wife died Mr. Dobbins also passed away, and after a courtship of nearly ten years Mr. Walpole and Mrs. Dobbins were married eleven years ago, when he was 73 and she 72. Since that time they have lived in the little cottage on Front street with Miss Harriet Dobbins.

PLENTY OF TALENT FOR BASEBALL TEAM

Lack of Players Cannot Be Excuse For No Team In Scotch Plains.

The majority of towns throughout the country today each boast of a baseball team, but although it was the best supporter of one for miles around a few years ago, Scotch Plains cannot even say it owns a part of one now. The lack of a team cannot be laid to lack of material because there are enough men playing on other teams to start a league here.

Behind the bat either Eugene Lidgate or Frank Hand could handle anything that came their way. Lidgate is now catching for the Media team of the Delaware County League and Hand is managing the Washington, N. J., team and doing the catching. Frank Lee could bear the brunt of the twirling, with several others to help him out. He is now playing with the Tabs. Tony DeNitz, also of the Tabs, and Henry Albert, a Hope Chapel man, would have sure jobs, and Joe Albert, Harry Flannery, Squire Wright and George Allen are left from the team of former days. Then, too, a number of the youngsters would have plenty of chance to show their ability.

FLANDERS ESTATE TO BE CUT INTO BUILDING LOTS

A move that will probably result in one of the biggest realty booms Scotch Plains has experienced in years has been started under the guidance of several local business men. The Flanders estate on East Front street has been purchased and after the house is moved the property will be cut up into building lots for sale.

Although the lots will have only a twenty-foot frontage, it is said that the purchasers will buy under the agreement of taking at least two. The estate covers approximately five acres and will be cut into over 100 lots.

WORK ON SCHOOL ADDITION WAS STARTED YESTERDAY

Work was started by contractors yesterday on the building of an eight-room addition to School No. 1 and the making of a number of repairs on the main structure. Work will be pushed forward as fast as possible so as to have the improvements finished as soon as possible.

Mobus Brothers, of Plainfield, are doing the excavating for the new structure and as soon as the cellar is dug William Pangborn's Son will start laying the foundation.

Work on the alterations to the new building have already progressed a considerable way. One of the principal improvements will be the installing of fireproof stairs in place of the wooden ones.

LOCAL SCHOOLS WILL NOT OPEN ON SCHEDULED TIME

With the development of three new cases of infantile paralysis during the past week, making a total of six cases in all, it is now certain that the local schools will not open for the fall term on schedule time. It depends partly on the steps taken by neighboring towns and partly on whether or not there are any more cases.

The move of the State Board of Education in asking local boards to co-operate with the health authorities practically makes it certain the schools will not open until late next month.

REPAIRING FRONT STREET.

The Township Committee is getting ready to repair the damage to the roads in Scotch Plains that were damaged by the recent flood. Weldon Brothers will shortly start work on the filling of holes and resurfacing the roadbed of Front street from Park avenue to Terril road. The work will cost in the vicinity of $1,000.

SCHOOL QUESTION STILL UNSETTLED

Factions May Appeal to Legislature For a New District.

Although they turned out to the last one and voted solidly against the proposition, the residents of Fanwood Borough and the Willow Grove section of the township cannot stop the Fanwood Township Board of Education from building an eight-room addition to School No. 1 and making other repairs to the main building that will cost in the vicinity of $50,000. Such was the information advanced by counsel after he had been engaged by a number of men interested in the borough to sift the matter to the bottom.

Now that they see nothing can be done along that line it is more than probable that efforts will be made to get some Assemblyman to introduce a bill in the Legislature setting Fanwood Borough and the Willow Grove section of the township off into a separate school district. Fanwood and Scotch Plains,-the latter being in the township, have been at odds over the school question for the past five years, but it is said upon reliable authority that the Board of Education or Scotch Plains residents would not oppose any steps to form another school district.

FATHER M'GRATH BID FAREWELL TO PARISHIONERS

The many people that attended the dance and social at the Stony Hill parish house last night were greatly surprised when Father McGrath, pastor of the Stony Hill Catholic church for the past three years, announced that he was leaving the local parish, as told exclusively in the Daily Press last night. Father McGrath leaves today or tomorrow for his new parish at Hackettstown, and Father Waldron will arrive from New Brunswick in time to take charge of the services at the church Sunday.

BOARD OF EDUCATION WILL SELL SCHOOL BONDS AUG. 25

Now that the contracts have been awarded for the building of an eight-room addition to School No. 1, the Fanwood Township Board of Education will hold a special meeting in School No. 1 on Friday night, August 25, for the purpose of selling to the highest bidder $48,000 of an authorized issue of $50,000 in bonds.

The bonds will be dated July 1, 1916, and will be numbered from 1 to 96, inclusive, and will each be of $500 denomination. The bonds will bear interest at 4½ per cent. and run from 1917 to 1936, inclusive.

CLARK FUNERAL AT 2.30 ON SATURDAY

Aged Justice Was Veteran of Civil War But Never Joined the G. A. R.

Funeral services over the body of Justice Joseph Clark, who died at his home on Front street yesterday afternoon, will be held from the residence at 2:30 p. m. Saturday, and will be in charge of the Rev. Calvin Hare, pastor of the Baptist church. Interment will be in the Baptist cemetery.

Besides his wife he leaves the following children: Fred, Clinton and George Clark, all living in Scotch Plains; Mrs. Addie Smalley and Mrs. Fred Clauson, who live at home; Mrs. L. C. Ackerson, of Keyport, and Mrs. P. M. Smith, of Lincoln. A number of grandchildren also survive him.

Although he joined Company A, First New Jersey Volunteers, at the beginning of the Civil War, Mr. Clark did not see much of fighting in the War of the Rebellion because of sickness. He was, however, at Harrison's Landing when the Union forces had to retreat. Illness caused him to spend the better part of a year in the hospital and at last he received an honorable discharge for physical disability. Mr. Clark never joined the G. A. R. because he thought he was not really a veteran, but the members of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., expect to attend the services.

After he was discharged from the army he returned to Scotch Plains and for a time was painter. After a time he gave up the business and since has carried on a dairy business and farmed in a small way while serving as justice.

MAURICE HALL CAUGHT AUTO THIEVES ON BORDER

Maurice Hall, of the New York militia, has again gotten himself into print, and this time it was all in his line of duty. While he was on guard duty several weeks ago he saw a large touring car approaching that resembled one that had been stolen in Camp McAllen some time before. Calling to the guardsman on the adjoining post, he gave chase and caught the fellows driving the machine.

Hall's nine months' experience in the regular army, which ended about a year ago, is standing him in good stead now and he is doing his work with a precision and regularity so much better than the other militiamen of the Seventh Regiment, N. Y. N. G., that he is gaining the favor of the officers.

TOWNSHIP BUDGET FOR 1917 WILL AMOUNT TO $9,700

At the last meeting of the Fanwood township committee a tentative budget for 1917 was adopted and will be presented to the voters at the coming election to vote on. It remains in practically all cases the same as last year, there being only a few minor changes.

The total amount is $9,700, divided as follows: General expense, $500; repairing of street, $3,000; repairing of roads, $3,700; repairing of sidewalks, $300; water supply, $780; poor account, $590; maintenace of fire department, $200; maintenance of police, $500; maintenance of library, $300.

It will be recalled that the father was arrested by Officer Shugars a week ago today when he became extremely excited over the fact that he was unable to get an officer to serve a warrant for his son's apprehension in the time he thought he ought to get one to do so, and subsequently walked the street exclaiming that he would take the law in his own hands and kill his son.

No trace has been obtained of the culprits who broke into the toolhouse of Contractor Bloom, of Plainfield, who is erecting a number of houses in the vicinity of the Levgar Structural Company's plant, and stole $50 worth of tools.

William Shiff, arrested by Marshal Isaac V. Smalley yesterday afternoon for peddling dry goods, was released under a suspended sentence when arraigned before Recorder David S. Campbell this morning. In releasing Shiff the court said: "It is close to September 1, when new licenses must be taken out, and I deem it too much of a hardship for you to take out a license for two weeks at the same rate as for a year, and so I will give you until September 1 to take out one, but you must desist from peddling in the meantime."

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Kenney, of 107 Dunellen avenue, entertained about twenty guests at their home Tuesday evening. The program of entertainment included games, dancing and music, followed by the serving of refreshments at a late hour.

Health Inspector-in-Chief G. Sumner Smith said this morning that there is no truth in the story in circulation to the effect that there is a case of infantile paralysis on North avenue. He said that there are no more cases or suspects in the borough.

TRIED FOR FAILURE TO REPORT PARALYSIS CASES

Trenton, August 17.—Charged with violating the law requiring the prompt reporting of communicable diseases, Dr. G. F. Anginy, of Avon and James H. Butcher, of Freehold, secretary of the Board of Health of Howell township, were given a preliminary hearing before Director Jacob C. Price, of the State Department of Health Tuesday afternoon. Both were alleged to have failed to report infantile paralysis cases for a period of more than two weeks.

Under the law, physicians are required to report to local health boards cases of communicable diseases within twelve hours. The law requires that local health authorities shall make weekly reports of such diseases to the State Health Department, which is also authorized to demand daily reports when the circumstances seem to warrant. Such a demand was made shortly after the outbreak of the infantile paralysis epidemic. The penalty for violation of these requirements is fixed at $50.

Dr. Price will report the result of his investigations at the meeting of the State Board of Health to be held September 5. It will then rest with the board to determine whether suit shall be brought against Dr. Anginy and Mr. Butcher for violating the law. In the case of Mr. Butcher the commission was apparently the result of oversight or misunderstanding.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Florence E. Baumberger, a Columbia University master of arts, who has specialized in the Teachers' College, has been made an instructor in the pedagogical department of Johns Hopkins University, the first woman to win a teaching place on the Johns Hopkins faculty. She will give instruction in elementary education and supervision and will conduct investigations in the field.

Shadow Lawn, the stately Presidential summer mansion in New Jersey, has lost some of the gravity of its lofty halls and sweeping lawns with the coming of little Miss Ellen McAdoo, the President's granddaughter, and her tiny niece, little Miss Martin, child of Secretary McAdoo's daughter, who are at present guests of the President and Mrs. Wilson.

The only woman commercial editor in Canada lives in Winnipeg. She is Miss Cora E. Hind, yet young in years, who began her newspaper career as a "country correspondent" but today occupies an important editorial chair on one of the largest dailies in the Dominion, the Winnipeg Free Press. Miss Hind is the only woman who has ever crossed the pit floor of the Winnipeg Stock Exchange. She knows as much about markets as any New York plunger, her knowledge having been won by hard work and deep concentration on a subject generally foreign and distasteful to the feminine mind.

Who are the richest women in the world? Contrary to what one might at first hand conclude, these women are not found in the United States, and even when Hetty Green was alive, with her $100,000,000 and the title of "world's richest woman" frequently bestowed upon her, it would seem that Uncle Sam must yield the financial palm here to some other country. Bertha Krupp (Baroness von Bohlen), owner of Krupp's immense gunworks at Essen, is by some authorities reputed to be worth twice the sum attributed to Hetty Green. The earnings of the vast centre of destruction which is now Germany's very staff of life in the war, have reached fabulous sums during the past two years, and the already staggering fortune of this German Rockefeller in petticoats is said to have increased by a third. Another millionairess of Rockefellerian size is Senora Cusino, of Chili, owner of silver, coal and copper mines, whose "little pile" is estimated at $200,000,000. Mexico also boasts of an immensely wealthy woman, Senora Creel, whose income is a million a year. As to American rich women, it is estimated that the tidy sum of $1,000,000,000 is in the hands of women in the United States "in their own right," and if statistics are true forty-five women of great wealth in the country entirely manage and hold the purse strings of more than $720,000,000. Mrs. Mary Harriman, Mrs. Russell Sage and Mrs. Annie Wightman Walker, of Philadelphia, are generally estimated women of almost limitless wealth, though their fortunes are never described in such staggering figures as these tales told of foreign wealth. These may be cases where distance lends body to the purse, and American feminine fortunes possibly are described abroad with the same lavish use of millions on paper.

Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, president of the National Association Opposed to Woman's Suffrage, is a native of Hartford and a resident of New York. She studied at Vassar, is a widow, and has been for a score of years identified with the movement of conservative women who do not wish the old order to pass. She is editor of the Woman's Protest, an anti-suffrage publication. Mrs. Dodge, aside from her anti-suffrage activities, has done considerable sociological work in New York city. She has been president of the Federation of Day Nurseries and of the Needlework Guild of New York, working in many of her efforts for the betterment of working women side by side and along the same lines as some of the most passionate militants in the suffragist camp. Her party, says Mrs. Dodge, is the true feminist party and the anti-suffrage opposition the real movement for the welfare of woman, her suffrage sisters being mistaken in their efforts and not true feminists. She has been bitter in her denunciation of the favorable stand taken by Mr. Hughes on suffrage. Mr. Hughes stands for suffrage, she says, with the Machiavelian design of eliminating the feminist party and is like the woman who marries a man to reform him. In satisfying a discontented minority of American women, she esteems, he has arrayed himself against a resentful majority.

WAS NOT SOBER AS A JUDGE, POLICEMAN SAYS

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 17.—Whether Judge Edward T. Wade, of the Chicago municipal court was as sober as a judge when he was overhauled by a park policeman while returning from the Hawthorne races in his automobile, is one of several disputed points that is expected to be cleared up in court. Another point in dispute is whether Podiceman James D. Murphy, the officer who made the arrest, was guilty of disorderly conduct, in taking the magistrate into custody. The case against Judge Wade, as well as the case against the policeman, came up for settlement today before Judge Tarry C. Moran in the speeders' court.

Judge Wade was arrested by the policeman while the Judge was returning from the race track in the company of two women, one of whom is said to be the wife of a South Halsted street saloonkeeper. The policeman charged the Judge with disorderly conduct, speeding, and with operating an automobile while intoxicated. The policeman declares, moreover, that when he stopped the judge's machine and served him with a summons, the Judge told him who he was and tore up the summons. The policeman insists that he was courteous, but insistent that Judge Wade should understand the law was made for judges as well as other citizens, and he had no choice in the matter.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headache of any kind is caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood through the lymph ducts, excite the heart, which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides, which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast for awhile will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath, or have colds indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

Results are quick, and it is claimed that those who continue to flush out the stomach, liver and bowels every morning never have any headache or know a miserable moment.

20 OUT OF 1,000 STAGE STRUCK GIRLS SUCCEED

William A. Page, the Chicago critic and publicity writer, says in the September Woman's Home Companion in an article about stage-struck women:

"And what becomes of them? Caught in the eddies of frivolity, many of them temporarily abandon their stage ambitions in the kaleidoscopic life on Broadway. Others live in hall bedrooms, boil eggs over a gas jet, and waste their young lives in the fruitless pursuit of a rainbow which they never find, only sooner or later to return home sadly, and settle down to forget their stage ambitions. Others study, economize, sincerely strive for engagements, possibly get small roles with some obscure company, and start it on a career which will be filled with many, many disappointments. And of the thousands who came so bravely to the front last year, how many still remain in the lists? Not counting those who may have gone into musical comedy, perhaps a score still cherish the shrine of Marlowe and of Adam. For the rest, oblivion."

LOCAL PEOPLE WILL GO TO CONCERTS IN NEWARK

Who or what to engage for the final concert in the series of Robert Treat Hotel musical receptions which are to be held in the beautiful ballroom of the new Newark hotel this winter, is puzzling the management. Artists have been engaged for the first five concerts only and there still remains one affair for which no attraction has been decided upon. This date, March 19, was held open so that if the subscription warranted it a still greater attraction than at first counted upon might be employed if possible. The invitations have been going out continually, it is reported, for the past two weeks, and already the checks and orders are so numerous that the management has stated that it is ready to close a contract for the final concert if an attraction big enough and still suitable can be found.

During the past week, following a letter sent out to various managers throughout the country, numerous attractions have been urged upon the local manager. Such artists as Caruso, McCormack and Tetrazzini have been suggested, and such notable attractions as the Diaghileff Ballet, which caused such a furore at the Metropolitan Opera House last spring; Pavlowa and her company, Mary Garden and her company, Geraldine Farrar, etc., have all been proposed.

The decision, Manager Allen stated last night, will rest entirely with the public.

The present list of patrons includes Newark's most prominent men and women, as well as a large number of persons well known in Montclair, Plainfield, Westfield, Chatham, Morristown, Mendham, Bernardsville, Glen Ridge, Rahway, Jersey City, Bayonne, Paterson, Passaic and other nearby cities, as well as New York. Most of the replies to the invitations recently sent out are being received from Maine. Some orders have come from Canada, and the White Mountains; and a very large number from the New Jersey summer resorts.

JOHNS MEET AT EATON.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 17.—"Johns," hundreds of them, big and little, old and young, fat and lean, gathered for their annual picnic and outing today at Riverside Park, in the village of Eaton, on the banks of the Mississinewa river. Anybody whose name is John is welcome and at liberty to join the Johns' Association. Many sections of the country were represented. As has been customary for many years, a special invitation was extended to John D. Rockefeller to attend the reunion.

As usual, the little town of Eaton made it a holiday and most of the business houses were closed for the day. The festivities of the day were opened with a parade of members, headed by a band from Muncie. In the afternoon several of the most prominent "Johns" delivered addresses. Prizes were to be awarded in athletic and acquatic contests, and to the longest, shortest, smallest, biggest, oldest, youngest, tallest, leanest and fattest Johns.

TEXAS GOOD ROADS CONGRESS.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 17.—San Antonio gave a hearty welcome today to the hundreds of good roads enthusiasts gathered here from all quarters of the State to attend the annual meeting of the Texas Good Roads Congress. The large attendance and an attractive program combine to give promise of the most profitable meeting since the inauguration of the good roads movement in the Lone Star State. During the three days' sessions the delegates will learn how to present a bond issue to the people so it will carry and will also have the benefit of a short course in "the right kind of roads to build."

TO COMBAT PARALYSIS EPIDEMIC

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—Plans for an organized campaign to prevent a further spread of the infantile paralysis epidemic are to be mapped out at a conference called to meet in this city today under the auspices of the Federal Public Health Service. State and municipal health authorities in all sections of the country have been invited to co-operate in the campaign. Among those attending the conference are many eminent medical experts, including a number of prominent physicians of New York city, who have made a special study of the disease.

HOW ONE MAN GOT A $25,000 A YEAR JOB

Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, tells in the September American Magazine how he selects his men for the $25,000 a year positions. In giving illustrations of several men, he says:

"'Take ———,' he said. 'His career has been typical of the successful, right-stuff fellow. Born a poor country boy, he became a country school teacher, struggled hard to get a college education, and then started as a country lawyer. He fought a case against a powerful corporation so hard as to make it sit up. He won it—and forthwith the corporation hired him. He proved his worth both in business and finance, and finally became an important officer of the company.

"'I met him, and was struck with his personality. Combined with force, energy and whole-hearted enthusiasm he had great charm. Really, that is the only word to express what I mean. He withstood the test of all our inquiries and investigations. I engaged him, and he is today one of the most valuable men in the institution.

"'Another vice-president was chosen in this way: I first met him in a conference on currency legislation held at Washington. I saw a forceful, clear-headed man, who knew something of the subject and could stand up and state what he knew. He interested me. I began to look him up.

"'I discovered the consensus of opinion among Western bankers to be that he was the strongest banker in Chicago. He had been a poor Southern boy. Getting a beginner's job in a country bank, he became so efficient as a clerk that he was made a junior officer.

"'Next he was selected as a Federal bank examiner. Here again he won recognition by hs ability and thoroughness; all the hard nuts were passed up to him to crack. His experiences thus covered a wide range of country and conditions.'"

FAMILY DINNERS.

In England They Flourish Mainly at Weddings and Funerals.

Family dinners are rare in England. They flourish only at weddings and at funerals, especially at funerals, for mankind collected enjoys woe. But other occasions—birthdays and Christmas—are shunned. Christmas especially, in spite of Dickens and Mr. Chesterton, is not what it was, for its quondam victims, having fewer children and being less bound to their aunts' apron strings, go away to the seaside or stay at home and hide.

That is a general change, and many modern factors, such as travel, intercourse with strangers, emigration, have shown the family that there are other places than home, until some of them have begun to think that "east or west, home's worst."

There is a frigidity among the relations in the home, a disinclination to call one's mother-in-law "mother." Indeed, relations-in-law are no longer relatives; the two families do not immediately after the wedding call one another Kitty or Tom. The acquired family is merely a subfamily, and often the grouping resembles that of the Montagues and the Capulets, if Romeo and Juliet had married. Mrs. Herbert said charmingly in "Garden Oats," "Our in-laws are our strained relations."—W. L. George in Harper's Magazine.

How Centipedes Walk.

An eminent authority has investigated the peculiar wavy motion of centipedes and millepedes to determine the manner in which these animals manage to use their superabundant pedal extremities so gracefully and harmoniously. It has been found that the legs move in groups or waves, each wave including a definite number of legs. The number of waves included in the length of the body is constant for each species. In millepedes the waves of each side are synchronous. In centipedes they are symmetrically alternate, giving rise to beautifully accordant movements. The difference may be explained by suggesting that the millepede moves like a pacing horse, the centipede like a trotter.

Branding Criminals.

The branding of criminals was abolished in 1778. Until then this punishment was inflicted in open court, generally in the presence of the judge, the necessary implements—the iron brand, the chafing dish and the iron gripper for keeping the hand steady—being always in readiness. The usual brand was an "R" applied to the left shoulder. Child stealing, etc., however, were at one time punished by branding the offender with "R" on the shoulder (for rogue), "M" on the right hand (for mansla.er) and "T" on the left hand (for thief).—Pall Mall Gazette.

Perforated Stamps.

The man who invented perforated sheets of stamps made a big fortune out of the idea. It is said to have first occurred to a hunting man who wanted to stamp a letter, but could not lay his hand on knife or scissors. He suddenly bethought himself of his spur. Running the rowel along, he perforated the edges of the stamp, tore it off and thus started a revolution.—London Tatler.

Transformation.

An English farmer had a number of guests to dinner and was about to help them to some rabbit when he discovered that the dish was cold. Calling the servant, he exclaimed, "Here, Mary, take this rabbit out and heat it and bring it back a little later!"

C. O. D.

Tommy—Mamma had a lot of things sent home C. O. D. today. What does C. O. D. mean? Tommy's Pop—C. O. D., my son, means "Call on Dad."—Philadelphia Record.

WIN WITH COLGATE

For the Republican Nomination For Governor:

SENATOR AUSTEN COLGATE

The candidacy of Senator Colgate has been gaining strength with great rapidity in every part of New Jersey.

Why?

Because the Republicans are becoming convinced that he is the strongest candidate. As loyal party men they want to win in November.

Because his record and his character are unassailable.

Because, during his long and faithful service as a legislator, he has never sought to further the interests of any locality as against the interests of the State at large, and therefore can be trusted to administer the affairs of state with equal regard for the rights and needs of every section.

Because of the great mass of humanitarian legislation he has initiated and furthered, for the benefit of the infirm, the aged, the poor and the feeble-minded.

Because of his effective efforts to ameliorate the conditions of labor.

Because, in civic and official capacity, he has always taken an active, sympathetic interest in the welfare of citizens of every class.

Because New Jersey needs a business administration, and he is a man of experience and proved ability in the large affairs of business.

CORPORATION NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

JOHN J. CARROLL,
City Clerk.

Dated Plainfield, N. J., August 7, 1916.

AN ORDINANCE

Concerning the Construction of Sidewalks and Curbs. Revision of 1916.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The space devoted to sidewalks, not already laid out under prior ordinances of said City, shall have a width not less than one-fifth of the entire width of the street. On all streets, lines drawn parallel with the side lines of the street and distant therefrom the exact width of the space devoted to sidewalks shall be known and designated as the curb lines. The grade and width of all sidewalk spaces and the grade of the curb lines shall be that fixed by ordinance or otherwise legally established either heretofore or hereafter, but all sidewalks shall be so graded as to rise from the top of the curb line to the nearest side line of the street at the uniform rate of one-half inch to each linear foot of such distance unless otherwise specifically directed by resolution of the Common Council.

Sec. 2. All sidewalks shall be curbed and paved at such established grade and kept and maintained so curbed and paved in good condition so as to be even on the surface and freely shed water, and all of said space devoted to sidewalks shall be kept free from long grass, weeds, shrubs or other thing or substance likely to interfere with safe and easy travel thereon or thereover by pedestrians or persons lawfully using the same, at the expense of the owner or owners of the land or lot abutting thereon, as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 3. All curbs hereafter constructed in this city shall be of concrete, six (6) inches thick and at least twenty (20) inches deep. Where combined curb and gutter is used, the curb shall extend to the bottom of the gutter concrete, which shall be at least six (6) inches deep below gutter grade.

Concrete for curbs shall consist of one (1) part Portland cement, two (2) parts fine aggregate and from two and one-half (2½) to three (3) parts coarse aggregate, mixed with clean water, in the manner hereinafter specified. A coat of mortar, mixed one to two (1 to 2) and not more than one-half inch thick may be applied to the inside of the forms immediately before placing the concrete.

Curb and gutter shall be divided into sections not less than five (5) nor more than eight (8) feet long, by some method which will insure the complete separation of the sections by a joint not less than one-eighth nor more than one-quarter inch wide.

Curb corners at intersecting streets shall have a radius of at least six (6) feet; where possible, the radius shall be equal to the width of the narrower sidewalk of the intersecting streets. The circular corners shall be protected by approved corner bars.

At private driveways, the upper edge of the curb may be lowered to within one inch of gutter grade, the grade of the base of the curb to be at same elevation as that of the adjoining curb. Where a driveway is concreted from the paved portion of the sidewalk to a line outside the curb line, the curb may be omitted. The ends of the curbs at the driveways may be beveled at an angle of forty-five degrees, or circular corners, having a radius of not more than two (2) feet, may be used, the return curbs disappearing at the established grade of the sidewalk at a distance of not more than eighteen (18) inches from the curb line.

Sec. 4. All sidewalks hereafter paved in this city shall be constructed of concrete, of the materials and in the manner hereinafter specified.

No paved walk shall be less than four (4) feet wide and four (4) inches thick. Sidewalk slabs twenty-five (25) square feet in area shall be five (5) inches thick; slabs thirty-six (36) square feet in area shall be six (6) inches thick.

The concrete for one-course work shall consist of one (1) part Portland cement, two (2) parts fine aggregate and from two and one-half (2½) to three (3) parts coarse aggregate.

The cement shall meet the requirements of the Standard Specifications for Portland Cement of the American Society for Testing Materials.

The fine aggregate shall consist of sand or crushed stone, graded from fine to coarse, passing, when dry, a screen having one-quarter inch diameter holes; it shall be clean, sharp, coarse, free from deleterious matter, and not more than five per cent. shall pass a sieve having one hundred meshes per lineal inch.

The coarse aggregate shall be sound gravel, trap rock or blast furnace slag. It shall be free from all foreign matter, uniformly graded and of sizes that will pass a one-and one-half (1½) inch screen and be retained on a one-quarter (¼) inch screen.

Such methods of measuring the several materials for the concrete shall be used as shall insure reliable proportions.

The ingredients of the concrete shall be thoroughly mixed with clean water on a water-tight platform. The concrete shall be wet enough to be easily "struck off," but so that it can be handled without causing a separation of the coarse aggregate from the mortar.

Cross forms shall be of three-sixteenths inch metal, of a depth to correspond to the thickness of the proposed walk and shall extend the full width of the walk and be set at right angles to the side forms. They shall be left in place until the concrete is sufficiently set to permit of their withdrawal without injury to the walk.

On walks which are four feet in width they shall be placed not more than four feet apart, and on no walk shall the divisions or joints be more than six feet apart in any direction.

AN ORDINANCE

To Create a Research and Advisory Commission and to Prescribe Its Duties and Powers.

WHEREAS, it is expressly provided by the City Charter that the Common Council may enact such ordinances for the peace, good government, order, well being and convenience of the City as they may deem necessary, proper and expedient, not repugnant to such Charter or to the constitution of the State or of the United States; and shall have power to appoint from time to time such subordinate officers as they shall think necessary for the governing of the City; and

WHEREAS, questions arise from time to time affecting the good government, order, will being and convenience of the City, requiring study and investigation which may extend over a period longer than the term or terms of the Mayor and members of the Common Council for the time being, so that the City would be benefitted if there were available a permanent Commission of citizens to which such questions might be referred for such study and investigation, and for report thereon; NOW, THEREFORE,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. There shall be a Commission vested with the powers and duties hereinafter specified, which shall consist of five members, citizens of the City of Plainfield, who shall be appointed by the Mayor, by and with the advice and consent of the Common Council, and who shall constitute and be designated and known as the Research and Advisory Commission.

The term of office of each member of said Commission shall be five years, except that the terms of office of the persons first appointed shall severally expire on the first day of January 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920, and 1921 respectively; and on the first day of each January after this ordinance becomes effective, or as soon after such first day of January as may be convenient, the vacancy caused by expiration of the term of any member of said Commission shall be filled by like appointment and confirmation. Vacancies caused by death, resignation or otherwise than by expiration of term shall also be filled by like appointment and confirmation, but for the unexpired term only. Notwithstanding expiration of term of office, members shall continue to serve until the appointment and confirmation of their successors.

Section 2. The members of the Research and Advisory Commission thus constituted shall serve without salary or other compensation of any kind, and shall investigate and report to the Mayor and Common Council their recommendations with respect to such matters as may be referred to them by resolution of the Common Council. The Common Council shall have authority to appropriate from the general funds of the City such sum or sums not exceeding annually the amount of $2,000, or to appropriate and cause to be raised by taxation as other sums for other City purposes are raised, such amounts as said Common Council may deem necessary, to defray the necessary expenses of said Commission including the employment of a clerk and other help; and said Commission shall not be required to undertake the investigation of any matter or matters unless such an appropriation covering its expenses is made, and in that event only to the extent thereof.

Section 3. Said Commission may investigate and make recommendations to the Mayor and Common Council with respect to any matter of general interest to the community, whether or not such matter shall have been referred to it for investigation by the Common Council, but in such case no part of the moneys appropriated or set aside for the necessary expenses of the Commission shall be expended nor shall obligations be incurred, unless specifically authorized by the Common Council.

Section 4. Said Commission shall have authority to adopt such by-laws for the regulation of its activities, not inconsistent with the City Charter and ordinances, as it may from time to time deem expedient. It shall report to the Common Council by the thirty-first day of December of each year a detailed statement of its expenditures for said year; and it shall make such additional reports from time to time as required by resolution of the Common Council.

Section 5. When in the judgment of the Common Council it shall seem expedient to abolish said Commission, its authority shall immediately cease and every membership thereof shall terminate upon final adoption and due advertisement of an ordinance by the Common Council repealing this ordinance.

Adopted by the Common Council, August 7, 1916.

Approved by the Mayor August 8, 1916.

PUBLIC PATIENCE EXHAUSTED.

With the threat of railroad paralysis by strike hanging over the country, the public will not look with complacency upon the news from New York that a reopening of the strike of the street car men is probable through the action of the traction company in discharging more than 70 men who were active in the late tie-up.

The public is in no humor at present to haggle over the claims of this private interest or that, when its own larger welfare is at stake. Particularly the public is not in a temper to fiddle around over the wounded pride of an arbitrary autocratic traction company because it was so handily beaten in a strike it should not have allowed to happen. The public is disposed to place the interest of the traction company below that of the public, just as during the strike when the issue was the social service involved, the social effects of the strike.

The public mind is not disposed just now to listen to whimpering pleas from transportation interests about the injury to the public interests, the social welfare when strikes loom up and then, when the crest of the danger seems to have passed, to have the transportation interests, which did the whimpering, defiantly turn against the very social interest it so lately shed crocodile tears over. If the New York Traction company forces a second strike on terms that violate its recent agreement with the strikers the public should deal with it as such tactics deserve.

Boards of Education in every community in the State will likely heed the warning sent out by the State body and postpone the opening of the 1916-17 school term until cool weather puts an end to the infantile paralysis epidemic. This is a matter that is left to the discretion of the individual boards, and one to be decided by local conditions, but if the schools in one town are opened on time other boards may be influenced to endanger the lives of children by following the example. It is not yet known that postponement will be necessary, and perhaps a short period of cool weather will permit the resuming of studies on schedule time.

District Attorney Knickerbocker and Detective Newton seem determined to send Stielow to the chair for the Phelps murder, and they resent attempts to prove him innocent as personal attacks on their character. The confession of Erwin King, the peddler, is ridiculed by these two officers of the law, and they are at work trying to establish an alibi for King. If justice is to be done the case should be taken out of their hands at once, and an investigation conducted by men who will at least enter into it with open minds and some thought of the constitutional privilege of being considered innocent until proven guilty.

- Proctor's Theatre -

William H. Thompson, "the dean of the American stage," is featured at Proctor's today in a Thomas H. Ince Triangle production, entitled "The Eye of the Night." "The Eye of the Night" narrates the simple story of a slavey's misdoing, of her struggle for existence among the narrow-minded bigots in the town and of her ultimate discovery that the old keeper of the light—the only mortal who forgives here sin and received here into his care—is her father. It is made powerful by the pathos of its situations and is agreeably relieved by the intermittent touches of quaint comedy. One of the valuable assets of the play is the surpassing beauty of its scenes. Each was selected with extreme care to depict the homely picturesqueness of the coastal hamlet in which the action of the story takes place and each lent itself readily to beautiful photography. Among the more vivid scenes of the piece are those which show a fierce aerial attack on the village, the war being an important incident in th plot. Thompson is supportd by Marjory Wilson, who was William S. Hart's leading woman in "The Primal Lure," and who renders a sympathetic performance of the role of the slavey, and will earn new laurels for her work. One of those incomparable Keystone comedies will also form an important link in today's program, while the latest Mutual Weekly will be an added feature.

On Friday, by special arrangement with the Fox Company, Mme. Bertha Kalich will be starred in her second Fox production, entitled "Ambition." Mr. Fox is not conducting any prize contest, for he has openly made attractive offers to dramatists for five-reel scenarios, but "Ambition" almost leads one to believe that he has made the offer and been successful, for the construction and development of the picture is excellent. Its underlying theme is the breaking up of a happy family through the husband's all-devouring ambition.

On Saturday Edmund Breese will appear in "The Spell of the Yukon," while on Monday, Elinor Glyn's famous novel, "One Day," will be presented in picture form.

Numerous novelties in the way of burlesque entertainment are promised in the offering of Rose Sydell's Famous London Belles, with Johnie Weber and Frances Cornell of the furiously funny musical farce, "A Trip to Washington," at the Plainfield Theatre, Saturday, August 19, matinee and night. Weber has the title part and other principal roles are assigned to Frances Cornell, Millie Doris, Ward Coulfield, Hazel Joselyn, Wm. Smith, Miss Pullman, Ed. Wright, Norine, Harry Waltien. The usual beautiful and sprightly chorus is very much in evidence throughout the two act. There is an olio of vaudeville acts rarely seen on a burlesque stage. William Campbell and Johnie Weber will do their famous act, Henny and Papa, with the Models.

Old Rhymes Made New.

Mother, may I go out to stroll?
"Yes, my darling daughter;
Make your will and fit your soul
And watch out for the water.

There was a man in our town,
And he was wondrous wise;
A drunken chauffeur butted him
And knocked out one of his eyes.
And when he saw his eye was out,
He crawled exceeding shy.
But another auto came along
And took the other eye.

Hi diddle diddle,
The cat and the fiddle;
The cow jumped over the moon,
And when he looked back
Where the motor cars track,
She hadn't jumped any too soon.

At 45.

Be sure your sins will find you out
At 45 or thereabout.

The shiny baldness of your head
Will show what kind of life you've led.

The candid lines about your eyes
Will tell no charitable lies.

Your pudgy face will testify
To idleness and living high.

A palid cast to beauty's cost
Will tell of slumber that you lost.

A not infrequent little line
Will say you looked upon the wine.

Approaching age, too swiftly met
Will tell us something of your set.

A sea of troubles from within
Will babble of what you might have been.

The graying hair behind your ears
Will quite epitomize the years.

Be sure your sins will find you out
At 45 or thereabout.

The original deal was for 40 acres of land, but Hank got a good deal the best of the bargain, fer the deacon is some near-sighted and can't read good, and when Hank made out the deed he made it for 80 acres, instead of 40, and all the deacon will have to do from now on is to pay the taxes.

Amry Hicks, who has a great head for figgers, has got it doped out that every day in this country 15,000 acres of timber is whittled up in sharpenin' lead pencils. Amry has also figgered it out that if all the automobile tires in the world were hooked together they would reach twice around the earth and leave room [illegible] bow-knot. Amry's wife takes:

Oh, I [illegible] lines them when they speed,
We'll get the coin in loads,
And with it—so runs the Punkville creed—
We'll fix up better roads.

On better roads they'll speed some more,
Or so our town opines.
There'll be more speeders than before,
And we'll get still more fines.

TRY TO DEFEAT MANN ON PROHIBITION ISSUE

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 17.—Congressman James R. Mann, the Republican minority leader in the national House of Representatives, is facing serious opposition for renomination in his home district, which comprises the South Side of Chicago. An unusually strong combination of church workers and other foes of the liquor traffic are seeking to bring about his defeat. He is charged by those advocating the Hobson constitutional amendment, forbidding the sale of liquor, with taking a leading part in defeating the measure. The Anti-Saloon League of America has thrown its resources into a campaign to prevent Mr. Mann's renomination at the primary next month and is taking steps to arouse interest in the contest.

Rev. Melbourn P. Boynton, a Baptist clergyman and a leader for many years in the University of Chicago neighborhood, has been brought out as a candidate for the Republican nomination against Mr. Mann. Mr. Boynton was a member of several delegations which went to Washington to ask Congressman Mann's support of the Hobson amendment. He became a candidate after his congregation had voted in favor of it.

In explaining his entry into politics Mr. Boynton declared the fight will be broader than any one measure and will be aimed at the interests which defeat the will of the people. "It was James Mann," he said in a statement announcing his candidacy, "who led the fight that defeated the submission of the Hobson amendment to the States, providing for the prohibition of the sale of strong drink in the United States and her dependencies. In other parts of the nation Congressmen have already been defeated for re-election because they voted against the submission of this same amendment, and to let the leader of this opposition to the amendment go back to Congress without a contest would be unthinkable."

A stirring contest is predicted in the district between now and the time of the primaries. Speakers of national prominence, according to plans formulated by Anti-Saloon League officials, will be brought here to speak against Mr. Mann and in favor of Mr. Boynton.

A SUBMARINE'S ABLEST CONFEDERATES

COL. COLGATE HAS OPPONENTS WORRIED

Desperate Efforts to Discredit Him Prophesy Success, He Says.

Newark, August 17.—"People are apt to lose their heads in political campaigns, particularly if worried, and that is what my opponents are doing," declared Senator Austen Colgate, candidate for the nomination for Governor, when recent statements rather viciously attacking the claims of his managers that he would be the party's strongest candidate were brought to his attention. The statements emanated from leaders in the campaign of Senator Walter E. Edge, of Atlantic City, the Essex Senator's principal rival for the nomination.

"And when people do get rattled in political campaigns," added Colonel Colgate, "they say things which do more harm to themselves than to anybody else. The desperate and frantic efforts to discredit my candidacy are evidence of a perturbed state of mind.

"I have submitted my candidacy solely upon its merits, believing the people of New Jersey are more interested in what I am and what I have done for them than they would be in any exaggerated claims I might make or any personalities I might indulge in. I may say that I am very well satisfied with the result of my campaign, so far. The people of the State know me, my record is an open book, and they are aware of what I have accomplished in their interest, in spite of the rather pathetic efforts that are being made to befog legislative history for campaign purposes. I am content to stand on a platform of economic, constructive government, and trust the issue to the intelligence of the voters of the State."

BREAD LOAF GOING TO 6 CENTS SOON

Baker Warns People That Nickel Will Not Buy One Much Longer.

That the country must prepare for an advance in the price of the five-cent loaf of bread within two weeks, the loaf going to six cents—and that the housewife's refuge from this advance in price lies in buying the ten-cent loaf, is the warning and advice contained in a statement made by Paul Schulze, president of the Schulze Baking Company.

"With the leading brands of flour at the unprecedented price of $8.10 a barrel to the dealer, and with every indication that it will mount higher, the housewife must forthwith concern herself with the problem of the bread-buying situation," Mr. Schulze says. "If flour prices remain at their present high figure—and my information from the wheat fields of the Northwest leads me to fear that they will go higher—it will be impossible for bakers to sell the small sized loaf at five cents. We are already confronted with the necessity of raising the price to six cents.

"Nevertheless everybody, for a time at least, may buy bread economically, even with the small loaf at six cents. Bakers can continue to sell the large size, or ten-cent loaf, at its present price. From the standpoint of quality, taste and economy, that is the size to buy now.

"As I said for a time we can bake the ten-cent loaf in the same size as heretofore. This we shall be able to do because of the labor cost saved in baking and handling the larger loaf. It does not take any more labor to make and cut dough for the ten-cent loaf than for the five-cent loaf. It takes no more in handling it to and from the ovens, in wrapping it, loading it on the wagons and delivering it to the stores. All this saving we can turn to the relief of the housewife in these high wheat times.

IS TEDDY'S MAN FOR THE SENATE?

ROBTRT BACON.

Robert Bacon, former Ambassador to France will contest the Republican nomination for Senator with William M. Calder, of Brooklyn. He will have the active support of Colonel Roosevelt. In the last forty-eight hours a definite movement toward the nomination of Mr. Bacon has been put under way and now requires only Mr. Bacon's acquiescence to insure his entry into the primaries. Announcement of this is expected to come within the next two days. It is understood that preliminary arrangements for the circulation of petitions for the former ambassador have already been made. Colonel Roosevelt is credited with the inception of the movement to nominate Mr. Bacon and has declared his intention of supporting him in the race.

Keen Sight of the Gull.

There is perhaps no other bird of land or sea so keen of sight as the common gull. To convince a skeptical friend of this an American naturalist once made some interesting experiments. Two men were passengers on a steamer making twenty miles an hour. A dozen gulls followed them in the steamer's wake without apparent effort and circled in graceful curves over the water. Breaking a cracker biscuit into four parts, less than an inch square each, the naturalist handed one piece to his friend and told him to drop it into the seething waters on the starboard.

Immediately the bit of biscuit became invisible to human eyes, and yet before it had gone thirty yards astern a gull detected it and, dipping into the foam, secured it. One by one it picked up the other bits of biscuit, though neither of the two men could see them. Tearing off a postage stamp from an old envelope the naturalist dropped it overboard. The gull detected the waif and made as if to pick it up. But when within a yard or so of it the bird saw that it was nothing in his line and glided upward again to his favorite station on a line with the topmost truck.

The Fragonard Panels.

The celebrated Fragonard panels had their inception, it is said, in the lavish expenditures of the Countess du Barry. They were designed for her chateau, but never adorned it, owing to a dispute between the painter and the king's favorite. Mme. du Barry, notwithstanding her lowly origin, was extremely critical in matters of art and was dissatisfied with these pictures, which are among the greatest prizes of the connoisseurs of today.

Color Blindness.

The ratio of color blind people to those of normal sight is about 65 to 1,154. This does not mean that all of the sixty-five are absolutely color blind, but that that is the ratio of those who are more or less affected. Color blindness is said to have been discovered by the famous Dr. Priestley in 1777.

HOW TO ESCAPE "CRAMPS" TOLD BY MISS KELLERMANN

The Plainfield Daily Press' Great Swimming Instructor Says: "You are Never In Danger; You Can Always Float."

Article No. 15.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

The one thing the average swimmer is in fear of at all times is the danger of cramps. There is no question about cramps being a very common ailment among swimmers. The causes of cramps are varied. As I have often stated, the body must be free when you are in the water, therefore if your bathing suit is one that is heavy and cumbersome you stand no chance of saving yourself.

Sometimes the bands that hold these awkward bathing suits together impede the blood movement. Then again if you enter the water directly after eating you stand a good chance of getting cramps. Do not enter the water until at least two hours after eating.

If you disobey my directions and go bathing after eating you not only risk your life, but strain the stomach and weaken your entire constitution. So please remember your stomach as much as yourself, and think of the unnatural strain you will put on it, if you swim right after eating.

There are many other reasons for cramps. Take, for instance, a person who remains in the water for hours and gets chilled. Fifteen to thirty minutes is long enough to remain in the water. Then again remember what I told you about keeping the body limber. Never stiffen the body to the stretching point for all this has a tendency to bring on cramps.

I feel certain that a great many of you will experience a feeling of what is termed cramps. Now a little stiffening of the toes should not worry you. In fact even if you do get cramps while in the water don't try to scramble to safety. You are not in danger even if you have cramps. Remember, you are not in danger. What you must do if the feeling of cramps grips you—float. A sudden shock will sometimes relieve you at once. Whether arm or legs if seized with cramps should quickly be raised out of the water. This shock sometimes quickly cures cramps. No matter if the feeling seems overpowering. We all, or at least most of us, have experienced the feeling and know that, to say the least, it is not an enjoyable, but neither is it serious. So then as long as we know that it is not serious we will stand it.

All you have to do is to keep your thoughts from becoming confused. No matter when the feeling of cramps has gripped you or how much it hurts, there is absolutely no danger.

Therefore, all you should do is float, on your back, as I taught you. Try if you can to propel yourself slowly towards shore. If you concentrate your thoughts and keep them on the idea of floating, floating, floating, you can save yourself easily.

That is why I want you all to become proficient in the art of floating, so that you will be able to save yourself under almost any condition. Now as most of you have been able to master the breast stroke and are able to swim ten yards with ease, I want you all to lengthen the distance to twenty-five yards—no more, for the present. Until further notice you will not lengthen the distance set for you.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Mermaid Sisters Take Turns Visiting Land.

She Stayed In Distant Parts of the Sea.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

SOON as the children finished supper daddy told them: "On their fifteenth birthdays all the mermaids were allowed to visit the earth. The oldest one went, and then a year later the next sister took her turn. Up, up, through the deep blue water she swam. She reached top just as the sun was setting, the most beautiful sight she had ever seen, she thought. The whole sky looked like gold. And the clouds—they were beyond her powers of description when she swam back home under the sea. Over her head the clouds had floated in red and violet splendor, and far faster than the clouds drifted flew a flock of wild geese like a long white veil across the setting sun.

"The mermaid was so in love with the sunset that she swiftly swam toward it. But before she could reach it the sun sank, and all the rosy light faded away.

"The next year the third mermaid had her turn. Being more adventurous than her sisters, she swam up a broad river that ran into the sea. She saw beautiful green, vine clad hills. She saw lovely country estates that rich people had placed in splendid woods. She heard the birds singing, the birds that her grandmother had always called fishes in telling land stories. The sun was so hot that she was often obliged to dive to cool her burning face."

"Sunburn just like Evely's!" shouted Jack.

"In a charming little bay she found a group of lovely little land children running about naked and paddling in the water. She wanted to play with them, but they were afraid of her and ran away. Then up came a little black animal. It was a dog, but she had never seen one before. It barked loudly at the mermaid and so frightened her that she made for the open sea.

"This princess mermaid never forgot her first glimpse of the beautiful woods, the green hills and the charming children who could swim in the water, although they had no tails.

"The fourth sister was not very brave. So she stayed in far distant parts of the ocean and thought them quite the most beautiful of all. She could see for miles and miles about her, and the sky above was like a great glass dome. She saw ships, but they were so far away that they looked like seagulls.

"She also saw funny dolphins turning somersaults and gigantic whales squirting water through their nostrils like hundreds of fountains on all sides."

"Oh, daddy, what fun it is to be a mermaid!" cried Evelyn. And daddy kissed her good night twice.

"Thank you, daddy!" cried the children.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Mrs. Gordon Decides It's Best to Be Away When Ethel Returns.

"Ralph, I do not want to be here when that little girl comes home. This will be a crucial time in your lives. If everything goes right now, probably there will be no further trouble and your marriage will be a success." Ralph's mother was gazing thoughtfully at the fire.

"I surely don't want you to go back without seeing and getting acquainted with Ethel," replied Ralph. There was silence for a space, then the mother replied:

"I believe I will go to the southern part of the State and visit your Uncle Frank. It has been a long time since I saw him. When Ethel has been here long enough to make adjustments I will come and visit her. She will not be disturbed by company then."

"I think as you do, that she will be more likely to succeed if she has no one to make her nervous. What a plucky thing to do." Ralph's face glowed with pride.

"You mean her taking lessons of Mrs. Morton?" asked the mother.

"Yes, and keeping the thing a secret so I would be surprised. You see she is still a child."

"Ralph, if you are expecting great changes in Ethel you will be disappointed. Character is not built in a day." Mrs. Gordon looked at her son with a troubled expression on her face.

"If you knew Ethel you would realize that an attempt to learn to cook meant a radical change of front, and the fact that she does not return seems to me to prove that she is really trying to fit herself for a homemaker." Ralph paced up and down with his hands in his pockets.

"I sincerely hope that you are right in your conclusions, and that you will not be disappointed." She gazed lovingly after the fine, manly fellow.

"You have made me see my own shortcomings, so I hope I can be a real help to the little girl. I wish she would hurry up and come home." The mother smiled at his impatience.

"She may come most any time now, so I will take myself off to Frank's and you keep me informed about things. You can readily believe I shall be very anxious as to the outcome. Good-night, dear boy, I must go to bed now."

Left alone Ralph smoked in the firelight, till far into the night, building air castles of which his little wife was the capable as well as beautiful little mistress.

So you are not going to wait to see your son's wife?" Mrs. Gordon had gone over to bid Nell good-by.

"I shall come back this way on my journey home. I have not seen my brother for several years and I can not prolong my stay indefinitely. I told Ralph not to hurry her return on my account, for if she is really using her time to good advantage, and her last letter indicates it, I do not want her hurried." Mrs. Gordon smiled tolerantly over her daughter-in-law's vagaries.

"I have not heard from Mother Morton since the letter I mentioned, but I know of no one who would be as apt to wake her up to her responsibilities as that dear old lady. I have been wishing I could bring them together for a long time."

"What a wonderful thing it is to be able to pass on experience. That is what this fine woman seems able to do; to pour in all that she has garnered for years. Ethel is a very fortunate girl to have her for a friend." Mrs. Gordon smiled into Nell's face.

"I always felt that Mother Morton could get her interested in her home if anyone could." Nell grasped Mrs. Gordon's hand in farewell.

FRUIT TRIMMED TURBAN FOR KIDDIES.

Velvet Generally Favored—Ribbon and Fruit Trimming Most Suitable.

By Mary Glynn.

Kiddie's hat is quite as important as her elder's at least so she thinks, and evidently so the designer thinks, the result being that for these wee ones very attractive hats are being created continually. The velvet hat, either in black, blue, rose, or green shades, is considered correct for the schoolgirl, and even very young children. The fact that these hats are dark proves the one objection to them; but when it is considered that the trimming has much to do with brightening up the hat, this factor is not serious. The hat illustrated was designed for an 8-year-old girl. Black velvet was used, and the blue moire ribbon encircled the crown three times. A cluster of velvet fruit afforded a very attractive color note.

Contest for Shoppers

56 Twenty-fifth Street,
Elmhurst, N. Y., Aug. 8, 1916.

Contest Editor The Globe:

Sir—Neither the threatened car strike nor the heat wave deterred me from taking advantage of the sale announced in this advertisement in Wednesday's Globe.

HEARN.

Muslins—Fruit of the Loom, Lonsdale Hill—Reg. value, 12...August sale 6¾

This very good value was delightfully surprising in view of the fact that the war prices have affected this indispensable commodity.

When the clever advertiser selected for his slogan,

"What Trade Insight Did for Us,"

he showed that same keen insight in placing the advertisement on the most prominent page of the most popular paper—in The Globe.

That such advertising pays was clearly demonstrated by the crowds of eager buyers at that muslin counter.

And just a word of well-deserved praise for the service. Those girls, with their polite, cheerful, courteous service, made even a bargain counter purchase a pleasure. A hot day, a jostling, eager crowd, change to be handed back in every instance, questions galore—truly enough to try the patience of Job—but these pleasant faced girls only measured off ten yards every second, made change, answered questions, and smiled with as much equanamity and graciousness as though they were engaged in an interesting game.

And they were. For life's biggest game is to do well that which falls to our lot to do. It is just such service that made this one customer, who came with the intention of spending 68c for muslin—drawn by the above advertisement—spend nearly $10 before leaving the store.

Yours for further bargains,

EVA P. JOHNSON.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

FOND MEMORIES.

The first no-hit game, no player reaching first, in the history of the great American pastime was decided just forty years ago today, and James Galvin, of the St. Louis Reds, was the pitcher who accomplished this feat, pitching in a game against the Case Club, of Detroit. The contest took place at Iona, Mich., August 17, 1876. This accomplishment of Galvin's was repeated in 1879 by J. L. Richmond, of the Worcester National League club, pitching against Springfield. Again, on June 12, 1880, Richmond again accomplished the feat in a game against Cleveland, and in the same year, on June 17, John M. Ward, pitching for Providence, defeated Buffalo without allowing a batter to reach first base. No additions were made to these names of record-making pitchers until twenty-four years later, when on May 5, 1904, Denton T. (Coy) Young, of the Boston American League team, defeated the Philadelphia Athletics in a game in which not a player reached the first station. Addie Joss, pitching for Cleveland, defeated the White Sox in a game played on Oct. 2, 1908, without allowing a hit.

ALEXANDER STILL GREAT.

Of late much has been said of the work of the great Alexander, star hurler of the Phillies. There are many sport scribes who believe that the marvel of the pitcher's mound is going back. But in our opinion, and in the opinion of a great many others, Alexander is still the "great" pitcher he was at the start. This year he has already registered twelve shutout victories and has been beaten but eight times. He has cashed in twenty-two victories and could very readily call that a season's work. But he keeps plodding on and will continue to plod on. Alec is the one pitcher who not only has attained the heights of fame, but is the one pitcher who is going to remain there for some time to come.

MARTIN AS MANAGER.

Before we comment on this bit of news, we will have to admit that exercise of the imagination has been given free play. Therefore, it would be better for us to wait until something definite happens. But let us have a few words. Jack Martin may become manager of the Milwaukee baseball team. Jack is going to be successful, if he lands the job, because that's the Plainfield spirit. Also, that's the Martin spirit. Regarding Jack's character and qualifications, all fans say in one voice, "Better than he—there are none."

• • • • • •

There must be something radically wrong with the teams that are high up in the pennant fight this year. Every now and then, one of the managers takes a notion that he is going to register a "kick." While Stallings, of the Braves, is continually kicking, still his protest was unusually pointed this last time. Now Fielder Jones, leader of the St. Louis team, has encountered trouble and has appealed to Ban Johnson. The nature of his appeal can best be obtained from the account of the incident. Here it is:

"Fielder Jones, manager of the Browns, is on the warpath. He has demanded that a reoccurrence of last Saturday's affair not be permitted. St. Louis is right in the thick of the pennant squabble and played at Cleveland on Sunday. Roth, fielder for Cleveland, had a mixup with a fan in the bleachers at St. Louis on Saturday and threw a pop bottle into the stands. Umpire Connolly at once demanded a suspension, but had to leave St. Louis so quickly after the game, to catch a train for Cleveland, that he did not have time to file a report until Sunday morning, when he reached Cleveland. Then the American League offices were closed and Roth was permitted to play in Sunday's game, making four hits during the clash and winding up by smashing out a home run that won for Cleveland, 4 to 3. Jones says he has bumped into some tough propositions this year, but this is the worst, and he is demanding of President Johnson to take some steps to prevent a repetition and also to know why it was permitted in the first place."

• • • • • •

While the clipping that follows does not apply strictly to this locality, still it gives a fair idea of the sportsmanship of the racing fraternity and, as a matter of fact, aptly pictures conditions as they existed right here in Plainfield not so long ago. Although the event mentioned is by no means a "one horse" affair, still the events conducted here in years gone by were by no means miniature affairs. Here is the clipping:

"There horsemen are stickers. Time and again the local talent lost money in trying to make Grand Circuit racing pay here. They failed, and when outside capital was poured into the coffers and another meet attempted, the sentiment was with the visitors. But last week's races were chalked up as a financial loss. The handicap of having the races at such a place where transportation problems kill the gate receipts seems too big to be overcome. Nothing has been said about Grand Circuit racing for Pittsburgh for next year, but it is very probable that it will not be attempted. Now comes along a combination of horsemen, some of them connected with local matinee and driving clubs, and already talk is rife of trying a running meet at the island. Undoubtedly the runners would attract more attention than the harness events. A running meet was tried here, but influence was brought to bear to have it halted. If a running meet was given the same support that the circuit gathering was afforded it would be the biggest step that could be taken to create real race enthusiasm here; then the circuit crew could be brought back with the chances for better than an even break. The plans for a running meet for next year are just in their infancy, but promise to grow."—S. P. McCarty.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Pete Simmons is doing little talking these days. It is very hard to get Peter to say anything regarding the baseball game between his team and the Dunellen outfit, the contest being scheduled for Saturday. All that one is privileged to know about the game is that the Royals are going to be out "there to win."

"We may have a new catcher Saturday," said Pete, when conversing with the writer. That the team is not well fortified in the catching department is well known. While Condict may be ambitious, and undoubtedly he is, still he is a little nervous behind the pan and is not over-accurate in his throwing to second. He is bound to improve and is entitled to a fair trial. But Pete is right in his belief that all "try-outs" should take place in minor games. And Mr. Simmons does not consider the coming attraction a minor one.

According to one who has intimate knowledge of what is going on in the Dunellen camp, the game carded for Saturday is going to be worked out on a percentage basis. All of which adds credence to the rumor that the Royals are going to win or know the reason why.

We certainly would like to see Jack Martin become the manager of the Milwaukee baseball team. Manager Harry Clark, of that club, has resigned, in order that the club's chances of getting somewhere—we know not where—might become greater. While it is not certain that Martin is being considered for the berth, still nominating him for the position is not out of order. Jack is entitled to a chance and undoubtedly would open the eyes of a few of the Western magnates.

Eugene Lidgate is doing great work with the Media team. Eugene, who hails from Fanwood, has been catching with the Pennsylvania team for some time and has made a good impression. "Liddy" will, perhaps, perform a little closer to home in the near future.

Eddie Coughlin is going to be a tower of assistance to the Tabs on Sunday. Eddie is a hitting boy and that sort of youth is just the kind the Abstainers need. Edward, oil up the whole stick.

Speaking of things the Tabs need reminds us that one rival manager in this city stated that the Tabs need a pitcher if they expect to trim the Royals. Now, Mr. Scott, how about the pitcher?

"Senor" Maiden is anxiously awaiting an opportunity to defeat either the Tabs or the Dunellens. It does not matter to "Senor" which team he faces. He believes that he can give either outfit a run for honors. And perhaps he can. He performed creditably before and is about due to repeat.

Benny Rosenson is back on the job. Benny will be able to make things a little more exciting on Sunday. More power to Benny.

It is reported that Johnny Dixon and Warry McLaughlin are warming up in Eddie Bergen's back yard every evening. Is it so, gentlemen? It is not.

All persons with rumors that either Joe Dawson or Murphy, the Philadelphia Colored Giant pitchers, are going to work in this vicinity over the week end, please come forward.

LOOKING FOR GAMES.

The Milford A. A., of Newark, has all Saturdays and Sundays in September open and would like to hear from managers of home teams in Plainfield or vicinity offering suitable guarantees. The Milfords claim to be the leading traveling team of Newark and have, according to their press agent, victories over such capable combinations as the Maplewoods, Mendhams, Madisons, Meadowbrooks, St. Teresas of Summit, St. Marys of Dover, Irvington Parks and Bay Ridge of Brooklyn. Any local manager who cares to book games with this outfit can do so by communicating with L. A. English, of 368 Avon avenue, Newark.

Many of the foremost golf players of America, including leaders in both the amateur and professional ranks, are entered in the annual open championship tournament of the Western Golf Association, which is to be contested today and tomorrow on the links of the Blue Hound Country Club, of Milwaukee. Among the noted professionals entered are Walter Hagen, of Rochester; George Sargent, of Washington; J. Hutchinson, of Pittsburgh, and Tom McNamara, of Boston, the present holder of the title.

NETHERWOOD RESIDENT PRAISES BALL TEAM AND SPEAKS HIGHLY OF RUSS STEWART

In Letter to Press, G. H. Adams Congratules Boys—Hopes For Another Prosperous Season—Sporting Editor Invites Letters of This Sort.

The following communication, coming as it does from a resident of Netherwood and a stanch supporter of everything that the boys and young men of that section of the city do, is worthy of the space asked for by the writer, and it is with pleasure that we publish this letter, inasmuch as it expresses much that we wish to say ourselves:

"Sporting Editor Daily Press: Will you kindly grant me a little space in your sporting columns? Being a resident of the Netherwood section, I have been somewhat interested in the success of the Netherwood team, or at least have rather leaned to them, I suppose more because I reside in that section. And I want to express to the boys of that team my congratulations on the splendid work done. Having won fourteen games out of seventeen is mighty fine work and one of which the boys have a just right to be proud. This on top of the splendid work done last year, makes them entitled to all kinds of credit. On many of the Saturdays when the Netherwoods played at home I have watched the games with much profit and pleasure. And the boys always played a clean, sportsmanlike game, always playing hard to win and never giving up until the last man was out.

"I want to especially mention the young man who did the pitching for them. Mr. Stewart, I understand, pitched thirteen games, winning twelve—a splendid record, and one that is seldom equaled in this or any other league. He also pitched the team to success last year, so I understand. Congratulations to him and his teammates. And may another year find the same boys fighting it out again. Yours truly,

"G. H. ADAMS."

We are always willing to publish letters of this stamp. This letter is one of commendation and gives credit for something achieved. Not only is the Netherwood team entitled to congratulations, but, in our opinion, Mr. Adams, who speaks for hundreds of other fans, is deserving of a full share of commendation.

'OWYHAMAC' AND 'INGOLSBEE, JR.,' LOSE IN FLEMINGTON HORSE RACING EVENTS

"Judge Moore," Bay Gelding, Took Initial Heat and Won—Royal McKinney Does Well—The "Baron" Races Today.

A series of thunderstorms, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain, put a stop to the races at the Flemington fair yesterday afternoon, after but one heat in both the 2:12 pace and 2:20 pace had been finished.

Judge Moore, the bay gelding owned by A. B. Commings, of Reading, Pa., took the initial heat in the 2:12 pace in 2:02½. Iwana, Dr. Chapman S. Harris's bay mare, was second, and Susie M., the Brooklyn mare, third. There was a field of thirteen starters. The others finished in the following order: Queen Hal, Banavola, Ruth B., Lustrious McKinney, Anna Carll, Harvey C., Vera, Owyhamac, owned and driven by Dr. H. E. Winter; Ingolsbee, Jr., owned and driven by Tom Brantingham, and Paradise Girl.

Royal McKinney, the Hoboken gelding, took the heat in the 2:20 pace in 2:21¼. Show Me was second and William third, Trent fourth, William Gay fifth, Jennie McCarron sixth and Uncle Lew seventh.

Today's racing card consists of seven harness races, including the free-for-all, and four running races. The first race was called at 11 o'clock.

SPEAKING OF ROBINS

Brooklyn entered the National League in 1890 and brought home the pennant the first year.

After winning the pennant in the year of its National League debut Brooklyn repeated the trick in 1899 and 1900.

Only once during the twenty-six years that Brooklyn has been in the National League has the team finished in the cellar. This was in 1905.

Since 1912 the Brooklyn team has bettered its position in the pennant race each year. The team finished seventh in 1912, sixth in 1913, fifth in 1914 and third in 1915.

In the short space of two years Manager Wilbert Robinson, of the Robins, has won a place among the most successful pilots in the big show.

While the Robins have been leading the National League in batting, they have been a second division team in fielding.

Three veteran pitchers—Marquard, Coombs and Cheney—have been doing excellent work for Brooklyn after all three had been released by other teams.

George Cutshaw, whose work around the second cushion has proved a sensation, came to Brooklyn in 1912 from the Oakland team of the Pacific Coast League.

McCarty and Daubert of the Brooklyn team are included among the ten .300 hitters in the National League, while Daubert and Cutshaw are among the first half dozen base stealers.

Zach Wheat is the oldest player on the Brooklyn team in point of service. Wheat joined the team in August, 1909. Jake Daubert is the next oldest, having joined the team in the spring of 1910.

Wilbert Robinson, the Robins' boss, is the third member of a famous old trio of Baltimore Orioles who later became great baseball managers. The other two were McGraw of the Giants, and Jennings of the Detroit Tigers.

Ed Pfeffer, the Robins' star pitcher and leading heaver of the National League, is 27 years old, and a native of Champaign, Ill. He won 23 games and lost 12 in 1914, the year in which he joined the Robins. Last year his count stood 19 won and 14 lost.

One of the noticeable features in Brooklyn's dash to the front has been the fast work displayed by the many veteran pastimers now on the team. Players who have been wearing big league spangles for years, including Mowrey, Meyers, Olson, Coombs, Marquard and Cheney, are now going like two-year-olds.

First known as the Trolley Dodgers the nickname of the Brooklyn team was changed to the Superbas when Ned Hanlon became pilot. The name owed its origin to "Hanlon's Superba," at that time a popular spectacular production on the stage. "Robins," the present nickname of the team, was given in honor of Manager Wilbert Robinson.

Losing the first two games of the present season put the Robins in the cellar, where they remained until April 19, when they beat the Giants and moved up a notch. They held down seventh place until April 23 and then started to climb in earnest. April 29 found the team in second place and on May 1 they grabbed the top rung of the pennant ladder. They lost the lead the next day, but regained it one day later and have been burning up the league ever since.

HAND THROUGH AS MANAGER

Frank Finds Financial Difficulties Put End to Team's Work.

Mayor Harry Christme, president of the Washington Baseball Association, yesterday notified Dr. L. C. Ormun, president of the Hackettstown Association, that the Washington team has been disbanded for the season, and therefore the game scheduled for Saturday in Hackettstown, would not be played. Frank Hand, of Scotch Plains, catcher and captain of the Washington team, was notified to the same effect by the Mayor. Captain Hand has placed the team on the field since W. H. Pfau, of Perth Amboy, was released as manager. The main cause for the team disbanding is the poor attendance this season. Before the Washington club quit the Penn-Jersey League to play independent ball there was good prospect that the interest would increase. The situation took a change for the worse with the scare of infantile paralysis.

It is understood here that the Hackettstown team is also perfectly willing to quit for the season. Both teams have lost money and were only able to keep going by outside subscriptions. The Washington Club was helped by the great carnival, which netted $200. It was thought here that the attendance next Saturday would not be sufficient to pay the expenses of either team.

PIRATE RECRUITS.

The Pittsburg National League baseball club yesterday announced the purchase of Redding, a pitcher, and Anderson, an infielder, from the Charlotte club, of the North Carolina League.

ROYALS CONTRACT WITH COUGHLAN

Two Games Will Be Played On Labor Day.

According to Pete Simmons, manager of the Royal Giants, the Netherwood baseball team will play a double-header with the Royals on Parker Field on Labor Day. For some time Pete has been angling for this game and at last his wish has been realized.

It is very probable that both games of the double bill will be played in the afternoon. The managers of both teams are desirous of inducing a large crowd to attend the games and are making extensive plans to care for the great numbers expected.

It is expected that Russ Stewart and "Senor" Maiden will get together in a pitching duel in one of the attractions, while one or two new twirlers will be given an opportunity to do something in the second tilt.

The Diplomat.

"Were you lonesome while I was away, Bertram, dear?" asked his wife when she returned from her visit to her mother.

"Yes, love, I was dreadfully lonesome," replied Bertram dutifully.

"But, why didn't you write to me oftener? I had only two letters from you the whole time I was away."

"Well, you see, my dear, I tried to write you, but I couldn't make the letters sound cheerful, and I was afraid you'd discover how lonesome I was and come right home. I wouldn't have spoiled your visit for the world, love."

And he really thought she believed him.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Acute Rheumatism.

The remedies of most avail in acute muscular rheumatism, according to Dr. William Fitch Cheney of Stanford university in an address reported in the New York Medical Journal, are:

First.—Rest. Nature usually enforces this method of management if the attack is sufficiently acute.

Second.—Heat. Heat is always grateful and gives relief. It may be applied in a variety of ways.

Third.—Purgation. It may be admitted that there is no scientific reason why purgation should aid, but the fact remains that it does.

Fourth.—Salicylates. They do mitigate the pain, and they are trustworthy agents to use after the initial purgation.

Fifth.—Opiates. Ordinarily all opiates are out of place because they have in general bad effects that outweigh the good. Externally the old established lead and opium wash, applied hot, is a most valuable aid in removing pain.

Massage, vibratory treatment, hydrotherapy and counterirritation also have some value.

SHE CAME, TOOK, AND DISAPPEARED

Now the Police and Paterson Man Are Wondering What Became of Her.

TAKEN BY STRANGERS

Child Left to Board With Mrs. Geo. Heckeroth, of 1235 Arlington Avenue, "Gobbled Up" By Strange Woman Who Claimed to Be Mother

Mystery srouds the strange disappearance of 6-year-old Helen Schweickhardt from the front yard of Mrs. George Heckeroth's home at 1235 Arlington avenue, yesterday afternoon, where the child had been boarding for some time past. According to the boarding mistress the infant was left in her charge by William Schweickhardt, of 103 McBride avenue, Paterson, and when she reported to the police that the girl had been kidnapped by two women and a man she was advised to communicate with the Paterson man. This she did and he arrived here last evening, spending his time making personal inquiry into the case and this morning soliciting the attention of City Judge William G. De Meza.

He was instructed by the court to prepare his complaint in the proper way against the parties he accused, but the data he collected was not of sufficient strength to warrant accusation and he deferred action. He added however that he would swear out a complaint Monday morning. Until that time the police will have no connection with the case, there being no ground on which they can work to stir up a kidnapping charge of any other similar case against the individuals who are rumored to be connected with the affair.

Mrs. Heckeroth informed the police that the child had been playing about the yard as usual when an automobile belonging to a Scotch Plains man drove up in front with two women in it. Acoording to the boarding house keeper they took little Helen into the machine and disappeared, she having been later acquainted with the details by neighbors who claimed to have witnessed the incident.

Captain John J. Flynn received Mrs. Heckeroth's 'phone call at police headquarters and when he went off duty at night he turned the matter over to Sergeant Charles Flynn, who conducted an investigation which brought out the fact that two Plainfield women and a Scotch Plains man had been instrumental in aiding a strange woman, who claimed to have been the mother of the infant, to get it away from the Arlington avenue address.

The woman of mystery in the case came to Plainfield yesterday afternoon, being acquainted with a German friend here. She told a story of having given birth to an illegitimate child in New York city six years ago, this child being the one involved in yesterday's case, she alleges. She also declared that Scheickhardt was the father of the infant, but that he took the girl and disappeared from New York. The woman immediately set out in search of him and her hunt for the child carried her to Germany, from where she recently returned, tracing the man to Paterson and the child to Plainfield.

Just how the 6-year-old child was taken from Plainfield without a Board of Health permit or whether or not she is still in this city is another phase of the case that puzzles the authorities. It was said this morning that the woman appeared at the North Avenue depot with the little girl last evening, but was prohibited from boarding a train because she carried no health permit. It is also claimed that the automobile was later employed to smuggle the girl away from this city and to New York.

Considerably more interest has been taken by the Paterson authorities in the case than was evidenced here, where the incident actually happened.

TICKETS HERE FOR ANNUAL COUNTY REPUBLICAN OUTING

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

KEEP [illegible] HOME.

N. Y. HAS HOPES OF AVERTING STRIKE

Employes Will Arbitrate Everything But Dismissal of Men.

New York, August 18.—New York is again facing a wholesale traffic tie-up with prospects of a second and more wide-spread car strike unless the deadlock between union leaders and the railroad officials is broken before nightfall.

The union leaders are confident of repeating their victory of ten days ago. They gathered today for the conference with the directors of the New York Railways Company, confident that the magnates would be forced to reinstate the ousted men and again sign peace terms.

"The outlook is very encouraging," said William B. Fitzgerald, the labor organizer who is at the head of the new demands. "I am satisfied that we are going to get a square deal. I believe the directors of the company will see they have been in the wrong in allowing our agreement to be violated.

From the camp of the company officials came the statement that they stood ready to arbitrate everything in dispute; the labor folk declared that they would arbitrate everything excepting the reinstatement of the discharged employes. This item, they asserted, was covered by the agreement of August 6.

It is over this element that the present crisis hangs. Today the employes will ask the directors to rescind their order dropping these men. No intimation is given as to the probable reply.

HERE'S A "FLIVVER" THAT RUNS ALONE

Westfield Man's New Car Doesn't Even Need a Chauffeur.

A tale just comes from Westfield of the pranks of an auto that does not even have to have a driver to keep out of trouble. It seems that one of the town's enterprising citizens has just purchased a "flivver" and, of course, was anxious to see how the thing would act on the road, so he got some of his friends together and started out for a spin. They had not gone far when the auto refused to go, owing to the stiffness of the machinery.

After getting out and apparently not finding anything wrong, the owner suggested pushing it home. Now here is where the fun started. The high speed had been left in and the switch on, and the engine was ready to start as soon as it turned over. As soon as they got the car started the spark "took" and away went the car without a driver, straight down the street for several blocks and up over the curb into the lawn of the property at the head of the street, where it came to a stop on a terrace, missing all obstacles and none the worse for its prank.

The owner is quite sure that next time he wants to start the engine he will be sure that the clutch is out, for it is a little too risky to let even a "flivver" run wild.

COLGATE HEADQUARTERS OPENED IN ELIZABETH

Union county headquarters for Senator Austen Colgate, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of New Jersey, have been opened in the Hirsh building, 207 Broad street, Elizabeth. Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, former chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, who is directing the campaign, is arranging a county-wide tour for Colonel Colgate, during which the voters from all sections will be given an opportunity to meet him.

The county headquarters are in personal charge of Arthur E. Warner, and present an active appearance. Visitors from all parts of the county are calling daily and Colgate buttons have been distributed widely. Twenty petitions are being circulated and generally signed.

The first Hughes lithograph to be shown in Union county was placed in the window of the Colgate headquarters yesterday, and showed conspicuously from Broad street.

TROOPERS' BOXES ARRIVE IN CAMP

Plainfielders' Contributions to Guardsmen Welcomed By Receivers at Douglas.

PLIGHT OF ONE YOUTH

Gave Wrong Age and Was Discharged Without Clothing or Funds For Transportation — Some Bright Spots In Camp Life On the Border.

(By Telegraph to the Press.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 14.—Many of the unit commanders are kept pleasantly at work these days opening and distributing the contents of huge bundles sent to them for their men by the folks back home. Captain Albert Borden, of the Plainfield troop, is a particularly busy man along these lines. He has recently received a large shipment of supplies from the Prince of Wales Relief Committee, a supply of knitted goods from Miss Dunkinson, a big case of Colgate's luxuries for men from DeWitt C. Ivins, two new vitaphones from the Vitaphone Company, of Plainfield, a substantial check from Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, a supply of books from Frank Sill and Allen Cowperthwait, and Mrs. Fielder's welcome contributions.

Interference with the War Department in its handling of dependency discharges is probably responsible for the fact that 17-year-old Frank Adams, a former private in the First New Jersey Infantry, is here without money upon which to live or with which to return to his home. His discharge yesterday, which was made unconditionally because he had falsified his age, opens a new phase to the discharge problem and is believed to be a drastic step toward an attempt to do away with meddling in the situation by outsiders. What is to become of Adams is not known.

Several days ago his mother made application for his discharge, stating that he was her support. The papers were made out properly and forwarded to the Southern Department for action along with a big batch from the First Regiment. None of them have been acted upon very quickly, due no doubt to the fact that General Funston's headquarters at Fort Sam Houston has been deluged with applications from the various State organizations encamped along the border.

When speedy action was not forthcoming the matter was taken up by John Madden, of the city law department of Newark, who did not satisfy himself with merely applying for the discharge on the grounds of dependency but enclosed a copy of Adams' birth certificate showing that he had falsified his age at the time he enlisted. The army regulations provide that any man who falsifies his age on entering the service must be discharged without rations, pay or transportation.

Adams was accordingly turned out of the Guard without ceremony yesterday. He is still in Douglas and is likely to be until some one somewhere provides the money necessary for his return home. He must turn over all his clothing and equipment before he leaves here also.

Further orders looking toward the perfection of camp sanitation and the health of the Jerseymen have been issued by Brigadier General Edwin W. Hine. Details are ordered to the wind rolls to burn the manure and one man is directed to remain there until the incineration is completed. The accumulation of water in puddles around the camp faucets is ordered stopped and the unit commanders are directed to station a guard at each faucet to see that the water is not wasted and does not run over to form puddles.

Washing clothes near the company kitchens is prohibited. The men are directed to take their pails or tubs to the extreme far end of the camp street and ordered to throw the water out over a large area in order to give it an opportunity to evaporate readily.

In the past the men have done most of their laundry work in and near the company kitchens. It has been a common practice to borrow the huge kitchen pots for use as washtubs. Utensils in which the food of the men has been cooked have been used for washing out underwear and other clothing. This must stop, as the health officers cannot reconcile such practices with good health and clean eating.

Fearing that the blankets worn by the horses may carry injurious germs, the men have been forbidden taking any of them into their tents in the future.

In order to keep a close watch over the camp sanitation General Edwin W. Hine has directed the camp sanitation officer, Captain Frank Y. Neer, to give him a daily report on the situation.

Major Jean F. Wolfs, chief medical officer in the First Regiment, has hit on a new scheme for safeguarding the health of his men. Major Wolfs has issued an order compelling all enlisted men in his regiment to visit the barber and get their hair cut down shorter. Many of the men have permitted their hair to grow long since they have been here. Working on the theory that long hair provides a fine rendezvous for microbes and germs, the major ordered

"FIT AND TRIM," DECLARE GUARDS

Four Who Returned Home Last Night Say All Troopers Are Well.

ARE NOW AT SEA GIRT

Goodenough, Williams, Houghton and Anderson Report Here By Mistake—Will Leave For Fort Du Pont Tomorrow.

Declaring that they never felt more "physically fit" in their lives, three members of Troop D, First New Jersey Squadron, arrived in Plainfield last night and left this morning for Sea Girt to be mustered out of the Federal service under the "dependent family" ruling of the War Department. They are Bugler Lewis A. Williams, Jr., and Privates Houghton and Goodenough. Private Douglas Anderson, who came from Douglas, Ariz., with the other three men, went to Spring Lake last night with Mrs. Anderson, and the four visited Colonel Henry A. Styer, the United States officer in charge there, shortly before noon today. At Sea Girt they learned that the Department of the South had made a mistake and should have sent them to Fort Dupont, near Wilmington, Del. They will all go there tomorrow morning. They will report to Colonel Styer at Sea Girt at 4 o'clock this afternoon for their final instructions before going on to the mustering out station.

All four men looked the picture of health. In a talk with a Press reporter at Sea Girt, Williams declared that he felt fine, and that they had left the rest of the men in the troop in the best of physical condition and getting settled for a stay which may last until Christmas or later. The men are getting acclimated and many who formerly tried to get off to come home are now better satisfied with conditions as little comforts are added to the camp, and are determined to make the best of things and see the tour of duty through. The food is good and there is plenty of it.

QUIMBY QUITS POST; BROWN PROMOTED

(By Telegraph to the Press.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 18.—Captain William O'Gorman Quinby, of the New Jersey Medical Corps, stationed here, tendered his resignation to the War Department last night and the same will take effect September 1. Captain Quinby received his commission December 11, 1911, and both at Sea Girt, during mobilization and here, he has been considered a valuable medical adviser.

Officers of the First Squadron, New Jersey Cavalry, elected First Lieutenant Robert B. Brown, of Troop C, cavalry, to the majorship left vacant by the resignation of Major William A. Bryant, who left here today. The cavalry officers, including Captain Albert G. Borden, of Plainfield, tendered a farewell dinner at the Douglas Country Club last night.

HORACE L. PHILLIPS A WITNESS TO POTTS WILL

Leaving the bulk of her estate to her daughters and a grandson, the will of Mrs. Helen B. Potts, of Llewellyn Park, West Orange, who died July 27, was admitted to probate last week. Mrs. Potts formerly resided on the place now owned by A. L. Canfield, in Somerville.

Besides the residuary estate, left in equal shares to her daughters, Mrs. Theaodore Burr Baker and Mrs. Helen H. P. Wynkoop, and to her grandson, Donald L. Greenleaf, Mrs Potts gives Mrs. Wynkoop diamond jewelry and silverware, and a portrait of her grandfather painted by Thomas Hicks. She gives Mrs. Baker silverware, wearing apparel and books, in which Mrs. Wynkoop also shares, and the grandson receives silverware. His inheritance, one-third of the residuary estate, is to be paid him when he becomes thirty years of age.

The will was executed June 21, 1911, and the residuary legatees are made executors. Horace G. Phillips, of Plainfield, Charles P. Schultz, of Tuckahoe and Alfred L. Manierre, of New York, were witnesses to the testament.

TESTER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Big Simplex Car Badly Damaged In Collision With Overland Machine.

DRIVER IS BADLY HURT

Fatal Accident Happened Shortly Before Noon In North Plainfield Township—Driver of Lighter Machine Uninjured.

One man was killed, another badly injured and a big Simplex testing car and an Overland touring car were badly damaged in a collision between the two machines on Washington avenue at the intersection of Greenbrook road, North Plainfield township, shortly before noon. Ernest Jones, of 21 Codwise avenue, Ned Brunswick, met instant death as he rode on the Simplex car alongside of the driver, Walter Jones, aged 25, also of New Brunswick, who was badly cut about the head and shoulders, and Charles E. Wakefield, of 104 Manning avenue, owner and driver of the Overland machine, escaped almost miraculously with a severe shaking up. Reynolds was arrested by the township police officials on a technical count of fast and reckless driving pending the outcome of an investigation now in progress.

According to the story related to the police by early arrivals at the scene of the fatality, the Simplex machine was proceeding south on Washington avenue, having gotten up considerable speed on the incline from Washington Rock, when the Overland hove suddenly into view going west on Greenbrook road. Neither machine was traveling at a snail's pace, it is alleged, and when the two came together at right angles the impact was terrific, the noise of the smash resounding for blocks around.

Queer as it may seem, the heavy tester, with over a ton of cement piled on behind, fared the worst. Jones was hurled headlong to the ground and Reynolds' life was probably saved by his hold on the steering gear. The Overland was damaged, but not to the extent that the Simplex suffered. The body of Jones was removed to Runyon's morgue at Dunellen, where it was claimed at noon by his widow and two children, who arrived from New Brunswick in one of the Simplex company's automobiles. He was formerly employed as a chauffeur by the late Prosecutor Bodine, of Middlesex county, and both he and Reynolds were recognized as expert testers. Reynolds was in an accident of a somewhat similar nature at Somerville about a year ago and at that time he was so badly injured that his life was despaired of for months. He only recently recovered fully and returned to work.

Coincident with the death of Jones is the fact that John Lynch, who lives directly across the street from him in Codwise avenue, New Brunswick, was brought home dead two hours earlier than the local accident this morning. Lynch's body was found at the bottom of an elevator shaft in the James Brothers' factory at New Brunswick, where he was employed as night watchman. The police of that place are conducting an investigation this afternoon to determine whether he fell down the shaft accidentally or whether he was the victim of foul play.

LITTLE BOYS CAUGHT ROBBING GROCERY STORE

Joseph Leecha, 7-year-old youth of Second street, and Thomas Mamonski, a 5-year-old boy of Liberty street, were brought into city court this morning for breaking into the Arnold butcher store on Liberty street, last night. Holding that the Leecha boy's mother was to blame for allowing her son to be about at 11 o'clock, the time at which the youngsters were caught, Judge De Meza fined her $5, and because the Mamonski boy has no one to care for him, the Judge turned him over to the Charity Organization.

The two lads were heard last night by a resident of that section just as they were getting out of one of the store windows. Patrolman Dunlap caught the two youths hiding in the bushes.

NO PARALYSIS CASES; EPIDEMIC IS PASSING

No new paralysis cases were reported from Plainfield or any of the suburban sections last night or this morning, and officials believe that the epidemic is waning. The cool weather of last week is just now showing its effect, say those who have made a study of the disease, and unless more extremely warm days come, there will be only a few scattered cases. All of the cases in Plainfield, North Plainfield, Dunellen, Watchung, Scotch Plains and Fanwood are reported as doing well, and no violations of the quarantine law have been reported to health authorities in any of the municipalities.

C. D. Wardlaw is enrolled in the Columbia Summer School.

RAILROAD HEADS TO SEE WILSON TODAY

Conference On Strike Will Be Held Sometime This Afternoon.

Washington, August 15.—No hour has been set by the White House for the conference with railroad presidents today, but it will be held some time this afternoon, and at this parley it will be decided whether or not all passenger and freight trains in the United States are to be tied up by a general strike of trainmen.

There are thirty-one railway presidents in Washington today. Most of them resent the action of President Wilson in calling them here, and they are still inclined to leave the strike controversy entirely in the hands of their managers. The managers have refused an eight-hour day plan for the trainmen, and on this issue depends the strike. Unless President Wilson can persuade or force the railroads to recognize the eight-hour day, they will quit work.

When he confers with the presidents, Mr. Wilson will have in his hands the reply of the brotherhood leaders to his proposal for a settlement, and it is believed that this will put the entire matter squarely up to the corporations.

The engagement to see the railroad men was at 11:30 this morning, but when it was brought to the attention of President Wilson that some of the Western officials could not reach Washington by that time, he agreed to postpone the conference until some time this afternoon.

President Wilson was considering going over the heads even of the railway presidents, it was intimated, if they should refuse the concessions be suggested, and appeal direct to the financiers who control the railroads.

The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

DRIVE GERMANS OUT OF FLEURY

French Recapture Village Taken By Crown Prince Recently.

SOMME ATTACKS FAIL

Germans Not Only Repulsed But Lose Prisoners—Russians Halted In Great Drive, Says Berlin Statement.

German Wheat Scandal.

Amsterdam, August 18.—Many arrests have been made as a result of a wheat scandal in Germany, including the president of the Imperial War Wheat Office.

1,200 Belgians Exiled.

Paris, Aug. 18.—Twelve hundred exiled Belgians, inhabitants of Charleville, have passed through Aix la Chapelle en route to Germany, according to word reaching here today. The cause of their exile is not stated.

Russians Are Halted.

Berlin, Aug. 18.—The Austro-German resistance in Eastern Galicia, according to official announcements, has tightened to such an extent that, although the Russians are continuing their savage onslaughts, they are unable to make any headway.

The official statement issued last night by the German War Office said:

"Fierce Russian attacks continued into the night against Batkow and Harbuzow, west of Zalocze (on the Sereth, twenty-two miles southeast of Brody). They were repulsed completely.

"On the front of Archduke Charles Francis the enemy yesterday made fruitless efforts north of the Dniester near Tustobaby and Konczani. We took 154 prisoners.

"In the Carpathians, Starawipczyna Height, north of Capul, has been captured."

Washington, August 18.—Without a record vote the House this afternoon adopted the final conference report on the naval report appropriation bill, carrying approximately $312,000,000, and authorizing construction of sixteen capital ships, within three years. Of this number four battleships and four battle cruisers are to be contracted for immediately. The Senate adopted the conference report yesterday. It now goes to the President for his signature.

Admit British Victory.

Berlin, August 18.—Official admission was made in a statement issued by the War Office today the Germans have been pushed back by the British, southwest of Martinpuich on the Somme front, but other attacks by British troops north of Pozieres were repulsed.

London, August 18.—Great Britain's intention to retain her old shipping is indicated by a bill now before the House of Commons, which has the support of the government, particularly the war party. The bill provides that ships, whether or not of British registry, must not be controlled through the majority of stock ownership or board membership by foreign interests. It is further stipulated that foreigners will not be permitted to exercise any interest in British ships during the war or for three years thereafter.

Paris, Aug. 18.—Heavy attacks by the French last night on the Verdun front drove the Germans out of Fleury village, east of the Meuse, according to a statement issued by the war office today. Fleury was but recently taken by the army of the Crown Prince.

The Germans still retain a few ruins outside and east of the village near the Chapitre forest. The French also advanced west of the town, between Thiaumont and Fleury, taking fifty prisoners.

The French blow was struck on the 178th day of the great battle for the fortress city. It was preceded by a terrific bombardment and a heavy curtain fire that prevented the Germans from bringing up reserves. Clinging desperately to the northeastern houses of the town, the Germans vainly attempted to stem the French advance with machine guns. Violent combats occurred in the streets of the ruined village before the Germans withdrew.

On the Somme front the Germans last night made their first attempt to recapture positions taken by the French in Wednesday's advance around Maurepas. At the same time the Germans were delivering heavy attacks against the British around Pozieres, fighting broke out along the French front southeast of Maurepas, where violent artillery fighting continued throughout yesterday.

The French not only repulsed the German attacks but made some prisoners.

COL. COLGATE WILL COME HERE SOON

Has Arranged to Speak to Plainfield Voters On Campaign Issues.

Arrangements are being made for Col. Austen Colgate, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, to meet the voters of Plainfield. It is probable that a meeting will be held at the Republican headquarters, this city, at a date to be announced in the near future.

It is believed by Colonel Colgate's friends that he will carry this city. Several of the civic organizations, although not openly taking sides in the matter, have manifested a deep interest in his campaign on account of the intimate relations which he has maintained with the objects for which they are aiming. It was through the efforts of Colonel Colgate that the playground idea was fostered in its earliest days, and in his own city, East Orange, he gave liberally of his funds to secure the establishment and maintenance of these. Colonel Colgate is also deeply interested in the Y. M. C. A. movement and recently purchased 160 acres in Sussex county for a Y. M. C. A. camp.

A number of Colonel Colgate's classmates at Yale have interested themselves in his campaign and will assist him in every way. Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, is managing his fight in Union county. Another classmate is Frederick W. Wallace, of this city, who is superintendent of the Waclark Wire Works, Elizabeth.

PARALYSIS IS NOT CONTAGIOUS DISEASE

Drugless Physician Makes Strange Statement to Convention.

Philadelphia, August 17.—"Infantile paralysis is not contagious or infectious, and the prevailing scare is no epidemic, as 85 per cent. of the cases reported are only the ordinary summer complaints of infants."

This statement was made by Dr. W. Wallace Fritz, president of the National Association of Drugless Physicians, in the course of his address on infantile paralysis, at a meeting held last night at the Hotel Adelphia.

"The disease is not due to any bacteria," he said. "Instead it is due to toxic poisoning, climatic changes, poor dietetics or unhygienic surroundings.

"There is no epidemic at present, as we have had only one-third of the number of deaths in Philadelphia that we had in 1910. In the year 1911 we had 63 deaths and in 1912 there were 45 deaths.

"At present all summer complaints are being specified as infantile paralysis. We hear of no deaths from cholera infantum, convulsions, marasmus or other diseases of children."

WANT PHARMACISTS TO BE COLLEGE GRADUATES

Newark, Aug. 18.—New Jersey's Board of Pharmacy, of which David Strauss, of Newark, is president, will recommend to the next Legislature, the passage of a prerequisite law providing that after July 1, 1917, no person shall be permitted to take an examination for a pharmacist's license unless he shall have been graduated from an approved college of pharmacy. Such action was advised by the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association at its recent convention. The proposition was heartily supported by State President C. J. McCloskey, of Jersey City, and members from all parts of the State.

I. C. S. "FRAT" MAY TAKE STUMP FOR PREPAREDNESS

The executive committee of Abraham Lincoln Chapter, No. 122, I. C. S. Fraternity of the World, met last night in the "frat" rooms in the Frost building. In the absence of Chairman Arthur L. Grisley, who is spending his vacation in Connecticut, President Harry W. Swivel presided.

Much important business was transacted and the feature of holding public meetings, the members speaking from an automobile on industrial preparedness, was discussed with much enthusiasm.

Through the courtesy of Manager Willard, of Mathushek & Sons Piano Co., of West Front street, a Victrola has been installed and a concert was enjoyed after the meeting. The Victrola will be in use for the duration of the I. C. S. Industrial Exhibit, now on display in the meeting rooms. ANSWER TO QUERY.

A query, signed by "Gap," was submitted to this office yesterday. The writer desired to know the trolley route from this city to the Delaware Water Gap. Inquiry at the offices of the Public Service both in this city and Elizabeth, resulted in information to the effect that the route is as follows: Take Main Line trolley to Elizabeth, where change is made to cars of Morris County Traction Company. Another change is made at Springfield Junction, car marked "Morristown" being taken. Trolleys run from Morristown to Lake Hopatcong every half hour. According to the Public Service cars run from Lake Hopatcong to the Delaware Water Gap at regular intervals. The fare, one way, from this city to Lake Hopatcong is eighty-five cents.

ARRAIGNED IN COURT FOR CHEATING JEWISH PEDDLER

Mrs. Frank Lynch [illegible] Chester place, was given the option of returning $20 that belonged to Samuel Stillman, of New Brunswick, or being held for the Grand Jury, when she was arraigned before Judge De Moga in city court this morning. She only had $17 with her and the Judge deemed that sufficient.

Stillman, who is a peddler, claimed that on July 29 Mrs. Lynch asked him to change a $20 bill so that she could pay him what she owed him. He gave her the change, he said, but she kept the bill as well and afterward said that she was positive she gave it to him. Although she said in court that she had given the money to him she said she would rather give up to him again than be held for the Grand Jury.

A Determined Effort With Two Logical Reasons Back of It

There are two great and all-important reasons for a price reduction, and these are, No. 1, To clean up all seasonable stocks so that nothing is carried over, and No. 2, The certainty of knowing that the values a store gives will make many new friends and create permanent trade—at least that's the feeling that prevails here strongly, now, when every effort is being made to clear all Summer stocks.

Many good goods have lingered too long. For us they serve no definite purpose, but for you they present many opportunities to save.

Do you know what certified milk is?

The rigid requirements of the medical milk commission fill a book—but the gist of it is simply this:

Certified milk is milk produced in a strictly sanitary way, free from disease germs and containing all the elements good milk should. The commission—a board of responsible physicians—certified such milk as safe for children to drink.

Is there anything more important to you than your children's safety?

Wood Brook Milk is certified milk.

These are three of the leading figures in the railroad crisis. At the top is Judge W. L. Chambers, chairman of the federal board of mediation and conciliation; in the center is W. G. $97,042,264 GAIN IN 1916 IN INTERNAL REVENUE Income Tax Produces $124,937,253; Collections Reach $512,723,288.

Collections by the internal revenue bureau for the fiscal year ending June 30 reached a total of $512,723,288, an increase of $97,042,264 over those for the fiscal year 1915.

A preliminary report by Commissioner Osborn shows that of the total $387,786,035 came from ordinary collections and $124,937,253 from the income tax. Of the ordinary revenue $84,278,302 was collected under the emergency tax law and the rest from taxes on spirits, tobacco, etc. About $38,000,000 accrued from sales of documentary stamps, $20,000,000 from the additional tax of 50 cents per barrel on fermented liquors and almost $7,000,000 from special taxes on bankers, brokers, theaters, etc.

The normal tax on incomes, those over $3,000 and less than $20,000, produced $23,995,777; incomes from $20,000 to $50,000 produced $6,091,775, those from $50,000 to $75,000 produced $4,071,262, those from $75,000 to $100,000 produced $3,623,173, those from $100,000 to $250,000 produced $10,936,326, those from $250,000 to $500,000 produced $6,593,859 and those over $500,000 produced $12,647,863. Offers of compromise were accepted involving $183,159.

TO ABOLISH TOLL BRIDGES.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey Take Joint Action.

The states of Pennsylvania and New Jersey are to take active steps to do away with the toll charges to which the traveling public is now subject in crossing privately owned bridges in both states.

A general conference was recently held at the office of Governor Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania which was attended by officers and interested officials of both states and which elected Governor Brumbaugh chairman of a joint commission to take steps in this direction at once. A campaign to take over such bridges has been inaugurated, and the states have appropriated $100,000 a year for five years for the purpose.

TO HIRE CONVICTED SPOUSE.

Wife Submits Offer to Employ Man Convicted of Homicide.

A jury in the superior court at Wentworth, N. C., convicted J. W. Slaughter, formerly chief of police of Draper, of the murder of Thomas Weaver last February, and the verdict carried a sentence of two years in prison. In addition, the jury stipulated that Slaughter pay $400 to his victim's widow and granted the county commissioners authority to hire the prisoner out for labor.

His wife at once put in a bid for her husband's services, and there is little doubt that it will be accepted. So Slaughter probably will serve his prison sentence at home. He had pleaded self defense.

BOXES ARRIVE AT CAMP

the silken tresses clipped so that the purifying rays of sunlight may have an opportunity to filter through.

Receipt of word to the effect that the Department of the South would not grant further discharges under the dependency orders to men who enlisted after the call for mobilization on June 19 has caused a flurry here. There are a number of applications in from such parties and it is believed it will affect their chances for discharges. The ruling that the resignations of officers would not be accepted unless it was shown that the need for relief was extremely urgent was also taken as an indication of a general throttling down on wholesale leaves.

Chaplain James Madison Hare, whose orders for church service last Sunday created such a furore throughout camp, held services this morning at the field artillery recreation hall. He preached to a large congregation, in which General Hine and his staff were included. Services were held in the First and Fifth regiments as usual and in the First Regiment Chaplain Warren F. Coon, Corporal Baldwin, Company D, and Private Forfar, Company D, rendered a trio.

BRITISH BOATS CHASED BIG GERMAN SUBMARINE

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 18.—Chasing of an unknown submarine, believed to be the Deutschland, off the Virginia coast a few days ago, is reported as told by the crew of the British submarine depot ship Adamant.

Apparently trying to capture or sink German merchant submarines, Great Britain dispatched two fighting submarines to this side of the Atlantic. The Adamant and the fighters are reported engaged in a three days' search for the German submarine Deutschland. The Adamant is reported to have sighted a third periscope 300 miles off the coast, and with her charges started after the stranger.

The chase apparently did not result in capture.

300 ITALIAN SAILORS WENT DOWN WHEN THIS BATTLESHIP WAS BLOWN UP

THE LEONARDO DA VINCI.

The Italian battleship Leonardo da Vinci caught fire and after several explosions turned over and sank in the harbor at Taranto on August 14. About 300 of her crew were drowned. One of the ship's magazines exploded while efforts were being made to beach her. The blaze is thought to have started in the kitchen. Naval experts believe she can be refloated. The Leonardo da Vinci was one of the newer Italian dreadnoughts, having been constructed late in 1913. She displaced 22,340 tons and was 554 feet long. Her principal armament consisted of thirteen 12-inch guns. She carried a crew of about 1,000 men.

WARM PRIMARY IS ON IN ILLINOIS

Surprising Results Promised When Votes Are Counted In Three Weeks.

Chicago, August 18.—The longest drawn-out primary campaign Illinois has ever known is now entering upon its last lap. Three weeks ago next Wednesday the several political parties will name their standard-bearers in a battle of ballots which gives every promise of producing surprising results. It will involve the nominees for State offices from Governor down, twenty-seven Congressmen from the State, and the make-up of the Fiftieth General Assembly—the legislature which will celebrate the centennial of the State's admission to the Union.

The campaign was begun more than a year ago and has been going forward steadily ever since, excepting for the slight interruption occasioned by the Presidential primaries in April. Since that time big deals have been in the making and some of them have gone through. Not until a very recent date were the lines in the big battle definitely formed by the dropping out of or the elimination of a number of the candidates. This elimination has applied to both the Republicans and the Democrats, with the result that the contests for the principal places on the State tickets have a much smaller number of candidates in the running that was expected earlier in the campaign.

The contest for the Republican nomination for Governor, involving as it does the question of the control of the party in the State, is the big battle to be fought out in the primaries. Only two Democrats seek the nomination for Governor, Edward P. Dunne, the incumbent, and James Traynor, both of Chicago. Dunne's nomination in a primary of his party which has been remarkably free from all fractional strife, now seems assured.

The republican primary campaign on the other hand, has been a long drawn, bitterly fought contest of more than two years' duration, which virtually has split the party. Colonel Frank O. Lowden, former Congressman and son-in-law of the late George H. Pullman, the palace car magnate, and Colonel Frank L. Smith, of Dwight, were the original contestants for the Gubernatorial honors. Lowden drew the support of Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, and the Thompson Cook County organization. Smith started out at a fast clip, setting a pace that caused several of the prospective candidates to drop out of the race. The Dwight man counted upon the support of the Republican faction led by ex-Governor Deneen, but he never received it.

From the first Deneen fought Lowden with all the power at his command. His campaign resulted in the formation of a combination made up of Colonel Lowden, Mayor Thompson and Senator Sherman. This combination succeeded in unseating Roy O. West and Deneen from the control of the State committee. As a result Morton D. Hull, of Chicago, was cast into the breach of the Deneen crowd as its candidate for Governor in an effort to retain control of the State organization. A bitter fight has resulted, which gives every promise of being carried into the fall election

Candidates for minor offices on the State tickets are thick. A big change in the personnel is likely to be noted in the next Legislature. Many of the men of influence in the last Senate and House are not seeking renomination, and the 1916 General Assembly at this juncture seems likely to pass into entirely new hands.

A number of the Republican Congressmen who were defeated in 1912 and all of those who were elected in 1914, are candidates again this year. One of the most interesting of the Congressional contests is that in the Second district, comprising the Hyde Park section of Chicago and now represented by James R. Mann, the minority leader in the House. A well organized fight is under way to defeat Congressman Mann for renomination because of his attitude on the Hobson amendment. The fight against him is backed by the Anti-Saloon League and some of the church organization.

More than ordinary interest is manifested in the fate of Congressman Mann, because of his position as minority leader. It is the opinion here that Mr. Mann, if re-elected, will have a good chance to be chosen Speaker of the next National House of Repersentatives, if that body is Republican. The Congressional delegation from Illinois and Mr. Mann, chief of all, know that "Uncle Joe" Cannon, if he is re-elected in November, will not be a candidate for Speaker and is not looking for any other recognized place of leadership. Therefore the Illinois Republicans will be solidly for Mann for re-election as minority leader in December and for Speaker in 1917, if things go well with the Republicans.

GIVES HER BLOOD TO SAVE BABIES

There is something of romance in the fact that Miss Ruth Stiles, of New York, has sacrificed eight ounces of her blood to be used as serum to save the lives of children stricken with infantile paralysis. A few weeks ago she left the hospital, after a remarkable operation had cured her of a deformity which was the result of an attack of infantile paralysis when she was a child. "It is in a spirit of gratitude," said Miss Stiles, "that I am giving my blood to be used in an effort to save the lives of stricken children. More than that, I grew to know a great many of the little tots at the hospital. My heart went out to them and when this chance came I determined to offer myself to help the poor little ones."

HANGING AT TAMPA.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 18.—Sheriff W. C. Spencer early this morning completed final preparations for the execution of Charles Haines, a negro, who was convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of Marshal Joe S. Walker, of Port Tampa City. Haines was to have paid the death penalty in June, but a stay of execution was secured pending submission of his case to the pardon board, which body refused to interfere in his behalf.

ENTITLED TO EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

The gigantic railroad strike hinges on refusal of the railroads to recognize the eight-hour day principle for their men. Upon this President Wilson is insisting, and he rightfully contends that no sound reason has been given why railroading cannot be organized to make an eight-hour working day practical. The brotherhoods are demanding time and a half for overtime, which is a necessary part of the eight-hour day recognition, for unless they were paid at an advanced rate for overtime there would be no restraint on the employer who might seek to work his men extra hours. When the eight-hour day was first proposed in other lines where skilled workmen were employed, employers contended that it would mean the giving to their workmen of more than their share of the revenue, but time has proven that the principle has increased labor efficiency and brought a substantial increase in output. The same result will come out of an eight-hour day for railroad trainmen. They are entitled to the concession, and President Wilson will be performing a monumental public service if he sees that they get it without a strike that must occasion terrible loss and suffering to thousands in no way connected with the controversy.

Republican and Democratic leaders recognize alike that it is to be war to the hilt in Maine, where two seats in the Senate, the Governorship and four seats in the House are at stake, and which State usually has such a powerful moral influence on the subsequent election. Any lingering hope that the Democrats have entertained of finding a divided opposition in Maine has gone glimmering. The Republicans have corralled most of the influential Progressive speakers and are to send them into the State. Among these, besides Col. Roosevelt, are Hon. Arthur L. Garford, of Ohio, formerly Progressive candidate for Senator in the Buckeye State; Hon. Raymond Robins, of Chicago, once a powerful Progressive leader in Illinois, and later the chief but vain hope of the Democratic administration in Illinois; Hon.. Henry J. Allen, of Kansas; Hon. Edward C. Toner, of Indiana, and also Hon. Oswald Ryan, of the same State.

If the Republican claims that American prosperity is based absolutely on the munitions being shipped to warring European countries are true some proof will be available before the election in November, for these shipments are falling off each week. England is just now getting her industries organized and is able to make not only what her armies need, but enough for France. Russia, with aid from Japan, needs no American-made shells. Hon. Edward Samuel Montagu, minister of munitions, made the following statement in the House of Commons this week:

"The American supply of heavy shells has been available to us, but we are using less each day ,and with the increasing home and Canadian supplies we hope to be able to do without American shells altogether soon."

Plainfield has been two weeks without a single fire alarm. This is due, mostly, to a general cleaning up of the rubbish piles around the city, both as a precaution against paralysis and as a part of a fire protection campaign conducted by Chief Doane. If the city is kept clean insurance rates will soon be reduced materially, as well as disease and death. Certainly the result is worth a little individual effort on the part of each householder.

A New York newspaper man now touring the West with Candidate Hughes sends back the startling information that the former Justice spends his spare time reading thrilling detective stories printed in ten-cent novel form. The Democrats might be led to believe that here is the source of his adjectives used in describing "dastardly" acts of the Wilson administration.

- Proctor's Theatre -

Bertha Kalich in "Ambition," the Fox production presented at Proctor's today, has the role of the wife of a politician whose ambition for advancement has killed any sense of honor he may have had. The situation which is built up around this theme becomes a very interesting one and give Mme. Kalich a chance for a restrained, yet sympathetic portrayal of a woman whose world crumbles about her and yet who is able to find and keep the right path. The direction, settings and photography of the play are excellent, and the interest of the spectator is held throughout. The pranks of Little Kittens Reichert as Betty Powers adds greatly to the enjoyment of the play, and she again proves that she is a remarkable little screen actress. Today's program also introduces another popular favorite among local film fans in the person of Crane Wilbur, who is seen in a role to his liking, in a pleasing dramatic offering, entitled "The Fool's Game." Rube Miller, the droll comedy star, stirs up abundant laughter by his comic capers in "Jealousy A La Carte," and other novelties complete the program.

Tomorrow, Edmund Breese, the Metro favorite, is featured in one of those rousing stories of the Far North, entitled "The Spell of the Yukon." This picture is produced with the wide scope and exactness prevalent in all Metro offerings, and the star is given a powerful story to enact, and is assisted by a cast of picked Metro players. Other attractions tomorrow include Edward Coxen and Lizette Thorn in "The Dreamer;" Carol Halloway and John Sheenan in "Gamblers and Greenbacks," and Orral Humphrey in "A Germ Gem."

On Monday, B. S. Moss's masterful picturization of Elinor Glyn's famous novel, "One Day," will be the headline attraction, and it might be well to state that this picture has been reviewed by the local censors under direction of the Mayor, and was unanimously passed as a fitting production, so its appearance on the day mentioned above is positively guaranteed.

An effort toward better and newer material in burlesque is seen in the announcement that Miss Frances Cornell and Miss Millie Doris will have prominent parts in the presentation of a "A Trip to Washington," with Johnny Weber in the title role, by Rose Sydell's Famous London Belles at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow, matinee and night. Miss Cornell's reputation as a singer of comic songs as well as an English comedienne is well known in vaudeville. Miss Doris is also a former vaudevillian well known for her singing, good looks and knowing how to wear clothes.

If it's advertised today it is likely that it is of timely interest to you today.

You can make your task of "buying for the home" either a very irksome one or a very interesting and pleasant one. A habit of ad-study will make it ALWAYS INTERESTING and always full of ECONOMY POSSIBILITIES.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Two Sides.

In life all things are not what they seem;
There's many a crooked deal,
And many a man wears an auto cap
Who hasn't an automobile.

We know there's very much deceit
In this old world of toil,
For many a man smells of gasoline
Who is not in Standard Oil.

In all of this cosmic whirl
Our dreams are shattered—blim!
And many a girl sees the last of a guy,
When she fastens a string to him.

No, things are not just what they seem,
And many illusions are punk;
For many a woman wears "real" marten furs
When every one knows they are skunk.

The Genus Hobo.

He pays no rent, he pays no tax,
He buys no coal or ice;
He doesn't worry when
He hasnt' got the price.
He doesn't lie awake at night.
And try to figure out
A way to meet the grocery bill.
And never has the gout.
He doesn't have to entertain
Or go to parties that
He doesn't care a snap about
In some kind neighbor's flat.

He doesn't have to worry lest
His clothes are not in style;
The weather is a question that
He doesn't think worth while.
He simply seeks another when
A climate doesn't suit.
He isn't interested in
A single blamed dispute.
He doesn't have to work, at all
And is a happy lad.
To lead the genus hobo's life
Can't be so very bad.

A Criticism.

An editor who was asked by his son to help him with some of the problems assigned at night work, says he can't see how a boy is going to learn anything when his teacher sends him home with problems like the following: "If it takes a four-months woodpecker, with a rubber bill, nine months and thirteen days to peck a hole through a cypress log that is large enough to make 117 shingles and it takes 165 shingles to make a bundle worth 93 cents, how long will it take a cross-eyed grasshopper with a cork leg to kick all the seeds out of a dill pickle?"

Not Enlisted to Pick.

The story is being circulated that I was discharged from the office of deputy sheriff because I disobeyed the law. I defy Hon. Mr. Dunphy or any one to prove the same. Mr. Dunphy's excuse to me was that I was getting all the work to do and he was sitting around Sandusky doing nothing. That was not the reason that I was removed. Why did not Mr. Dunphy go to work? He had the chance. I was appointed deputy sheriff in September, 1915, by Mr. Dunphy and told to get the evidence against a certain person in the village of Lexington for violating the local option law which Mr. Dunphy admitted he could get. The evidence was produced.

Moral—I do not expect to pick the roses when Mr. Thos. Dunphy planted the bush. Abner Jackman, Lexington, Mich.
Adv. in the Lexington (Mich.) News.

Trouble.

You do not have to hurry down the highway just to meet it;
Just stand right still and it will come to you.
If you are wise and have a chance, you'll beat it,
As soon as old man Gloom comes into view.
It isn't very difficult to find a batch of worry,
Because it's never hidden out of sight.
When a man is looking for it he can grab it in a hurry,
If he hasn't sense enough to fly his kite.

No Kick Coming.

When a man complains about the high cost of living, go at him as follows: "Your dad used to drive a yoke of steers and linkpin wagon; you drive a pair of roadsters hitched to a top buggy, your son drives a six-cylinder, 40-horsepower automobile. The steers ate buffalo grass and made three miles an hour; the roadsters ate 15-cent corn and $5 prairie hay and made nine miles an hour; the motor car eats 75-cent gasoline and makes 75 miles an hour. More speed costs more money.

Scissors Stuff

FOWLER IS CONFIDENT.

Mr. Charles N. Fowler, who doesn't seem to be able to get over the idea that he is a statesman necessary to the welfare of his country, is very sure that he will be nominated for Congress in the Fifth district.

And his nomination is not an impossibility. The last time he ran at the primaries he received a large vote, and there are two candidates in the field this year, beside himself.

One is John H. Capstick, who won over the Democratic candidate in 1914 by a plurality of 1,233, and the Republicans seem to be unable to unite in support of him this year.

The other candidate is Richard Boardman, a lawyer, who is well known, but who has never had much to do with political affairs. Fowler served several terms in Congress, but went down and out with the Wilson landslide. Since then he has managed to keep himself in the limelight in a perfectly honorable way. There isn't really much to be said against him. To be sure, he has aspired to the nomination for President and United States Senator, but that was his right as an American citizen, and there is no reason why he should be condemned for it.—Trenton State Gazette.

It is a pleasure to note the President's unhesitating plea for an appropriation to pay for taking the "No Thoroughfare" sign off Hell Gate channel. Our own dreadnoughts cannot now pass through it and $509,000 is needed to increase the depth from twenty-six to thirty-five feet. The necessary amount will be included in the Naval Appropriation bill.

The House Committee on Rivers and Harbors is due here today in a body to inspect Hell Gate. It may perhaps be doubted whether they will see the situation any more clearly than the President has already seen it from the White House. Representative Hulbert deserves credit for urging the matter upon executive attention. But we have no doubt of the sincerity of the words in Mr. Wilson's letter: "I am deeply interested in the deepening of the channel at Hell Gate, New York."

All Americans from the President down, whether they recognize it or not, are deeply interested in the complete and permanent equipment of New York Harbor both for commercial effectiveness and for defence.—New York Sun.

USING SPARE TIME.

What do you do with your spare time? The answer to that question is an important one in the life of every individual, after measuring the difference between success and failure. The man who thinks that life is meant only for the pursuit of the fleeting pleasures of the moment is seldom the one who reaches the top. Success is more often due to hard work than to genius.

The problem is of particular importance to the young man. For him, the temptations of the life of pleasure are more insistent, it is more difficult for him to resist the call of his companions and to stick to work when the others are bent on pleasure. And, of course, too much work, too little relaxation, will have a bad effect upon him. But there is a golden mean in everything.

And just as the temptations that he has to meet are greater, so are the opportunities for advancement just so much more numerous in his case and the more easy is it for him to turn his extra moments to good account. Education of all sorts, technical training and book-learning as well, were never so plentiful, so easily attained as they are today.

And the demand for skilled men, trained men in a particular field, is growing just as rapidly as is the supply of men to fill these places. There is every opportunity to go ahead. Any man who remains at the bottom has only himself to blame, for with the night schools and the correspondence schools that are to be found everywhere, there is no one who need be neglected.—New Brunswick Times.

MIXING UP SOME STRONG MEDICINE

MEXICO TO NAME HERE THREE MEDIATORS SATURDAY

Mexico City, August 17.—The names of the three American members of the commission to settle Mexican and American difficulties will be submitted to the Mexican Government on Saturday. Foreign Secretary Aguilar said today that he has been so informed by Special Agent Rodgers, who presented a communication from Washington.

General Carranza is expected within a short time to announce a successor to Sub-Secretary of Foreign Relations Amador, who died last week.

NEW YORK HAPPY OVER PASSAGE OF NAVAL BILL

New York, probably the greatest and richest city in the world which is at the mercy of a hostile fleet, is rejoiced over the victory of the preparedness program in the House, which has adopted, apparently without serious modification, the Senate program which provides for the construction of 81 new vessels, of all kinds, the first year, and of 157 within three years. Representative Mann, the Republican leader, praised the action of the House enthusiastically, pointing out that the bill as passed was precisely what the Republicans had urged when the House first considered it. "I want to keep out of war," said Mr. Mann, "but we should be prepared to protect our rights at home and abroad." The "little navy" men howled dismally, charging Secretary Daniels with having "betrayed" them. Representative Gardner pointed out that the complaint of the "little navy" men was justified because Mr. Daniels had declared as recently as December 24 last, that the "little navy" program originally adopted by the House would strain the shipyards of the country, while little more than a year ago President Wilson had denounced preparedness as hysteria. Then it was disclosed that the General Board had found that from nine to eleven ships—instead of five—was the capacity of the big shipyards.

RECORD IN ATTACK ON THE RAILROADS

Says They Should Be Made to Give Men An Eight-Hour Day.

Morristown, Aug. 17.—George L. Record, candidate for Republican nomination for Governor, spoke at an outdoor meeting in the public square in the city of Morristown last evening. Referring to the threatened railroad strike, he discussed the claims of the railroads that they could not meet the demand of the railroad employes without increasing rates. Mr. Record showed that there was another alternative, the reduction of dividends upon watered securities.

Mr. Record said in part:

"The railroads in appealing to the public for support of their side of the controversy with their 400,000 employes claim that they cannot meet the demands of these men without raising railroad rates and putting the burden upon the consumer.

"The railroad men are demanding an eight-hour day with time and a half for all over-time. This demand is in itself reasonable. The eight-hour day is now the practice established by law in all public works, State and national. Labor unions have succeeded in establishing the eight-hour day in every industry which is organized.

"The railroad men are subjected to a peculiarly trying occupation and more than eight hours' service is not only unfair to them, but dangerous to the public. Their demand, therefore, is not only reasonable from their standpoint, but is in the public interest.

"If it were true that rates had to be raised in order to meet this demand, public sentiment would justify granting the demand even at that cost. But the fact that the railroads flatly refuse this demand, is itself evidence that they know that they cannot pass this belief on to the public—if they could they would grant this increase out of hand.

"The trouble with the railroads' case is that nearly every railroad in the country has been enormously overcapitalized. They are burdened with securities that represent no money investment at all. They are burdened with other securities which they have submitted to an excessive discount in order to obtain money. They also grant privileges and advantages of one kind or another to favored shippers, all of which cost the railroads themselves money.

"The railroad managers know full well that when they undertake to apply higher rates, based upon granting the demands of their men, they will be confronted with the proof that their capitalization is excessive.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission, when this proof is submitted, will refuse to allow any increase in the rates and compel the railroads to reduce their dividends upon their watered securities, if necessary.

"This is why the railroads so vigorously fight these demands of the men. The game of passing these increases on to the public is about played out, and the railroads know it.

"Our local public utilities are all over-capitalized just like the railroads.

"Municipal ownership would result in this State in reduced charges for gas, electric light and trolley service and in better pay and shorter hours for the men who do the work."

HOW TO SUBDUE AND SAVE DROWNING VICTIMS SUBJECT OF ANNETTE KELLERMANN'S LESSON

The Rescuer Is Always In Greater Danger Than the Victim Declares Famous Swimming Champion Who Gives Advice and Caution.

Article No. 16.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

As most of you have read my article for the drowning person and his rescue, you now realize that if he or she obeys the rules I laid down, the work of the rescue will be less dangerous. The rescuer, unless his patient, as I will term the drowning person, is a quiet one, stands just as much of a chance of drowning as the person he has come to save.

So my advice to the rescuer is this: Approach the drowning person from behind. No matter whether he or she is rational or not. For one can never tell what a drowning person will do. If the person is quiet speak to him encouragingly and attempt to gain his confidence. The quiet person can be reached quickly, and if you instruct him to place one hand on your shoulder, and remain quiet your task will be a simple one, but at the same time an act of great bravery.

Now take the case of the wild person who struggles frantically and clutches his rescuer, often dragging him down to a watery grave. It is this person who is to be feared. Approach him from behind, but give no warning cry.

As soon as you have reached him, come up right near him, grasp him by the biceps and press back so that the legs of the drowning person come up. If you grasp him firmly enough, there is no danger, for you can hold him easily, no matter how strong he is, for a long time.

If, however, as you are dragging him back to safety, he should continue struggling and take hold of you. Secure the freedom of your hands, and with one grab his nose and pinch it as hard as you can, meanwhile pressing back his chin with the other hand, until you feel certain a little more pressure will snap his neck. But don't worry, for when the pain becomes excruciating the struggling maniac will take care to protect himself and you will have a chance to get away.

Then if the insane person has not sense enough to let you aid him, do merely your best to save him. If, however, you should fail, the fault will not lie with you. That is why I wish to impress all of you with the importance of keeping your presence of mind while in the water, no matter how dangerous your position may be. For it is only with coolness of nerve, that you will be extricated from your position.

I do not fear that the members of this class would ever act insanely in the water. But I feel that all should know what to do and tell others also, how to help their rescuer, when he comes out to aid the person who may be drowning.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— Where the Merman Family Lived Under Sea.

The Fish Ate Out of Her Hand.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

SOON as Jack and Evelyn clapped for a story daddy told them about the merman family: "You know, children, that far out at sea the water is blue as the bluest flower and as clear as the clearest crystal. But it is very deep, too deep for any cable to measure. If many church steeples were piled one upon another they would not reach from the bed of the sea to the top of the waves, and it is way down here where the water is so cool and deep that mermen and their families live.

"Now, you children must not imagine that the bottom of the sea is covered with nothing but beautiful white sand like that you dig in down at the beach each summer. No, indeed! The most wonderful trees and plants grow there. Their leaves and stalks are so bendable, like rubber, that at the slightest motion of the water they move just as if they were alive."

"Aren't stalks and leaves alive, daddy?" Jack asked.

"I mean as if they could move about. All kinds of fishes, big and little, glide among the branches just as up here the birds glide through the air. Now, in the very deepest part of the sea lies the merman king's palace. Its walls are of coral and its long, pointed windows of the clearest amber. But the roof is made of mussel shells, which open and shut with the lapping of the waves. This has a very lovely effect, for there are gleaming pearls in each shell, any one worthy to be the price of a queen's crown.

"Now, many years ago the merman's wife died. So his old mother kept house for him. She was a clever woman and a good housekeeper. But she was so proud of her noble birth that she wore twelve oysters on her tail, while other grandees were allowed to wear but six.

"Except for her pride this old lady was quite worthy, especially because she was so fond of the little mermaid princesses, her grandchildren. There were six of them, beautiful children, but the youngest was the prettiest of all. Her skin was soft and delicate as a rose leaf and her eyes as blue as the deepest sea. But, like all the other children, she had no feet. Instead of legs she had a fish's tail.

"All day long she used to play in the great halls of the palace, where living sea flowers grew on the walls. Fishes swam in through the open amber windows, just as birds sometimes fly in our open rooms, and the fish swam right up to the little princess, ate out of her hand and let her pet them."

"I wish I were a mermaid!" cried Evelyn.

And daddy kissed her.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

In Which the Butterfly Shows that She Is No Longer a Butterfly at All.

As the train slowed down at Fairport, Ethel Gordon stepped off and giving the check for her suitcase to the driver of the dingy bus hurried away toward her home.

"I do wish Ralph's mother was not there. I should so enjoy seeing Ralph all alone and telling him what I have in my heart to say," she thought as she climbed the hill leading to the house. Nell Morton saw her approaching, but wisely kept in the background. Ethel tried the door and with a radiant face took her latch key from her handbag and let herself in.

"I hope she has come back a woman," thought Nell, dropping the curtain and returning to her work.

"I am alone! To work out this thing to suit myself." Ethel hugged herself with delight. "I'll look and see what there is in the house to eat. It is 10 o'clock," she added, glancing at the timepiece on the mantle as she hurried to the pantry. She found the place well stocked with provisions and in perfect order. Her face flushed as she remembered what confusion her mother-in-law must have found when she came.

"Never mind, I'll prove that I can do things right now." There was decision in the very way the mouth closed. She called up the butcher and ordered meat for dinner and the grocer for milk and vegetables. Then she took off her traveling suit—the very suit she had run in debt for—and slipped on a neat housedress. "When my suitcase comes I'll put on the big apron I got at Riverdale," she reflected.

Everything was going nicely in the kitchen at a quarter of twelve.

"What if he should go straight to the hotel, and not come home at all," she thought in sudden panic. The fact that the furnace is going shows that he spends his nights here, but he might not come." She gazed out of the window that would give her the first glimpse of his approach. "I believe I'll call him up by phone," she decided suddenly. "I hate to have him know before he gets here, but it would be so unbearable not to have him come that I cannot run the risk." She hurried to the telephone and asked to speak with Mr. Gordon. When Ralph came to the phone and she heard his voice she trembled with excitement.

"Is that you, Ralph?" she asked. "Come home to dinner, dear. I am back home." As soon as she heard his delighted "Ethel!" she hung up the receiver and hurried to the kitchen to put the finishing touches to the dinner, keeping an eye fixed on the path by which her husband would come.

"I'll not take off my apron when I go to meet him, for it will be a sign of the change in me, a change that he will welcome, poor boy."

She was at the door to meet him as he bounded up the steps, and he caught the radiant little creature in his arms, apron and all. He had never known a more blissful moment in his life than came over him when he felt the utter surrender of the lithe little form in his arms. After a few minutes of eloquent silence she took his face between her hands and said as she kissed him:

"I must go and finish my dinner. Cooks cannot long be spared from the kitchen or their dinners come to grief." She threw a kiss to him from the door before she vanished from his sight. Ralph prepared for dinner with a heart beating high with hope.

"Could such fortune come to a man as to have a wife as beautiful as she and at the same time one who can keep house and make a man comfortable?"

The dinner was beautifully cooked, but Ralph hardly knew what he was eating so absorbed was he in watching the little wife. She removed the plates and crumbed the cloth with grace. But when she came near his chair he interrupted all operations by drawing her face down to be kissed. And her joy in his happiness—well, it was perfect.

BOUFFANCY STILL EVIDENT

The Snug Waistline Accentuates the Bouffant Hip—The Narrow Effect at the Hem Helps Balance the Hips.

By MARY GLYNN.

When a gown is fashioned with bouffant drapery over the hips and then narrows down towards the ankle, invariably the effect is extremely smart and becoming to the average woman. It is when Madame is encased in a veritable balloon that she is more or less unbecomingly attired. The combination of an extremely wide hip effect, and also hem, is seldom attractive, and it is only the occasional exception that proves at all smart. However, if the hem alone is distended, the effect is really most attractive; or if the hip is distended there is a far greater chance of appearing smart than the combination of the two. A charming effect is obtained in the gown illustrated. The material used is navy soiree, and is cleverly combined with matching toned georgette crepe. The skirt is just a little above ankle-length, and though it appears narrow, it is fully four yards wide. The rippling balloon drapery at the hips is unique and very attractive, because it accentuates the snugness of the waistline. The bodice is a charming combination of the soiree and georgette, the latter forming the bell sleeves and guimpe which disappears under the jumper of soiree. Chenille fringe finishes the sleeves, and a dainty embroidered vest affords a smart finish. The velvet hat, with gray plumes, looks especially well with this gown.

NOVEL NOTES IN TRIMMING

Chenille Introduced on Millinery to Effect Stitching—Silk Stitching Used on All Types of Garments.

By MARY GLYNN.

Braiding and silk stitching are the distinctive forms of trimming featured on many of the French garments imported for the fall and winter season. Serge in very fine weave and pile fabrics are noticeably among the popular fabrics. Silk stitching and braiding is more the effect of heavy cording probably than the soutache effect, the former proving much richer, sometimes giving the effect of embroidery. Often the two forms of trimming are combined, giving the effect of shadow embroidery, this proving extremely novel. A dressy afternoon coat by Paquin is cleverly trimmed with heavy silk stitching. A trotteur frock of navy serge with high roll collar, designed by Premet, is girdled with self material, and this is richly decorated with maroon silk stitching. This attractive form of trimming has been introduced on all manner of garments, including millinery, bags, coats, gowns and wraps, and invariably lends a rich and distinctive finishing note.

THE SKIRT IS COMING DOWN.

The skirt has surely gone up as high as it's going to, and now it is coming down. The shoemakers know it, and it is a matter of business with them to know, too. They have taken about two inches off the tops of the new fall shoes. This new skirt is not coming way down, however. It will stop about at the ankles. The tendency, too, is toward straight and narrower lines. But it will be a long way from the hobble. Women having been hobbled once are not likely to be hobbled again. That's where the delights of freedom come in. By the way, Callot of Paris was among the first of the sponsors for this longer skirt.

The pert, flaring and bouffant skirt will still be worn; but it has lost its novelty, and that was the best part of it. Lots of women, however, thought its youthfulness the best part. They claimed that you couldn't tell the grandmother from the grand-daughter, when viewed from behind, by wearing it. But you see the grand-daughter doesn't care about this, if a new style seems more attractive, and the poor grandmother must submit. It does seem as though youth and fashion are always in league, quite forgetting that middle age and old age have aspirations about being tastefully clothed.—Grace Margaret Guold in the September Woman's Home Companion.

SPORT TOPICS

Raking 'Em Over

By "[illegible]"

BASEBALL IN NEWARK.

This year is going to be a lean one for the magnates in Newark, where the International League team is going from bad to worse. The Indians started out in fine fashion and were the sensation of the league race for a few weeks. But they began to slide and have been sliding since. Fred Tenney has been a careful leader, but it appears that he has not been given the best talent in the world. The fans of Newark are not fond of supporting a losing combination and in fact have, upon occasions, refused to do so. Now that the Indians are in last place, the owners of the Newark team face a financial crisis. If the fans stay home on the days when the International League team plays, the club will lose out financially. And from the present outlook, the fans are going to demand better baseball, on penalty of forgetting that there ever was a baseball team in Newark.

• • • • • •

MORE COMMENDATION.

It gives one much satisfaction to feel that he or she is appreciated. Therefore the letter of Mr. Adams, written in appreciation of the Netherwood baseball players, is valuable. Mr. Adams, a representative citizen of the East End section of the city, has followed the careers of the various Netherwood players and has found in the work of these players something to commend. And in his letter to the Press he makes known just wherein the East End lads have earned praise. He says that they always fought their battles in a sportsmanlike manner, and he is correct in asserting that. For our part, we might add that Netherwood players in the City League have always been above board in anything they have done. They have won the pennant for the second successive time and will win it again next year, if they keep plodding along in the same fashion.

• • • • • •

AN OPPORTUNITY.

The caddies of the various country clubs in this vicinity are beginning to exhibit their ability on the links. These lads deserve encouragement and should be set a good example. If they see the men for whom they "caddy" acting in other than a sportsman-like manner, they will do likewise. Therefore, the men who play on the links have a mission to perform.

• • • • • •

FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL.

Joe Oeschger, the Phillies' pitcher, is not only some twirler, but, as few if any of the fans know, could make any of the big college football teams in the east if he were attending one of them and had not played professional baseball.

When Oeschger was a student at St. Mary's College, in Oakland, Cal., he won more fame for his deeds on the football field than on the diamond. Not only was Joe one of the best backfield men ever developed on the Pacific Coast, but he could send a punt sixty yards nearly every time he swung his foot against the ball. Joe can't hit a baseball that far, if one look at his batting average, but then a pitcher can get along without hitting.

Oeschger came very nearly being a big eastern football star, too. That was when he was considering entering Yale. Had he done so his friends out west say his name would now be found on one of those All-American football teams of a few years ago.

OF LOCAL INTEREST.

"When Washington, N. J., fails to support its ball team, when Hackettstown begins to show signs of tottering, when Phillipsburg gets wobbly in the knees—when all these things happen one right after another, it is time to pause and inquire, what is the matter with baseball. It—baseball, we mean, is beginning to show signs of discrepitude in the territory where it is the chief indoor and outdoor, summer and winter and spring and fall sport of the countryside. Rabid Warren county—also semi-rabid Sussex and Morris—are not running true to form this year. They are tending the crops and motoring up the highway dust; they are not battling over the pitching strategy. And the same thing is true around Newark. It hasn't been necessary to enlarge the grandstand for the Indians, and the semi-pro teams haven't had to have ground rules to keep the spectators back. Why?

"The man who can solve the riddle and apply the remedy can make money.

"People never had more money. Business on the whole couldn't be much better. It's a cinch the crowd could slip the quarters and the halves into the box office if they wanted to. That is what deepens the mystery. The war can't be blamed, because the war is getting only a column or so a day. And the baseball war is over with its distractions."—Newark News.

CHEERING PLAYERS.

The Newark News believes, as we do, in giving credit for things accomplished. Cheer all good and fair efforts. The News says:

"Readers of the daily papers interested in lawn tennis are very apt to base their judgment of a player in a close contest upon the number of placements or outs and nets he makes. If two contestants show a record of many outs and nets the match is put down as a poor one; if there are many placements the play has been of high quality.

"Such judgment very often holds true, but nets and outs are not always indicative of poor play on the part of the one who has made the errors. The player must have been doing well to hit the ball at all, for the speed of the winner may have been great. On the other hand, a match won by many placements may not mean great execution on the part of the winner. His opponent may not have put up much resistance."

"OUR" JACK MARTIN NOW THE MANAGER OF THE MILWAUKEE BASEBALL TEAM

Local Lad Now Leads Brewers—Popoular With Fans and Players—Jack Performs Splendidly at Short—Team Wins Three Out of Four From Louisville.

By Joe Gailagher.

As predicted in the Plainfield Daily Press on Tuesday, Jack Martin is now a manager, succeding Harry Clark, the leader of the Milwaukee, American Association baseball team, who is expected to assume charge of the Columbus team. Martin assumed control of the Milwaukee team at once, his charges defeating Louisville 4 to 1, in Jack's first start. Jim Thorpe with two homers earned this victory for the local manager.

Jack Martin.

Manning Vaughan, a writer for the Milwaukee Sentinel, is authority for the statement that Jack Martin is bound to be one of the most popular managers on the American Association circuit. Vaughan says "Defensively, Jack Martin, our new manager, was the star of the day. Jack evidently didn't let his managerial cares worry him any, for he stepped in and played a whirlwind game at short. He accepted eight chances without a miss and on three different occasions thrilled the bugs by making almost impossible plays. If they make him president of the club, there is no telling what he will do." It is interesting to note that under Martin's guidance the Brewers, considered a poor team, defeated Stroud and Schauer, the ex-Giants. Since Jack has assumed charge, the Milwaukee team has won three games and lost but one. Previous to this time the club has been losing two out of three games. The newspapers of the Brewer city state that Martin was given a big hand the first time he approached the plate.

That Jack Martin will succeed as manager of the Milwaukee team local fans have no doubt. President Al Timme, owner of the Brewers, says: "Martin is a smart fellow and knows the game from all angles. He can fill the bill, temporarily at least." Jack has not as yet signed for next year. "Stubby" Stutz, who was let out to the Three-Eye League, has been recalled by Manager Jack Martin. The following squibs from the Milwaukee papers speak for themselves:

"Martin got a slow roller on the edge of the grass from Killifer's bat in the sixth and by a great throw nailed Red at first."

"Martin robbed Kirke of a hit by going to the edge of the left stand and getting Jay's Texas League pop-up in the eighth. His best play of the day also came in this inning when he leaped far in the air and speared a line drive from Killifer's bat with one hand."

Results of all Milwaukee games will appear in the Press daily.

Hope Chapel vs. Netherwood.

Although only two City League attractions are carded for tomorrow plenty of excitement is sure to prevail. While the Dunellen team will be doing battle with an independent organization and while the Farmers will be idle, the other four teams will be striving in the best manner possible to do something worth while. The Netherwood team is scheduled to play the Hope Chapel outfit and inasmuch as a victory means much to the Hopes at this stage of the competition, the Chapel lads will extend themselves to register a victory. The Netherwoods, although they have already won the pennant, are anxious to keep their slate as clean as possible and to keep a safe distance between them and their nearest competitors. Therefore it is only logical to expect that the Netherwoods will do their best to win.

The Tabs take on the Baptists tomorrow afternoon and are living in hopes that they will be able to come out of the battle victorious. When these two teams met before the Tabs were trimmed in easy fashion. Jim Scott says that the feat will not be repeated. Manager Dunc Patterson says that it is not impossible and even not improbable.

PONTINE HATS FOR WOMEN TRAPSHOOTERS' PRIZES AT GRAND AMERICAN HANICAP

Fair Dianas Who Make Twelve Highest Scores to Receive Awards—Other Trophies to Be Awarded—Transshooting News.

By Peter P. Carney.

Women trapshooters have another incentive to make them shoot their best in the Grand American Trapshooting Handicap, which takes place in St. Louis, Mo., beginning Monday, August 21. The E. I. duPont de Nemours Company has offered hats to the fair Dianas who make the twelve highest scores in the tournament.

These hats are made of Pontine, a new material creation in the field of women's styles. The hats were designed and made by Phipps, the famous New York milliner, and will be exhibited in the largest department stores in Chicago and St. Louis prior to the tournament.

The headdress will be given to the fair shooters in addition to any other trophies they may win. Pontine hats are something new, and are beautiful—and what woman doesn't like a beautiful hat? Winning one makes it look all the prettier.

LOCAL PEOPLE SAW JOCKEY KILLED AT FLEMINGTON

Many local people at the Flemington races yesterday witnessed the death of Sidney Haggerty, a jockey, who was killed in a mix-up in one of the running races. Haggerty was riding Stay-a-way in the half mile event at the time of the accident.

In the first quarter Stay-a-way, F. O. B., and Kathline piled up while rounding the turn. When the horses were brought to their feet Haggerty did not get up and had to be carried from the track by the jockeys and stable boys. He died on the way to a hospital.

Neither of the other two riders was injured.

CUMMINS DEFENDS TITLE.

T. McK. Cummins, of Wheeling, State tennis champion, successfully defended his title at Parkersburg yesterday by defeating A. J. Colburn, of Fairmount, at the State tennis tournament by a score of 6—1, 6—1 and 7—5. Cummins and Thomas Beattie, of Wheeling, won the men's doubles title, defeating R. F. McAdams and G. L. Bradford, both of Clarksburg, 6—3, 6—3 and 6—3.

NOT TO DEFEND TITLE.

Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, woman golf champion of the United States, announced at Philadelphia last night that she will not defend her title at the national tournament, to be held in Boston in October. Mrs. Vanderbeck recently suffered a nervous breakdown, and it was on the advice of her physician that she decided not to enter the tournament.

DUNELLEN AND ROYAL GIANT TEAMS READY FOR DIAMOND AFFAIR ON MAURER OVAL

Lineup of Royal Giants Is Announced—Capable Battery to Be Used—Johnny Dixon May Pitch For Dunellen Team—Jack Garretson May Be Seen In Lineup.

The all important baseball game between the Dunellen and Royal Giants baseball teams will be played on Maurer Oval, Dunellen, tomorrow afternoon, when it is expected that a record-breaking crowd will be in attendance. While the two teams appear to be on an equal footing, each of the rival managers believes that his team is the better. It is difficult to determine the reason why, inasmuch as the "reason" may be hidden in the lineups of the two squads. And these lineups are not being made the property of everyone, either.

But Peter Simmons, the genial manager of the Royal Giants, has submitted a lineup, that is not only fair, but is also a most formidable one. While the name of the pitcher is not "Green," as is stated in the lineup, still the nom de plume assumed by the pitcher is the only name by which he is known to Pete. The umpire will be better informed tomorrow. Tommy Apgar could not be reached today and his lineup is given unofficially. It is very probable, however, that the lineup as given will be the same one used in the game.

On the firing line for the Royal Giants will be a youth who calls himself "Green." He has pitched considerably in the vicinity of Newark and Jersey City. We have a "hunch" that he has faced the Newark Ironsides with more or less success. Behind the bat, Simmons says he will have a Newark man and that his name is Faulks. It probably is that, although the Royal manager's correspondence with the catcher has been little. On first, Eddie Ford will be seen, with a youth named Hatchett on second. Fans, where did we hear the name of "Hatchett" before? Covering short field will be Sid Butler, with Borden, formerly of the Pittsburgh Colored Giants, on third. In the outer works will be Kline in left, Coleman in centre, and James in right. According to these arrangements, "Senor" Maiden is being saved for the Tabs, with whom the Royals play on Sunday.

It is highly probable that Johnny Dixon will hurl for Dunellen. Warry McLaughlin may be used, however. Behind the bat will be Eddie Bergen, with Jack Garretson or Eddie Hannon on first base. The rest of the lineup will adhere strictly to City League form. Hannon is a Dunelen youth and is anxious to help his home town.

'OWYHAMAC' AND 'INGOLSBEE, JR.,' FAIL TO CAPTURE PRIZES AT FLEMINGTON FAIR

Local Horses Do Well, However—"Hal B., Jr.," Runs Seven Consecutive Races—Other Results.

Local horses did not fare exceedingly well at the Flemington Fair races yesterday. Although the Baron may make up for the loss in the races today, still the other two local entries, Owyhamac and Ingolsbee Jr. were easily outdistanced in the events yesterday.

In the 2:12 pace, for a purse of $400, Lustrous McKinney captured the prize, with Tom Brantingham's horse Ingolsbee Jr. in sixth position. Owyhamac was ninth in this race. Judge Moore, the sensational gelding, was fourth at the finish. Other horses entered in this race were Anna Carl, Bannavola, Vera, Paradise Girl, Susie M, Queen Hal and Ruth B. In the 2:20 pace, Trent was the successful entry. Review Bells, Tom Brantingham's noted entry, finished third in the 2:16 pace. The local horse became stronger in each successive heat and made a very favorable impression.

Hal B Jr. the Canadian horse, won the free-for-all. This victory was his seventh consecutive race. No local horses ran in this event, although it was thought that the Baron would be entered.

GIBSON REFUSES.

Word comes from Pittsburgh that George Gibson, the catcher on whom the Giants refused to waive and obtained him for the waiver price, has refused to report to the New York club, notwithstanding John J. McGraw offered him a better contract than he had with the Pirates. Gibson demands an unconditional release which, he asserts, Barney Dreyfuss agreed to give him after the 1909 world series. The Giants have only Kocher available as a catcher, and Gibson's defection has placed McGraw in an uncomfortable situation, for Rariden will not be able to work for several days.

N. J. CONGRESSMEN AID MUNITION BILL

Appear Before House Commerce Committee, Asking Right to Bar Explosives.

Washington, Aug. 18.—New Jersey Congressmen and city officials, at hearings yesterday before the House Commerce Committee, asked that local authorities be permitted to control shipment and storage of vast quantities of explosives and munitions at New Jersey ports, in order to prevent repetitions of the Black Tom Island explosion.

The New Jersey delegation urged passage by Congress of bills by Senator Martine and Representative Hamill, prohibiting shipment of munitions except for the United States Government, unless local authorities consent, and giving local authorities power to fix resolutions.

Senator Martine, Representatives Hamill and Eagan, Jersey City Commissioners, and other officials told the committee there was imminent danger of another explosion, and said the munitions traffic should and easily could be conducted through less populous districts.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Hamill said, had done nothing to limit the presence of enormous stores of explosives. On behalf of the commission Secretary McGinty said it had carefully considered its authority and decided it was without power to act in the New York Harbor situation Representative Bennet, of New York, also endorsed the Martine Hamill bill. Governor Fielder, of New Jersey; Mayor Mitchel and other New York and New Jersey officials who had been invited to attend the hearing did not appear.

FORETOLD HIS OWN DOOM.

Lord Kitchener Felt That He Would Lose His Life at Sea.

Lord Kitchener had a sort of foreboding of an accident at sea. So much was this the case that he never crossed from Dover to Calais without wearing a life belt waistcoat, one that he had specially made for him in Egypt before he made his famous advance to Khartum.

Though so often on the sea and an excellent sailor, he detested sea trips and never felt comfortable on board any ship. He complained that the sea affected his sight.

Another curious point was that while he always acquired curios in any part of the world in which he might be, he took care never to allow his purchase to be on the vessel on which he was a passenger.

When Lord Kitchener was in France a few months before he lost his life at sea off the Orkney islands he was visiting the British front. There he met his friend, the naval Captain Testu de Balincourt, then on service at Dunkirk, whom Lord Kitchener asked to be his special aid if he should need one later during the war.

Lord Kitchener told his friend how a heavy shell had burst close to him while on this visit, but added, "That did not disturb me, for I know that I shall die at sea."—New York Sun.

STREETS OF LONDON.

A Name System That Is Confusing Even to Residents of the City.

When it comes to confusing street systems London should not be overlooked. Some consider it the most confusing, even Londoners not always being sure of locations.

As an example of what one meets in the British capital a man once asked to be directed to a certain house on King street. He was sent in one direction. When he did not come to King street as soon as he expected he asked again for King street and was sent in an opposite direction. Again not sure of his direction, he asked a third time for King street and was asked which King street he wanted.

The question stumped him, not knowing that London has nineteen King streets. This number does not include the King streets in London's suburbs.

If this man who wanted King street had asked for Queen street his predicament would have been even greater, for there are thirty-four Queen streets in London.

Great as the city is, it is far behind New York in regard to a comprehensive street system, even though corners of New York such as Greenwich Village are most confusing.—Exchange.

They Took the Lash.

One of the traditions of the British Royal Yacht club is of Lord Yarborough's Falcon, the crew of which were paid extra wages on condition that they they submitted to the usual rules in force on British vessels of war. These included flogging under certain circumstances, and it is said that in consideration of the additional sum paid by Lord Yarborough some of the crew cheerfully submitted to the occasional application of the cat-o'-nine-tails. "Indeed, before the Falcon left Plymouth sound for a cruise all hands cordially signed a paper setting forth the usefulness of a sound flogging in cases of extremity and their perfect willingness to undergo the experiment whenever it was deemed necessary for the preservation of good order."

Superstitions About Hares.

There have been at various periods all manner of queer superstitions about hares, which would seem to indicate that the believers were themselves madder than any hare that ever gambled in March. Its brains were believed to make children's teeth come quickly and painlessly; those who ate its flesh became lovely and gracious for a week after; a waistcoat made of hare's skin straightened the bodies both of young and old, etc. Even today there are those who take as an evil omen the crossing of the road before them by this most innocent of creatures.—London Chronicle.

PAPER FAMINE NOW IN PROSPECT

Newspapers Will Be Forced to Economize In the Fall.

MILLS RUN AT CAPACITY.

Unable to Care For Increased Demand, and Surplus Nears Minimum—Supply Now on Hand Wouldn't Last Ten Days if the Factories Were to Shut Down.

Unless there is a concerted curtailment of waste of news print paper newspapers of the United States will be on the bread line, figuratively speaking. They will be compelled to take their material on allotment, receiving no more than manufacturers can give them from vanishing supplies. That a famine in news print paper will result within a few months unless economies are effected is the prediction of paper manufacturers.

Only a husbanding of resources by the papers themselves can stave off the crisis, it was admitted throughout the trade.

At the present time in the United States and Canada fifty mills are working three shifts of men eight hours daily and six days a week. Their output for June—the last compilation—was 140,151 tons, representing 95.4 per cent of their maximum production, the highest efficiency ever attained in the industry. This output represents an increase of 27,000 tons a month over the mark for June, 1915, but even this tremendous increase has been insufficient to feed the demand. Full production has had to be augumented by 5,000 tons more a month, which was drawn from a rapidly depleting reserve stock.

Surplus Gradually Shrinks.

Surplus stock has been swallowed up at this rate for several months now. At the end of June only 65,194 tons remained in storehouses that at the same time last year held 92,967 tons. Were production to cease today there is not enough news print paper stored to keep newspapers alive for ten days. It has been necessary for the publishers' mutual good and the benefit of the news reading public to curb the tendency toward increasing the size of papers at this time of year.

The figures cited here for June will take a considerable advance in October, usually the banner month in the newspaper year. As a rule, circulation increases in the fall, and advertising keeps pace with it. As a result more pages have to be added to the daily paper, and the Sunday takes on unusual bulk. Without the measures taken by the publishers this fall's increase would wipe out the total production and the reserve stock.

It may be asked by the public, "Why did not the paper manufacturers anticipate this tremendous increase in demand?" They did, so far as it was humanly possible to anticipate a prosperity. Since June, 1915, there has been added to the mills of this country and Canada 15 per cent more facilities for turning wood into paper. When the orders were given it seemed, according to the manufacturers, an extremely risky venture to install additional machinery on conditions temporarily roseate.

Working at Capacity.

The mills are at the peak of their capacity. They can turn out no more, although they have the materials and the men. In June of 1915 the maximum of efficiency derived from the machinery was 78.9; this year it reached the mark of 95.4.

With machinery making this record, men operating the day around and every other aid given to production, still the outlook for the fall fails to brighten. New mills cannot be put up in weeks or even months; generally it takes a year and a half to get a mill working. New machines have been ordered. In a few weeks several that turn out fifty tons a day will be in operation. But these added to the machines now producing cannot save the situation at the present rate of consumption. Machinery cannot be ordered in wholesale lots at present.

As manufacturers view the situation the existing stringency will exist for several months. Here is part of a letter sent out by one of the biggest producers in the country to all his news print customers:

"We are at a loss to know to what extent we should advise you to curtail consumption, except to suggest that the more you curtail the surer you will be of a supply during the late months of the year. It is to your interests to co-operate with one another in every possible manner in order to bring about the required results.

"We give you due notice of that which you may expect so that you may place your houses in order and be prepared for the inevitable. It certainly grieves us to have to admit that we are forced to assume such a position."

Treasure Trove In Flanders.

When some Canadians were recently digging a new line of trenches behind their line in France a jar was found in which were 200 silver crowns. The coins, which were in a fine state of preservation, bore dates between 1745 and 1747, a period in which heavy fighting was taking place over the same ground in Flanders. Each member of the working party was given one of the coins, worth £5 each.

PRYOR'S BAND TO PLAY WHEN WILSON IS NOTIFIED OF DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION

Music at the ceremonies incident to the notification of President Wilson that he has been nominated by the Democratic party as its candidate for re-election will be furnished by Arthur Pryor and his band, one of the greatest musical organizations in this country. Arrangements for Pryor to furnish the music were completed yesterday by Edward E. Grosscup, chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

The notification, to take place at Shadow Lawn, the President's summer home at Long Branch, September 2, will be one of the most important of the entire campaign.

The interview between State Chairman Grosscup and Mr. Pryor occurred yesterday afternoon at Mr. Pryor's home in Asbury Park, and it developed that the bandmaster was not only an ardent Wilson advocate, but also that members of his band who are Wilson men are willing to serve the President's cause.

Mr. Grosscup informed him of the desire on the part of the Democratic State Committee to have the music furnished by the Pryor Band, which is stationed at Asbury Park during the summer. The discussion of the arrangements progressed nicely and Mr. Grosscup asked Mr. Pryor what the charge for the band's services would be. The bandmaster asked:

"What do you mean?"

"I want to know just how much it will cost the committee," said Mr. Grosscup.

"I consider this," said Mr. Pryor, "one of the greatest compliments that I have ever had paid to myself and my organization. I am a Wilson admirer and my men are Wilson admirers. It will be the event of our lives to play that day for President Wilson and his friends. I would consider it an insult to be tendered money for such services."

Mr. Grosscup insisted that he was placing the committee in an embarrassing position, as the State chairman realized just what the services of such an organization could command upon such an occasion. The bandman, however, said that his admiration and that of his men for the President of the United States would make it impossible to consider the acceptance of money.

PARALYSIS PREVENTS SINGING PRIZE AWARD

A meeting of the Vaterlandshilfe of North Plainfield and Dunellen was held in Saengerbund Hall last evening, routine business taking up most of the time. It was originally arranged to have a prominent speaker from Newark address the gathering, but, owing to the plague of infantile paralysis, this address was dispensed with.

At the meeting last evening plans for securing a booth at the coming October Festival of all the Vaterlandshilfe organizations in the State were discussed and a committee was appointed to take care of this matter. The committee will visit the authorities in Newark in the near future and a definite arrangement will be made. The Dunellen organization of Hungarian people, called the "Koeves," was recently founded and is now in a flourishing condition.

Owing to the fact that infantile paralysis is so prevalent in this and surrounding districts, the formal presentation of a recent award won by the singing section of the North Plainfield organization has been deferred for the present. A promised visit from Concordia Branch, of Perth Amboy, has also been called off for the same reason.

Dainty Fall Blouses

by Hester Winthrop

A Lanvin Model in Coffee and Cream with Touches of Gold Braid

Novel Embroidery Imitating Fashionable Silk Stitching

An Attractive Theater Blouse of Net

Dark and Rich Colors in Silk Waists for Fall - Soft Silk Middies With Knotted Sashes - A New Blouse That Comes To the Knee - Beads and Buttons Much Used - Lace and Chiffon Waists for Afternoon Wear.

IT is a vicarious comfort to woman that Paris blouses in their fascinating freshness and daintiness, are several times cheaper than if she were there to buy them. A dweller in Paris is authority for the assertion that before the present war, all prices in the shops frequented by Americans were "marked up," sometimes fifty per cent., just after the Grand Prix and before the influx of summer tourists. Even at that, the French prices seemed amazingly little to the shopper, accustomed to American prices, based of course on heavy custom duty and the expense of bringing Paris goods across.

Dark Colors Prevail.

Dark shades, such as navy, steel gray, coffee brown and a deep, splendid red, take precedence over lighter colors in Paris for the fall and winter blouses. For matinee and restaurant wear with dressy tailleurs there are white blouses in lace, georgette and chiffon, exquisite affairs, so soft and sheer with their incrustations of lace, that a blouse might almost be drawn through a bracelet. There are tailored linen and silk blouses also, for the morning, with dainty touches of color in hemstitched band trimmings and rows of stitching done with colored silk. The latter effect is very smart indeed, since silk stitching is one of the modish trimmings for fall. From the Galeries Lafayette comes a blouse of sheer white handkerchief linen with tiniest bands of green linen hemstitched to collar and cuff and small green onalith buttons closely placed up the outer side of the sleeve and part way down the front. A design of interlocking squares is stitched in green silk on the front of the blouse, below the bust and this design is repeated on the sleeve, just above the turned back cuff. Silk stitching on linen is an entirely new style-note; the couturiers invariably stitch with silk throughout, in costumes of wool, mohair or silken fabric, to assure the soft lines, distinction and better quality of workmanship that silk stitching gives a costume; but this fall, stitching in colored silk is used as a very effective trimming, not only on cloth and silk frocks and wraps but also on blouses of thin linen weave. Even embroidery done by hand or machine imitates the parallel line effect of silk stitched trimming. This is observable in the blouse of white cotton voile embroidered in long scrolls which show parallel lines in a coarse stem-stitch between rows of embroidered dots. The fullness is added to this blouse by groups of pin tucks, run by hand at the shoulders, and shoulder seams, armhole seams and other details are hemstitched. The blouse is very simple and daintily neat, with its closely buttoned front and cuff and its collar high about the throat. The buttons are covered with white satin.

Buttons, Buttons Everywhere.

Three dozen buttons are none too many for your fall blouse. Never were so many buttons used—they are truly a dominant note in autumn trimming. They are placed in groups of two, three or even six, in straight rows; in flanking lines they march up and down waist front and sleeve. They are in all sizes and of almost all materials, from solid gold and silver to wooden moulds covered with fabric. Onalith and bone buttons are specially fashionable, and many of the fancy buttons show rings within rings of pearl, steel, onyx, amber and jet. Some are as large as demi-tasse saucers; others are as tiny as beads. Of the latter sort are the buttons on a white georgette blouse which shows a new vest effect, the fronts, flanked with tiny, satin-covered buttons, dividing to reveal a flat vest of white satin which is cut straight across at the chest to show the bare neck below a very tall collar, feather-boned at sides and back. The vest motif is emphasized by stitching the georgette blouse to the white satin lining in a deep oval, the lining being cut out for two inches below the collar-line all around, leaving the sheer georgette transparently over the neck. The deep satin cuffs have a double line of buttons up the back and narrow flare-frills of ungathered georgette piped at the edge with satin, fall below the deep satin cuffs. A turnover of the piped georgette fits over the feather-boned collar.

Simpler in style but also very smart is a white tailored blouse of the new, very lustrous soiree silk, with cuffs strapped in like a storm coat and the high, turnover collar that is a feature trimmed only by the groups of silk-covered buttons and by silk stitching at all the edges.

Basque Blouses In Ultra Style.

Very exclusive fall blouses are worn over the skirt, a soft sash or belt confining the fullness at the waist. Christiane has brought out what she calls a silk middy—a glorified "middy" indeed, but still quite on middy lines, with a row of closely set covered silk buttons down the front and up the long sleeve to the elbow. A big collar that forms itself into a capuchin hood tumbles over the shoulders and at the waist, the middy is drawn in to the figure by a soft, knotted silk sash, tied at one side. The original model was in two shades of steel blue taffeta; and charming copies have been made in two shades of gray, two shades of coffee brown, and so on. An American blouse patterned after this one is of navy blue soiree silk with overhanging armholes and long sleeves buttoned up the back to the elbow. Epaulet bands on the long shoulders and deep, slashed pockets on the front, below the sash, are elaborately beaded in cut steel. A collar of white chiffon stitched in rows with steel-blue silk, turns back from the V neck.

Beaded trimming gives the touch of fall newness to a blouse of silk or chiffon. In navy and white is an attractive blouse with bands of white and steel bead embroidery. The beaded blue georgette suggests a short bolero over a blouse of white chiffon. The sleeves have blue cuffs with dainty little button and loop motifs made of the tiny beads. The bolero turns back at the top in a deep collar faced with white chiffon and piped all around with navy taffeta to make it set out crisply. A second collar of the chiffon turns back from the blouse, white bead ornaments swinging from the corners.

Gold braid instead of beads or silk stitching is used to decorate a costume blouse by Lanvin, designed to accompany a fall tailleur of dark brown broadcloth. The blouse is in coffee-and-cream tones and is made of chiffon cloth, cream in two layers for the sleeves, and coffee over cream for the blouse portion, the cream chiffon lining turns over at the neck in a tailored, shirt-waist collar, trimmed with buttons and loops of narrow gold braid. The cuffs are trimmed in the same manner. Small arrows are embroidered all over the blouse with gold thread and cream silk.

Very bright colors are noted in the new silk blouses, and this is well, since tailored suits are so dark in tone. The blouse colors are exceedingly rich and subtle shades—not clear, bright tints. Dahlia and poinsettia red are noted, steel blues, indescribable greens, tobasco brown—like the smart boots of tobasco glazed kid—peacock blue and a great deal of navy blue which seems very modish in blouse-wear. Gold colored faille matinee and soiree silk blouses have a special richness, the luster of these beautiful silks being sufficiently beautiful to make trimming unnecessary. Striped taffeta silk blouses are made up with the stripes running in oblique directions. Christiane offers such a model, in the new basque effect. The surplice fronts, with stripes running obliquely toward the waistline, are draped below the bust and fastened with cut steel buttons. Below the waist is a pleated basque or peplum which falls to the hip. This blouse has elbow sleeves with frills of the striped silk closely pleated, set up the outer side of the sleeve from the elbow to half way between elbow and armhole—a very pretty effect. Not a few of the new blouses in more dressy style have elbow or three-quarter sleeves, but no tailored blouse for general wear with separate sport skirts, would dare to show itself with anything but long sleeves.

And speaking of separate skirts, no chat on blouses should omit them, even in only a paragraph if lack of space forbids further mention of their diversity and smartness. There are skirts of mixed worsted and striped worsted for out-of-door sports; skirts of white serge and corduroy for indoor wear all winter with white blouses; skirts of new, plush-like fabrics in artfully gathered and cartridge pleated effects that are still not clumsy over the hips; skirts of taffeta in plain and striped effect for wear with afternoon blouses of silk and lace.

Blouses For Matinee Wear.

"Matinee" wear in this connection, means any hour from before luncheon to after dinner—if one lunches or dines in a restaurant. The theater blouse must have a special daintiness. To convince yourself of this, attend a popular play some afternoon in a plain, tailored linen shirtwaist and see how uncomfortable and out of place you feel among the dainty bodices that surround you on all sides. A typical theater blouse is the embroidered net model with an ermine pelt for a collar—the latter truly a novel and intriguing idea. Within the cunning little ermine skin is a feather-boned collar of lace so the small beastie does not really lie against the skin. An important detail of this blouse is the underbodice which shows through the sheer net very plainly. This underbodice is of flesh-tinted georgette and Val lace and bands of the georgette are hemstitched into the blouse on the sleeve and along the fronts, to form a vest edged with Venise lace.

NOTES AND NOVELTIES

KNITTED SWEATERS FOR AUTUMN GOLF.

THE smartest of the knitted worsted sweaters have the rib running up and down instead of across and are very long, coming well below the hip. The sleeves are attached separately and collar and cuffs are in the sweater color with a stripe of white or contrasting color. It is somewhat more of a "job" to knit a sweater in this fashion but no more difficult, once one has mastered the trick. Stitches enough for the entire length—about 140—must be cast on very long needles. One front is knitted, then twenty stitches or so are cast off at the top for the armhole opening and cast-on again for the opposite side of the opening as one proceeds with the back. This means that there are no under-arm seams, the seams coming at the shoulders. The sleeves are also knitted up and down instead of across—about sixty-five stitches cast on for the length of each sleeve, and the sleeves are sewed in with a needleful of the worsted, in an over and over stitch on the wrong side. Finer needles should be used to knit collar, cuff, pocket flaps and belt.

FOR STAY-A-BEDS OF A MORNING.

AN added encouragement to lazy luxury is the latest device for the comfort and convenience of those who like to lie abed through the morning hours. This is a wicker breakfast tray which fits on a wicker standard which may be placed across the bed, raising the tray just the right height as one sits propped up on pillows. The tray is of glass over cretonne, with a narrow wicker rim, and there is a dainty coffee, toast and egg set of pink and white china to match the cretonne under the glass. When breakfast is over the tray may be reversed to form a convenient writing-in-bed table, and on the pink blotter may be set forth the various desk belongings, all in pink and white china also. A morning's correspondence may be got through with in no time, and as luxuriously and lazily as heart could wish—provided one has a maid, or a kindly relative to arrange the trays and substitute writing materials for breakfast things.

THE SPORT VEIL.

THERE is a gaiety about it that accords with its name, and it flutters from sailor hats that accompany smart sport toggery seen on country club verandas, these late summer days. Of white chiffon, is the new sport veil, dotted over with small velvet polka dots in navy blue, green or rose color. The veil falls just over the tip of the nose, revealing the mouth quite plainly and its upper edge is attached to a hatband of grosgrain ribbon which can be fastened around the sailor hat in a jiffy. The short veil, fluttering out over the wide-brim of the hat, is very coquettish and ex-

Getting Rid of "SUMMER WRINKLES"

WHERE do all the distressing little lines come from? They surely were not there last spring; now, getting back to one's home mirror—where somehow one sees oneself more truthfully than in the various lights that crossed unfamiliar mirrors in summer hotels and dressing rooms—a host of unpleasant and most unwelcome little wrinkles seem to have come to stay in one's face. Where did they come from? The summer was joyous; there was no worry, no particular form of melancholy to combat. Why, then, the displeasing lines across the forehead, and around the eyes—that cleft between the brows, just above the nose? And actually there seem to be disfiguring blackheads around nose and chin, in spite of faithful scrubbing of the face, not to speak of a daily soaking in salt water, or soft lake water, during the swimming hour. High time, indeed, to take the face in hand—as one might say, and get rid of summer blemishes.

One part of the cure will be plenty of the softest water you can get—rainwater if possible; and another part will be a diet for at least two weeks. Eat little meat, many vegetables, bread without butter, and leave desserts and fried foods entirely alone. Drink milk if you can and abjure strong coffee, and partake of fresh fruits plentifully.

Bathe the face every night in warm water into which a little borax has been dropped—to soften it. Use a pure soap and scrub well. In the morning dash cold water on; cold water with a drop or two of some simple astringent. But do not use the cold water at night for cold water closes the pores and the idea is to keep the pores open so that they may drink in the skin-food. This must be applied bath. Do not hurry this massage. Take a full half hour for it and sit comfortably at your dressing table, smoothing and stroking the wrinkles away with a delicate movement of the finger-tips. Go across the forehead wrinkles and also use an upward movement, from eyebrows to the line of the hair. Across the frowning wrinkle above the nose, use a little firmer stroke and take two hands, the finger-tip of each hand crossing and drawing across the wrinkle at every upward with three fingers to press out the little lines that radiate from the corner of the eye. Last of all, stroke upward across the lines that run from the nose to the corner of the mouth—not upward along the wrinkle, but across it in the direction of the temples. When all this massaging has been done, pat the whole face with smart taps given with the flat of the palm, to bring the blood to the surface.

In the morning, as has been said, dash on cold water to close the pores for the day. Three weeks of this and a diet, should banish the wrinkles—if they are summer wrinkles and you are still under thirty-five. The wrinkles of forty demand more strenuous treatment. Every woman should begin the massage indicated above by the time she is thirty, even though there is yet no sign of unpleasant little lines. By this means she will guard against the coming of wrinkles and they should not begin to appear much before fifty.

There is another way to get rid of wrinkles—the bandage and court-plaster way. But even so, the hot water baths, massage and cold water dashes must be used also. Results will probably be swifter, however, if recourse is had to the bandage method. The forehead wrinkles must be treated by a mask. This mask sweats out the wrinkles. First the massage cream is applied, then a band of clean white linen is bound across the forehead; over this goes a band of white satin—a strip of white satin ribbon long enough to tie at the back of the head will answer very well. Last of all put on the sweating mask, which is made of a strip of stiff fabric—the sort of stiffening used to distend skirts are passed through the ends of the strip and tie at the back of the head. The little dip in the mask at the center insures a perfect covering of the wrinkle between the eyes. In the morning remove the mask and dash very cold water on the forehead. In two weeks you should have a brow fair and smooth as alabaster.

The chin bandage is made of felt, tied around the head with tape. Under it is a strip of linen, and the chin must be well massaged with cream before applying the bandage, which is intended to cure an incipient double chin, or sagging of the flesh under the chin. The small court-plaster patches will help remove lines around the mouth, between the eyes and at the outer corners of the eyes. Stretch the skin well before applying the plaster.

CHURCHMEN WILL MIX IN POLITICS

Seek to Send Four Prohibitionists to the Council.

CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY

Bible Classes Lend Aid and Committee Is Named to Make Saloon Licenses An Issue In Each Ward of the City.

Each candidate for councilman in the four wards of the city of Plainfield must declare either for or against prohibition before the election this fall, according to plans of an organized committee, the avowed purpose of which is to prevent the renewal of saloon licenses next January.

There was nothing personal in the attack on Councilman Christie P. Hamilton at the meeting of the Second Ward Republican Club last Monday night, one of the members of the committee explained to a Press reporter. If Mr. Hamilton had declared for a closed town he would have been endorsed by the new political party in Plainfield; if he had said he would be guided by the clearly expressed sentiment of a majority of voters in his ward he might have been endorsed, but he would do neither and the prohibitionists will fight him if he is nominated.

The Allied Church Association of Plainfield is behind the campaign, and it has the encouragement and active support of members of every male Bible class in all the local churches, as well as that of many individuals not connected with these classes. J. W. Gavett is president of the association and will naturally direct the campaign. All Bible classes in the city have passed resolutions pledging their support in the movement to make prohibition for Plainfield an issue in the coming councilmanic elections.

Four councilmen are to be elected this fall. Mr. Edgar, of the First ward; Mr. Hamilton, of the Second; Mr. Cox, of the Third, and Mr. Blatz, of the Fourth, are the men whose terms of office expire. There is little doubt but that Mr. Blatz will be a candidate for re-election. He is president of the Common Council and one of its most experienced and valuable members and if he sought to raise strong pressure would be brought to bear upon him to run again. Just how he stands on the prohibition question is not known, but the Allied Church Association will probably find out before long.

Mr. Cox, who is a member of Troop D and is now on the Mexican border with other members of the First New Jersey Regiment, will hardly seek re-election. He could not leave his regiment and because of the fact that he is away for an indefinite length of time he will probably ask that his name be not considered.

Mr. Hamilton said at the Second Ward Republican meeting the other night that he did not want to run, but would accept the nomination if Mayor Calkins consented to become a candidate for Mayor again and wanted him in the Council. However, this statement was made before his talk with the prohibitionists, who were present, and he later said he was glad they had decided the question for him and hoped they would find a man who would be willing to carry out their wishes.

Councilman Edgar, who is general manager of the New Jersey Central Railroad, finds little time to give to his duties as councilman and will probably refuse to permit his name to go before the people again.

DRUNKEN "BAD MAN" GETS $50 OR 60 DAYS FROM JUDGE

Branding him as one of the worst characters that has faced the city court in many a day, Judge William G. DeMeza sentenced William Vanderhoof to pay a fine of $50 or serve sixty days in the county jail when he was arraigned before him this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Vanderhoof, who is a powerfully built man, was on an ugly drunk yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of the Clinton Avenue station and was abusing members of his family and others.

Patrolman Welsh, who was sent out to stop the disturbance, only landed his man in a cell after a half hour's battle that was a thriller. This morning in court Vanderhoof retained much of his sullenness.

WANTED TO SEE PICTURES.

Samuel Berkiwetz and Moses Oganblitt were arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza this morning for trespassing on the Herr property, bordering the Plainfield Airdrome. Neighbors in the vicinity have been complaining all summer of boys climbing around their places to see the motion pictures next door and the police have been instructed to break it up. The youngsters this morning were let go with a warning.

MR. SMINCK ON ROAD IMPROVEMENT

Councilman Urges Raising of More Money From Auto Owners.

Among those who have written letters to the New Jersey Committee on Road Legisaltion, in answer to an invitation recently sent out by Chairman Herbert, is Councilman Sminck, of Plainfield. Mr. Sminck's letter follows:

Mr. John W. Herbert, Chairman,
15 Exchange Place,
Jersey City, N. J.

Dear Mr. Herbert:

Your favor of the 9th inst., with enclosure has been received and I appreciate the courtesy in referring the same to me.

Concerning the damage done by a heavily loaded auto truck in Plainfield, kindly note that this was in the early spring when the ground was soft and spongy and that the auto truck ran over a macadamized street, North avenue. Before the motor truck went on the road the road was in good condition and as it traveled along it left two big ruts behind it. This was done, I am informed, by motor trucks in other parts of Plainfield, and some years ago the Passaic Valley road was destroyed the same way.

"What is the trouble?" is the question asked concerning the feeder roads and trunk highways in New Jersey. In my opinion, road development and construction has not kept pace with invention, rapidity of manufacture, and weight of motor vehicles. Reductions in price have made the automobile the most useful and popular vehicle of the day. The problem is steadily becoming more acute because of the increasing heavy motor traffic, and even in New York city the best and strongest pavements give way under the wear and tear of the heavy loads. In the words of Mr. Meeker, the State supervisor of roads, "It is as unreasonable to suppose that a road that is only moderately strong, though good, is as fit to bear the traffic of a traction engine or heavy motor truck as it is to think that a heavy locomotive could be run on a light railway without serious damage." Years ago when a new macadamized road was constructed it would last for years without very expensive repairs. The difficulty at present seems to be the want of foundation and drainage, which may be demonstrated by noting the condition of a Telford road and a macadamized road which have both been subjected to heavy motor traffic. The Telford stands up better than the macadam because it has a foundation.

The State should not be condemned because of the situation, but rather congratulated because it has not plunged itself in debt to solve a question which may still be somewhat regarded as in an experimental stage, but criticism might lie in the fact that the new roads have been built without proper foundations and drainage.

About the finances. In my judgment we should pay as we go by a State road tax rather than bond issues. It seems clear that the State must take this question within its jurisdiction, because it is evident that a farming county with limited finances, with hills and streams liable to flood waters, cannot bear the cost of keeping the roads in first-class condition.

During 1915, the Motor Vehicle Fund contributed less than one-fifth of the $4,160,000 necessary to repair the roads of New Jersey. It therefore seems clear that a larger amount must be raised each year from those who use the roads. Wagons, carriages, automobiles and motor trucks all should be taxed. The automobilist should not object to increased tax for smoother roads, because the better the roads the less will be the annual charge at the garage for repairs, which would more than pay for any increased taxation.

Why should the public be called upon to furnish a costly roadbed for heavy trackless freight carriers in the form of motor trucks? The tax in the case of motor trucks should be in proportion to the damage done to the roads.

Regarding the roads and highways, the situation is now clearing because engineering skill is devising more permanent roads. Progress along this line, however, must of necessity be slow, considering the total mileage, because the cost per mile is very heavy and we must be careful not to plunge the counties and the State hopelessly in debt.

Yours very truly,
CHARLES S. SMINCK.

SET OCT. 2 FOR SCHOOL OPENING

City Board Asks Children to Come Home Two Weeks In Advance.

BOROUGH IS WAITING

Paralysis Epidemic Cause of Delay—Week's Notice Will Be Given Pupils If Change In Date Is Decided Upon.

The Board of Education, at a special meeting held last night, decided that the infantile paralysis epidemic would not be over in time to allow the schools to reopen on the regular date set and after the meeting issued the following statement:

"If existing conditions of poliomyelitis continue, the Plainfield schools will not open before Monday, October 2. If conditions change sufficiently to warrant the opening of the schools before that date, at least a week's notice of the earlier date of opening will be given."

The Board also advises that all school children return to the city at least two weeks before the new date set for the opening of the schools. The Board of Health requires that all children coming from out of the city be quarantined for that period and it is imperative that no additional time be lost by pupils after the schools open for being quarantined.

Although the North Plainfield Board of Education has not as yet taken any action or even discussed the matter relative to the postponing of the school openings, it is probable that the borough authorities will follow the steps taken by the city and set October 2 as the date for the fall opening.

WILL BUILD FERGUS PLANT IN DUNELLEN

Sutphen Tract of 20 Acres Is Purchased By Auto Company.

Promoters of the Fergus Automobile Company have purchased a twenty-acre site for a plant in Dunellen, according to reports from an anthentic source, and will begin work on the plant at once. It is intended to have the plant in operation by next spring, at the latest, and 2,000 men will be employed when manufacture of the big automobile begins.

The tract of land bought adjoins the property of Mrs. Margaret Sutphen, on South avenue, east of Washington avenue. It was sold by Mrs. Sutphen's nephew, John S. Sutphen, Jr., of New York city, to the Fergus Automobile Company, of Belfast, Ireland, but the company is soon to be incorporated under the laws of New Jersey.

For some time local people have been interested in the promotion of a company to manufacture Fergus cars here. The machine has been made by an Irish company under patents held in Ireland, but when England found herself in need of munitions to carry on the war she took over the Fergus plant and Mr. Ferguson came here to make cars for the American trade. The machine will sell for $2,500 until output on a large scale warrants a reduction in price.

DISORDERLY CHARACTERS SOUGHT BY POLICE CHIEF

Chief of Police Kisly has ordered his men to keep a strict lookout for disorderly characters, especially individuals guilty of such acts of indiscretion as compelled a colored man to pay a $25 fine in the city police court yesterday morning. Councilman Charles Sminck has also become interested in this work, his attention having been drawn to violations of the health laws by residents of East Third street, in the vicinity of Church street.

The police department has been on the lookout for offenders of this kind for months past, but so slick have the guilty parties been that it was difficult to obtain enough evidence for conviction.

Disorderly offenses of any nature will be followed up by the police in the future and the guilty parties, especially those persons who violate the sanitary code, may expect no leniency at the hands of Judge De Meza and the police department.

NO NEW PARALYSIS CASES IN COMMUNITY

The worst of the infantile paralysis seems to have passed in this vicinity and no new cases have been reported from the city or surrounding towns in several days. The health authorities, however, are maintaining stringent quarantine regulations. All present victims of the plague seem to be improving and will probably recover.

ALLIED OFFENSIVE ON LARGER SCALE

All Armies Attacking Together Gives Victory Along Somme River.

Paris, Aug. 19.—With the allied forces attacking everywhere, following new gains that gave the French most of Maurepas and advanced the British nearer Combles and Martinpuich, the battle continues along the whole front today from Pozieres to the Somme. Operations on a larger scale are expected soon.

North of Verdun Gen. Petain won part of the village of Fleury and then carried two fortified redoubts northwest of the Thiuamont work on the right bank of the Meuese. The Germans also were forced back near Vaux, farther east.

French Hold All of Fleury.

Paris, Aug. 19.—All of the village of Fleury on the Verdun front is now in the hands of the French, it was officially announced by the War Office today. There was violent fighting on both the Somme front and in the sector of the Verdun last night. Powerful attacks were delivered by the Germans in both zones, but all were repulsed, the communique states. At Verdun the Germans made their greatest effort to the west of the Meuse River, delivering two attacks against the French salient at Avocourt.

Another Protest to England.

Washington, August 19.—The State Department has made vigorous protest against the seizure at Hong Kong of the American cargo on the steamer Kafue, bound for the Philippines.

Immediate release of the goods, which have been detained by British authorities for ten days, is demanded. Great Britain is also asked to see to the prompt delivery of the goods to the Manila consignees.

Seizure and detention of the Kafue's cargo was cited today as a violation of the British pledges to the United States that the blacklist will not be used against neutrals.

Germany Theatens Switzerland.

Paris, Aug. 19.—The German and Swiss delegates today resumed their efforts to solve the difficulties caused by Germany's demand that Switzerland permit exportation of cotton and other products. Unless this is done, Germany threatened that she will prohibit exportation to Switzerland of coal, iron and other products essential for Swiss industries.

ALL COUNCILMEN ARE FOR CALKINS

They Urge That People Insist On Second Term For the Mayor.

HIS SERVICES NEEDED

Hope He Will Reconsider and Accept Nomination—Would Be Unfortunate If He Were to Retire Now.

That Plainfield would do itself a "grave injustice" if it failed to call Mayor Calkins for a second term in office is the opinion of every member of the Plainfield Common Council. In a statement given to the Press this morning the Councilmen urge that voters impress upon Mayor Calkins the need of his services during the next two years and persuade him to again permit his name to go before the people as a candidate for re-election. The signed statement of the Councilmen follows:

To the Citizens of Plainfield:

Two years ago the voters of this city placed a man in the Mayor's chair who has given sugstantially his whole time to the business of being Mayor.

Now, that the time has again arrived for the voter seriously to consider a candidate for the Mayoralty, we, as close associates of Mayor Calkins, feel it not only our duty, but a pleasure, to call the attention of the people of Plainfield to the supreme necessity of electing him to another term, that important matters conceived by and begun under him may be carried to successful completion, with the conscientious and ceaseless attention, and wise guidance and advice that he is so willing and able to give. Important among these are the completion of the City Hall, plans for which are now in hands of the City Hall Building Committee, and of which Mayor Calkins is chairman; the sewer extension work, which is having his close attention constantly; the reorganizing of the different departments into a harmonious business-like organization; and the development of such of the suggestions made as a result of the Curvey of City Departments by experts in the different lines of municipal activities as seem fitted to our needs.

It will surely be generally conceded that all of these features are of great importance to the future welfare of Plainfield, and it would be unfortunate, to say the least, if the plans for their development were to be placed in the hands of one who has not given them the study and attention that the present Mayor has. These are some, but by no means all, of the major matters to which Mayor Calkins has given unselfishly of his time.

There are countless other things that have not come into the limelight so prominently to which he has by no means overlooked giving his personal attention; and no one knows better than those who have associated with him. In particular there are such problems as public parks, street widening, (Park avenue) and a garbage collection system, which he has planned to have studied by the new City Plan and Research Commission, to say nothing of the booth patrol system for the Police Department, a system of drills for the Fire Department, and many others, all of which, it must be admitted, make for the best interests of the city.

His efforts in behalf of Plainfield since he was first elected to the Council have been put forth simply because he loved Plainfield, and not because of any hope of reward, political or otherwise. Independence of thought and action has characterized his consideration of every question that has come before him. He has cared more for the Right than for any bearing his acts might have on his political future. He is uniformly courteous, whether approached by a driver of a dirt cart, or a Senator. Letters do not remain on his desk unanswered, no matter how trivial the subject.

In view of all the facts as above set forth, we say unhesitatingly and emphatically that Plainfield would be doing itself a grave injustice did it fail to call such a man to the highest office within its gift for a second term, and a third and fourth if possible; and we also feel that it is a reward to which Mayor Calkins is justly entitled, for his unselfish devotion to the city we all love.

It should be made perefectly clear to him that his services are still further needed and wanted, his modesty to the contrary notwithstanding, and we earnestly hope he will reconsider his determination not to be a candi-

MRS. WALLACE GETS THANKS OF QUEEN

Local Relief Sends More Milk to Belgium—Letter From There.

The Plainfield Belgian Relief, following the plans made at its latest meeting, has shipped seventy-five cases, or 3,600 cans, of Borden's Peerless evaporated milk, and has sent to the Appui Belge through Madame de Rancougne $125 to be used for the purchase of food on the other side. While, owing to the good rate of exchange, the money bought a draft for 738 francs, it is distressing to note the increase in the price of milk. Last year $310 bought 4,800 cans of the same brand, while last month $311.25 bought only three-fourths as much.

Sixty-two dollars has recently been added to the fund of the Belgian Relief in Plainfield and will be used as a nucleus for another shipment of milk. Subscriptions of any amount are earnestly silicited for this shipment. Even at the increased price, a little less than nine cents will buy a can of milk.

An article which appeared recently in the Boston Transcript gives an interesting account of an interview with A. J. Hemphill. Mr. Hemphill, who acts as treasurer for the Neutral Commission for Relief, has returned from Belgium, where he has been investigating the distribution of the relief supplies. Part of his statement reads as follows:

"In one relief canteen which I inspected a man came up and made a complaint. There was no meat, he said excitedly, in his soup. He had long given up the idea of receiving meat as part of his daily meal, but if he was to live he declared he must get some of the nourishment that meat provides. He was right. There was practically no meat in the soup. But what is one to do? Such meat as there is in the country is $1.50 per pound.

"There are 600,000 children in Belgium entirely dependent upon the tender-heartedness of the outside world. A large percentage of the remaining two million children, up to the age of 16, are partially dependent upon relief. The problem of bringing them up and even of keeping them alive is becoming more and more grave."

Mrs. Frederic W. Wallace, chairman of the society, has received from the Queen her personal acknowledgment, expressing gratitude for the portable house sent by Plainfield for 100 little orphans at La Panne.

COL. COLGATE RESIGNS FROM STATE SENATE

Colonel Austen Colgate's resignation as Senator from Essex county was received by Governor James F. Fielder and Secretary of State Martin this morning at the State House in Trenton. "I hereby tender my resignation as Senator from Essex county, the same to take effect immediately.

"Yours truly,
"AUSTEN COLGATE."

Senator Colgate was elected in 1911, after having served three terms in the Legislature, and re-elected in 1914 by an overwhelming vote, which came as an endorsement.

RAILROAD HEADS REFUSE TO YIELD

Vote to Refuse President's Suggestion of An Eight-Hour Day.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE

Still Insist On Mediation—Statement Prepared For Wilson—Trainmen Await Result of Effort to Settle Without Strike.

Washington, Aug. 19.—The railway executives resumed their conference with President Wilson at the White House at 11:25 o'clock this morning. All of them refused to discuss the situation. At the last minute it was decided that the managers would not accept the President's invitation to join the presidents. President Holden, of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, who is acting as spokesman for the roads, had a prepared statement setting forth the side of the railways which he intended to leave with the President for his inspection.

The presidents and managers at a secret session that adjourned early today, decided not to yield to the proposal of President Wilson for a settlement of the controversy that may precipitated a nation-wide strike.

They authorized the statement that they will accept no proposal for a settlement that does not provide for arbitration of all the points at issue.

The fact that the railroad officials are making arrangements to remain in the city indefinitely was taken to indicate that they expect to have further time within which to consider the matter, in the hope of working out with the President and the brotherhoods a plan for peaceful settlement that both sides can accept.

N. Y. CAR STRIKE IS A NEAR DANGER

Union Men Insist On Reinstatement of Employes Dismissed.

New York, August 19.—Failing to come to an agreement employes of the New York Railways Comapny and officials of that company have appealed to Mayor Mitchell and Chairman Straus of the Public Service commission to prevent a general strike on all Manhattan street car lines. Both railway men and union leaders agree that the danger of a strike is greater than it has been at any time since the controversy broke out. The uninon men held a meeting at 11 a. m. today, but their conference resulted in nothing but the statement that unless the fourteen strikers recently dismissed be reinstated at once a strike would be called. This the company refuses to do.

Walter Sisty, proprietor of Wayside Park, Thursday night, was not appropriated by some unlawful person after all, the animal being found after a countrywide search by Mr. Sisty at the home of Mrs. Rosalie Castar, of Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, from whom he had purchased it last spring. Mr. Sisty, in pressing his search for the pony, which is the pet of his young daughter, went as far as Oak Tree, where there is a gypsy encampment. KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health Is Worth Saving and Some Plainfield People Know How to Save It.

Many Plainfield people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Plainfield's citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Anthony Wahl, R. F. D. No 1, Plainfield, says: "I had such distressing pains in my back that I could hardly stand, and it was out of the question for me to stoop. I was all crippled up and I knew perfectly well that my kidneys were the cause of the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills gave me almost immediate relief and three boxes changed me from a chronic sufferer to a healthy woman. I still take Doane's Kidney Pills occasionally, when a cold settles on my kidneys and they act as a preventive of any serious trouble."

Price, 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Wahl had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

A printer's best work is not obtained on the competitive basis. It cannot be.

The man who asks for competition in price seeks estimates on so much stock, composition and presswork and nothing more. He does not bargain for the skill, originality, time and individuality of the printer, and he does not get them.

Fascinating Negligees

A negligee to be becoming need not be made out of expensive materials. Odd bits of crepe, silks and chiffon can be purchased at remnant sales and made into adorable lounging robes at a ridiculously low sum.

Clever fingers can put together a charming boudoir cap from a bit of lace, an odd length of ribbon and a satin flower or two. Even those who cannot fashion dainty trifles for themselves can purchase in the stores dainty fluffy garments at moderate prices to take the place of the ugly shaped kimono, which is becoming to so few women.

A dainty negligee which can be washed as soon as it becomes soiled, a cap of the same material trimmed with a bit of lace, are all that is needed to give a fresh, dainty appearance to the woman who has been used to going about her boudoir in "any old thing."

Never before has lingerie been so varied and so fascinating as it is today. Where white ones reigned supreme, color now predominates, and it is not unusual to see women wearing garments of the palest mauve lawn, canary yellow crepe de chine and even black chiffon.

The latter sounds fearfully sombre, but in reality it is extremely chic. Nothing makes the skin look quite so soft and white as black, and a bit of flesh gleaming through chiffon of a midnight hue has a fascinating effect which is unobtainable with any other color.

This undoubtedly accounts for the present popularity of black chiffon underwear.

A picture wrap of brown velvet lined with amethyst, which has a huge but graceful collar edged with raccoon; the floating panel in the back is like the robes of the old Gauls. The sleeves are gathered at the wrists with a flare cuff edged with racoon. It is one of the new fashions created for the Wanamaker Store, New York.

Artistic Worsted Roses of Victorian Days

The painted and embroidered parrot has passed as a novelty and a fashionable pastime in millinery, but another bit of Victorianism is creeping over the land.

It is the worsted rose. France, looking at the past for her clothes inspiration, instead of the present and future, has lifted another bit of fancy work out of early Victorianism and flung it into the current of the most daring modern fashions.

Worked By French Women.

Her nimble-fingered needlewomen know well how to fashion the crewel roses that were a part of costumery before the Civil War.

She is teaching the rest of the world to use these Victorian roses, which were once used for interior decoration, as a means of dress decoration. We already have tulle and satin gowns caught up with bulbous roses, made of soft, fine wool in enchanting colors.

Serge suits are caught at the waistline and neck with small roses in green, scarlet, yellow and black. Informal linen suits, in the natural tone of the linen thread, have black and green worsted roses somewhere on the surface, where they catch the eye and do the most good.

For some months, France has been wearing hats trimmed with large worsted roses and Alpine flowers done in green and white wool.

Satin coats and capes made for informal evening and afternoon wear are caught with huge pink or crimson crewel roses, and even parasols have one enormous worsted flower to give color to their sombre black or plain white surface.

More Artistic Combinations.

France is making these roses less cumbersome and with more seductive color combinations than the women of the Victorian era did.

The colors of those days were well enough, but the guilt of the Victorian era rested in the fact that its people did not know how to combine these colors. In the best society, they sank to the level of the worst taste.

To-day, and probably this autumn, we will have the roses of Victoria, combined with the artistry of Paris.

New Wedding Ring

For the autumn bride there is a new sort of wedding ring. To the casual eye it appears to be just the ordinary gold circlet, heavy yet narrow—as fashionable wedding rings are now.

An adroit twist of the fingers, however, and behold! the ring becomes two rings, the rounded edges at the outer side and a flat surface within. On this flat surface the bridegroom may have engraved a secret inscription of sentiment which nobody but the bride—and himself, of course—will ever be able to read, unless someone discovers the trick of opening the ring.

The best wedding ring is of 14k gold, heavy and solid and not too wide. Very wide wedding rings have gone out of fashion and the modish band is narrow and well rounded at the outer side.

A ring of 18k gold has a beautiful color but will not wear as well as the 14k ring, and, of course, a ring that is never removed from the hand is apt to have hard usage, to come into contact with surfaces that would scratch or dent any metal not very hard in itself.

Drink Plenty of Water

When the thermometer is high, the only way we can keep our own temperature from doing likewise, is to drink copiously of pure water. There is nothing so refreshing or cooling as pure water chilled to a palatable temperature.

Children especially should be encouraged to drink freely of water. Even babies should have their regular bottles of water.

After All It Is the Kindly Thought That Makes Home Out of a House

Father comes home from busy day's work and finds that mother and the girls have placed a great, new, deep seated chair in his favorite place beside the library table; and who ever would have thought that good old "Dad" could have been so tickled and pleased? And then there's the biggest surprise of all when dad and the same fun-loving girls get the new breakfast room suit home and off the wagon before mother even has an idea of it!

Furniture is wonderful for gifts. There is never a failure to find "just the right thing." There's never a worry as to whether it will please. And it lasts; the gift sentiment of it lasts. Father's new easy chair becomes an institution of the home. It acquires personality. It enriches by possession and endears by associations. Mother's new breakfast room suit is every morning a new delight. Dad and the girls are closer than ever to her heart.

Where is the home that cannot be brightened and bettered by some gift from the August Sale of Furniture?

PARALYSIS EXPERTS OPPOSE QUARANTINE

Warn Health Officers That Epidemic Will Be Worse Next Year.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Warning that the infantile paralysis epidemic may appear next summer in other States not gravely affected now, unless drastic measures are taken to control its course, was given to the national conference of public health officers by the special committee named to recommend ways and means for its suppression.

The committee recommended that the State health authorities be notified, by uniform health certificates, of removal of all children under sixteen years of age from epidemic areas. Quarantine of one State or community against another as disapproved. The committee recommended that during the unusual prevalence of infantile paralysis schools should not be opened without medical supervision by a health authority.

"When schools ar eopened," the committee recommended, "beginnings should be made with the high schools, and proceeding to lower age groups no more rapidly than complete medical examination can be made."

Certificates for interstate travel, the committee held, should be signed by Federal or State health officers.

"Certificates of private physicians will not alone be a sufficient basis for the issue of a permit to travel," the report said. "Permits for interstate travel should be based on medical examination. It is believed that the Federal Government can perform all duties of notification and certification required in interstate relations in case of unusual prevalence of infantile paralysis."

Regarding measures to deal with epidemics, the report recommends:

Immediate report of all cases and exchange of weekly reports between State and Federal authorites.

Daily observation for two weeks of all children under sixteen leaving an infected district.

Isolation of diseased persons and attendants for six weeks.

Hospital treatment when possible.

Private funerals for victims.

Prohibition of assembly of children in public places during an epidemic.

Suppression of flies and the common drinking cup and a general educational campaign for cleanliness and sanitation, with particular instruction of parents and children concerning personal hygiene, especially of the mouth and nose.

"The epidemic prevalent in certain States at this time indicates a probability of epidemic prevalence next year in States not gravely affected now," the report stated.

Care of what the health officers termed the "wreckage" of the epidemic, the crippled children who survive, was discussed. Treatment of all victims in State institutions at State expense was recommended.

"Quacks thrive on epidemics," said Assistant Surgeon General Rucker, who presided.

"The pitiful fact of infantile paralysis is the slow process of treatment of its victims," said Dr. Rucker. "Parents become discouraged, leave good physicians and go to quacks who advertise 'we cure paralysis.' They go from quack to quack until their resources and chances of improving the child are gone."

A report of a conference committee recommending a system of uniform collection and dissemination of statistical information regarding paralysis was adopted. Uniform forms and records were approved which give a complete record of every paralysis case in every State and county in the country.

It is proposed that these reports will be available both to the public health service and all State officers, to compile a complete record of the disease in this country since 1910.

What They Say

Do you suppose there is a person living who isn't interested in what other people say—who wouldn't, down deep in his heart, like to know what sort of an impression he makes? It is rather safe to guess that most folks would like to see themselves as others see them, at least, once in a while.

Certainly this is true of stores. They must, to a certain extent, know what the public thinks. Their business depends on good will of customers.

That was one reason why the letter—the first prize of Aug. 2d in the Globe Shopping Contest interested the Hearn Store. It was a pleasure to see that customers really did appreciate our policy of Customers First.

It isn't often that an outsider analyzes so exactly the inside policy of a firm. But this letter did—just precisely describes ours. The writer began by saying that neither the threatened car strike nor the heat wave deterred her from taking advantage of one of our August Sale specials. (You see, she could judge values.) Then she continued:

"This very good value was delightfully surprising in view of the fact that the war prices have affected this indispensible commodity.

When the clever advertiser selected for his slogan,

"What Trade Insight Did for Us."

he showed that same keen insight in placing the advertisement on the most prominent page of the most popular paper—in The Globe.

"That such advertising pays was clearly demonstrated by the crowds of eager buyers at that muslin counter.

"And just a word of well-deserved praise for the service. Those girls, with their polite, cheerful, courteous service, made even a bargain counter purchase a pleasure. A hot day, a jostling, eager crowd, change to be handed back in every instance, questions galore—truly enough to try the patience of Job—but these pleasant faced girls only measured off ten yards every second, made change, answered questions, and smiled with as much equanamity and graciousness as though they were engaged in an interesting game.

"And they were. For life's biggest game is to do well that which falls to our lot to do. It is just such service that made this one customer, who came with the intention of spending 68c for muslin—drawn by the above advertisement—spend nearly $10 before leaving the store."

FIRSTLY—Values—We always have tried to give best possible values and will continue to do so.

SECONDLY—Advertising—We always give just exact statements of truth—not one item of exaggeration.

THIRDLY—Service—We try to make that as nearly perfect as possible—to please any and every customer.

It was so satisfactory to have the very features on which we concentrate observed.

At various times many customers have said some of these things. Many more have shown by their continued patronage that they do understand our policy. Such thoughtful appreciation is a mighty big incentive to even greater effort.

And, while we are quoting, did you see an editorial of The Mail (Aug. 11th), entitled, "A Little Late, Madam?" It was not a lament about Summer Furs or a protest against showing serge dresses or velvet hats. It dealt, in commenting, the writer said, that as most women are always eager for the newest hints as to the coming styles, that practice was really a help. It was merely a clever complaint against the difficulty that most shoppers experience in trying to buy summer clothes late in the season. Further, the writer said, no matter how hot it was a straw hat or a cool crepe dress for these blazing hot days, for which the shopper asks, she was sure to hear: "It's a little late in the season for these, madam."

Unfortunately, most folks will only want to comment, "Well, isn't that just the way it goes?" For nearly every one has had this experience.

It is true that Fall stocks are shown everywhere now, even during these fearfully hot days. But, because we realize that there are many, many women who want to buy summer things in the proper—even late in the summer—we keep full stocks all season. We do not take stock until later than most stores. We do have what you need and want, when you want it.

On these days of clearances you will find all the summer goods greatly reduced, and it's really amazing to find what reductions there are.

But, oh, do remember—we have the new Fall things too. They are lovelier than ever.

A JOKE THAT FAILED.

Tried on "Stonewall" Jackson, It Acted the Wrong Way.

"Major Thomas J. Jackson, later the famous 'Stonewall' Jackson, was our instructor in mathematics and drilled the students in artillery tactics," said General Armistead, an antebellum graduate of the Virginia Military Institute. "'Old Jack,' as the students called him, with his worn uniform, faded cap, usually perched at a ridiculous angle upon his big head, rusty old cavalry saber and ungraceful gait, was in appearance far from our ideal ideal of a soldier. Nevertheless it was possible even then to guess at the real greatness of the man.

"The guns we used in our artillery drills were pulled by hand. As the drill would proceed our instructor would become transformed into the very semblance of Mars himself as, with form erect, waving sword and flashing eye, he would give the command 'Fire!' in a voice that rang over the campus like the blast of a bugle.

"One day in a spirit of mischief the students who were drawing the gun pretended to lose control of it as it moved rapidly down a gentle incline directly toward Major Jackson. But the commander, instead of scuttling out of the way, as the boys had gleefully anticipated, stood sternly erect and immovable right in the track of the gun.

"I tell you there was some lively hustling and just in the nick of time, too, to keep Old Jack from being run over. That was our only attempt to play a practical joke at Major Jackson's expense."—Youth's Companion.

PACIFIC MAIL RESUMES.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 19.—The sailing of the steamship Ecuador today marks the resumption of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's service between San Fransisco and the Orient, which was abandoned a year ago when the company sold its fleet at a big profit. The company has bought three ships from the Royal Dutch West India Mail Company with which to resume the service. If this initial experiment to revive the Pacific business is successful an entirely new fleet will be put in service and the three vessels already acquired will be released for South American trade.

When the Pacific Mail Steamship Company gave up the Pacific service a year ago it created something of a sensation, because one of the reasons alleged for its action was that it would be impossible to operate under the American flag if the La Follette Seaman's Act was enforced. An official of the company now says that the rise in the freight rates has offset the extra expense entailed by the operation of the act.

OLD JERSEY ESTATE SOLD TO DEVELOPER

New Market Property Purchased By Long Island Resident.

The biggest real estate deal swung in the township of Piscataway for some time, was put through the latter part of last week, after having been the subject of negotiations, surmises and rumors for some little time, the handsome house of F. Percy Vail, on New Market road, Dunellen, known as Velmere, and with it thirty-four acres of surrounding land having changed hands. The big real estate proposition was put through by the reality brokerage concern of Nelson, Lee & Green, Incorporated, of New York city, of which firm, Abram G. Nelson, chairman of the Piscataway Township Committee, is the president. The purchaser is Edwin Rowley, of North Port, L. I., the consideration mentioned being about eighteen thousand dollars.

It is understood to be the plan of Mr. Rowley, who is a real estate operator of high reputation, to reserve the house and other buildings together with five acres of land as one property and the remainder of the property will be cut up into building lots, all lots fronting on New Market road, or, as it is termed in the township, Main street, being restricted.

The big house, with its immense white pillars in colonial Doric style, which has been a landmark for many years, was built eighty years ago, by a grandfather of Mr. Vail, the late William Vail. The property is said to have been in uninterrupted possession of the Vail family for a century and a quarter.

It is thought in the village that Mr. and Mrs. Vail and daughter, who are away for the summer, will eventually move to California and make their home there. They spent all last winter in the golden State and were greatly pleased with its climate and scenic beauties.

A SOUTHERN HOME

DESIGNED BY CHAS S. SEDGWICK, ARCHITECT.

WE are illustrating in this issue a recently planned "Southern Home." It is a plain, substantial residence with broad frontage and built on Colonial lines. The size of the main house is 55 ft. front x 37 ft. 6 in. in depth, with a glazed conservatory on the left that is 10 ft. in width and 26 ft. in depth. The exterior walls are of dark Oriental brick, the roof is of green Spanish tile. The exterior is symmetrical in treatment with a liberal brick porch entrance and extending right and left from the porch across the front is the wide terrace built with brick walls and tile floor. The floor of the conservatory is also tile. The rear piazza, kitchen and culinary departments are finished with tile floors, also the front vestibule, bath and toilet rooms in tile, both floors and walls. The estimated cost of this residence, exclusive of the heating and plumbing, is $15,000 to $18,000.

The treatment of the interior is also quite symmetrical, entering through a central spacious vestibule opening into a wide hall and with columned arch opposite the entrance and connecting with the large staircase hall in the rear that is 20 ft. in width x 15 ft. in depth. The "Old Colonial" staircase circled up on each side is a very distinctive feature of the interior treatment. From the entrance hall to the left is the living room and to the right the dining room. In the rear of the living room is the library and in the rear of the dining room is the butler's pantry and kitchen, rear staircase, etc. These rooms are all large and ample in size and finished throughout with heavy beamed ceilings and oak floors, except where tiling is used. The walls of the hall are paneled, paneling carried up around the staircase and through the second story halls. Each of the principle rooms has a wide fire-place.

The second story has five chambers, a large central sleeping porch opened onto from the main staircase platform. The rooms are all large size and ample clothes closets provided. There are two large bath rooms, the owner's bath room being provided with shower bath, also a private toilet room for the maid's chamber. The windows throughout are on the "casement" order in small lights and swing outward. The attic story is finished in one large room. There is ample space for finishing a number of good rooms if desired.

BUILDING NOTES

Cohan & Esrelsky, a local contracting firm, was a successful bidder for the erection of three buildings in the vicinity of New street and West Second street. All three will be of frame construction and two and a half stories in height. Two will be residences and one will have a store on the first floor and residence upstairs. They will cost in the vicinity of $12,000, and will be operated by a group of local Jewish business men.

Samuel Glison is building a two-and-a-half story structure on Manson place, to be used by Alfonson Clocci as a store and residence. It will cost about $6,000.

Work is rapidly being completed by the Berry Construction Company on two modern two-and-a-half story dwellings on Leland avenue, between Front and Second streets. They have made all improvements and will sell for about $4,500.

Richt Walter, the Somerset street barber, is having plans drawn up for the building of an extension to the front of the structure he occupies on that street.

Local building inspectors are soon to start work on the construction of a modern house with all improvements at the corner of Leland avenue and Cushing road for Mrs. Annette Smith. It will be two-and-a-half stories high, of frame and cement construction and cost in the neighborhood of $12,000.

Caniff Brothers will do the mason work and Thompson will do the carpentry.

John Cooper, the local contractor, is rebuilding the cement wall at the lower end of Somerset street that was washed away by the recent flood.

The roof of the assembling building of the American Motor Company, which is being built at West Front street and Grant avenue, is already nearing completion and it is said that the entire building will be ready within the next two weeks.

Cellars of five of the fifteen houses which will be built on Halsey, McDowell and Bergen streets, have been dug during the past week. The houses are being built by Cohen, Israelsky and Bernstein, of this city, and will be modern in every respect.

BIG SLUMP IN BUILDING PERMITS

Only One Issued This Week and Two Last Week.

Building permits have been growing smaller and smaller during the summer months, but they reached the low water mark the past week, when only one was approved by the building inspector's office. Two were approved the week before, making a total of only three, representing an outlay of $3,848.

Both of those issued week before last were for garages. Sarah Dickerson filed satisfactory plans for a garage to measure 18x18x18 and to be built at 411 West Fourth street. It will be of frame construction, cost $250 and be erected by Peter Dickerson.

Harold White was granted permission to build a garage at 601 East Second street. It will cost $198.

The plan filed this week calls for the erection of a two-family frame dwelling at 390 Hillcrest avenue. It will be of frame construction and cost in the vicinity of $3,500. It will have a frontage of 22 feet in front and back and be 40 feet in length. Louis Vieth, who filed the plans, will do the building himself.

WOMAN ACTED AS OWN LAWYER, AND LOST CASE

Morristown, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Dolores Bacon, of Mountain Lakes, conducted her own defense Thursday in a suit brought against her in the Morris District Court by the Oak Ridge Company. She cross-examined Herbert J. Hapwood, treasurer of the company, who contended that Mrs. Bacon owed house rent for May. Judgment was given against her for $40.

BOY STRUCK BLIND MOTHER-FOUGHT POLICE

Newark, Aug. 19.—Following a quarrel early Thursday night, in which, it is alleged, he struck his blind mother, James Marino, twenty-two years old, of the Soho section of Belleville, held off until 1 o'clock yesterday morning a posse of policemen called to arrest him at his home, 104 Harrison street, that town. Marino threatened to shoot any one attempting to arrest him, according to the police. After keeping the officers away for four hours, he surrendered and was taken to police headquarters. He had in his possession a .32-caliber revolver, which was empty. He admitted yesterday morning that before his arrest he took two cartridges from the weapon.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 19, 1916.

On Saturdays the editorial column of the Daily Press is conducted, at our request, by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor today is George Keene, physical director, of 829 Park avenue, Plainfield, and former editor of the department of Physical Culture, Health Magazine, New York City:

It is absolutely necessary to build up and strengthen the heart, lungs, liver, kidneys, stomach, bowels, nerves, arteries and muscles, to a normal degree of elasticity and activity, in order to be efficient physically or mentally.

The carriage of the body and spine must be perfect, with every nerve, muscle and vital organ held in its normal position in order to give them a chance to perform their important duties. The body should be held erect, chest up and front; abdomen repressed with the weight of the body evenly distributed upon the balls of both feet. The toes should point front and not to the right and left.

There are six hundred millions of air cells in the lungs and they should consume about for hundred and fifty gallons of nitrogen every twenty-four hours, hence the importance of breathing an abundance of fresh air, both day and night, to oxidate, also to cleanse the blood and make it twenty-four karat pure.

Men, women and children of fine intelligence go on day in and day out eating devitalized flour and wondering why the foreigner from the slums of Europe, or the illiterate negro of the South can show pearly white teeth and excellent physical development. The negro in the South is forced to eat the dark flour and corn meal, because the white, velvety flour is beyond the reach of his pocketbook, and the emigrant of Europe has subsisted on the dark bread for centuries, because of the high cost of meats.

The dark whole wheat flour contains all of the essential mineral salts necessary to a thoroughly efficient body and brain. It is gratifying to know that even the powerful interests of the white flour trust are unable to prevent the widespread education that is now permeating every learned centre, to eliminate all white flour and get back to the real "staff of life," as nature has prepared it, with all the elements necessary to nourish both brain and body, before man robbed it of the essential salts required by the body in building normal nerves, bones, teeth, eyes, muscles, tendons, cords, cartilages, veins, arteries, muscles and brain necessary in building a perfect physique.

Since the advent of the pure food laws the butter-makers have been forced to what is known as "renovate" butter, which is nothing more or less than taking old butter from the storage houses and attempting to put new life in it by re-churning and putting it out for food. It is far safer to use oleomargarine than try to secure simon-pure butter from the average grocery.

The children of the poor, because they haven't the money to buy the standard sweetmeats, are forced to buy candies, ice cream and sweetmeats composed of glue and the rankest kinds of poisons, with their pennies, and there are thousands of people of higher education who will blindly follow their lead in buying the same health and efficiency-destroying grades, because they spend too little time away from their commercial pursuits studying what they put into their mouths, stomach, blood and body.

If too thin, or too stout, one cannot be physically prepared against disease, or efficient physically or mentally. Excessive leanness or stoutness are often the result of errors in carriage, breathing, diet and exercising.

A Perfect Body.

In time of youth, prepare for old age, inefficiency and disease, by breathing an abundance of oxygen, nitrogen, ozone and vapor, eat moderately of plain, pure, wholesome foodstuffs and exercise daily to strengthen every nerve, muscle and life-giving organ in the body.

Do not develop a "pouter pigeon" chest, or short, hard, knotted muscles, which sap one's vitality from the vital, or life developing organs. Every day gently stretch and exercise every nerve and muscle in the body, by forcing pure blood through brain and body, and you will prevent tuberculosis, rheumatism, pneumonia, nervousness, appendicitis and other diseases as well as physical unpreparedness.

- Proctor's Theatre -

"The Spell of the Yukon," with the popular Edmund Breese in the stellar role, is the headline photoplay offering at Proctor's today. The title of this picture accurately describes the location and atmosphere, and although the drama of the story is enacted in New York, there is enough of Alaskan wilds and the big snows to make this the home note of the picture. The photography of the exterior scenes is excellent; for the locations have been well chosen and their artistic value has been realized. Considerable artistry has been brought to bear in the subtleties, which are discovered in the short scenes, illustrative of the spirit of the caption, while many lines from the poem by Robert W. Service are utilized as subtleties. Edmund Breese does remarkably well as the leading man, and is ably seconded by Arthur Hoops. The cast also includes Christine Mayo and Evelyn Brent. In addition today Edward Coxen and Lazette Thorn are starred in "The Dreamer." Carol Halloway and John Sheenan appear in "Gamblers and Greenbacks," and Orral Humphrey is seen in a one-reel comedy, "A Germ Gem."

On Monday, in addition to the regular program, Gertrude Hornidge will render Gounod's popular classic, "Ave Maria," at all performances this selection having been one of the selections for the concert last Sunday which was unfortunately postponed. In order to satisfy the demand for the rendition of this number, the management have made arrangements to have Miss Hornidge sing it on Monday.

On Monday, B. S. Moss will present his masterful picturization of Elinor Glyn's famous novel, "One Day," which as a novel is internationally famous, and as a photoplay has been greeted with tremendous popularity throughout the country.

NOTED CATHOLICS MEET.

New York, August 19.—Twenty thousand delegates, including in their number noted prelates, scholars, editors and laymen in the forefront of Catholic activities throughout the United States, assembled here today and visited the Cathedral College Building, where they registered preliminary to the opening of the series of conventions that is to mark the celebration of "Catholic Week." These conventions, the sessions of which will continue through the whole of next week, will include meetings of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, the German Federation of Catholic Societies, the Catholic Young Men's National Union and several smaller bodies. The combination gathering will be the largest and most notable of its kind ever held in America.

The opening ceremony tomorrow at St. Patrick's Cathedral, where Cardinal Farley will sing the pontifical mass, and Cardinal Gibbons will preach the federation sermon, will be attended by the largest number ever assembled in that cathedral. Governor Whitman, laymen of prominence, and representatives of societies and races representing every country in the world, will be there.

In Madison Square Garden tomorrow a meeting will be held, at which all of the dignitaries will be present and addresses will be made. A musical pragram quite out of the ordinary has been prepared. The Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra will play and the famous Ruthenian and German choral societies will sing.

Plainfield Theatre.

Local theatregoers will be pleased at the announcement of the coming visit to the Plainfield Theatre on Monday, Aug. 21, matinee and night, of the inimitable comedian, Jim Barton, and the incomparable "20th Century Maids," which, under the guidance of the Theatrical Operating Company, set a high pace last season for the attractions of the Eastern wheel to follow. This standard applied not only to the "high water mark" in point of receipts, but also to the quality of the performance, as the "20th Century Maids" was without a peer in point of varied and pleasing entertainment.

Individuality has created for Jim Barton a stellar prestige of lasting quality. Out of the all too common character of the tramp he has evolved a character that while it touches only the humorous side, is none the less appealing and effective as a well conceived type. Modern burlesque, that which the officials of the Columbia circuit have had in progress of incubation for some years past, has been "hatched out" in difinite form in the edition of "20th Century Maids," which the Theatrical Operating Company has presented the last two years. These entertainments have avoided the "slapstick and bladder" of conventional burlesque, and have appealed for favor upon legitimate methods and material. Burlesque will obtain its most complete renovation through the efforts of the new generation of comedians of the Jim Barton type entering its ranks to replace the fun-makers of the old school in whose minds the modern method of fun making has no part. The show this year is described as the biggest and best effort of the Theatrical Operating Company. A new book has been supplied, new music, new songs, and new ensembles. Mr. Barton will offer a new program of the unique humor he generally exploits, and the new show is sure to sustain the pleasing reputation of its previous visit.

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

New Publications on the War.

Bennett, Arnold. Over there.

"The author has stood with the troops, under fire; with the Red Cross, in hospitals; has seen the great French and British military machines in action. With all of the skill which he has devoted to his world-famous fiction, he depicts—as only Bennett can—Canadian troops, English laddies, Turcos, red trousered Frenchmen, nurses, and all the picturesque, moving figures of the war."

Davis, Richard Harding. With the French in France and Salonika.

"These war stories, sent by Richard Harding Davis from the front, bring the war almost up to date. The last chapter is dated February. He begins with Paris, ends with London, and midway takes in Serbia. The note that runs through all is—France has proved herself. 'She has faith in her armies, in her generals. She can afford to wait. She drove the enemy from Paris; she is teaching French in Alsace;; in time, when Joffre is ready, she will drive the enemy across here borders.' Meantime Paris goes on about her business as usual. Mr. Davis is scornful of neutrality, but in his loyalty to the Allies there is no malignity towards the Central Powers. He sees them as inferiors rather than as demons."

Dickinson, G. Lowes. European anarchy.

"Mr. Dickinson's calm, clear analysis and his constant effeort to do full justice to the motives, the point of view and the impelling historical force of each combatant are very welcome. Such kindly willingness and willingness to understand and make plain just how the present conflicts, its causes and its purposes, look to his country's bitterest foe betoken a mind or unusual judicial character."

Fernau, Hermann. Because I am a German.

"His examination of the arguments of the author of 'J'accuse' is unprejudiced, impartial, and coldly logical. * * * There is much clever irony and veiled contempt of the answers that have been made to "J'accuse' and of the position and arguments of philosophic, literary, scholastic, and scientific Germany in support of the war. His own convictions on the subject of modern war, its alleged necessity, and the arguments in its favor are emphatic, stern and contemptuous."

Gaell, Rene. Priests in the firing line.

"'The Priest under Fire' is certainly one of the most moving documents given us by the war. In these pages we are brought face to face with the soul of the priest and the soldier; there is no straining after effect; it is plain unvarnished tale, at once too living to need exaggeration or be patient of dissection; and one closes the book with the conviction that the priests of France in this day of their fiery trial are splendid, indeed."

Hall, James K. Kitchener's mob.

"The title 'Kitchener's mob,' which was applied to the early thousands of the new armies and has stuck to them now that they are counted by millions, is by no means a sobriquet of contempt; it is the name the men chose for themselves, and the fact that they did so is perhaps as good an answer as could be found to the fear that England herself may be subdued to the militaristic spirit which she is fighting. * * * Some things in the book are particularly well done, notably the very interesting and detailed description of the trench-system. It is worth remarking, too, that Mr. Hall has little but praise for the organization that created the new armies."

Hay, Ian. First hundred thousand.

"Of 'The First hundred thousand' praise is now superfluous. It is a complete record of a miracle, the process by which a heterogeneous mob was turned within a year in a force worthy and able to maintain the traditions of a great regiment. Mr. Ian Hay is a resolute humorist, and those who have not yet made the acquaintance of Private Mucklewame and Capt. Wagstaffe, should do so with all possible speed."

Herrick, Robert. World decision.

"Readers will agree as to the literary merit of Mr. Herrick's war-book, his facility of expression, and his command of forceful English, but only sympathizers with the Allied cause, with complete indifference to the 'other side' could rest absolutely content with his verdicts on events of the last two years. If Mr. Herrick knew Germany and the Germans as well as he does the French from actual experiences, instead of hearsay, he might not designate them as he does."

J'accuse! by a German.

"The author is not always fair to Germany. It is inevitable that he should lean backwards. But the book is essentially polemical. It is written by a man who feels deeply and who sees one side of a question at a time and sees that side clearly. The sheer impact of the argument against Germany reveals the author as one skilful in the lawyer-like piling up of evidence."

Johnson, Owen M. Spirit of France.

"He shows us a France, not revived or reborn, but the essential France that she always has been. Her vices for a time have been obscured by her virtues; her virtues, no greater than ever, now obscure her vices. Although Mr. Johnson's is one of many books on the war, it is one with a difference. It is a disclosure of 'The spirit of France,' and it could not be better named. France has been sadly misunderstood in the past; she is coming throught the war into her own."

Kipling, Rudyard. France at war.

"Rudyard Kipling's book on the war takes the form of a tribute to a gallant ally. A poem, 'France,' written in 1913, prefaces the book, and the chapters are made up of little instances that show French loyalty, French courage, and the invincible spirit of France."

Kipling, Rudyard. Fringes of the fleet.

"A companion volume to 'France at war.' Mr. Kipling paints his vivid picture of England's great Auxiliary Fleet—the submarines and destroyers, the trawlers and mine sweepers and patrols that guard her coast. Included are six new poems by Mr. Kipling, written especially for this book."

Reinhart, Mary R. Kings, queens and pawns.

"Talking to King Albert—in the the trenches under fire—in Dunkirk, when aeroplanes rained death from the night sky—riding through battle-districts at ninety miles an hour—working with the women of the Red Cross, Mrs. Rinehart has seen the most dramatic sides of the Great War, and chronicled it with all the vivid humanness which has made her stories famous."

Schmitt, B. E. England and Germany, 1740-1914.

"An intelligent and impartial discussion of the relations of England and Germany on the eve of the great war and of the historic events and influences in which these relations were rooted, and of which they were a product. A work which is a credit to American scholarship and to that of his English alma mater."

Ward, Mrs. Humphry. England's effort.

"The Hon. Joseph E. Choate in his preface to the book says, 'All America is vastly indebted to Mrs. Ward for her triumphant success in proving that England has done her best.'"

Wells, H. G. What is coming?

"Of widest interest and consequence are Mr. Wells's study and discussion of those present international tendencies, nascent needs and movements toward friendship out of which will have to grow, whose probable growth, indeed, he forecasts, some sort of leaguing together of the nations looking toward a greater measure of peace than the world has heretofore enjoyed."

Williams, Wythe. Passed by the censor.

"He has seen much of the war at the front, and he has had many unique experiences. The account he writes is one that those can read who want to know some of the facts of the conflict without being made to shudder over its grizzly horrors. For the side that has appealed most to Mr. Williams is not the infernos of battle or its aftermath, but the spiritual side that finds expression in the heroism, the faith, the determination, the courage of the French people."

MISS KELLERMANN TEACHES UNDERARM SIDE STROKE

But First She Explains to The Plainfield Daily Press Class The Very Essential Leg Movements.

Article No. 17.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

Before teaching you the movements of the arms in the single under-arm or side-stroke, I want you to become acquainted with the leg movement. Now that we are taking up the other strokes I want you to use the same care and patience you did learning the breast stroke. As I am teaching you to swim gracefully I want to feel certain that your progress is doubly certain as to correct movement.

The single under-arm stroke is very pretty and when you have mastered it I will teach you the single over-arm stroke, which in a way is the most graceful of all strokes a swimmer can use.

As the leg movement of these strokes is so all important and in a way the success of this will enable you to become a good swimmer, I will start at once with the leg movement.

A small bench about two feet long or a like article to rest on must first be secured. Place a cushion so that it will provide a soft resting place for you as you lie on the bench.

Now lie down on the bench, leaning a little on your right side. Do not under any circumstances lie on the left side.

Don't forget this.

Now place both hands behind you so that they rest on the small of your back. Interlock them, and rest them right at the base of the spinal column.

Keep your legs straight out and together.

Now bring them up, the left leg on top, and together, the ball of the left heel resting in a position a fraction of an inch behind the heel of the right foot.

Draw up the legs. Keep the knees together. Up as far as you can draw them, then kick out quickly. This action is like the blades of scissors. Then bring the legs together again quickly. Place the feet in the same position from which you started them. Be sure of this. Your left leg must kick out while the right leg kicks back. Do this just as I have said.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN, GREATEST WOMAN SWIMMER AND STAR OF WILLIAM FOX $1,000,000 PICTURE

Monday — The Single Underarm or Side-stroke Movement. Second installment of this lesson. Today's lesson taught you the proper use of your legs. Monday you will learn how to use your arms.

Her Grandmother Told Her All Sorts of Stories.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Some Mermaid Princesses Spent Their Time

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

FOR the bedtime story daddy told the children about what the little mermaid princesses did in their sea palace:

"Outside the merman king's palace was a large garden with fiery red and deep blue trees growing in it. The fruit on them shone like gold, while the flowers glowed like fire on their stalks that never kept still. The sea bottom was of the finest sand, but it was tinted a blue that shone like light. So everything there was bathed in this wonderful blue light. You children can best fancy it by imagining yourselves high, very high, up in the air, with blue sky above and below you. When there was dead calm in the sea the little mermaid princesses could just see a glimpse of the sun like a big purple flower, with a stream of light for a stem.

"Of course each mermaid princess had her own little garden plot where she could dig and plant what she liked. One made her flower bed in the shape of a whale. Her sister thought it nicer to have a garden the shape of a merman. But the youngest princess made hers quite round like the sun, and she would have only flowers of a rosy hue, like sunbeams.

"This little princess was a wonderful child. She was quiet and thoughtful. All the others decked out their gardens with all kinds of extraordinary objects that they got from wrecks. But she would have nothing but rosy flowers like the sun above and the statue of a beautiful boy.

"This image was hewn out of the purest white marble and had gone to the bottom of the sea in some wreck. Beside the statue the little mermaid planted a rosy red weeping willow tree, which grew splendidly. Fresh, delicate branches hung over it till they almost touched the blue sand. The waves moved them gently to and fro, and, since blue and red together make a new color, their shadows were always violet. It always looked as if the leaves and the roots were playfully kissing each other.

"Nothing gave this little mermaid such pleasure as to hear about the world of human beings up above the sea. She used to sit by her grandmother's knees, just as you children sit by daddy's, and make her tell all sorts of stories—all she knew—about ships and towns and people and animals.

"But above all it seemed strange to her that earth flowers are scented. Sea flowers are not, you know. Also it seemed strange that the woods are green and that the fish which were to be seen among the branches could sing so loudly and sweetly that it was a delight to listen to them," daddy ended.

Marrying a Butterfly

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel Recounts to Ralph the Story of Her Regeneration.

"Now, tell me all about it." Ralph sat in his big easy chair with his wife on his knee. He had wiped the supper dishes for her, because he could not bear to have her out of his sight.

"When I left home I was very angry at you and decided that I would go out to Mrs. Tellson's and board for a while, until I had time to think what I should do to punish you." She leaned over and touched her lips to Ralph's forehead. He folded her so close in his arms that both forgot the history of the month of separation. Finally she began again.

"As I was saying when you interrupted me," she smiled so alluringly that there was danger of another interruption, "Mrs. Tellson consented to board me, and I spent my time wandering about the fields or riding when the weather was good. But I was beginning to feel very restless when one day I went over to Mrs. Morton's—Nell's mother-in-law, you know." Ralph nodded. "It seems she had heard about me from Nell." The red began to creep up in the pretty face. "She is a woman who is always trying to wake people up to their opportunities; to the best that is in them, and I surely was sound asleep. Rip Van Winkle had nothing on me." Her laugh was good to hear. "I had gone in to her cheery living room to visit with her because I had nothing to do with myself, and she exploded such a bomb under me that I left in a towering rage in five minutes."

"What did she say to you?" asked Ralph, smiling up into the happy face.

"Oh, she said I was selfish; that I thought of nothing but my own comfort. She said I was a doll; that I had never thought in my life or I could not live the useless life I was living. I went off in high dudgeon and she called after me: 'Think of the truths I have told you; they will change your life.' That sentence stuck like a burr. I could not get it out of my head for days and finally I decided to go over to that truth-telling woman and ask her what she thought I ought to do."

"That was courageous. I can hardly see how you did that. You did not like to be found fault with," said Ralph, patting Ethel's shoulder.

"I had begun to fear you were right; that I had failed you, and I did love you, dear. I did not want to fail you." Ralph took the delicate face between his hands as tenderly as if it had been made of rare porcelain. He drew the face to his, saying:

"It was my fault. I did not know how to help you see your mistaken point of view. Go on."

"When I talked to her she went to work as if she was grubbing up some weeds. I tell you she made me look facts in the face." Ethel looked very sober.

"Finally she offered to help me learn to do the things that I needed to know. I went over there day after day. First we did things together; then I did them alone under her inspection."

"Cooking, you mean?" interrupted Ralph.

"Everything. All kinds of housework. I worked right along with her as if I had been her daughter, only no daughter of hers would ever have been so ignorant as I was of everything I ought to know."

"Did you not get very tired?" asked Ralph. "You were not used to working."

"Yes, at first, but she made so little of being tired that I could not stop, and after a week or two I got used to it."

"Your muscles were getting hardened." Ralph pinched her arm. "Your muscles are more solid, all right," he announced proudly.

"Finally she left me alone one day to get dinner. I burned the chicken and burned my hand and she came and found me dissolved in tears over my failure. She laid her hands on my shoulders and said, 'I did not expect you to make no mistakes, but I did expect you to be a woman.' Later, when we were talking it over she said, 'The greatest thing I can wish for you is to be able to face life as you find it, and not whine or flinch. Do your best; make every one around you as comfortable as you can and never add to other people's troubles by airing your own.' Oh, she is a wonderful woman."

"Perhaps meeting her will make the difference between success and failure in our lives." Ralph drew the curly head down to his shoulder.

ONE-PIECED SERGE FROCKS FOR EARLY FALL.

Braiding, Embroidery and Silk Stitching Extensively Used for Trimming.

By Mary Glynn.

It is safe to predict that the fall season will be a long one, and that Indian summer will make it essential that Madame and Mademoiselle include in their full wardrobe one or two afternoon frocks of dark materials. The serge gown invariably holds the popular place in this type of garment and undoubtedly the satin meteor gown will prove its only rival. There is a great possibility, too, that mohair will be introduced, for there are very many attractive shades of this fabric obtainable. For trimming, buttons will be generally introduced, either in abundant numbers alone, or in combination with embroidery, silk stitching, or braiding. One of the very newest serge gowns is illustrated. Navy blue is the color. To the casual observer it would appear at first to be a coat dress, for the skirt is made in tunic effect which affords just a narrow panel view of the drop skirt. The hem is bordered about six inches with green, rose, and yellow wool embroidery and fringe, and to all appearances looks much like carpet. Two roomy pockets are also bordered with this embroidery. The bodice is an attractive and simple affair, maintaining its coat-like lines because of its loose-fittedness. It fastens to one side with a huge round enamel buckle. The satin reveres are especially interesting. Again the wool embroidery is featured on the collar, this carrying the note of trimming throughout the garment. A draped turban and smart button boots complete the outfit.

SWEDEN TO HONOR A FAMOUS SINGER

Stockholm, Aug. 19.—A little more than a quarter of a century ago, or, to be exact, thirty-one years ago, Christine Nilsson, one of the world's greatest lyrical and dramatic artists, at the zenith of her fame, with the musical world at her feet, retired from the stage and returned to private life. When the operatic managers evidenced the desire to use her and her voice and dramatic power as so much merchandise to institute a series of farewell performances stretching over a number of years, then the great singer withdrew. Her art was more to her than mere wealth.

This happened only thirty-one years ago, and yet, to the great mass of her former American friends and admirers, she is probably only a memory and her present situation unknown.

But in Sweden, the land of her birth and the country which she has always called home, the Countess de Miranda, as the famous singer is known in private life, is still idolized by the people. Tomorrow, on the beginning of her seventy-fifth year, the love and esteem in which the singer is held by all classes of the people will be given expression in a national tribute, the like of which has seldom been witnessed in this or any other land. For an entire week the opera houses and theatres in Stockholm and other cities will be given over to Nilsson testimonial performances. In addition, there is to be a great public reception, at which the singer will be greeted by all classes, from prince to peasant.

At this reception the former prima donna will be presented with a medal especially designed in honor of the occasion. The observe side of the medal, which was designed by Eric Lindberg, bears the bust of Christine Nilsson at the height of her fame, and on the reverse side appears an allegorical composition with appropriate inscription. The cost of the medal was defrayed by public subscription. Among the contributors to the fund were the King and Queen, the Crown Prince and other members of the royal family of Sweden. The names of several prominent Americans also appear among the subscribers.

Christine Nilsson was born in the hamlet of Hussaby, on the southern confines of the Swedish peninsula. She was the eighth child of Nilsson, a worthy peasant, who lived by husbandry, and maintained, with the aid of his numerous family, a farm, belonging to Count Hamilton. The cot occupied by the seven brothers and sisters was lowly. In her earliest childhood Christine was not distinguished among her sisters. With them she was sent to a country school to learn, at the expense of the commonwealth, reading and writing. Her father, who was an impassioned admirer of music and the leading singer in his church, taught her the first scale of the musical notes. As she grew in form as well as in beauty she had to perform a share of the household labors and sometimes to work in the fields. But Christine, when alone at home, seized upon the instrument of her brother Carl, the village fiddler, and repeated by ear the national airs she had heard him play. The neighbors were loud in their approval of the child's voice, which they deemed wonderful in one so young. Carl then conceived the scheme of increasing his slender gains in taking his sister to the fairs and weddings, at which his services were needed. The realization of the idea was most excellent. The tiny girl attracted the crowd and held it spellbound.

At one of the fairs the little singer attracted the attention and admiration of a noted magistrate of the district. He offered to take the little child into his own family and attend to her musical education. Thus was Christine started on the road to fame and fortune. She first studied under Berwald, and later in Paris was tutored by Victor J. Nasse and Wartel. Her operatic debut was made in Stockholm in 1860. When she first appeared in London, seven years later, she scored a great success, especially in "Faust." Then came a triumphal tour of the European capitals. In 1870 she made her first American appearance in New York and repeated the success which she had already won on this side of the Atlantic.

The famous singer was twice married. Her first husband was a Frenchman, Auguste Rouzaud, who died in 1882. In 1887 she took for her second husband Count de Miranda, and with her wedding retired permanently from the operatic stage. Count de Miranda died in France in 1902.

COL. COLGATE GETS WARM RECEPTION IN RAHWAY

Rahway, Aug. 19.—An enthusiastic greeting was extended to Col. Austen Colgate, Republican candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, at Rahway last evening at the Republican Club. The house was crowded to the doors and several times Col. Colgate was given prolonged applause as he explained his record in legislation.

He spoke of his connection with the Auto-reciprocity bill, which was introduced by him and through his efforts became a law. This bill is one of the most important passed in recent years. The Pure Food laws were also given attention, also the Workmen's Compensation law, which Col. Colgate materially aided, were considered.

Following Col. Colgate, Arthur E. Warner, of Elizabeth, spoke. He paid a tribute to the humanitarian educational activites of the Colonel.

Raking 'Em Over

By "JINKS"

THE TOP RUNG.

The announcement that Jack Martin has been elevated to the leadership of the Milwaukee baseball team of the American Association is a welcome one and indicates that Jack's career in the baseball world is just starting. To many it would seem that Jack has reached the top rung and all that remains is the process of descending. Pessimists of this nature thought in about the same terms a few years ago when Jack was returned to the minor leagues. But, in our opinion, the top rung has not yet been reached. While the management of a first-class minor league team is a promotion, we believe that Jack is due to go higher. There is every reason in the world why he should do this. The Milwaukee team is by no means a finished aggregation and cannot be expected to shine. With Harry Clark, a very capable man, at the helm, the Brewers were in a sad plight and the resignation of Clark was brought about through the hopeless condition of the club. While Jack has not "inherited" a club that is going to do him "proud" by winning even a majority of its remaining games, still he has a band of willing workers. Not a few of these fellows are promising recruits, who will develop into "finds" in a short time. Perhaps Martin's first move as manager was the recalling of "Stub" Stutz, his old shortstop rival. All of which goes to show that Jack knows a good man when he sees him. Stutz had been released by Clark because it was realized that in Jack Martin the team had a far superior shortstop. But Martin's move in recalling the "stubby" lad may be taken to indicate that Jack is going to do a little managing from the bench. However, it will be hard work keeping the Brewers from climbing higher than they are at the present time. In a double bill recently exhibited to the fans of Milwaukee, Martin pitted Ray Comstock against Middleton, the pitcher who is now the property of the Giants. And the Brewers won. The Milwaukee papers were all in favor of the Martin tactics and commented favorably on the "pep" displayed by the boys. The team is now known as the "Martinized Milwaukee" club. Success, Jack, old boy, success.

IF THE ROYALS WIN.

If the Royals defeat the Dunellen baseball tossers [illegible] gone it is practically certain that the proposed double bill between the Royals and Netherwoods will be the bigest thing of its kind ever pulled off in this vicinity. The Royals have demonstrated at the expense of the Tabs that they are entitled to consideration as City League opposition. The team surely is just as capable as any of the league outfits, but outside talent has braced it up considerably. If the Simmons lads secure too much outside assistance, there are few of us who are going to give them much credit if they defeat the Netherwood team. On the other hand, if they trim the Netherwood clan they are entitled to and will get all the praise that is justly due them. Therefore, it can be plainly seen that it is going to pay the Royals to "stick" to home talent. No one wants to see a team of outsiders trim the East End clan. Personaly, we doubt if they could do the trick. What the fans of this city want to see is a lively battle between two "local" teams. The accent is on the "local."

SPRUCING THINGS UP.

Word comes from New Brunswick that Rutgers' foot[illegible] practice will start there September 1 and that between now and then there will be some strenuous licks put in repairing Neilson field. A new field house is to be built and the gridiron itself completely overhauled, which includes a complete sodding. This will be good news to the veterans of last year. The announcement that the old combination of cinders, red mud, gravel and sand is to go should make every player feel as frisky as a young lamb. No more flying tackles ending in the unearthing of cinders with the left eyebrow or the nose. Soft, springy sod to make football play almost like repose on a bed of roses. With George Foster Sanford again at the helm and all this new equipment, what more can be asked? Sandy will now doubtless look up a few new adjectives to hurl at his line men and backs under these new conditions. It's easy to see where the boys are in for a lot of extra prancing over the chalk marks.

POLO SERIES ENDS.

Tour[illegible]ent play in the Narragansett polo series ende[illegible]sterday, after a prolonged series of contests which have presented much better polo than was predicted at the start of the season. The war in Europe, and hence the elimination of international contests, was expected to cut down interest in the game here and the movement of troops to the border was to be a further handicap. It was pointed out that not only many players would go with the regiments, but that ponies would be scarce and teams from the regular army absent. The army teams were not there, but otherwise the tournament went along in fine shape. Many of the old stars of the international matches were on hand, such as Devereux Milburn, J. S. Waterbury and H. S. von Stade, and played quite up to their form of former seasons. Matches were close, with spectacular play a-plenty. Some young players appeared for the first time who will doubtless be in line for national and international matches later on.—Newark News.

MAX MARSTON LOSES TO B. B. SHELDON

Maxwell R. Marston, of Baltusrol, went down to defeat by a margin of 3 and 1 to play at the hands of B. B. Sheldon, of Dorset Field Club, yesterday morning in the second round of match play in the first division of the annual invitation tournament of the Dorset club. While Mr. Marston was not playing his short game well, he was not entirely responsible for the result, as his opponent completed the last nine holes in thirty-three strokes.

Mr. Sheldon continued his strong game in the afternoon and disposed of J. C. Stout, of Dorset Field Club, and will appear in the thirty-six hole final today against De Witt W. Balch, of Cincinnati.

WHY NOT HERE, TOO?

Isn't it about time for something to be doing in the Bowling League line? George Ortleb, manager of the Playhouse alleys, in Westfield, is having them put in first-class shape. It is hoped that there will be both a Sunday School League and a Fraternity League this year and that those who have had them in charge for the past year will soon get busy and set the ball a rolling.

The Queen City baseball team will play the Somerville Tigers at Somerville tomorrow. All members of the local team are requested to take the 1:15 p. m. trolley. Meet at the postoffice.

ICHIYA KUMAGAE AND LINDLAY MURRAY MAY BE ASKED TO PLAY ON LOCAL COURT

One Californian won and the other lost in the semi-finals in the Casino invitation lawn tennis tournament yesterday. W. M. Johnston, the national champion, defeated Harold A. Throckmorton, the Elizabeth schoolboy, in a four set match which abounded in brilliant play. C. J. Griffin, Johnston's partner in the national doubles championship, lost to I. Kumagae, the Japanese player, who is pictured above and who may play here on Labor Day, in a five set match in which the latter after the score was two sets to one against him ran off two sets in quick succession, allowing Griffin only one game in each. So badly was Griffin beaten that Kumagae scored the last game at love, on a place and a net, an out and a double fault by Griffin.

The other picture is that of R. Lindlay Murray, the Californian, who is well-known locally.

JACK ZEREGA REACHES SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Defeats Tsing Lee, Chinese Student, In Columbia Competition.

The tennis world was startled yesterday when reports to the effect that Tsing M. C. Lee, a student at the summer session in Colmbia was fast becoming a menace to the ability of many American racquet wielders, were circulated. But, it remained for Jack Zerega, formerly a student at Plainfield High School and still a resident of this city, to put at least a temporary end to the excitement.

Jack eliminated the Chinese student in the semi-final round yeesterday after four sets of the pluckiest sort of tennis. He had a little difficulty with the Monoglian, but returned the following scores: 9—7, 8—6, 6—0. The local tennis star reached the finals by virtue of a default from W. B. Knapp and victories over W. J. Miller and Tsing Lee. Zerega will face L. W. Knox, who played on the Columbia Varsity team, this afternoon.

KEEPING STRICT WATCH ON MANAGER MARTIN

Milwaukee's Martinized Brewers put a nick in Bill Clymer's pennant hopes on Wednesday by dividing a twin bill with the chesty Colonels on a fifty-fifty basis. The erstwhile Clarkmen played like fiends under their new leader and but for a break in luck they would have crushed the enemy with a twin defeat. As it was, the copped the opening tiff by a count of 3 to 1, and lost the second 6 to 3, as a result of a bad mixup in the final round, when the score stood at three all.

Pitcher Scheredell, a left hander, was purchased on Wednesday from the Hanover, Pa., club, of the Blue Ridge League, by the Brewers. Scheredell has been twirling great ball in the mountain organization and was purchased on the recommendation of Billy Doyle, the Brewer scout. He will report to Manager Martin August 21.

Rev. R. Y. Pierce will have charge of the union service at the First Baptist church tomorrow evening.

At the Netherwood Reformed church, Rev. Edward S. Ralston will preach at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m.

Miss Naomi Wisch, of the borough, is enjoying a vacation at Patchogue, L. I.

ROYALS AND TABS TO MEET AGAIN

The Lineup the Royals Use Today Will Probably Be Presented Tomorrow.

On Avon Oval tomorrow afternoon the Royal Giants and the Tabs will get together for the second time this season. The first match between the two teams resulted in a victory for the Royals, the score of the game being 7 to 2. However, it is not expected that Manager Jim Scott will allow the Giants to repeat. On the other hand, Managers Pete Simmons and William Kline are optimistic, as usual.

According to the information we have at hand, "Senor" Maiden is not going to do the pitching for the Royals. He, so the story runs, is not even going to play. Still, this may be but a rumor. It is highly probable that the Royals will present a capable flinger. The Tab rooters will do well to carefully survey the lineup that Pete Simmons presents against Dunellen this afternoon. The same team, with one or two exceptions, will face the Tabs tomorrow.

In the box, Jim Scott will use McFadden, with Teeling behind the bat. The demon slugger of the Netherwoods, Eddie Coughlan, will play third for the Abstainers. Benny Rosenson will be seen at shortfield.

TENNIS TOURNEY.

On Monday night, August 21, a men's double tennis tournament will begin on the courts of the Westfield Golf Club. The tournament will be confined to local tennis players or any member of the Westfield Tennis Club. The entrance fee will be $1 per team, players to use their own tennis balls and to pay for the lighting of the courts while they are playing.

PRESS AMATEUR DEPARTMENT

Jack Martin's mail will begin to assume large proportions very shortly. Now that Jack is manager of a "sure-enough" ball team, the ambitious players of this city and vicinity will be anxiously begging for a "try-out." It would not be surprising to see Jack take a bunch of them out to Parker Field with a view of looking over the band. There are prospects here, too.

The gentleman who is hurling for the Royals this afternoon says that his name is "Green"—or rather, Pete Simmons says so. Perhaps the assertion is correct. But, to our knowledge, there is no really good colored pitcher of that name in this vicinity. And "Green" is supposed to be a star.

That Martin boy certainly looks well. The picture in last night's "Sport Topics" was true to nature, according to Jack's friends.

Isn't it about time that Britt Martin put in a bid for the right to manage one of the more important baseball teams around these parts?

Sidney Butler will again be seen at short for the Royals tomorrow. Sidney has been requested to pitch in Somerville, but as he is a regular member of the Royal Giant squad, it is only right, in his opinion, that he appear for business on Avon Oval.

Applicants for the umpiring position tomorrow will please apply to Britt Martin, who is taking care of that little detail. Mr. Martin will reply in a courteous manner.

"Pontine Hats"—whatever they are—have been designated by our trapshooting authority as "grand" prizes. Inasmuch as we do not know what "Pontine Hats" are, we cannot comment on that word "grand."

Eddie Coughlan is still preparing to bombard "Senor" Maiden. It may be a sad day for "Senor" if Edward really does get busy. Maiden has been sailing along unmolested for several games, but he has never encountered a slugger like Eddie Coughlan. Wonder what will happen when the two meet.

Extra trolley cars will be run to the baseball grounds tomorrow afternoon. Accommodations for all have been arranged. So prepare to go, Mr. Fan.

We no longer hear of that Parker Field League. Perhaps the Board of Health has ordered operations suspended. We will investigate the matter.

Russ Stewart came in for plenty of praise in that letter we published the other evening. And Russ is entitled to every bit of commendation that was showered upon him. Other fans are urged to write their opinions and submit them to us for publication. Remember, Mr. Fan, your opinion is valuable.

Something is radically wrong in the Giant camp, says a headline. And we might add, "something is radically wrong with the Farmers."

WESTFIELD TO HAVE WOMEN'S OPEN TOURNEY

The tennis committtee of the Westfield Golf Club has arranged for an open tournament in ladies' doubles to begin on Wednesday, August 23. Play will start at 10 o'clock in the morning and continue each day until the semi-finals are reached. The semi-finals will be played on the night courts beginning at eight o'clock on Friday evening.

The entries will close on Tuesday, August 22. All entries should be sent to Mrs. S. W. McAnneny, Fanwood, N. J., telephone 1467-M. The entrance fee will be $2 per team. An informal dance will follow the finals. All the matches are to be the best two out of three sets. There will be a first and second runner-up prize.

The tournament committee is composed of Mrs. S. W. McAnneny, chairman; Miss Hazel Gardner, Miss Helen McAlusan and Mrs. A. G. Deane.

"Stirring news" today—war news, local news, store news.

The spot-light of full publicity, turned on a store, reveals and places in that full light a store's defects—if it have defects. For example: If high prices prevail, or lines of goods are not kept up to date, the reader of the store advertisements knows it. It follows that advertising "pays" the store that renders real service—and would not pay the other kind of a store.

INSTRUCTION CHANGED

Officers of Higher Rank Sent to Take Charge—Many Motor Trucks Being Collected As If For Dash Into Mexico.

(By H. H. Kroh.)

Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 21.—Within a very few days—possibly by next Monday—a new course of instruction for the New Jersey National Guardsmen will be gotten under way, with a view of giving them the most comprehensive instruction possible in a short time. In ordering the new course of work it is very plain to be seen that the military authorities are doing it with a view to bringing about a condition of efficiency in the organizations much earlier than had formerly been planned, and the fact that it will require a much greater application of time and study, to say nothing of hard work, goes without saying.

It is a significant fact that many of the officers of the regular army who were detailed here for work as inspector-instructors have been sent back to their regiments and replaced by men of high rank in the army. The new instructors with very few exceptions are men of wide military knowledge and experience, and have undoubtedly been picked with the idea of pushing the instruction work as rapidly and as proficiently as possible.

To the average officer there is the greatest significance to be attached to the new order of things. It is generally believed that the department realizes the necessity of getting these men here equipped and trained for active duty at the first possible moment, and have sacrificed the association of those men with the regular army in order to whip the guard units into shape. The change from the schedule which was formerly adopted to cover a period up to the last of October fell like a thunder bolt in the ranks of all the organizations. The previously adopted outline of work was getting nicely started when the order from the Arizona district broke into it and upset things in general.

Under the new plan the men are to be thrown into battalion, regimental and provisional brigade work much earlier than was provided for in the originally prepared series of company, battalion, regimental and brigade drills. All branches of the service have been affected by the new order, and the officers who have been appointed to the instruction work with the New Jersey troops, together with a few other men of high standing in the Arizona district, have been formed into a council which has upon its shoulders the work of evolving a schedule of work that will cover every branch of the drilling and training, and do it with a minimum of time consumption.

To the eye of one who has an opportunity to take in the many phases of the work that is going on generally in the Arizona district there is but one conclusion. The War Department is preparing for something. What that unknown factor is is a mystery hereabouts. Regular army heads know as little about it as a private. But each and every one is doing his part under orders from higher up, and all of their efforts, although they lead in a thousand different directions and deal with as many varied details, have but the one aim in view—the institution of an efficient fighting organization within the shortest possible time and the care of the men when they have reached that stage.

There is one lesson that it does teach us, and that is that the term of duty down here is daily assuming greater proportions. Every indication points to a long drawn out service. Two weeks ago, when it was learned that a motor truck company was being established here, it was taken as an indication of a long stay. If the troops are not going to be here why is the big motor truck company being formed? That is the question that was asked on every hand. But that question has been discarded now and in its stead is head:

"Why are the three motor truck companies being formed?" for that is what is going on now within little more than a stone's throw of the headquarters of the New Jersey brigade. Three machine companies, each with thirty-three big five-ton motor trucks. To speak of ninety-nine huge trucks does not bring the gigantic proportions of the proposition to the mind, but to see the thirty-three of them that are already strung out and speculate as to the appearance of the outfit when that number is trebled drives home a great lesson in military preparedness.

But it is in time of a possible intervention when these great machines would serve their purpose best; when thousands of men pressing forward into the interior of Mexico must be fed and watered and supplied. The unfailing supply of an army in a barren land is a serious problem. There must be no intercession with the steady influx of food and water and the other necessities. Ammunition must be moved regularly and steadily. Great stores of rations must

WESTCOTT TO COME HERE SEPTEMBER 6

W. L. Saunders Said to Be In Charge of Campaign Against Martine.

Wednesday, September 6, is the date set for the appearance of Attorey General Westcott in Plainfield on his campaign tour for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. This announcement was sent out from Westcott headquarters in Trenton last week.

From the same source comes the statement that the Hon. W. L. Saunders, of Plainfield, is at the head of the Westcott campaign in this State. Mr. Saunders publicly declared his opposition to Senator James E. Martine some time ago, and made a statement in which he said he would support Senator Frelinhuysen, but that was before General Westcott became a candidate.

The activity of Mr. Saunders in the Westcott fight lends credence to the report that President Wilson is personally active in the fight against Senator Martine. Mr. Saunders is one of the Wilson campaign managers, having but recently been named a member of the National Democratic campaign committee, selected by the President.

The busy little Westcott press agent, who is also a Plainfielder, says that "so pronounced is the sentiment against Martine in his home town that Westcott boomers have found it necessary to engage the largest hall in Plainfield," but the name of the hail is not given.

It has been hinted here that Senator Martine would challenge General Westcott to a joint debate on the issues of the campaign upon the announcement of the Westcott date here, but no word has been heard from the Senator, who is busy at his duties in Washington.

POLISH WEDDING CAUSES FIGHT IN WEST END

Andrew Danyo, John Coto, Andrew Conesky and John Conesky, all Slavs, of the West End, were arraigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza in police court this morning, charged with disorderly conduct, drunkenness and resisting an officer Saturday night. Danyo was fined $20, Coto $20, Andrew Conesky $8 and John Conesky $5.

The four men had been to a Polish wedding on Liberty street, and became intoxicated. When the men became disorderly Patrolmen Dunlap and Kelley arrested them, but before they reached the police station a general fight ensued. They all paid their fines.

POLICE RAID ALLEGED WEST END "SPEAKEASY"

Irving Adelstein was held over under a bond of $100 for one week when he was arraigned before City Judge William G. DeMeza this morning, charged with selling liquor without a license. Adelstein, who is a clerk at the Red Cross drug store, in the West End, owned by Sameul Reuben, was caught in a raid made there yesterday by Chief Kiely and was brought down to headquarters.

The police had been suspicious that a "speakeasy" was in operation for some time, and after proof had been obtained the raid was made. The youth pleaded not guilty this morning and the postponement was made at the request of his attorney.

TRINITY COMMANDERY WILL CONDUCT SERVICE

Archibald Cole, who died at his home on Church Street Saturday, was a member of Trinity Commandery No. 17, K. T., and R. F. R. Huntsman, eminent commander, has issued an order for members to be present at the commandery rooms tonight at 7:30 o'clock, in full Templar uniform, to attend Templar services, to be performed at 8 o'clock at the late residence of Mr. Cole.

NEW MOTOR COMPANY.

Another addition will be made to West Front street's "automobile row" on September 1, when the newly incorporated M. & L. Motor Company opens up. The headquarters will be at 322 West Front street and the firm will be distributors for the Maxwell and agents for the Moon car. The store is being remodeled for occupancy and demonstrating cars have already arrived.

LEVY—WESTREICH.

Friends in Plainfield have received invitations to the wedding of Miss Miriam Westreich, of Brooklyn, and Jacob Simon Levy, which will be held at the home of the bride's parents in Brooklyn, Saturday, August 20. Mr. Levy is a well known salesman who visits here frequently.

BABY CARRIAGE STOLEN.

Bell Biolowski, of 423 West Third street, reported to the police yesterday that sometime Saturday night a baby carriage worth $20 was stolen from his porch. The police are working on the case.

MAYOR "BILL" TO LET PEOPLE RULE

May Resign In Order to Test No-Liciense Sentiment In Borough.

HAS A NERVY PLAN

If Plainfield Decides Question of No Saloons at Coming Election He Will Run Again and Give Borough Voters Same Privilege.

If the voters of Plainfield decide the question of saloons or no saloons at the coming election North Plainfield will decide, too.

There will be no dry Plainfield and wet North Plainfield, unless the people of the two municipalities deliberately elect that different conditions shall prevail after calm study of the question of prohibition.

Mayor William I. Smalley, of the borough, has a plan. It can be best expressed in his own words:

"If the no license people in Plainfield do put the question of saloons or no saloons squarely up to the people by having candidates for Mayor and Councilmen on that platform in the coming election, and votes cast then are to decide whether or not Plainfield goes dry, I will resign as Mayor of North Plainfield and run again on a platform that will give the voters in the borough an opportunity of expressing their sentiment on the subject.

"My reason for doing this is that I believe the people of North Plainfield, by a large majority, favor no license. Should Plainfield go dry it would be necessary to increase the police force of North Plainfield and to raise the Recorder's salary. Conditions would be unbearable there because of the element that would come over after booze. If Plainfield goes dry and we should go before the court and ask for no license I doubt whether or not we would get it, for the reason that the judge would have no expression of sentiment from the borough voters. But if I should resign and be re-elected on a no license platform the court would be able to know the wishes of the voters of North Plainfield.

"If I do not resign and run again on a no license platform I hope that the adherents and believers in license will put up the strongest man they can find against me. No matter what his position or his name, I want him to be so big personally that it will be a real test of sentiment on the question of license.

"If a majority of voters want no license they ought to have it. If they do not, they ought not to be burdened with it. I don't believe there should be any straddling on the liquor question. It should be put squarely before the taxpayers and citizens, who are the ones to decide, and every man who runs for office should stand either for or against license."

AUTOS IN COLLISION ON WEST FRONT STREET

After all the testimony had been heard in the case against Mrs. Marion Smith, of Greenbrook road, and William Neill, of Emerson avenue, charging them with reckless driving, Judge William G. DeMeza dismissed the complaint against them when they were arraigned in Police Court this morning. Two automobiles driven by Mrs. Smith and Neill collided at Front Street and Farragut Avenue Saturday night, and because of conflicting testimony it could not be determined which party was at fault.

When the accident occurred Mrs. Smith was driving her car west on Front street as Neill turned into Front street from Farragut avenue. The two machines came together, and because the steering rod was broke the Smith car crashed into a pole, badly damaging it. As the case now stands it is one for the civil court, and it will probably be taken there.

VICTIMS OF AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT TREATED HERE

Two men who did not give their names stopped at Muhlenberg Hospital last night for medical treatment. They were picked up by a passing automobilist on the road between Metuchen and South Plainfield and said that they had been in an auto accident. Their injuries consisted of lacerations, cuts and bruises about the body, and after treatment they left he hospital. Inquiry today failed to bring to light any auto accident that had occurred anywhere in the vicinity in which they were found.

LOCAL OPTION MEETING.

A local option meeting will be held at the town hall in Watchung this coming Wednesday at 8 p. m. All are welcome.

F. S. CUTTER WILL BE A CANDIDATE

His Friends Urging His Endorsement For Councilmanic Honors.

Frederick S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue, is being prominently mentioned for councilmanic honors on the Republican ticket from the First ward, and it is understood that his friends will urge his endorsement at the next meeting of the Republican Club, backed by a strong petition of the voters of that ward. It is said that it is quite certain that Mr. Cutter will stand for the nomination if it is offered to him.

Mr. Cutter's candidacy has been prompted by the fact that it is understood that Councilman A. D. Edgar will not consent to seek a renomination from the First ward. His duties as an official of the New Jersey Central require a great deal of his time and in consequence he cannot give the time to the city as a councilman that he should. It is with this understanding that friends of Mr. Cutter have urged him to enter the councilmanic contest, believing that he would make an efficent official.

Mr. Cutter was born in Plainfield and has always lived here. For many years he has held a responsible position in a New York bank and his knowledge of matters of finance, his friends say, should prove valuable to the city. Mr. Cutter is also an active member of Trinity Reformed church, where for a number of years he sang in the quartet choir. He is especially interested in the work of the Dutch Arms Association of his church.

LOST CHILD RETURNS TO WATCHUNG HOME

Armenia Acker Found After Posse of Citizens Search Mountainside.

A posse of about thirty citizens of Watchung scored the woods late Saturday night in an effort to find 10-year-old Armenia Acker, who was reported as having disappeared from the Ephraim Acker home on Hillcrest road earlier in the day. The child was found at 11 o'clock by Ameil Terry, one of the searching party, who happened to return to the Acker premises.

According to the story told by the child, she strayed from home and wandered into the thickly wooded section of the mountains, where she lost her way. She was missed by members of the Acker family, with whom she lives, and the report of her disappearance was sent broadcast. The police in this city and North Plainfield were notified and a strict lookout was established in this city, in particular the opinion being that the girl had wandered toward Plainfield. It is regarded as unusual that the searchers who scoured the woods and surrounding territory did not see the little one, who says that she heard several men shouting her name and that she, in making her way down the mountainside, accidentally walked back to the Acker home. When found, she was prowling about the apple orchard in the rear of her home.

Among those who aided in the search were the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church; Judge George T. Hughes, editor of the New York Globe; Fred Ivamy, Harry McQuade, Ameiln Terry, Ephraim S. Acker and about twenty others. These men, upon learning of the disappeearance of the child, immediately formed a posse, because it was feared by some that the little one had met with foul play. The neighborhood was upset for some time but was quickly quieted when it was announced that the child had not been harmed in any way.

Such report should state the name and residence of the person making the report; and also the names and ages of the parties from out of town and the locality from which they came. The report may be made personally at the Board of Health office (No. 104 East Front street), or by telephone (No. 646). The purpose is to place full information at the command of the Board of Health for such inquiry and investigation as it may deem necessary.

HERBERT PEACOCK PLAGUE VICTIM

Popular Young Athlete Is Suddenly Stricken With Infantile Paralysis.

CONDITION IS SERIOUS

Health Authorities Puzzled Over Source of Infection—Three Additional Cases Reported Among Children Since Saturday.

Besides attacking three children, infantile paralysis claimed as its victim yesterday Herbert Peacock, of 1227 West Seventh street, and today one of the most popular young men in the city lies in a critical condition at his home with doctors doing all in their power to save him. Returning but a short time ago from Asbury yesterday, and despite the prompt work of Dr. Albert Pittis is now paralyzed below the waist.

Peacock is probably one of the best known young men in the city, and as a student at Plainfield High School, where he graduated last June, he gained a State reputation as an athlete. He was a member of last year's championship basketball team, and played quarter on the football team two years ago. Two years ago he was a member of the baseball squad and also took an ardent interest in track events.

His popularity among the entire student body is clearly shown by the fact that he was elected president of his class for the four years he was in the institution, and he received the highest honor that is awarded at the High School when he was presented with a Yale Cup at the graduation exercises for having maintained the best record of anyone in his class for scholarship, leadership and sports during his four years.

Peacock, who is nineteen years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Peacock and intended entering Cornell University this fall. The health authorities are at a loss to explain its source of infection, as it is the first one of an adult that has developed here.

Robert L. Lough, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Lough, of 1031 Madison avenue, was attacked with the plague Saturday, and almost at the same time Jean Kemble, thirteen months, of 1336 West Front street, was reported as having the disease. The fourth case is Israel Kozzak, fourteen months old, of 1344 Lake street. The case in the Kozzak family has been under observation for several days. All three cases are reported as being mild ones, and recovery is expected.

Helen Leach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold T. Leach, of Manning avenue, who has been ill with infantile paralysis for the past three weeks, is able to sit up, and her left leg, which has been paralyzed, is improving gradually under the care of Dr. Thomas D. Blair.

BOROUGHITES STIRRED OVER LOSS OF TREES

Considerable agitation has been stirred up in North Plainfield regarding the condition of three trees on Craig place. Two of these trees are now dead and a third is dying. Whether or not a disease is causing the trouble is not known, but the property owners in the borough have reported the matter to the authorities, and the Shade Tree Commission will be informed of conditions at once.

The trees afflicted are ones that have furnished much shade for years, and it is feared that the other shade trees in that section will be stricken in like manner. For that reason residents of Craig place have complained to Chief Marshal Weiss, who this morning informed Mayor William L. Smalley and called the attention of the members of the Shade Tree Commission to the matter.

MARY PICKFORD COMPANY TO VISIT BERNARDSVILLE

It was reported today that the Mary Pickford Film Corporation, of which Mary Pickford is the owner and star, had leased the Bernardsville Inn for the month of October, and tha the film company would take pictures in that locality and in Watchung and vicinity. When inquiry was made at the Bernardsville Inn today it was learned that such plans were contemplated by the Famous Players Company, of which Mary Pickford until recently was a part owner. But, owing to the fact that the little "movie" star has formed a corporation of her own, it is not known whether or not the original plans will be carried out.

POLISH CELEBRATION.

Stanley Hendgon, a prominent member of local Polish organizations, was tendered a celebration by his many friends in this city Saturday. The newly organized band of the John Sobieski Society furnished music for the occasion, and speeches were made by prominent Polish citizens.

TROOPS ON BORDER WANT SOME RECORDS

Vitaphone Company Gave Them 2 Machines, But They Have Nothing to Play.

Through the generosity of the Vitaphone Company members of Troop D, stationed at Douglas, Ariz., have received two Vitaphone machines. A request for contributions of records was made some time ago, but up to now the men have received no donations. The following letter was received by the local concern Friday:

"Douglas, Ariz., Aug. 11, 1916.

"The Vitaphone Company,

"Plainfield, N. J.

"Dear Sirs: Your letter of July 29, together with the two Vitaphone machines, came duly to hand, and we appreciate very much your thoughtfulness. As a matter of fact, I will be frank and say we have no records and if there are a few of your friends in Plainfield who might send us some records I am sure they would be put to very good use. In the meantime we have set the machines up and they are being protected in my tent from the severe sand storms which seem to strike us every day.

"The men are all well, and while I think they are all anxious to be ordered home, yet they are doing their work cheerfully, with credit to themselves and to their town.

"Very truly yours,

"ALBERT BORDEN,
"Captain."

The Vitaphone Company does not yet make records, and is therefore not in a position to forward Troop D any, but is perfectly willing to pack and ship any records that may be forwarded to the Vitaphone Company at the factory on North Avenue (Netherwood depot). No wornout records will be accepted for shipment. Another appeal is made to Plainfielders. Have you any records to send?

FIVE DEAD IN BOILER EXPLOSION IN TENNESSEE

Jackson, Tenn., Aug. 21.—Five or more persons were killed and as many more injured by a boiler explosion at the Harlan Morriss Manufacturing Company's plant here today. Several men are missing and are believed to be in the ruins of the factory.

DAVID STRAUSS LOSES HIS LIFE AT MANASQUAN

David Strauss, of Newark, president of the New Jersey State Board of Pharmacy, together with William Lawton, of Roxbury, Pa., were the victims of a double tragedy at Manasquan on Saturday, when they were drowned by Sweet's bathing pavilion. They were caught in a "sea puss," and before rescuers could reach them they gave up their lives. Mr. Strauss was well known in this city, where he had many friends.

MAYOR MITCHELL BACK IN N. Y. TO PREVENT STRIKE

New York, Aug. 21.—Without awaiting the return to the city of Chairman Straus, Mayor Mitchel proceeded this morning in his efforts to hurry about an understanding between the New York Railways Company and the union organization of employes, regarding the interpretation of the agreement of Aug. 4. A union committee, headed by W. B. Fitzgerald, was received by the Mayor at 7:11 o'clock. The Mayor then summoned officials of the New York Railways Company for a conference at his office early this afternoon.

JERSEY BOYS QUALIFY IN REVOLVER PRACTICE

Jersey boys at Tobyhanna, including Alfred Seal and John Manley, of Plainfield, experienced the smell of real gunpowder Saturday for the first time, when revolver practice began from the fifteen-yard line. Battery C men, which includes the Plainfielders, distinguished themselves by leading each scored a 40. Out of 75 who shot, 63 obtained better than 25, the disall eight batteries. Seal and Manley qualifying mark.

In time Battery C will probably be sent to the border. The men are expectant and the visit of Major-General Leonard Wood to the camp on Saturday is looked upon as significant. Gen. Wood addressed the boys in camp.

ARRESTED FOR GAMBLING.

Arraigned in police court charged with gambling, Joseph Maglios, Tony Bello, Danny Front, Joseph Caruso, Ditano Maglios and Tony Feratonos were held over until tomorrow morning under bond oy Judge DeMeza. Chief Kiely and Lieutenant Higgins made the raid yesterday at 722 Midway avenue, and captured the six men and their outfit.

U-Boats Sink Two British Cruisers In North Sea—German Assault On Fleury Jails, Says the Paris Report.

U-Boat Gets Cruisers.

London, Aug. 21.—It was admitted in a British admiralty announcement today that the British light cruisers Nottingham and Falmouth were sunk Saturday in the North sea by German submarines while the vessels were searching for the German high seas fleet.

One German submarine was destroyed by the British, while another was rammed and possibly sunk, according to the Admiralty statement, which reads:

"Reports from our lookout squadrons and other units showed that there was considerably activity on the part of the enemy in the North sea Saturday, the 19th. The German high seas fleet came out, but learning from their scouts that the British forces were in considerable strength, the enemy avoided an engagement, and returned to port.

"In searching for the enemy we lost two cruisers by submarine attacks—H. M. S. Nottingham, Capt. C. B. Miller, and H. M. S. Falmouth, Capt. John Edwards."

Paris, Aug. 22.—Press dispatches from Saloniki report that Italian troops are landing at the Greek port to assist the Allies in the struggles with Bulgarians. They are receiving an enthusiastic greeting. Most of the Italians are said to be veterans.

If Italians are to participate in the Balkan campaign they will meet there German soldiers, and thus an actual state of war between Germany and Italy will be brought about.

French Still Hold Fleury.

Paris, Aug. 21.—The Germans made a second attempt to recapture the village of Fleury, three and one-half miles northeast of Verdun, last night, attacking its force after spraying the French positions with liquid fire. The War Office announced today that French barrage infantry fire stopped the attack shortly inflicting serious losses on the enemy.

In yesterdays fighting north of the Somme, in which the French captured a strongly fortified wood between Guillemont and Maurepas, six German cannon were captured. An active artillery duel continued on the Somme front throughout last night, but there were no infantry engagements of importance.

Practically the whole of the village of Maurepas is now in French hands as the result of Thursday's fighting and local actions since that time.

Will See Wilson Again This Afternoon—Insist On Arbitration.

Washington, August 22.—The railroad presidents went into executive session this morning with the announcement that they would have no statement to make until they heard from the White House and had conferred further with the President.

Big railroad men in the West, including Louis Hill, president of the Great Northern, hurried to Washington yesterday in answer to the summons of President Wilson. They still hold to the single demand of "arbitration."

TWO SMALL FIRES.

The fire department received two alarms Saturday night and extinguished both blazes with little loss. In the afternoon a still alarm was answered to put out a fire at the city dump at Terrill road and East Seventh street, and at 5:10 the chemical wagon responded to a call at 423 Park avenue, where a vulcanizing outfit had caught fire in the garage of John Lindsey. The loss was $200.

BOARD OF HEALTH ORDER

Parents are hereby warned not to take sick children on the public street for any purpose whatever.

If a child is sick, call a physician. The Health Department has learned that a child from out of town was brought to Plainfield on the trolley car, the child at the time showing the beginning symptoms of Infantile Paralysis.

LABOR'S STRUGGLE FOR JUST REWARD

Mathew Brendel, Socialist Candidate, Appeals For Votes at Dunellen.

Matthew Brendel, Socialist party candidate for the Assembly, gave a talk on "Labor Organization," under the auspices of the local branch of the Socialist party at North and Madison avenues Saturday evening.

Mr. Brendel, who is a member of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union, showed the necessity for solidity, or unitedness in labor's struggle for just reward for its toil.

"In former strikes," said the speaker, "the railway engineers have gone on strike alone, or the railway conductors, or the switchmen, or the telegraphers, or some other one class. Now, for the first time, we see four great brotherhoods all united for a common cause. 'In union there is strength.'"

But union on the industrial field is not enough, according to Mr. Brendel. Labor must unite at the ballot box as well. "You already have the ballot box in your hands," said the speaker, "and you must learn to use it for your own benefit.

"When the old-party politician comes around just before election and gives you a cigar or a drink, you think you are getting something for nothing," said Mr. Brendel, "and you vote for him. But you pay for that cigar or that drink—after election."

Congressional Candidate Ambrose D. Albertson, and Samuel W. Lunt, the Socialist nominee for surrogate, who expected to speak, were unavoidably absent. They will tell Dunellenites at a later meeting what they stand for and how the cause of labor would be benefitted by a big Socialist vote.

Chief Health Inspector G. Sumner Smith today denied the report current since Saturday that there is a case of infantile paralysis in the Owen Mohan house on Grove street. He said that the sick child in a Polish family, reported recently, is not suffering from paralysis, the trouble being due to the fact that the infant is cutting teeth. JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

RAILWAY EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

The Evening Post, of New York, in an editorial published Saturday on "The Railway Eight-Hour Day," quotes Mr. Garretson as saying that the overtime is frequent and sometimes cruel. Continuing it says:

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, a total of 261,392 men are recorded as exceeding sixteen hours. But that does not tell you much unless you get the sub-divisions of the 261,000. Seventy-one thousand of these cases were between sixteen and seventeen hours, 70,000 more between seventeen and eighteen hours, 40,000 above eighteen hours and less than nineteen hours, 40,000 above twenty and less than twenty-one hours. Then they run in the thousands till there were 1,095 cases above twenty-seven and less than twenty-eight hours.

"Such detailed figures are hard to get, but the Survey has quoted from the Interstate Commerce Commission to show that last year 819 of the carriers of the country reported that no excess service was permitted on their lines, while the remaining 419 reported a total of 78,940 instances of excess service above the statutory sixteen hours. The railways have not denied these figures."

The followlling statement concerning the dispute between the railroad heads and employes, appearing in the New York Times of yesterday, is interesting:

"The brotherhoods contest the railroad statement of the financial burden of granting the eight-hour day. Mr. Garretson has said in the negotiations that the railroads of the United States realized $250,000,000 a year out of the 5 per cent rate increase, and that in the first six months of this year their net income was $200,000,000 more than for the same six months last year. He says it would not cost $50,000,000 to grant the President's request, and that if it did the cost would be only a small slice of the recent gains."

CRANK THREATENS WILSON.

A WHALE OF A STORY! A SPACE WRITER COULDN'T GET IT BY, BUT THE BOSS-WELL-

(By Leslie R. Fort.)

Spring Lake, N. J., Aug. 21.—This is an honest-to-goodness tale of an exciting experience on the high seas, and although there was an actor concerned, others in the party who are known as veracious individuals testify to the truth of the tale. A party of fishermen who went out of Belmar inlet on Saturday declare that they encountered a school of porpoises, a school of sharks, and a regular whale, which might be one hundred feet long, and even longer, according to which one of the party told it. They are sure it was a whale, and not the Deutschland or the Bremen, for he came so near the boat that when he turned his aerial waterworks on they got a bath from the spout.

Captain Johnson, of Belmar, took Van Campen Heilner, an eighteen-year-old son of Samuel Heilner, the Philadelphia coal man, and an ardent fisherman; Joseph Cawthorne, the actor; William Richmond, and two or three others fifteen miles out to sea on a hunt for tuna, which were reported to be off there in great numbers. They had not been out long before they ran into a school of porpoises, perhaps the same one that was seen off the Beach House at Sea Girt on Saturday. The crowd was a sober one, and they declare that there must have been several hundred of these that played about the boat. Hardly had the engine kicked them out of the school, when they ran into a hundred or more sharks, and they got away from there as quick as they could. They had no more than left the sharks when Captain Johnson shouted "There blows a whale. My God, he's coming right for the boat."

The Captain put the helm hard to port, or starboard, or whatever a man does when he wants to get out of the way of a sea-going whale, and then the animal or whatever a whale is dived. Every member of the party declares that what happened then is the Gospel, hope-I-may-die truth. The boat had hardly swung to be parallel with the way in which the critter was going when Mr. Whale appeared on the side of the boat, so near to them that they could reach out and touch him, and he spouted! None of the party were prepared for a shower bath, but the whale refused to consider that, and young Heilner declares that Joe Cawthorne reached out and pushed the big fish away from the boat, or at least pushed at him. There was not one of the party that admitted that he wanted to meet a whale again under any circumstances, and most of them frankly admitted that they were frightened.

"CATHOLIC WEEK" IS BEING CELEBRATED

Many Local Representatives Attend Big Gathering In New York City.

This is "Catholic Week in New York and vicinity, the various dignitaries and members of the Roman Catholic Church having gathered in the metropolis for their fifteenth annual convention. The affair is being held under the auspices of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, of which the following local organizations are members: Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Total Abstinence Benevolent Society and the Holy Name Society. To the presidents of these various organizations tickets for the various meetings scheduled on the weeks program have been sent and many of these have already been distributed to the members of the various local organizations. Delegates from St. Marys and St. Josephs parishes have been invited to attend the business sessions, but it is not know as yet who the local delegates will be. Those who attended the meeting last night were Father P. J. Hart, of St. Joseph's, David T. Kenny, T. J. Meany and Daniel Curran. Other local men will attend the various sessions during the week.

The program yesterday began in the morning with a pontifical mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Cardinal Farley being the celebrant. The sermon was delivered by the Right Rev. Thomas F. Hickey, D. D., Bishop of Rochester. In the evening a monster mass meeting was held in Madison Square Garden, Cardinal John Farley, D. D., presiding. Other speakers were Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore; Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston; Right Rev. James A. McFaul, bishop of the Trenton diocese; Hon. W. Bourke Cochran and Dr. James J. Walsh.

This evening a mass meeting will be held in Carnegie Hall, admission being by ticket. Several local men have secured tickets and expect to be present.

GOT THE HORSES ASHORE.

And He Didn't Go About It in the Regular Official Way, Either.

In his younger days Sir Bryan Mahon was quite a character in the army and many are the tales that are told of his daredevil recklessness and his no less ready resourcefulness in an emergency.

Once, for instance, a lot of horses had to be unloaded at Ismailia. There were no boats and there was shortage of slings, to say nothing of grommets, breast girths and all the other queer paraphernalia that disembarking officers delight in.

But Mahon, who is, of course, a son of Erin's isle, had seen horses disembarked on the wild Irish coast many and many a time in rough and ready fashion, and he knew what they could do when they had to. So, while the others were discussing ways and means below decks, he simply threw these horses overboard.

The animals promptly swam ashore, and while the horror stricken disembarking officer was looking on aghast, too surprised even for words, Mahon ordered the trumpet for "stables" to be sounded, and every horse promptly lined up on the beach.—London Telegraph.

DRILLED TO PERFECTION.

Secret of the Military Success of "the Madman of the North."

From drill man gets accustomed to doing under any circumstances what has been hammered into his brain time after time till it becomes second nature to him.

Charles XII. of Sweden, "the madman of the north," ripped most of Europe up the back again and again because his soldiers were drilled to perfection before he let them take the field at a time when there was great neglect of drill in other armies. He valued 1,000 well drilled fighters above 10,000 not so well drilled, and, madman or genius, his judgment was vindicated repeatedly in terrible battles.

One night Charles XII. was surprised in Poland by an attacking army of 8,000 when his scant force of 600 was sleeping like the dead from the exhaustion of a hard march. Before his outposts and sentinels could be driven in his small band was aroused, mounted, formed in battle line—all in pitchy blackness—and swung into a fierce charge upon the enemy. By daylight the Russians and Poles who had thought to eat him up were virtually annihilated.—Westminster Gazette.

How Clouds Are Colored.

The color of a cloud depends on the manner in which the sunlight falls upon it and the position of the observer. It will be noticed that high clouds are always white or light in color, and this is because the light by which they are seen is reflected from the under surface by the numberless drops of moisture which go to form the cloud. Heavy rain clouds, on the other hand, are found much nearer the earth, and so the light falls on them more directly from above, giving a silver lining to the cloud, though the under surface appears black, owing to the complete reflection and absorption of the light by the upper layers. Seen from above by an observer in a balloon the blackest rain clouds appear of the most dazzling brilliant white.

Duels In Greenland.

In Greenland when one man has been insulted by another the adversaries each compose a satire in verse. This each man recites to his household until the servants and the women know it by heart. Then a place of meeting is appointed. The two men, the insulter and insulted, the offender and the offended, stand face to face, and each recites his poem. His friends and servants form a chorus. Each man tries hard to raise the laugh against his adversary. Each man speaks in turn, whipping the enemy with epigram and quip, and after two hours of this wordy battle the meeting gives the victory to him of the two adversaries who has amused the whole assembly most.

An Odd Team.

Over one of the trails of the Sahara desert the queerest of teams is employed in drawing a two wheeled cart which carries light freight. The team consists of a camel and a small mule, and, while the loads may be unevenly distributed between them, the mates never disagree. Each draws his portion of the load, the camel loping along with great strides, while the mule trots beside him.

EXPERT EXPLAINS GOOD ROADS BILL

How Government Will Improve Nation's Highways.

STATES CARRY HALF BURDEN

$75,000,000 Will Be Taken From National Treasury in Next Five Years and Equal Amount From States. Measure Has Been Passive For Seventy-five Years.

A. G. Batchelder of Washington, executive chairman of the American Automobile association, a national authority on good roads, has written the following statement on what the new good roads law, appropriating $75,000,000 for the improvement of public highways, means to this country:

"When the congress of the United States in 1806 passed an act which met the approval of President Thomas Jefferson and provided for the laying out and construction of a road from Cumberland, Md., to Ohio, the commissioners intrusted with the work were given $4 a day in full compensation for their services and expenses. They were authorized to employ one surveyor, two chainmen and one marker, the chainmen receiving $3 and the marker $1 per day. The first stagecoach bearing United States mail from Cumberland to Wheeling traveled over this road Aug. 1, 1818. And it continued a federal artery of communication until between 1831 and 1844, when its parts were taken over by the states through which it passed.

"July 11, 1916, President Wilson in the presence of a contingent of good roads enthusiasts thus spoke:

"'I take a great deal of pleasure in signing this bill and having a part in the good work that has been done, particularly because it tends to thread the various parts of the country together and assists the farmer in his intercourse with others.'

"The Bankhead-Shackleford good roads bill after more than three-fourths of a century of passive policy accentuated the return of the federal government to the policy of aiding the states in the construction of public highways.

States Must Carry Half the Burden.

"From the federal treasury in the period of five years $75,000,000 is to be distributed among the several states on the condition that they contribute a like amount, and the joint money is spent upon whatever roads the state highway departments and the secretary of agriculture mutually agree upon. In addition, the measure carried $10,000,000 for the construction of roads in and adjacent to national forest reserves.

"It should be noted that this federal co-operation with the several states safeguards the expenditure of the money in a manner totally different from that contained in any other appropriation from the federal treasury. While the duly constituted state authority suggests the roads which are to be improved and the manner of improvement, the federal authority exercises a supervising power over the whole proceeding. Furthermore, if the state does not properly maintain the road that has been constructed with national and state funds its apportionment for the succeeding year is withheld until the first built highway receives the needed repair to bring it up to the standard established.

"In order to qualify for any of the federal money a state must equip itself with a highway department. Thus it is that Indiana, South Carolina, Georgia and Texas must provide this machinery within a four year period or forfeit their allotment, the money in the meantime remaining in the federal treasury.

National Road System Coming.

"Since highways improvement started with a co-operation between a state and its counties and resulted in first attention to the most used roads, and finally in the taking over by the state of the trunk lines, it is not unreasonable to assume that a similar development will take place in reference to the most important roads of the several states. First there will come a joint partnership and ultimately the establishment of a national road system not dissimilar to the one which welds France into a complete nation and, except for incidental governmental convenience, obliterates the dividing lines among its several departments, which are similar to our states.

"If we had forty-eight states, each one possessing relatively the same area, population and resources as the others, then it would be a reasonable conclusion that a state from its own resources should build its avenues of communication, as it provides other things in the public utility class. This also might be said of the county subdivisions of a state.

"But a state is not divided into equal parts, nor is the nation divided into equal states. The inevitable necessity in the building of that which serves a general good is to extend the area of taxation so that the nation as a whole will contribute and co-operate with the several states in such a way as to encourage them toward a gradual amalgamating of the largest commercial zones and finally the parts of which these zones are made up.

"Briefly, this explains why the national government must now include roads as one of the important things which have to be dealt with."

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

I read an article about set spark which stated that the piston should be within one-half inch of top on compression stroke when the spark should occur. Is this right? If so, I have been setting mine wrong. My engine has a set spark, and the only gas control is a foot accelerator. Now, when the throttle is closed for idle running I have my spark occur when the piston is at top dead center on compression stroke. If I change it to occur one-half inch before top center, will it be all right? What is the best position for the most power obtainable.

Carry the spark as far ahead as you can without having the engine knock and without having it kick back in starting. The distance in advance of dead center depends on the speed of the motor and on the type of ignition apparatus. This is true because the higher the motor speed the farther in advance should be the spark and the greater the mechanical and electrical lag in the ignition apparatus the further ahead the spark should be set.

I wish to increase my compression to 100 pounds. How much can I plane off my cylinder head, and how much will I have to raise my pistons?

It is impossible to tell you how much to reduce the volume of your combustion chamber to reach 100 pounds compression without knowing what the original volume is or how much the bore of the cylinder is. The method of procedure, however, which you can follow to work out the problem for yourself is as follows: Multiply the compression pressure by the volume of your present combustion chamber and divide it by 100 to secure the total volume of the new combustion chamber.

What is the correct heat a tire should have in order to vulcanize, and how long should it be kept at that heat?

This depends whether it is the inner tube or outer tube you are vulcanizing, as far as time is concerned. Generally about fifteen minutes suffices to make an inner tube vulcanization at a temperature of about 145 degrees C. The tire shoe takes a longer time, depending on the depth of vulcanization. It would be best to simply follow the directions with your vulcanizing outfit for practical results, as this has been worked out to give proper temperatures for the conditions for which it is designed.

Why is the spark advanced when cranking on the magneto, and why should a magneto armature run at engine speed on four cycle, four cylinder engines?

The spark is advanced to take care of mechanical and electrical lag and to make the explosion occur as nearly as possible to upper dead center. In cranking, if the spark occurs at the point of highest compression, ignition is much more certain.

The magneto produces two sparks to the revolution, and, since a four cylinder, four cycle engine has two explosions to the revolution, it is necessary in order to have the two sparks to have the magneto operating at engine speed.

Is it more accurate to use a hydrometer syringe or a voltmeter to get the results of the life in a storage battery?

The hydrometer will tell you one thing and the voltmeter another in examining the condition of a battery. The hydrometer tells you the specific gravity of the electrolyte, which must be within certain limits in order for the battery to function properly. If a hydrometer shows between 1.272 and 1.3 when the battery is fully charged the electrolyte is in proper condition. However, it is quite possible for the electrolyte to be in good condition and the battery to show a low voltage on the meter because the plates may be broken down or some other internal trouble not giving the full voltage.

Can you give me some information regarding the potash kettle for cleaning motor parts on dismantling a motor for machine shop use and the proper mixing for use in the kettle? I am told sal soda will do the same thing. I tried it without much success, and it turned aluminum black. There is a demand for a cleaning mixture other than gasoline.

The cleaning fluid which you desire will naturally depend upon the metal to be cleaned. Since you mention aluminum, it is probable that the information wanted covers aluminum cleaning, and a formula for making this fluid is simply a solution of thirty grams of borax in one liter of water containing a few drops of ammonia water. To remove discoloration use a solution of one heaping teaspoonful of oxalic acid crystals to one gallon of warm water. Leave the part standing in this solution overnight and then clean it thoroughly with water. A strong soda solution for cleaning grease from machinery and metal parts can be made by taking ten to fifteen grams of caustic soda or 100 grams of soda for each leader of water. This solution should be applied boiling hot, and the parts, if not too large, should be dipped into the solution. All that has to be done after this is simply rinse and dry the parts thoroughly.

Will you please define and explain the word "torque" as applied to automobiles?

The word "torque" is a definite one and means the same whether referred to automobiles or any other piece of mechanism. It is the force which tends to produce rotation or torsion and is measured tangentially by multiplying the force by the radius about the axis of rotation—that is, the torque in given shaft would be equal to the power applied to the shaft times the distance of the tangential point of application from the axis of the shaft.

What is the approximate pull in pounds necessary to operate the service and emergency brakes, direct without any levers, on a medium weight touring car; also, the difference in the perimeter of the two brakes when expanded and contracted, and vice versa, or otherwise the brake displacement, in fully applying the brakes?

This varies through such a range that it is impossible to give any definite figures. It is also difficult to determine whether you mean that the brake is locked on the wheel or whether just applied gently. It may be stated, however, that an application pressure of twenty pounds should firmly close the brakes.

The difference in perimeter of the two brakes when expanded and contracted and vice versa is simply the difference between the internal and external diameters of the brake drum. Since you do not mention the size drum you refer to, it is again impossible to give the definite figure, but, taking a standard fourteen inch drum external diameter having a thickness of one-fourth inch, the difference in diameter between the inner and outer circle would be one-half inch, and the difference in circumference would be one-half of 3.1416, or 1.57 inch.

Why do the cylinders of my four cylinder motor become hotter when driven at the rate of five miles an hour on first speed than when driven at fifteen miles an hour on third speed?

Because they do not get the same cooling effect. When traveling at five miles per hour on first speed your motor is turning over faster than when traveling at fifteen miles per hour on high speed. Consequently the cooling system has more work to do. The slow forward movement of your car prevents radiator and motor being fanned by the same air temperature. You can readily see that the car traveling forward at fifteen miles per hour, with revolutions per minute of motor the same or slower, will receive a greater and more cooling breeze over radiator and motor than the slower moving car. This difference will determine to a large degree the cooling or overheating of the motor.

Will water remove carbon? If so, would you advise running it through the carburetor?

There are a great many who believe very strongly in the use of water for removing carbon, and there is no doubt but that it assists in this respect to some extent. It would be better, however, not to introduce it into the carburetor, but into the intake manifold between the carburetor and the cylinder. It should be allowed to enter in very minute quantities. The action which probably takes place is this: When the water enters the cylinder it is probably transformed into steam, which cuts away the carbon binding substances in the cylinder.

Will you please explain the firing and timing of eight and twelve cylinder motors?

The timing and firing of all multi-cylinder engines is arranged to accommodate the angles at which the different cranks are set to each other. This must be done in order that the engine will balance. Regardless of how the engine is timed or the firing order, each cylinder carries out its independent action as if it were a single cylinder motor, and it does not depend on any other cylinder to assist it in carrying out its cycle. The firing order naturally depends altogether on the valve timing of each cylinder, since it is only a matter of exploding the charge which is compressed in the proper cylinder. The firing orders of eights are the same as fours, since the action of the eight is just exactly the same as if there were two four cylinder engines operating on the same crank shaft, which is exactly what holds true mechanically. The same relationship holds true between twelves and sixes.

Please explain the meaning of the word cycle and its functions in a gasoline motor. Is each stroke a cycle, etc.?

The word cycle refers to a complete set of operations bringing the engine back to the point referred to at the beginning. We say the words four cycle, meaning it takes four strokes to complete a cycle of events in the cylinder. The correct manner of expressing this would be four stroke cycle, as each one of the strokes is only the mechanical action necessary in carrying out the cycle of intake, explosion, expansion and exhaust.

PLAINFIELD PRESS COMPANY,

When the Business Men's Association of Plainfield announce a Dollar Day Sale, the people of the city and its surrounding towns know that a real merchandising treat is in store for them. It is over three years since the first one of these sales was held, and they have since been held twice annually, in February and August. They have been the most active days that some of our merchants have had in all their long careers, not only in gross business done, but in the number of people who have visited the stores. The people have learned that on Dollar Day they receive the greatest values of the entire year in the various specials which are offered in the local stores.

The next one of these great money saving events will be held in Plainfield on Wednesday, August 30. The merchants are already planning some splendid special offers, which will be more fully announced in their regular advertisements in the local papers as the day approaches.

Without a shadow of doubt this is the greatest value giving event of the year, when it is considered that it is a united effort on the part of all the Plainfield stores. It is true that individual merchants at times have given equally great values in single items, but on Dollar Day they all strive to give many such bargains, in a great concerted move to attract the shoppers in vast numbers to Plainfield stores. In selecting the stores in which to make purchases be sure that the insignia of the organization, reproduced below, is conspicuously displayed on the store front. It is a sign that dependable merchandise will be found on all the bargain tables.

FORMER CONVICTS TO GET A CHANCE

Ex-Members of the Sing Sing League Tell of Troubles.

WORK TO PREVENT ALL CRIME

New York Police Commissioner Promises That His Detectives Will No Longer "Dog" the Ex-Prisoners. "Once a Crook, Always a Crook," Will Never Again Be Slogan of Police.

Ex-convicts are going to get a fair show in New York—at least during the commissionership of Arthur Woods, police head.

There is to be no more dogging the trail of men who have done their prison bit by "bulls" who hold to the motto, "Once a crook, always a crook." Commissioner Woods said so at a remarkable dinner gathering. This was an affair arranged by the national committee on prisons, whereby thirty former inmates of Sing Sing and Auburn prisons were the committee's guests.

Furthermore, the police commissioner is going to co-operate with the ex-convicts, with the idea that they can, by influence and example, help to keep down new crime.

He will meet them from time to time and talk things over, both from their viewpoint and his.

Guests Prison Alumni.

The guests of the national committee on prisons were all members of the Outside Mutual Welfare league, a sort of alumni association of free men who have belonged to the Mutual Welfare league in two state prisons. They were at work and doing well, they reported.

But several of them in addresses they made to the assemblage told bitter tales of how the "bulls" had made life miserable for them—how they had been hounded from one job to another because the detectives had pointed out to the men for whom they were working that they were crooks, jailbirds, and they had no alternative except to admit it.

"I am glad to meet you men and help you," Commissioner Woods said. "It is the first time I have had any experience with your organization. I will gladly work with you and see that the police of New York city instead of hounding ex-convicts will help them in every way possible. In case of any ex-convict your organization will O. K. we will see that he is given every possible chance and all assistance within our power.

"I am hired to prevent crime. You can help me there perhaps. I hope you will and that we may work together harmoniously."

"We will," exclaimed several of the former prisoners as they applauded the commissioner.

Put It Squarely to Woods.

One of the ex-convicts asked, "Commissioner, if you got out of prison with only $10 and had to spend it for food, what would you do next?"

"It was a mighty lucky thing for me," said Mr. Woods, talking of the incident, "that some one changed the topic. I couldn't have answered the question very well, I'm afraid."

He asked the men how many had been in reformatories. It seemed twenty of the thirty had been. He inquired if they were taught anything good there. They hooted derisively and explained that they had been taught only the most evil of things—how to be worse instead of better.

The commissioner told them, in conclusion, he thought they could be of "inestimable value" in helping to keep down crime. "You can do as much as I can along that line," he said.

Martin Loonan, an ex-convict, chairman of the employment bureau of the M. W. L., reported that he had got jobs for 200 former prisoners and 175 had made good. Ernest S. Roche of the employment committee of the national committee on prisons said he had placed 300 in steady employment and 300 had justified the work.

BEST FOR THE BABY.

New York Specialist Says Birthday Clothes Are Healthy.

Combined fashion and health hint to mothers, by Dr. S. Josephine Baker of the bureau of child hygiene, New York—let the baby go naked.

Dr. Baker received a letter in which a much exercised correspondent complained that an east side mother was permitting her children, aged one and three years, to run about the house in their birthday clothes. The informant threatened to take the case straight way to the Society For Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

"That east side woman is a sensible mother," said Dr. Baker. "If every mother of young children in the crowded districts would do the same thing we would have a lower death rate for children under five years. Little tots should go stark naked in hot weather. It's the natural way for them to live. In addition to that, they should be given a sponge bath twice a day and plenty of good milk and cool water to drink."

Will Show 'Em.

Rejected by army officers because his physique could not withstand heavy marching, a man is to walk from Plattsburg to New York to prove them wrong.

be moved forward without delay and without interruption. And it is in this work that the value of those ninety-nine big trucks would be demonstrated appreciatively. Then the foresight of a military organization would be praised and delays pending the shipment here of trucks to supply the wants of the forces in the field would not be encountered.

And this is all a part of the big scheme of preparing the troops in this particular district for quick service and possibly a part of a general scheme toward the hastening of the efficiency of the soldiers now comprising the United States army and which recently caused orders to be issued for the dispatch of 25,000 additional men down to border posts.

A Clever Reply.

Mme. de Maintenon once asked Lord Stair why it was that the affairs of government were so badly managed in France under a king and so well managed in England under a queen. "For that very reason," replied the English ambassador, "for when a man reigns the women rule him, and when a woman reigns she is ruled by men."

Sorrow.

Sorrow is not an incident occurring now and then. It is the woof which is woven into the warp of life, and he who has not discerned the divine sacredness of sorrow and the profound meaning which is concealed in pain has yet to learn what life is.—F. W. Robertson.

'Tween Season Frocks

by Hester Winthrop

Alpaca and Mohair Frocks for Trotter Wear In September -- Touches of Fur Appear On Late August Models -- Olive Green and Gold a Fashionable Combination -- Embroidered Motifs for Trimming.

IT is a poverty stricken soul indeed who may not indulge in a new frock when summer merges into fall. Even one charming new costume gives one a revived feeling at this season when all feminine interest is turning from half-passe—or entirely passe—summer frocks to the interesting new models for autumn wear. It is the season of seasons for a new frock and such a frock counts for vastly more just now than half a dozen frocks later on when everybody is coming out in new toggery.

Cheruit, always to be relied upon for the delectable little demi-saison frock that shall set the feminine world a-flutter, has not disappointed her clientele this year. Cheruit's pretty frock—like all the models of this couturier, exquisitely ladylike—is of navy blue serge with a pleated skirt just short of the ankle and revealing the prettiest part of the foot—its instep and the slender ankle buttoned neatly in a smart boot. Over this pleated skirt is a very full ripple overskirt attached to the bodice only with a cording and dividing at either side of the front to form a panel effect in line with the double row of buttons which give the bodice a double-breasted suggestion. The ripple overskirt is lined with white satin and the bell sleeves have rolled back cuffs of the white satin and a row of the buttons—white and blue buttons—up the outer side of the sleeve. The double-breasted bodice has a rolled shawl collar, not very wide, of the white satin. A delicious little frock this, in Cheruit's best tailored style and with a youthful chic and dash that is irresistible.

Jenny's One-Piece Frock.

Jenny has a new between season frock too, a one-piece frock of quite new type. One gets into it through the neck opening like a middy blouse and then the waistline is drawn in by a narrow velvet sash drawn through slashed openings. The skirt spreads voluminously and is pleated closely at the waistband and is of course cut separately from the bodice, also pleated, for so much material could never be hung from the shoulders without bulkiness. The couturiers still advocate a facing of stiffening fabric within the skirt hem and tunic hem, and under certain types of hip draperies, pockets and the like. The olive green silk and chiffon frock pictured, with elaborate drapery over the hips is distended by pleatings of stiffening, laid over the silk skirt and under the looped up drapery. This charming frock, by Klein, is of olive green faille matinee silk with a chiffon bodice in the same shade, over an under-bodice of flesh-colored faille matinee. There is also a Breton apron of the chiffon embroidered in bands with dull gold thread. Olive green and dull gold form a color scheme very fashionable with the incoming of fall and the tones are artistically balanced in this Klein costume, even the slippers—of glazed kid—matching the greenish-gold shade of the costume.

Another between-season frock from Jenny is of blue twilled mohair, a mode in Paris now. The Jenny frock is very dark blue in tone and the mohair is combined with taffeta of the same shade, the upper portion of the skirt being of the taffeta, with a lower portion of mohair attached to it in cartridge pleated effect. This frock has a trimming of white pontine, the new reversible waxed fabric with satin, silk or velvet as a backing. In the Jenny frock the collar and cuffs are of white pontine with a dark blue silk backing, the white waxed surface being turned outside. From the collar downward, a tiny edge of the white pontine follows the surpliced line of the bodice fronts and this tiny line of white brightens the dark frock surprisingly.

An Alpaca Frock From Bernard.

Following the vogue for alpaca and mohair between season costumes, Bernard has brought out a model of stunning simplicity. The overskirt, which falls to within an inch or two of the skirt hem, is pleated in small boxpleats, well pressed all the way down and is attached by a stitched hem to a straight, young-girlish bodice that makes no pretense of fitting in at the waistline or revealing the curves of waist and bust. Over the bodice falls a cape collar of the material that is strapped together across the front, at the throat, by a narrow, buttoned strap of the alpaca. This frock is black, with buttons of gunmetal and smoked pearl. Above the cuffs on the long sleeves are narrow bands of steel colored metal ribbon and rows of the fancy buttons run up the outer sides of the sleeves to the elbow.

Indeed, one can scarcely have too many buttons on the new frock; buttons are as fashionable on frocks as they are on blouses. Everything is buttoned these days, from the trimming on one's hat down to one's correct buttoned boots. Fringe is also a new autumn trimming—new that is for the moment while fashion whisks it temporarily on top. One couturier has a frock with wide bell sleeves trimmed with three-inch silk fringe; no other fringe appears anywhere on the costume.

The Always-Lovely Lines Of Callot.

Callot's lovely lines are unmistakable. Somehow all women in frocks from this house look graceful, slender and willowy. This is partly due to the rich, soft-draping materials employed and partly to the favorite Callot trick of outlining the shoulder and arm, with a loose-fitting sash and clinging lines at hip lower in the costume. The frock illustrated today is of nasturtium yellow chiffon and satin-striped taffeta in the same tone and a lighter shade of yellow. Amber beads outline a deep yoke on the bodice and the buttons at the belt are of amber and rhinestones. The trimming of dark fur accentuates the yellow tone of the frock. Though the lines seem so loose and graceful, there is a carefully fitted foundation frock of yellow taffeta underneath, the bodice as trimly featherboned as any tight-fitting little basque of the moment.

tic lines, yet equally picturesque in its own way is a long waisted frock of gray faille matinee with embroidery of silver thread and orange silk. The tall, close-fitting collar has silver braiding on orange taffeta. The bodice of this frock is partly taffeta and partly chiffon and the waistline is lower at the back than in front—a novel effect worthy of your special note. There are undersleeves of chiffon beneath loose bell sleeves of the taffeta, trimmed with tiny silk-covered buttons to match the frock. Bronze kid boots are worn with this costume, and by the bye, bronze boots are very fashionable just now—and most practical also since the bronze boot may be worn with a frock of any color except black. If one cannot afford a number of pairs of glazed kid boots to match different costumes it is good economy to buy bronze ones, and they should be in the buttoned style with high French heels and dainty pointed toes.

Many Black Gowns For Fall.

Very dark navy blue and black seem the favorite hues for first fall frocks, and black will be very smart—provided it is smartly made. An attractive all-black frock of satin and velvet with an airy fluttering of black tulle about the bodice and touches of fur to give the fall suggestion, is pictured. Here are four materials (not to mention the jet bead trimming on the bodice!) all combined in one frock without the slightest suggestion of over-loading. The skirt is of black velvet, with the inevitable hem of contrasting material—in this case black satin; and over this velvet skirt is draped the satin overskirt. Four black fox brushes hang from this overskirt at folds of the drapery. The bodice is of black velvet applied to a deep yoke of black chiffon and fits very trimly, attesting the close featherboned girdle beneath the girdle of black satin. The full sleeves and deep cape collar are of black tulle—or rather a fine black silk net, a passementerie trimming of jet beads flattening this airiness around the shoulders; and a narrow collar of the black fox adds the final fall touch. This frock has been reproduced also in navy blue velvet and satin with skunk trimming; and in gray, with smoked fox trimming; but the black model is by far the smartest.

The woman who buys a new fall frock in the basque-bodice or fitted-at-the-waistline effect should provide herself first with a new corset on the "nipped in" lines. Otherwise her frock simply will not look right. This new corset is quite short at the hip and makes no pretense of confining the hips in long, slender lines. At the waist it is decidedly smaller than a corset of last season in the same size and the woman who has been wearing a waistband of thirty inches will be surprised to find her waist a trim 26 inches, or 28 at most in the new corset, with no particular discomfort. But of course she will pay for the slenderness of waist by fuller hips; and this fashion commends at the moment.

Notes and Notions.

WEEK-END PAJAMAS IN PIERROT STYLE.

FOR week-end wear there are the most fascinating Pierrot pajamas with full, loose trousers gathered into a frill at the ankle, and a jaunty little jacket with a frill around the neck. And who will there be to admire these fetching Pierrot affairs? Why, the maid who brings in one's breakfast tray and letters of a morning; other women guests who drop in for bedtime gossip or confidences; or perhaps several other women who gather in an upstairs boudoir for a morning rubber of auction, quite en neglige. The pretty Pierrots come from the Galeries Lafayette in Paris and are made of soft La Jerz silk—a new Jersey weave silk which comes in exquisite shades.

POLKA DOTTED SLIPPERS.

BLACK satin slippers with polka dots in white are among the novelties and these are worn with white silk stockings clocked in black. For afternoon wear, slippers are of white washable kid or of glazed kid in the most dainty cut and style procurable, with turned soles and covered Louis XVI heels.

BLUE RAINCOATS, LIKE FRENCH ARMY OFFICERS.

TO be sartorially correct on a rainy day now, you must wear a blue raincoat. These coats, made of rubberized silk, are in the exact shade of raincoats worn by French officers. Of blue also, are coats of pontine, a waxed material that is perfectly weatherproof and has a reverse side of silk or satin in contrasting color. Pontine coats are slightly more expensive than ordinary raincoats of rubberized silk, but they are vastly smarter, for this material is in great vogue and is ultra smart just now. A coat of blue pontine with a reverse of whit satin is in mannish box-coat style with good flare below the arms. Rows o' silk stitching in white and big white pearl buttons emphasize the tailored effect, and the white satin side of the material is turned back to show like a facing, in collar and cuff.

New Conceits for the Breakfast and Lunch Table

IT is in the daintiness and completeness of her breakfast and luncheon service that the accomplished housekeeper excels. In most American households of the better class there is a handsome dinner set of more or less expensive china; there are large napkins beautifully initialed; there are various silver and glass bonbon and almond dishes; there are all the necessary sizes of glassware, from cocktail to cordial. These things every good housewife who prides herself on her manner of entertaining considers very necessary. They are not used every day by any means, perhaps not one day in a week even; but there they are, if hospitality demands. With a very helter skelter, heterogeneous sort of breakfast and lunch service the family may get along, meanwhile. All the extra pennies are put into the impressive things that go on the dinner table—when there is company.

But the woman who loves daintiness for its own sake studies how to make her breakfast table and her luncheon table as complete and as distinctive as her purse can afford, and when new and interesting articles of table service appear on the market she is instantly aware.

No longer is the same tablecloth used for breakfast, luncheon and dinner, with a change of cloth and napkins at mid-week. That custom is obsolete and has gone with other mid-Victorian fashions. There are special cloths now for breakfast and luncheon, the large white tablecloth over a silence-cloth being reserved for dinner. Breakfast cloths are never ornate and they are smaller than the large, handsome cloth of heavy damask for dinner use. The breakfast cloth may be of damask or of plain white Irish linen with hemstitched hem. Pure white is always kins at breakfast time, and many housekeepers will not use doilies or even a square on the breakfast table, preferring the fresh, all-covering tablecloth as a background for the silver coffee service and dainty breakfast china.

At the luncheon table color may be introduced ad libatum, likewise embroidery, hemstitching and even lace in the doilies or lunch-cloth that only partly covers the polished table-top.

The blue willow ware, so long a favorite for breakfast use, has gone out of fashion now and is preferred for bungalows and country cottages. The blue ware is provided for kitchen service in the town house. Breakfast china in old English patterns is charming and there are various new art patterns equally attractive. White and gold china, the most formal sort, is used for dinner and for luncheons of the more formal kind. Blue canton ware, however, is always distinctive and many housekeepers still prefer this china for the breakfast table. With this dull blue china nothing is prettier for a centerpiece than a delft blue flower bowl, low and broad and filled with water, a glass block holding a few fresh flowers.

Smarter than the conventional silver coffee service for breakfast use are reproductions of old English silver wrought by hand after models of the Queen Anne and Georgian periods. Low covered dishes of silver in mated pairs hold the hot cereal and the one hot dish and some of these covered dishes have hot water receptacles underneath, after the English fashion, so that breakfast is kept piping hot, no matter how late some member of the family may be. If the dish with a special hot water pan is not used, a silver trivet is a delightful addition smarter is the trivet than a crocheted mat or other device for keeping hot dishes from injuring the polished table-top. Very smart looking covered dishes of rectangular shape with a beaded edge are designed after a London pattern of 1,798 and the copies have the arms of the original owner of this famous plate engraved on the covers.

Even the syrup jug for the matutinal pancake is a distinguished affair of panelled cut glass with a top of hand-wrought silver, monogramed or initialed like the rest of the breakfast service. Of course there are many small conveniences of silver and also of white metal; egg cups, toast racks, muffin plates and the like. One plate, for serving soft-boiled eggs, is particularly graceful in its leaf shape with a stem-like handle. In the center of this picture is a new type of tea strainer. The little swinging egg-cup has a receptacle for hot water underneath so that there is no danger of the breakfast egg being served half-cold.

A new egg warmer has a suggestive see quite plainly, through the glass cover, that eggs repose inside. This dish has also the hidden receptacle for hot water beneath.

For the lunch table is an asparagus dish which rests in a graceful standard so that the hot plate does not come in contact with the table-top. The decoration on the plate is in asparagus gray-greens with a shaded edge. The scissors-like asparagus server is the last word in table conveniences and everybody will recognize its superiority over an ordinary spoon and fork for the conveying of elusive asparagus stalks to the plate.

For serving lemon with hot or cold tea there are dainty little silver plates with tiny two-pronged forks to pick up the bit of lemon. And by the way, lemon should not be sliced for serving with tea. Sliced lemon is for garnishing purposes and it is impossible to squeeze a thin slice of lemon without messing the fingertips unpleasantly. Lemon, for serving with tea or with sardines, should be cut into little triangular wedges, lengthwise of the fruit—as one cuts a melon.

Iced desserts, ices or berries and cream, should be daintily served at luncheon in tall glasses, the glass standing on a small dessert plate which will hold also the slice of cake served with the iced dessert. Gelatine puddings served with rich strawberry preserves and real cream are delicious for the luncheon sweet when served in these tall glasses on slender stems.

Two conveniences there are which no housekeeper should be without—a mayonnaise mixer and a cocktail shaker. The latter may be used to concoct many delicious luncheon beverages and will find its appreciated place in the home even if it never knows the ingredients of a cocktail. A new mixer which costs less than a dollar has measuring marks in the glass so that quantities can be measured quickly without recourse to spoonfuls, and in the cover of the shaker is a lemon squeezer.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, AUGUST 21, 1916.

COL. COLGATE HAS EARNED PROMOTION.

If he were not a candidate for public office it would be an easy matter to stir up enthusiasm in the breast of every New Jersey taxpayer over the record of Col. Austen Colgate, who resigned his seat in the State Senate last Saturday. As Col. Colgate is seeking votes just now, an honest review of his record will be credited to a campaign press agent by many of those who are most interested and only the really thinking citizen will recognize the fact that his career as a lawmaker stands out in the history of the State because of his faithful attendance, his loyalty, his courage in the advocacy of new and untried measures for the betterment of the working people, and his success in creating constructive legislation governing a wide field.

Senator Colgate was elected to the Legislature for the first time in 1903. He served as a member of the Assembly in 1906, 1908 and 1909. In 1911 he was elected State Senator and was re-elected in 1914.

His record for attendance was a remarkable one, as during his whole period of service in both House and Senate he has not been recorded as absent more than half a dozen times. During one session he suffered from painful injuries to his eyes, the result of a serious accident, yet he was a constant attendant.

The records of both houses show that he has not sought to dodge responsibility by declining to be recorded when a measure came up for a vote. They also show that he has been persistent in his advocacy of measures which he believed to be worthy but which met with opposition. Some of these measures he has introduced year after year until his efforts were finally crowned with success.

As a member of the State Senate, he is said to have handled more bills than any of his colleagues in that body.

Some of the important automobile measures which he introduced and sponsored and which are now on the statute books are those making it a misdemeanor to drive motor vehicles without the consent of the owner or to display a false registry number; establishing speed limits for automobiles, forbidding excessive noises from motor cars (known as the "muffler cut-out" bill), permitting use of chains on auto tires at all seasons as a measure of safety and making it compulsory to have lights on horse-drawn vehicles at night.

The introduction of the woman police officer in New Jersey, with its beneficial results in the protection of women and girls, was at Senator Colgate's initiative.

Other measures which he introduced and which are now a part of the laws of the State gave power to extend the Rockefeller research work to New Jersey, permitting the incorporation of the Lloyds in New Jersey; allowed insurance companies to issue death and disability benefits to employes other than officers and to retire employes on pension, gave power to condemn lands for purposes of pure water supply for municipalities, enabled the Prudential Insurance Company to carry out its plan of mutualization, permitted Y. W. C. A.'s to incorporate and allowed them the same legal rights as Y. M. C. A.'s, established colonies for the care of feeble-minded males, empowered the Commission for the Blind to inquire into the cause of blindness, authorized Boards of Freeholders to employ nurses to discover and attend cases of tuberculosis, provided safeguards in connection with the incarceration and care of the insane and empowered the Board of Commerce and Navigation to negotiate with the Federal Government for the improvement of salt marsh lands.

Among the fish and game laws at his initiative was one forbidding the use of explosives in catching food fish in the Delaware river and other similar abuses and the one providing for a Tri-State Commission of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware for protection of food fish in the Delaware river.

Of the measures which he introduced at the last session of the Legislature and which were enacted into law the most important, in the general view, is the one which creates a Workmen's Compensation Bureau in the State Department of Labor. The effect of this is to simplify and facilitate the workings of the compensation act.

His career is truly one of service, and if there is such a thing as deserved promotion in the management of the people's business, Col. Colgate should soon occupy the higher position that he has earned.

WILSON AND MARTINE.

While Mr. Wilson has not openly advocated the election of Attorney General Wescott to the United States Senate from New Jersey, he has given every aid possible to the State officeholder. Following the selection of Gen. Wescott to make the nominating speech at St. Louis, which was sufficient notice to New Jersey voters of the personal preference of the President in the senatorial primaries, Mr. Wilson selected the Hon. W. L. Saunders, of Plainfield, as a member of the National Democratic Campaign Committee, and now Mr. Saunders is publicly leading the Wescott fight on Senator James E. Martine. It is not merely a coincidence that the Wescott campaign manager should be from the home town of the Farmer Orator. He was probably selected as much for the influence his name would have in creating the impression that Plainfield was not for Martine as for his qualifications as a political leader. If there was any doubt in the minds of voters as to the stand of the President it must have passed when they saw the name of Saunders put forth as the Wescott manager. If Mr. Wilson were not determined to take a hand in the fight and bring about the defeat of Senator Martine he would never permit one of his campaign committee to become actively interested in the primary fight.

General Funston, it is understood, has recommended the withdrawal of United States troops from Mexico. The request is based on his belief, it is said, that the purpose of the punitive expedition has been accomplished, and the soldiers under Pershing are powerless to move unless attacked, because of orders sent from Washington. This story does not harmonize with the record of Funston. When Pershing went into Mexico his orders were "Villa, dead or alive," and all evidence leads to the belief that Gen. Villa is very much alive, but if it is true that Washington has handicapped the expedition by ordering it to remain in camp, the lives of the men are endangered and they cannot accomplish anything except to provoke an open break with the Carranza forces.

On the Spur of the Moment

by Roy K. Moulton

Enough—That's All.

I do not pine for millions—
A croesus to be—
A haughty king of finance,
Like gold-crazed John D.
I simply want of riches
In weight to match my heft—
Enough to pay the coal man
And have a dollar left.

I do not long for noodles
Of stocks and bonds and such;
I scorn the blight of Mammon—
His cursed, cankering touch.
I only ask of Fortune
Enough of toadskins bright
To settle with the meat man
And leave a "plunk" in sight.

You do not hear me sobbing
For wealth in wholesale lots—
The kind that's gained by scheming,
By foxy, frenzied plots.
Count me with those that money
Of sense has not bereft,
Let me but pay the gas man
And have my wallet left.

Simple Things.

Some folks are prone to mope about, and find a little fault and pout about their walks in life; they long to do the greatest things, and soar aloft on eagle's wings, but shun life's toil and strife. They seek to conquer worlds or naught, and that is why they're never sought to help in times of need; that's why they fail to make the grade and always linger in the shade—at last to go to seed. 'Tis better far to earn a cent, than loaf till all of life is spent in pouting and complaint. 'Tis best to do the deeds that help to make a better man of self, and hold pride in restraint. One gains much more by making wood or heaving tons of coal; than lying idle half the year and living in the mortal fear one will not reach his goal. The thrifty hen that lays the egg, is not seen standing on one leg or leaning 'gainst a post; she's digging busily away from early morn till close of day, and never stops to boast. And so the man the highest up, got there because he'd share his cup with laborer or king; he didn't hesitate to do the tasks which might appear to you as just the simple things.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank all those who helped me during my misfortune of losing a cow. Especially do I wish to thank Mr. Nick Koivisto, who collected $35.10, and Mrs. Hill, who collected $11.75.

I hope God will give success to all these people all through life. Mr. Nick Nantha.—Adv. in Two Harbors (Minn.) Jaurnel-News.

The Gravel Pitters.

A Michigan exchange says:

While Mr. Frank Shindeldecker and his stalwart sons the prominent gravel pitters, were gravel pitting the other day, they suddenly came upon a huge human skeleton, which, for they were unable to recall so much as a legend of any mysterious murder in that vicinity, and the Shindeldecker imagination is not quite up to Mound Builder standards, they reluctantly diagnosed as merely that of some famous Indian chieftain, whereupon they proceeded quietly with their gavel pitting.

Just Buying Things.

A stranger came to see me,
He was a pleasant man.
And so I bought a phonograph
On the installment plan.
Of course, I didn't need it,
But when his terms I got,
It really seemed much cheaper
To buy the thing than not.

Another stranger reached us,
He had lawn mowers to sell
On easy-pay installments,
And so, of course, we fell.
One more had pianolas,
And they were very cheap,
Ten cents a month or thereabouts.
And we took one, to keep.

'Twas that way, too, with wringers,
Gas ranges fancy clocks,
And with vacuum cleaners,
And shirts and pants and socks.
And so the thing continued;
In our installment greed,
We bought wheel chairs and crutches
And junk we did not need.
We're not gay and light-hearted,
And not inclined to brag,
As we did ere we started
On our installment jag.
We have no peace and quiet
That we enjoyed of yore.
There are nineteen collectors,
Each day before our door.

months in Newark during the anniversary celebration is announced as the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre today, matinee and night. The advent of this company is one that has become an annual event which is looked forward to by the regular patrons of burlesque, and this season, because of the tremendous favor with which Newark received the organization, its appearance here is one that will appeal to the general theatre going public.

The program that is to be presented here will be identically the same as was offered during the long run in Newark. It comprises a one-act opening burlesque. During the action of the first part there has been interpolated a series of French dances of the day, which are performed by Jules LaBarbe and Aline Donaire, who are pronounced to be the foremost of French pantomimists.

The company and production comes to this city without a single change having been made in the cast since its Newark engagement. Jim Barton will be supported by many well known favorites, among whom are John Barry, Arthur Young, Drena Mack, Nellie O'Connor, Jim Howell, Mike Orbin, Arline Donaire, Jules LaBarbe and the beauty chorus of more than a score of girls, all of whom can sing and dance. In addition there is also a male chorus of picked voices.

"SAFETY FIRST"

- Proctor's Theatre -

AT PROCTOR'S WEDNESDAY.

B. S. Moss has produced a remarkable picturization of Elinor Glyn's famous novel, "One Day," which is the headline attraction at Proctor's today and which is unreservedly one of the best photoplays released this year, and has served as a satisfying medium of entertainment wherever shown. Excellent lighting, many elaborate sets, interior and exterior, a well-picked cast whose work gives finish to the story development—all these make the Moss film distinctive. But for all this, it is necessary to make special reference to Miss Jeanne Iver, the star, whose winsome beauty, compelling personality and superb acting do as much for the success of the film as anything. This picture was booked to play Proctor's some time ago, but owing to objection from different sources was postponed indefinitely. Since that time the management arranged for a special presentation of this much talked of production before the local censors, with the result that it was unanimously passed as a fitting production to be presented to local amusement seekers. There will be an abundance of other splendid photoplays, and an added attraction will be the rendition by Gertrude Hornidge of the popular class Gounod's "Ave Maria."

Tomorrow DeWolf Hopper, the inimitable comedian, will greet his many friends in "Stranded," in which he is ably assisted by petite Bessie Love. This new vehicle of Hopper's is the work of Anita Loos, who has made a wonderful reputation for herself as a scenario writer. It is simple, touching, filled with both thrills and heart interest—the kind of play that film fans will watch from start to finish with both interest and sympathy. In addition, tomorrow an uproarously funny Keystone comedy and the eleventh episode of "The Secret of the Submarine" will be presented.

On Wednesday William Fox offers George Walsh and Anna Luther in "The Beast," the virile story of a bad man's reformation.

PRINCETON'S MEMORIAL TO THE LATE "JOHNNY" POE

Princeton, N.J., Aug. 21.—When the tens of thousands of American football enthusiasts who annually visit Princeton step from their trains this fall they will pause for a moment to pay tribute to a fallen hero. No football crowd has before paid such tribute, and doubtless none will again. For Johnny Poe, football star, class president and "good fellow," is dead on the field of honor "somewhere in France," and all Princeton is honoring his memory.

Shortly after Poe's death while fighting with the "Black Watch" in France last September Princeton alumni joined together to contribute to a memorial, and, with the class of 1895 leading, several thousand dollars were raised. Now a large plot of ground has been set aside south of the university campus, and this week the work of grading and preparing this section for student athletics is well under way. To the college student it will be another of the many baseball and soccer fields provided for this use, but to Princeton "grads" and the other thousands who cherish Princeton history it will always be "Poe Field," a memorial spot.

The location of the field is in the path of those visitors to Princeton who arrive at the lower yards and go from there to the Stadium, and it is on this account that the field will be the first corner of the campus which they will pass. It has been proposed to erect some kind of a formal memorial on the field, but plans for this have not yet been completed.

FEAR OF GALLOWS DRIVES HIM INSANE

Former Denver Society Man Who Committed Double Murder, Goes to Asylum.

Denver, Col., Aug. 21.—A haunting fear of the gallows has driven Harold Frank Henwood insane and he has been transferred from the laundry of the State prison to the ward set apart for the criminal insane. Ever since the night of May 24, 1911, when Henwood shot and killed Sylvester Von Phul and George E. Copeland and seriously wounded John W. Atkinson in a drunken row in the bar of the Brown Hotel, this one time society man has held this fear, and at last his mentality has given way and he is hopelessly insane, according to expert alienists.

Henwood's hallucination is that he has electric wires in his head. And, despite the commutation of his sentence of death granted by the Governor on October 16, 1914, he yet holds to the belief that he is going to be hanged for the killing of the two men he shot to death five years ago.

Henwood has shown signs of violent insanity for several months, say the prison officials, who have been keeping close watch upon his movements. A year ago the head of the prison medical staff recommended that Henwood be given hard manual labor as a means of effecting a cure of his mental trouble. It was thought that physical labor would clear his mind and produce sound sleep. This treatment was tried, but failed to produce the desired effect.

It made no difference, however, in the mental condition where he worked or what labor he performed. He tossed and tumbled all night, moaning aloud and crying out many times that the electric wires in his head were slowly burning him to death. This continued until two weeks ago, when he grew violent and it became necessary to confine him in the ward for the criminal insane.

Henwood's mental malady is not uncommon to those who have been sentenced to death on a murder charge, say the criminologists. The circumstances of the killing are always before them after an exhausting trial, such as Henwood underwent upon two occasions in Denver, and when the death sentence has been pronounced it may as well be executed, say these experts, so far as the mentality of the condemned is concerned, because he is never able to recover from the shock of the sentence.

Henwood was first tried July 29, 1911, two months after the date he shot Von Phul and Copeland to death. He was charged with the killing of the first named and the verdict was murder in the second degree. He appealed and a new trial was ordered. While his case remained under consideration by the higher tribunal Henwood was kept confined in the county jail.

He was placed on trial the second time in June, 1913, the charge in that case being the slaying of George E. Copeland, who was a bystander and was accidentally shot by Henwood while the last named was firing his revolver at Von Phul. The verdict in that case was first degree murder, and he was sentenced to be hanged the week of November 1, 1913.

SAYS WE BECOME CRANKS ON HOT WATER DRINKING

Hopes every man and woman adopts this splendid morning habit.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice the drinking of phosphated hot water before breakfast, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons in the bowels which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store but it is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.—Adv.

ANNETTE KELLERMANN TELLS HOW TO GAIN SPEED WITH UNDER-ARM SIDE-STROKE

Position For The Plainfield Daily Press Pupils to Take Is Natural One, As If Lying On Bed With Your Head on the Pillow.

Article No. 18.

By ANNETTE KELLERMANN.

International Record-Holder and Star of the William Fox $1,000,000 Film "A Daughter of the Gods."

This is the second installment of my lesson on the single under-arm sroke movement. Today I wish to teach you the arm movement of this stroke.

Assume the same position as in the leg movement. Now bring the right arm up under your side with the palm of the hand in the same position as the start of the breast stroke. After you have done this bring the left hand clongside the right and place it in line with the left hand.

Keep your elbows close to the body. Your hands are now in the same position you take at the start of the breast stroke, except that you are lying on your right side. Forget the legs for a few minutes.

The first movement: Shoot out the right hand, straight out as far ahead as you can keep it in a direct line with the head. Now move the left hand, using the palm of the hand as a scoop down along the side of the body until it rests on the thighs of the left leg. Keep the hand close to the body while executing this movement.

Now bring them both together. Do the movement simultaneously, the way I have just shown you.

Remember the left hand is to pull you forward, so be sure the palm presses with full force against the water. Now the right hand must be pressed downward until it reaches the hip, just enough to aid your forward movement. With the united movements of the arms moving in perfect accord, you will be surprised what speed you can attain.

Now combine the movements of the legs and arms. When the hands meet and start the legs are brought up at the same time and with the shooting out of the arms and their downward movement simultaneously kick out so that when the left arm reaches the thighs the leg movement will have been completed and as the arms return the feet are snapped together and prepared for the repeat movement.

One other thing to remember is this: When the left arm is coming down the legs should be kicking about.

When you have become thoroughly accustomed to this movement enter the water. Instead of keeping your head out of the water let it rest well in the water. Assume the same position as you would lying in a bed with your head resting on a pillow. Remain on the right side with the back of the head well immersed in the water.

Tomorrow—The Single Over-Arm Stroke. This is one of the most beautiful in swimming when properly made. Miss Kellermann will tell you how to achieve this gracefully.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How a Little Mermaid Longed To Visit Land.

Lights Twinkled Like Hundreds of Stars.

[Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.]

DADDY was telling Jack and Evelyn that the little mermaids' grandmother always called birds fishes because the mermaid children had never seen birds and could not understand what she meant by birds singing: "'When you are fifteen,' the grandmother was always promising them, 'I will let you rise up from the sea's bottom and sit on the rocks in the moonlight. Then you can see the big ships sailing by, and you can also see woods and towns.'

"Now it happened," daddy went on, "that one of the mermaids would be fifteen the next year. Each mermaid was one year younger than the one before her, so that the youngest one had to wait five years before she could pay her first visit to the earth.

"So each mermaid promised the others to tell them everything she had seen and found wonderful the first day on earth. Their grandmother could never tell them enough, there were so many things they wanted to know, you see.

"But none of the mermaids longed for a glimpse of the earth so constantly as the youngest, the one who had to wait the longest of all. She was the quiet, dreamy one. Many a night she stood by the open windows of the sea palace and looked up through the dark blue water which the fishes were lashing with their fins and tails.

"She could see the moon and the stars faintly. Their light was pale coming through the waves, but they looked much bigger through the water than they do to our eyes. Whenever she saw a dark shadow gliding between her and the stars she knew it was either a whale swimming above her or a ship full of earth people. I am sure they never dreamed a beautiful little mermaid was standing down below them, stretching her lovely white arms up toward the keel.

"The oldest mermaid princess at last reached her fifteenth birthday and was to venture above water. When she came back she had hundreds of interesting things to tell her family. But she said the most delightful thing of all was lying in the moonlight on a sand bank in a calm sea and gazing up at a large town close to the shore where the lights twinkled like hundreds of stars. She also liked to listen to music and the bustle of people going about in carriages, to see church spires and hear the bells ringing, and just because she could not go on shore she longed for that most of all," daddy finished.

"Oh, thank you, daddy!" cried the children.

And daddy hugged them good night.

Marrying a Butterfly

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel Plans a Thanksgiving Dinner That Will Do Justice to the Day.

"Ralph, did your mother go home?" Ralph Gordon looked up at his wife in surprise.

"Please explain," he answered looking sharply at Ethel.

"Oh, I know that she was here taking care of you while I was away, and I expected to find here here when I came home. I hope she has not gone home without visiting me as well as you." Ethel put here head on one side and smiled archly at her husband.

"How did you learn that she was here?" persisted Ralph.

"Nell wrote to Mrs. Morton about it. Come now, aren't you almost ready to answer my question?"

"No, she has not gone home. She is visiting her brother in the southern part of the State."

"Good!" exclaimed Ethel. "I do want her to visit here now that you have a housekeeper," she added, smiling up into his face.

"Mother herself proposed to go to her brother's and so leaving the coast clear for your reforms. She said she felt sure you would prefer to be alone when you first came back."

"How dear of her. I know she must be a very tactful woman. I did want you all to myself. It was a sort of a honeymoon, you see, for I had never really settled into domestic harness." Ethel was standing by his chair and swooped down on the arm and wound herself around his neck. "I never was so happy in my life as I have been these days since I came home." Ralph smiled contentedly into her face. "I feel sometimes that I am 'called to preach.' I would like to get all the dolls and butterflies together and lecture them! tell them what a mistake they are making just from the standpoint of their own happiness, if they are selfish enough not to care for the happiness of anyone else, as I was," she added, dropping her eyes. "I believe I might do good, being an ex-doll and butterfly myself, my words might have weight.

Ralph swept her off the arm of the chair onto his knee. "I really cannot spare you to 'mount the scaffold,' as an old lady I knew used to call the lecture platform. You are very necessary in my business." He pinched her chin.

"Do you know that next Thursday is Thanksgiving?" asked Ethel irrelevently.

"Indeed, was that the date you had fixed in your mind to begin your lectures?" teased Ralph.

"No, I am minded to give a dinner on that day," began Ethel impressively. "My first dinner, cooked by myself."

"Glorious! go on."

"And I want your mother to come, of course. We can get her here in time, can't we?" Ethel looked up anxiously. Ralph nodded.

"And I want to invite dear old Mr. and Mrs. Morton. You must know her. Yes, and he is just as fine in his way. I call them my 'near parents.'"

"That will be some party, my dear. I will write to mother at once" exclaimed Ralph jubilantly. The whole world was rose tinted these days for him.

"No, I want to ask her myself. I have never written to her as I should." Ralph folded her in his arms and the flow of conversation was stopped for some minutes. Finally he said, "I wonder if the Mortons will acept your invitation. They usually come to the son's for Thanksgiving.

"Oh, I intend to ask Nell and her husband and little Hal, of course," was the cheerful reply.

"Great Scott! girlie. Aren't you going in pretty deep for so young a cook?" laughed Ralph.

"I can do it," was the confident reply.

"Of course mother will be here to help you," encouraged Ralph.

"She may do all she pleases to help with anything except the dinner. That dinner I am going to cook." There was decision in her tone.

"I'll bank on its success, girlie." Ralph's eyes glowed with pride.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

Mrs. Helen King Robinson, Colorado's first woman State Senator, who is now actively engaged in the movement to promote the interests of equal suffrage while the Presidential campaign is on, is a native of Maine, and was educated at Wellesley College. She married Ewing Robinson, a Denver attorney, in 1902. Mrs. Robinson has long been a contributor to magazines and newspapers, and has lectured throughout the United States in the interest of suffrage and labor. She was chairman of the Woman's League, now disbanded, which won municipal ownership of the water plant at Denver, and is now a member of the National Commission on Prison Labor.

Should Spain's efforts to bring about the holding at Madrid of the peace conference which must follow the cessation of hostilities be successful, Queen Victoria Ena, one of the youngest and most beautiful of Europe's royal women, will become the most famous hostess in the world. Many of the world's most brilliant men will assemble at the conference, and the Queen's duty will be to entertain these guests of Spain and their wives on an extensive and royal scale. It is said that the young Queen, who is yet in her twenties, would greatly welcome the call for such brilliant fetes at the stately and somewhat formal Castillian court, which, in spite of King Alphonso's democratic ways, still remains the most ceremonious in Europe. The Queen is fond of dress and one of the most lavish customers of the great Paris dressmakers, her dress bills running up to more than $15,000 yearly.

While the graceful kimono gains more and more favor among American women for boudoir wear, there is a movement for its discard in Japan itself for general wear, "dress reform being rampant in the Cherry Blossom Land, as everything else, in the effort to make working clothes for women more convenient than picturesque. It is said that the kimono is not only impractical, impeding movement as it does, but very expensive in both time and material, the great majority of the women of the middle and lower classes having to devote a vast amount of time to the weaving of the necessary cloth. If the kimono is at all "dressy," elaborate embroidery by hand consumes more time. Educated women are at the head of the "reform the kimono" movement, and are preaching to their sisters of the peasant and artisan classes a greater simplicity and economy of dress. This extremely charming and graceful garment is therefore assailed from every quarter, for among the very wealthy Japanese there has been for years a greater and greater tendency to adopt the conventional European dress.

Mrs. Dolly Ledgerwood Matters, of Chicago, who recently figured in a sensational case of baby by substitution, claiming as her child and heiress to the vast wealth left by her late husband a little girl whose parentship was finally awarded to Miss Margaret Ryan, a Canadian girl, has gone on the stage. She made her appearance in vaudeville shortly after the close of the trial, telling her audience that she was taking that means to raise money to appeal her case and get back "her baby," taken from her in the Federal court. The child, whose father, according to Miss Ryan's story, is a Canadian soldier now fighting in Flanders, has been taken to Ottawa by the woman whom Judge Landis pronounced its mother.

Mrs. L. A. Greyer, a Boston artist, was recently "dared" by W. H. Drown, another Boston artist, to wear on the principal streets of three New England cities an elaborate toilette consisting of hand painted satin gown, hat, shoes, stockings, gloves and parasol, all showing the same harmonious floral design in Mrs. Greyer's own handiwork. Mrs. Greyer calmly took up the challenge, and, with Mr. Drown following, visited Providence and Worcester after parading in conservative Boston itself with the sumptuous garments. Mr. Drown's $50 went to the Red Cross, and he now refuses to perform the same "stunt" in a hand painted straw hat, claiming that "it takes more nerve than a man has to do those things."

Miss Ethel Ranzone, head of the department of home economies at the University of Missouri, believes that if women are to compete with men in the business world one of the essential things they must do is to adopt standard clothing which does not interfere with their work. To this end she has in her courses on clothing at the university worked out what may be considered a standard dress. It consists of a short, full skirt hanging from the shoulders by means of a sleeveless underwaist, which takes the place of the corset. Over this is worn a Russian blouse, loosely belted in, and open at the neck, with rolling collar. Both blouse and skirt button straight down the front to facilitate fastening and laundering. Miss Ranzone discussed the new dress at one of the sessions of the National Educational Association convention in New York recently, and also before the meetings of the American Home Economics Association at Ithaca this summer, where her enthusiasm for a standard dress for women gained many advocates.

PARIS STILL FEATURES DRAPERY.

While Fulness Is Extensively Featured the Silhouette Is Not Extreme.

By Mary Glynn.

Drapery has had its fling, and though it might not be realized, it is a fact that much of the bouffancy that was and is in many of the fashionable creations is nothing more or less than drapery supported by boning, wichtex, or horsehair braid. The materials used for supporting these bouffant effects is now being used more sparingly, consequently the garment takes on the effect of drapery. Some of the very latest Paris creations appear to be a degree between a bouffant effect and just a gracefully draped affair. An evening gown, recently launched by Premet, is made of rose changeable faille silk, with wide and rather short skirt. Though very full, the skirt hangs in rather straight lines. A very attractive drape of the material starts at the hips and flares outward on the sides. It lengthens towards the front, producing the effect of a pointed tunic. Not less unusual and attractive is the bodice, an extremely simple affair, which appears to be a swatch of material just draped across the shoulders, leaving room for the arms to emerge. A very rich and exquisite embroidery design in the shape of a medallion decorates the front and is worked in lovely shades of rose. The neck line afforded by the arrangement is very charming if at all becoming. Silk hose and button pumps to match the gown are worn.

The college girl who is up-to-minute in sport toggery will have a campus coat of pontine, the new waxed fabric with a reverse side of satin, so that while the outer side is rainproof the inner side forms its own lining, and one has a delightful all-weather coat warm as toast, yet light as heart could wish. This most attractive pontine campus coat is orange colored on the outer, or waxed side, and has a reverse or lining side of bright green satin. A sport skirt of brown jersey cloth is short enough to show buttoned boots of tobacco glazed kid with white tops. The artist tam is of brown faille silk.

JERSEY GOWNS FOR FALL.

These Fashioned on Simple Lines and Often Fur Trimmed—Fabric Introduced in Rich Colors.

By Mary Glynn.

A new material called La Jerz is being shown in some of the newest one-pieced dresses. It is quite like the jersey silk that has been featured, though this latter development seems to have more body. It is shown in a number of very attractive colors, many of them being soft, rich, sombre shades. A most attractive one-piece gown has just been shown developed in maroon colored La Jerz. It hangs from the shoulder to hem, and the fulness is confined at the waistline by a narrow corded belt of self material. This cording is repeated on the cuffs and "V" neck collar, lending a very effective finish. A dainty embroidered batiste collar affords a brightening touch. Seal fur is introduced in a three-inch band on the hem of the skirt, this weighing down the fulness in a graceful manner. Smart high button boots and a velvet turban were worn with this attractive gown.

Saturday's Results.

Tabs 7; Baptists, 5.
Hopes, 10; Netherwood, 7.

The semi-final lap in the City League was contested on the local field, Saturday, with the Hopes battling the Netherwoods and the Tabs tackling the Baptists. The contest indulged in by the Hopes and Netherwoods was an interesting affair, although it was a slugfest from start to finish, the Chapel corps leading in the swatting. The Netherwoods, who have already cinched the City League flag, were not over anxious about the game or its result, but, still they played to win. But the Hopes were "there" ahead of them and when the ninth inning rolled around, the East Enders had to admit of defeat.

The Tabs, with Tone Denny in the box, had little trouble defeating the Baptists. The Firsts put up a game fight, with their manager, Duncan Patterson on the firing line in the absence of the regular heaver, Freddy Mills. "Dunc" did well and tried hard to obtain the verdict. Tone Denny, who was prevailed upon to adorn the mound once more, did splendidly and may listen to further inducements.

The Dunellen team spent the afternoon in spoiling the "rep" of the Royal Giants, and in slamming a Carlisle Indian pitcher to all corners of the lot. The Farmers, the only other City League unaccounted for, watched the Dunellen team in action. And it was some action, too.

There were only two league contests played. On next Saturday three games will be contested and on the following Saturday one game will be played. This game will end a most successful league season. The Dunellen team has already arranged to play the Royal Giants again on September 2.

There will be a City League meeting this evening and at this meeting Walter C. Dobbins, president of the circuit, will be present. It is expected that the subject of the forfeited Hope-Baptist game will be discussed.

CARLISLE INDIAN NO PUZZLE TO DUNELLEN

Royal Giants Make Exceedingly Poor Showing On Maurer Oval.

"Hail the Conquering Heroes Come," was the tune the fanthom Dunellen band played when the Royal Giants, headed by a stalwart "brave" marched on the field at Maurer Oval on Saturday. While the Royals were far from heroes as far as baseball ability is concerned, still they made a very promising appearance and few thought that they would go down to an 11 to 2 defeat at the hands of the City League artists. But it was just another case of where the unexepected happened.

Johnny Dixon was Manager Tommy Apgar's choice for pitcher and Johnny was in fine fettle. He had the Royal Giants eating out of his hand at all stages of the conflict and allowed but one hit that was in any way worthy of the name. The other two hits recorded against him were of the scratch variety and pronouncedly so, at that. "Senor" Maiden sprinted exceptionally fast to first on one occasion and "Tune" Kline did a "Randoph Granger" on another. Borden, who by the way, was presented all sorts of baseball arguments in support of a contention he made regarding a decision made by Umpire Coriell, was the only Royal Giant to hit the ball in any appreciable fashion.

A "shoestring" catch with accent one the "shoestring" was exhibited by Jimmy Emery during the course of the afternoon. The whole Dunellen team played errorless ball, while the Royals piled up eight mistakes. Morris, the Royal pitcher, was greeted very prettily and banged all over the lot. However, on several occasions, taps that went for hits could have been fielded.

A return match between the two teams will be played on the second of September.

Competition in the tennis tournament now in progress on the courts at St. Mary's School continued yesterday, the results of the sets played making a decided change in the standing of the teams.

Two sets were played on Saturday, the Keating-Deady combination defeating the McEvoy-Leary duo 6 to 3. The losers, however, turned the tables in the set that followed, winning 6—4. In the sets played yesterday, the Powelson-Gallagher combination advanced to the top, securing a firmer grip on the lead in the tourney. MORRIS, CARLISLE INDIANS' CRACK HURLER, HELD NO TERRORS FOR TAB BATTERS

Indian On "Warpath" But Abstainers Pay No Heed—Pound Him All Over Lot—"Come-Back" Stunt Fails—Royal Giants Silenced.

Although determined to avenge an overwhelming defeat suffered at the hands of one John Dixon and eight other Dunellen baseball stars, the Royal Giants were forced to acknowledge the all around supremacy of the Tabs on Avon Oval yesterday afternoon. The Giants were defeated 6 to 3, and are now willing to take back anything they ever said regarding the ability of Mickey McFadden, the Tab pitcher.

Morris, a Carlisle Indian pitcher, who is supposed to have held the Lincoln Giants to three hits at one time, essayed a "comeback" stunt after being walloped by the Dunellen team. But Morris failed to "come back," and was pounded to all corners of the lot, being made the victim of a volley of fourteen hits. Frank Teeling, who is not generally considered a heavy hitter, getting four of these clouts. Eddie Hannon clouted out two hits, as did Benny Rosenson. "Mickey" McCarty contributeed three blows to the fourteen swats, that have probably spelled "canned" for Mr. Morris.

The Royals made "meat" of McFadden on a previous occasion, but Mickey made them all look "homesick" yesterday.

Waldorf, a Harlem favorite, was the Royal catcher. He performed in creditable fashion behind the bat, but even his reported batting ability failed to rattle McFadden.

The third and deciding game of the series will be p[illegible] near future. Wonder if the Roy[illegible] will "pad" up?

NETHERWOOD LOSES TO CHAPEL OUTFIT

Jimmy Montross Holds League Champions In Check.

The Hope Chapel baseball team had little trouble defeating the Netherwood club on the South Avenue Field, Saturday, the score of the contest being 10 to 7. Jimmy Montross occupied the mound for the East End combination and handled the work in great style, allowing only nine hits and keeping these far between. The East Enders made a game effort to win the contest, but's were turned back at every angle by the Hopes.

By virtue of their victory over the league champions, the Chapel lads are now tied for second place honors, the Dunellen team being the other occupant of the second station. Russ Stewart was no puzzle to the Martins, who caused his removal from the mound in the fifth inning. Thorn then ascended the hillock and was greeted in clever fashion by the Hopes.

C. to a hard-won victory in the quarter-mile junior metropolitan championship swim, held in connection with the Jamaica Bay Yacht Club's annual water carnival at Holland, Rockaway Beach, yesterday. Pressed hard throughout the two furlongs by his clubmate, John Ch[illegible] Lee, Giebel splashed past the fi[illegible] post in 6:27 2-5; the fastest time made in the titular contest.

TONE DENNY HURLS TABS TO VICTORY

Former Plainfield High School Hurler Does Exceptionally Well.

Dunc Patterson "adorned" the mound for the Baptist baseball team on Saturday, opposing Tone Denny, the diminutive Tab and erstwhile Plainfield High School hurler who had to be "induced" to take up the pitching burden and who came out victorious, the score being 7 to 5 in the Tabs' favor.

While Manager Patterson was touched for twelve hits, nevertheless he kept these well divided and runs were bunched only in the third frame. The Baptists made a very promising start and followed it up by capturing a run in the second and third innings. Thereafter, however, they could not score. The Tabs were equally as helpless until the eighth frame, when two runs were pushed over the pan. These two tallies were the deciding tallies of the contest and upset all the well groomed plans of the Baptist combination.

Daniel Randolph continued his hitting, obtaining his weekly assortment of two drives. The Tabs played good ball, making but one error.

BRAVES IN AGAIN.

Formal complaint to President Tener, of the National League, is on its way from Schuyler Britton, the St. Louis baseball magnate, regarding the alleged misconduct of four Boston players recently. Mr. Britton charges that these four members of the Braves used rough and coarse language to him Saturday because he wouldn't open a certain gate to the park to let them in. He declares their language is deserving of a reprimand and of a fine or suspension.

CLAYBROOK WILL NOT ENTER RACE

Tells Democratic Club He Could Not Accept Nomination For Mayor.

URGE A FULL TICKET

Inattention of Republican Officials to Wants and Needs of People Give Democrats a Chance for City Offices.

The time has arrived for a Democratic ticket for all municipal offices in Plainfield, according to expressions at last night's meeting of the Democratic Club, when it was charged that the inattention of public officeholders to the wants and needs of the people had brought general dissatisfaction with the Republican administration.

Richard A. Claybrook, president of the club, last night refused to consider the nomination for Mayor. The club sought to indorse him for the nomination, but he declined to run, saying that the condition of his health would not permit him to accept.

A committee on candidates, the duty of which will be to get men to run for city offices, was named. Peter Flynn is chairman of this committee.

The men now in the Council have been busy doing things the people have not asked for and have failed to do what the voters would have them, according to those who argued for the success of Democratic candidates, and as instances of misgovernment the condition of Cedarbrook, the recent damage done by flood waters and the subsequent falling off of real estate values because of the failure of the city to protect property were quoted.

Howard G. Lapsley differed from those who would put out a full ticket, as he indorsed Mayor Calkins and Councilman Hamilton, of the Second Ward. Mr. Lapsley's address follows:

"During this terrible time of world war we must make politics a secondary consideration to humanity and patriotism. However, with local, State and national campaigns developing, we must begin to think of the part various factors are going to play in the next election.

"Starting with the local situation, we find one very unfortunate element entering the arena. There has been for many years a Prohibition party. A party purely and simply prohibition. The group referred to do not seem willing to constitute themselves a prohibition party, but are assuming to hold over the heads of both old party candidates the bait of support from this group of "Democratic-Republican-Prohibitionists." In view of the fact that this same group, or parts of it, have absolutely failed to help elect to office in the past candidates who have accepted the prohibition plank, it would seem advisable for candidates to ignore their help or their threats. Let them come out with their own ticket, label it prohibition and let the voters decide this question on its merit and not under a disguise.

"To the end of clean, business-like politics, I would recommend the reelection of Mr. Hamilton as Councilman of the Second Ward. He has efficiently served one term, and, based on past performances, should serve another.

"In view of the eminently successful administration of Mayor Calkins, an officeholder whose decisions have been quoted nationally and whose work has spelled progress in many ways, it appears wise, just and deliberately friendly for all Plainfield Democrats to urge him to remain in office for another term.

"Few people appreciate the sacrifices which a man like Mr. Calkins makes to be Mayor of Plainfield. The work is hard, and the only real compensation comes through the votes of a duly appreciative electorate. We should all co-operate to leave the reins of government in the hands of a man so well qualified to handle them.

"Going beyond the city election this year, there is nothing to it but a wholesale, overwhelming Democratic victory. In 1914 Mr. Tuttle was defeated by Mr. Capstick by only 1,165 votes in Union County. The presents is no time to temporize with party affiliations. Now, if ever, the United States must show the world a united, purely American front. If there was any but a picayune, political reason for standing by the McLemore resolution in Congress it hasn't yet been brought out. Also, if there is any good reason for not sending William E. Tuttle back to Congress I haven't heard it.

"Here in Plainfield we still speak of our honorable United States Senator as "Jim." After many years of friendship with Mr. Martine it certainly galled me, as it must have hurt him, to see that dirty broadside of innuendoes lately issued and published in his home town. Senator Martine is a man you can fight in the open. Anonymously assaulting a man helps more than it hinders him. An analysis of Mr. Martine's record in the Senate has been one of outspoken frankness, and if on a close study of that record anyone still thinks it incumbent on them to oppose his re-election at the primaries, which I don't think they will, fight him frankly, openly and above the

WENT FOR AUTO RIDE WITHOUT PERMISSION

Charles Knoski Took Joy Ride That Ended in Wreck of Employer's Machine.

Charles Knoski, of 209 West Second street, is now in the local police station awaiting the decision of his employer, J. D. Loizeaux, as to whether or not he will take action against him for causing the wreck of his automobile on the road between here and Metuchen Sunday night. Considerable mystery surrounded the finding of an overturned automobile on Park avenue over the city line Sunday night and it was further increased when two men applied to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment. Following an investigation Knoski and Fred Spencer, another employe of Mr. Loizeaux, were arrested, but the latter was let go as it was thought he was not to blame.

Wanting an automobile ride Sunday night and not knowing how to drive one himself Knoski told Spencer, it is said that Mr. Loizeaux had granted him the use of his car if Spencer would drive it. Spencer consented to drive and the two started for Metuchen, but in attempting to pass another machine the car turned over, practically wrecking it and injuring the two men.

Freeholder J. F. Buckle and Mayor pro tem Francis J. Blatz will attend a meeting in Elizabeth tomorrow afternoon on the isolation hospital question for Union county. The opinions of Mayors was asked, and Mr. Blatz is in favor of the community plan. It is likely that this will be adopted.

DEATH SUMMONS SARAH POWLISON

Well-Known Borough Resident Passes Away In Ninety-Third Year.

ILL BUT SHORT TIME

Was Native of Pluckemin and Lived In North Plainfield Forty Years—Funeral Services Tomorrow Evening.

Mrs. Sarah Van Arsdale Powlison, aged 93 and wife of the late Joseph S. Powlison, who died fourteen years ago, passed away last night after a short illness at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Andrew C. La Boyteaux, of 24 Grandview avenue. Mrs. Powlison was in her usual good health until Sunday night, when she suffered a stroke of paralysis and that together with her advanced age resulted in her death.

Despite her age Mrs. Powlison was remarkably active, and possessed all her facilities except eyesight.

Mrs. Powlison was born on a farm at Pluckemin in 1823, her parents being Peter and Elizabeth Van Arsdale, and she being one of six children. They were all born in the same house as their father, who died there at the age of 89.

At the age of 20 she made her first trip to New York city, the railroad from Somerville having just been opened. She made the trip to the terminus at Elizabethport and from there the trip was continued by boat.

Sixty years ago, under a bower of flowers, in her father's house, she became the bride of Joseph S. Powlison, who died here fifteen years ago. Rev. William Brush, pastor of the Dutch Reformed church, of Pluckemin, performed the ceremony. For the past thirty-seven years she had lived in North Plainfield, and previous to that time she lived in Pluckemin and for a few years at Bound Brook.

Mrs. Powlison attributed her wonderful vitality and happy life to her faith in her Master and to the clear pure air of Somerset county, and she said she wouldn't live anywhere else under any circumstances.

She was an active worker in the Congregational church and enjoyed the distinction of being not only the oldest member of the church, but she was also the oldest charter member. She was a worker in the various societies and organizations of the church until her advanced age forced her to give up her activities.

Mrs. Powlison is survived by three sons: John A., member of the firm of Powlison & Jones, the furniture dealers on East Front street, and Charles Powlison, whose work for the Child's Welfare League takes him all over the United States. There are four grandchildren, Ernest, Leslie, Samuel and Mildred Powlison, and three great-grandchildren, Elizabeth, John and Alice Powlison, all of North Plainfield.

Funeral services will be conducted at the home of her daughter tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, and will be in charge of the Rev. Howard E. Clark, pastor of the Congregational church. A short service will also be held Thursday morning at the Bedminster chapel, and interment will be made in Bedminster cemetery.

MRS. THEO. W. HILE DIES IN 46TH YEAR

She bore her suffering patiently to the end. Mrs. Hile was born at Bangor, Pa., and had lived in Plainfield twenty-three years.

Beside a husband, there survives a daughter, Miss Daisy K. Hile, and a son, Howard E. Hile; also a mother, Mrs. Catherine Houser, of Bangor; two sisters, Mrs. Martha Metzger and Mrs. Ella Freutchey, of Bangor, and two brothers, Edmund Houser, of Slatington, Pa., and John Houser, of Bangor.

CALKINS WILL NOT DODGE PUBLIC DUTY

Will Decide On Candidacy Soon, He Writes J. H. Crane.

Mayor Leighton Calkins will not "turn aside from a clearly defined public obligation" in regard to his candidacy for a second term as Mayor, according to a letter just received by J. Henry Crane, secretary of the Second Ward Republican Club. The letter was in answer to one recently written by Mr. Crane, telling of a resolution passed by the club at its meeting of a week ago, indorsing the administration of Mayor Calkins and urging him to accept a second term. It follows:

"Dear Mr. Crane:

"I am in receipt of yours of the 16th, enclosing resolution adopted by the Second Ward Republican Club, endorsing the administration of the affairs of the city and requesting me to be a candidate for another term. I am certain that you expect no special assurances that I value your commendation, and your confidence that I can be of further service to the city. Your action is appreciated all the more in view of your knowledge that I would not seek re-election and would prefer not to be considered a candidate; and if it is representative of any general sentiment that, having been of some service in certain new lines of municipal government, I ought to help in carrying the work a little farther forward—in such event it may be that my election to office two years ago, and acceptance of it, now imposes on me the obligation to decide what is my duty to the community. I feel that you overestimate the need of my return although I know that public like private, business generally suffers from frequent changes in organization. May I ask you to allow me time to consider the matter carefully? I shall try to reach a right decision and I shall not turn aside from a clearly defined public obligation.

"Very truly yours,
"LEIGHTON CALKINS."

NEW BRADY SHOW AT THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"The Man Who Came Back," William A. Brady's new play, will be presented at the Plainfield Theatre Saturday afternoon and evening, by a notable cast. The play is by Jules Eckert Goodman, founded on a story by John Feming Wilson, which attracted considerable attention when published in one of the leading magazines.

Mr. Goodman's last play before this was "Treasure Island," which scored one of the big successes in New York last winter. In "The Man Who Came Back" there are six scenes, and Mr. Brady has arranged to have each of these especially elaborate and the play which comes here will be what is known as a "big show."

The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, through its superintendent of soldiers and sailors, Mrs. Ella Hoover Thacher, has sent twenty-four electric fans, 2,000 hand fans and several cases of grape juice to the soldiers at Fort Bliss Hospital, El Paso, Tex. The Plainfield union has contributed $5 to this work and the members would like to give $100 or more to the worthy object for the moral and physical betterment of the men at the front.

Those wishing to contribute to such a fund are requested to send the same to Mrs. E. M. Negley, 711 Plainfield avenue, treasurer, or to Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, 212 East Seventh street, president.

R. R. HEADS MAY DEFY PRESIDENT

Formal Rejection of His Proposal Is Expected This Afternoon.

CONFERENCE STILL ON

"Big Barons" Worked All Night With Coats and Collars Off—They Are Determined to Die Hard—Hope of a Trade.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The railroad presidents and managers held a conference this morning at 11 o'clock. President Wilson will probably hear their formal rejection of his proposal this afternoon. The railroad executives at noon still were in session. Indications were that they would continue in conference throughout the afternoon. No hour has been fixed yet for a renewal of the White House conferences.

In a secret conference at the Metropolitan Club last night a limited number of the "big barons" of the railroad world, representing a hundred thousand miles of track and two billions of capital, determined upon a course of action. They were to place it before their fellow executives for ratification at a conference this morning.

With coats and collars off, these men labored with the problem until an early hour today. When they adjourned the opinion prevailed that a peaceful adjustment of the threatened commerce crisis would be effected.

The roads will die hard, however. They will not yield, it was declared today, unless they can trade with the President and gain some "offsetting advantages," some "adequate compensation" for accepting what they degards as a "revolutionary change" in the eight-hour day proposal.

WILLARD MARSTON DEAD AT FANWOOD

Popular Athlete, Once Employed In Local Bank, Succumbs to Long Illness.

After a lingering illness of several months, Willard Marston died in his twenty second year at his home on Midway place, Fanwood, yesterday of pulmonary troubles. Marston was well known among the younger set of Plainfield, Westfield, Scotch Plains and Fanwood. He was star centre on the Scotch Plains Parish House basketball team of three years ago and for the past two years he had been pivot man for the Recreation Five, the fastest quintet in the city. He had worked at various times in the Westfield People's National Bank and the Plainfield Trust Company, but recently he had been employed by a New York bank.

Marston was born and lived for a number of years in Brooklyn, but had been a resident of Fanwood for the past seven years. Besides his mother, he is survived by a younger brother, Everett.

Funeral services will be held at the late home tomorrow afternoon and will be private. Interment will be in Cedar Grove cemetery, Brooklyn.

SEEK CAUSE FOR DEATH OF BORO SHADE TREES

In an effort to ascertain the cause of the death of four shade trees on Craig place, North Plainfield, the borough authorities brought the matter to the attention of the Shade Tree Commission and prompt action was taken. At first it was thought that the trees had been killed by electric wires. But such was not found to be the case. The probability of there being a disease prevalent in that particular cluster of trees was also disproved.

Thorough investigation brought out the fact that the gas mains may have caused the trouble. In order to determine whether or not this was the reason that could be assigned for the death of the trees, the authorities requested the gas company to investigate. This morning a gang of men were at work digging. It is thought that perhaps a leakage has been responsible for the loss of the trees.

TRINITY COMMANDERY ATTEND FUNERAL OF ARCHIBALD COLE

PRESS REPRESENTATIVE WILL GO TO DOUGLAS

James J. McNamee Will Leave Tomorrow For New Jersey Military Camp.

With a view to establishing border news service, dealing especially with that concerning Troop D, of Plainfield, the Plainfield Daily Press has decided to send a special representative to the Douglas, Ariz., National Guard camp. James J. McNamee, advertising manager of the Press, will leave Plainfield tomorrow morning for a six weeks' stay with the guardsmen as a news correspondent.

First hand information regarding the border situation and the life Plainfield militiamen are living at Douglas will be furnished readers of this paper, the service being one such as no other newspaper of this size has ever carried. For some time past news matter of an indefinite nature has been arriving here from border camps and it is with a view to clearing up a number of vague points that the Plainfield Daily Press is sending a representative to the west.

McNamee will go by way of Chicago, then to El Paso, Tex., and will arrive at Douglas late Sunday night. This will also aid in the establishment of an information bureau at the border for interested Plainfielders and readers of the Press who may have relatives or friends at the international border may obtain information concerning the soldiers by addressing the Press representative at the New Jersey Militia Camp, Douglas, Ariz.

EDGAR WILL SEEK A RE-NOMINATION

First Ward Councilman Announces His Candidacy and Files Petition.

Councilman A. D. Edgar, of the First ward, announced last night that he would seek a renomination for councilmanic honors at the fall primaries, and had already filed his petition with the city clerk. In connection with the announcement yesterday that Frederick S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue, would be a candidate for the councilmanic nomination on the Republican ticket, information was furnished that Mr. Edgar would probably not run again for office. His friends, however, have persuaded him to enter the primaries.

Mr. Edgar, who has always been a Republican, is said to have the backing of the party organization here, although according to a rule, no official endorsing will be given unless the nomination is secured. The fact that Mr. Edgar and Mr. Cutter will both seek the nomination will insure a lively campaign in the First ward. The latter is said to have a large number of friends who will support his candidacy, while Mr. Edgar is sure to count on many friends who will work for his success.

4TH WARD REPUBLICANS HAVE MEETING TONIGHT

Members of the Fourth Ward Republican Club will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the offices of Coddington & Blatz for a discussion of the coming campaign. It is expected that the club will indorse the administration of Mayor Calkins and add its voice to those requesting that he again be a candidate for Mayor, and also indorse Francis J. Blatz, president of the Common Council, and urge him to run again.

SERB ARMY GETS BACK AT BULGARS

Takes Prominent Part In New Drive In the Balkans.

SLIGHT GAINS MADE

Teutonic Allies Resist Offensive On Full 150 Mile Front, However, and Almost Reach the Greek Soil.

London, Aug. 22.—French, British, Russian, Italian and Serbian troops are massed along the 150-mile Balkan front in a concerted drive on the first line of Bulgarian trenches, and slight successes are reported for the reorganized Serbian army on the extreme left wing as a result of last night's fighting.

However, the Serbs have abandoned Banitza to the Bulgars, they admit, and are fighting fiercely to hold newly thrown up trenches in that section.

French and British troops have crossed the Struma on the right wing and are attacking a strong Bulgarian position between Demirhissar and Sores.

Terrific pounding of the main Bulgarian positions by the big guns of the Allies preparatory to an infantry assault on the centre of the 150-mile front is announced by the French War Office.

Bulgar Attack Continues.

Meanwhile the Bulgars and their Teutonic allies have not relaxed the pressure on both wings of the 150-mile line. They forced the Serbs to yield more ground southwest of Monastir, and drove their line to within seven miles of the Greek port of Kavala, on the extreme eastern wing.

Hungary Is Threatened.

London, Aug. 22.—Hungary is more seriously threatened with a Russian invasion by successes in the Carpathian passes announced today. The Russians have driven the Austrians out of two towns on the Cheremosh river, Fereskul and Jablonitza, on the border of Galacia and Bukowina.

The Russian troops are now fighting in two of he Carpathian passes east of the region south of Kuty. At the same time the drive on Korel, though it goes more slowly, still proceeds. The Russians announce advances at some points in the fighting along the Stokhod, near Kovel and Rudka-Chervische.

REQUEST RAILROAD TO FILL IN DITCH

President Cockburn was authorized to see the proper officials of the New Jersey Central Railroad in regard to having the deep ditch which runs along its property on Washington avenue from North avenue to the tracks filled in.

Attributing the slim attendance at the meetings of the organization to the supposition that the regular meeting nights have been conflicting with the council meetings, one of the members suggested that the meeting night be changed from the third Monday of the month to the third Tuesday or Wednesday. Borough Clerk William P. Deering, however, pointed out that the respective organizations have only met on the same night once in the past thirty-six months.

The board received an invitation to attend the meeting of the State Commission on Road Legislation, to be held in the freeholders' room, New Brunswick, on Tuesday, August 29, at 2 p. m.

WILL NOT ENTER RACE

belt.

"There are still voters who think representative government should be a government by marionette. If you want a marionette in the Senate you don't want another Martine. The next few years will be fraught with great danger of international tangles. A vote for Senator Martine is at least a sure vote for a man whom we all know always votes 'America first.'

"In the Presidential race, unless some tremendous upheaval happens between now and November, Mr. Wilson's hand will remain on the helm for another term.

"The world at large has discarded all old charts for international navigation, and it is still busy making. God only knows what kind of new ones. Mr. Wilson better than any living man, knows the rocks and shoals charted on the maps now being made. To ship a new pilot during the present storm would be inviting a disaster, who knows how great?

"Two years ago, when Europe opened the great game with five kings, Mr. Wilson made up his mind to stay out. If Mr. Hughes or the Republican party can prove to the voters of America that we should then, or now, enter a game opened with five kings, then, if they can prove that, Mr. Hughes and the Republican party are entitled to the administration of this country.

"We have the paradox in this land of 21,000,000 men serviceable for military duty, while a Presidential election only registers abou 15,000,000 votes. In the event of a close election the barbers are numerous enough to insure Mr. Wilson's election. And the barbers' poll shows they are all for Wilson.

"If there is anything wrong with this country the average man blames politics. For what is wrong in this country blame our apathy toward politics. What excuse have six to eight million men to offer for not voting? We keep on, year after year, making the dollar a little more elastic and more talkative and let the business of running the nation, the greatest business we can ever put our hands to, take care of itself.

"There are no broad political questions this year. Let us muster a vote equal to our military strength. That we can call ourselves the richest nation on earth is not our fault, but the design of the Creator in giving us unequalled natural wealth. To makes ourselves the greatest nation on earth is our every individual duty. America gives each and every one of us unbounded opportunity. Ask yourself what you can do for your country. Then, there being no time like the present, do it. If you have no constructive ideas on how to help to make our government a success read over the Constitution from preamble to fifteenth amendment, and ideas will come to you."

MOBUS URGED TO RUN FOR ASSEMBLY

Friends of Borough Councilman Want Him to Enter Primary Contest This Fall.

Announcement was made today that the friends of Councilman Frank Mobus, of North Plainfield, are urging him to enter the Assembly contest on the Democratic ticket this fall, and it is believed that he will consent to make the fight for political honors.

Mr. Mobus, who is serving his first term as a councilman in the borough, was formerly sheriff of Somerset county, his record while in office being an excellent one. At the time he was elected sheriff he carried North Plainfield by 450 majority, and he also polled a big vote in other parts of the county. He was elected councilman by a large majority.

The friends of Mr. Mobus feel sure that should he consent to enter the primary contest he will not only get the nomination, but be successful at the November election. It is likely that petitions will soon be circulated in behalf of Mr. Mobus and his supporters say that there will be no trouble in his conducting a successful campaign.

REVENUE BILL IS NOW UP FOR FINAL PASSAGE

Washington, Aug. 22.—With the fate of the emergency revenue bill at stake, Administration leaders today broke the ranks of the insurgents, capturing enougoh insurgent votes to defeat by a vote of 32 to 23 the motion of Senator Smith, of South Carolina, to take up the immigration measure. Although today's vote cleared the path of all obstructions for the $205,000,000 revenue bill it does not permanently dispose of the immigration question. The five Democratic insurgents who changed their vote on the motion announced that they reserved the right to demand a vote on the immigration bill before the adjournment of Congress.

MOVED THE LOGGAN STONE.

Then He Had the Costly Job of Moving It Back Again.

Do you know what happens to the iconoclast who attempts to prove to the world that there is nothing in its pet superstitions? Did you ever hear the story of the British naval lieutenant who demonstrated the fact that there was nothing supernatural about the Loggan stone? Out there at the tip of Land's End, close to where the pirates of Penzance used to hold forth, the huge mass of rock rested on the top of the cliff, so delicately poised that a child could make it rock this way and that. A gust of wind would set it to vibrating, and yet for hundreds of years it had been believed that no earthly force could dislodge it from its position. Then along came the lieutenant, who laughed at all such silly superstition. He would prove to the deluded people of Cornwall that the Loggan stone could be dumped into the sea by the physical prowess of a few sturdy sailors.

Luckily for his position in the navy of his majesty, George IV., the lieutenant succeeded only in hurling the charmed rock a little way down the cliff, where it lodged in a shelving crevice, for such a howl went up, not only from the guides and tavern people who made a living off of the tourists who came to see the quivering bowlder, but from the antiquaries and scientists who believed that the rock had been delicately poised there by the druid priests or that it illustrated a little understood force of nature, that the admiralty sent word to the impious young officer that he would either restore the Loggan stone to its place or forfeit his. A derrick and a month's salary were required to set the stone in its place.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ANTIQUITY OF CHEESE.

The Bible Mentions It, as Do Homer and Other Early Writers.

Cheese and curdling of the milk are mentioned in the book of Job. David was sent by his father, Jesse, to carry ten cheeses to the camp and to look how his brother fared. "Cheese of kine" formed part of the supplies of David's army at Mahanaim during the rebellion of Absalom.
